CHAPTER I: INTRODUCTION

1. OVERVIEW

(i) Introduction

1. The Accused in this case is Ildéphonse Nizeyimana. During the relevant period, Nizeyimana was a captain at the military training school in Butare town called the École des Sous-Officiers, which is commonly referred to as the “ESO”. The Prosecution charges Ildéphonse Nizeyimana with genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes for violence perpetrated in Butare prefecture, and, for the most part, in Butare town. The Prosecution alleges that from the moment of President Juvénal Habyarimana’s death on the night of 6 April 1994, Nizeyimana mobilised ESO soldiers and others to rape and kill Tutsis, as well as other civilians.

2. The Defence evidence confirms that many of the particularised killings that Nizeyimana is charged with did in fact occur. However, it disputes that Nizeyimana had anything to do with the killings and challenges the quality of the Prosecution evidence implicating Nizeyimana. It also presented alibi evidence that Nizeyimana was not in Butare town when many of the killings happened.¹

(ii) Rape and Kill Order, 7 April 1994

3. The Indictment alleges that, around 7 April 1994, Nizeyimana ordered soldiers to kill Tutsi civilians and rape Tutsi women. This allegation was supported by a single witness, who testified that he was an ESO soldier who overheard Nizeyimana issue these instructions while at the ESO Camp in Butare on 7 April.

4. The Defence confronted this witness with the evidence he gave in a Rwandan Gacaca proceeding, wherein he stated he was a member of the Para Commando Battalion living in Kigali in April 1994. In that same proceeding, the witness indicated that he did not go to Butare during the month of April. The Chamber has found this witness unreliable. Accordingly, this allegation is not proved beyond reasonable doubt. Other incidents, such as the rape at Rosalie Gicanda’s home, which are also only supported by this witness, have not been proven either.

(iii) Sexual Violence

5. The Indictment alleges that from 6 April 1994, Witness BUQ and others were repeatedly raped by soldiers at residences near the ESO Camp. Similarly, it also alleges that soldiers and others, including Interahamwe, raped Witnesses MKA, ZBL and DCO inside or near the Butare University Hospital between April and July.

6. The Chamber has no doubt that each of these women was raped. However, none of their testimonies sufficiently implicate Nizeyimana. While the record establishes that, on one occasion, Witness BUQ was raped by an ESO soldier, the evidence fails to demonstrate that Nizeyimana knew or would have had reason to know about this. With respect to Witnesses MKA, ZBL and DCO, the Chamber is not satisfied that their identification of ESO soldiers as the perpetrators is sufficiently reliable. Accordingly, the record fails to establish an evidentiary basis upon which Nizeyimana may be held liable for these crimes.

(iv) Training and Distributions of Weapons

7. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana bears criminal responsibility for the training of civilians and the distribution of weapons. Evidence presented in relation to these allegations fails to demonstrate ensuing criminal conduct for which Nizeyimana can be held liable. They are accordingly dismissed.

(v) Meetings

8. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana participated in several meetings between 7 and 20 April 1994, during which he is alleged to have ordered soldiers and militia to kill Tutsi civilians. There is evidence that, around 7 April, Nizeyimana was present at an assembly of ESO soldiers, and that afterward, many were deployed to various defensive positions around Butare town. However, the evidence fails to demonstrate that express orders were given to kill Tutsis or that any resulting criminal conduct followed from the orders given at the assembly.

9. With respect to the alleged meetings or assemblies that occurred on 8 and 20 April 1994 at ESO Camp, the Prosecution led no direct evidence supporting such events. Similarly, evidence supporting meetings at Gatsinzi's Bar in the second half of April and at Gahenerezo around 21 or 22 April was led through a single accomplice witness. His uncorroborated testimony does not establish these allegations beyond reasonable doubt.

(vi) Killing of the Ruhutinyanya Family

10. The evidence demonstrates that, around 17 April 1994, members of the Ruhutinyanya family, which included Tutsis, attempted to flee to Burundi through the Akanyaru border crossing. However, angry and armed civilians at a roadblock near the border threatened this convoy and refused to let it to pass.

11. Prosecution and Defence evidence confirms that ESO soldiers extricated the family and brought them to the ESO Camp. In this context, the Indictment alleges that members of the Ruhutinyanya family were killed on Nizeyimana's instructions.

12. Two Prosecution witnesses provided direct evidence that, on the evening of the Ruhutinyanya family's arrival at the ESO Camp, Nizeyimana was not happy with the presence of this Tutsi family. The following day, around 18 April 1994, two other Prosecution witnesses overheard Nizeyimana order that the family be returned to the location where they had been found. The Chamber finds this Prosecution evidence credible.

13. It is undisputed that ESO soldiers escorted members of the Ruhutinyanya family from the ESO Camp that day. No Prosecution witness saw what happened to the Ruhutinyanya family. However, several Prosecution and Defence witnesses learned that they were killed at the same roadblock near the Akanyaru border crossing. One Defence witness, an ESO soldier who escorted the family, testified that the soldiers and the family were attacked at the roadblock. The soldiers were forced to flee without the family. Another Defence witness also heard that this is what occurred.

14. The Chamber finds the Defence evidence that ESO soldiers were attacked at the roadblock and forced to flee unbelievable. It is further undermined by general evidence establishing the ability of armed soldiers to move through roadblocks. Notably, another Defence witness escorted Tutsi civilians on this same route days later. While he and the ESO soldiers experienced hostility, they managed to get the Tutsis past roadblocks by merely threatening to use force.

15. Under the circumstances, the only reasonable conclusion is that Nizeyimana ordered the removal of the Ruhutinyanya family knowing that the implementation of this order would lead to their slaughter. The Chamber has no doubt that either the ESO soldiers who transported the family to the roadblock and or the armed civilians and Interahamwe manning it directly participated in the killing of members of this family. The Chamber finds Nizeyimana criminally responsible for his role in these killings.

(vii) Attack on Cyahinda Parish

16. The record demonstrates that, around mid April 1994, Tutsis fled ethnically driven attacks in the Gikongoro and Butare prefectures border region. Thousands gathered at Cyahinda Parish in Nyakizu commune, Butare prefecture. The refugees continued to come under attack at Cyahinda Parish. On one occasion, they successfully defended themselves against an assault led by a local official, killing at least two gendarmes in the process.

17. Subsequently, around 17 April 1994, Nizeyimana travelled to Cyahinda Parish as part of a security delegation to meet with the refugees there. The single most significant event that followed this meeting was an attack on Cyahinda Parish around 18 April 1994. Thousands were killed. Survivors fled. The Indictment alleges that ESO and other soldiers, gendarmes and armed civilians participated in this massacre, and that Nizeyimana ordered and authorised it.

18. Three Prosecution witnesses provided direct and consistent evidence that soldiers participated in this attack. One witness, a former gendarme from Butare town, observed ESO's Chief Warrant Officer Paul Kanyashyamba and around 11 ESO soldiers supporting other attackers with heavy artillery and specialised weapons. Having considered relevant Defence evidence, much of which is indirect, the Chamber considers the Prosecution evidence established beyond reasonable doubt.

19. There is no direct evidence of Nizeyimana's presence during the attack on Cyahinda Parish. However, it is significant that the ESO Camp served as the operational command for the Butare and Gikongoro region. In this context, Nizeyimana was an officer charged with military intelligence and operations. Furthermore, evidence reflects that Nizeyimana generally issued orders to and held power over Chief Warrant Officer Paul Kanyashyamba, a participant in the attack. Finally, it is significant that in this final assault, ESO soldiers utilised specialised arms that could, from a safe distance, weaken structural safe havens and kill refugees, who had demonstrated a capacity to defend themselves.

20. Given these factors, the only reasonable conclusion is that Nizeyimana planned and authorised the participation of ESO soldiers in this attack. Nizeyimana's visit to Cyahinda Parish necessarily allowed him to assess the strengths and weaknesses of the displaced Tutsis who had fortified themselves within the parish facilities. The weapons employed by ESO soldiers demonstrate a nuanced understanding of the situation, and undoubtedly are a reflection of Nizeyimana's contribution to the planning and authorisation of the assault. The Chamber finds Nizeyimana criminally responsible for his role in this attack.

(viii) Killing of a Young Woman as well as the Maniraho and Ngarambe Families

21. The Indictment alleges that, in late April or early May 1994, Nizeyimana ordered the killing of a young Tutsi woman. It further accuses Nizeyimana of having ordered the killing of Jérôme Ngarambe, Jean Marie Vianney Maniraho and members of their families.

22. That these killings occurred is undisputed. The Prosecution witness who implicated Nizeyimana in these attacks conceded to having murdered the young woman and to have raided the Ngarambe household immediately before he and his family were killed. Defence evidence confirms that this witness had a close personal relationship with Nizeyimana and that he spent time at Nizeyimana's home around the period these killings occurred.

23. Notwithstanding, his evidence implicating Nizeyimana is uncorroborated. As an alleged accomplice to these crimes and an apparent fugitive at the time of his testimony, the Chamber views his evidence with caution. His testimony alone, cannot demonstrate Nizeyimana's involvement beyond reasonable doubt. These allegations are dismissed.

(ix) Attacks on the National University of Rwanda

24. The Indictment alleges that, starting 16 April 1994, Nizeyimana ordered soldiers and militia known as Interahamwe to kill Tutsi civilians at Butare University.

25. The evidence reflects that Presidential Guards, supported by ESO soldiers, came to Butare University on 21 April 1994. Using lists, the soldiers separated Tutsis from Hutus, and subsequently killed the Tutsis. However, there is no evidence establishing that Nizeyimana contributed to this operation in any way. Likewise, given the participation of Presidential Guards, the Chamber has doubts that Nizeyimana exercised effective control over these ESO soldiers who participated in this attack. Nizeyimana cannot be held responsible for their crimes.

26. The Indictment also alleges that, on 22 April 1994, Nizeyimana went to the Butare University, where he shot and killed four Tutsi women. This was supported by a single accomplice witness. The Chamber has general concerns about his credibility. His evidence, in this instance, cannot support findings beyond reasonable doubt. Other alleged crimes at Butare University were insufficiently supported to establish their occurrences and are, consequently, dismissed.

(x) Killing of Rosalie Gicanda

27. It is undisputed that Rosalie Gicanda, the former Tutsi Queen of Rwanda, was killed towards the end of April 1994. Prosecution and Defence evidence confirms that ESO Second Lieutenant Bizimana led ESO soldiers who removed Gicanda and others from her home and killed them. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana ordered and authorised this killing.

28. The Defence points to evidence, which it suggests, indicates that the killing occurred on 21 April, when Nizeyimana was not in Butare. Defence evidence about the timing is inconclusive, and in some cases supports other evidence that the killing happened around 20 April 1994. Furthermore, two Prosecution witnesses observed Bizimana report the killing to Nizeyimana. The Chamber finds the Prosecution evidence implicating Nizeyimana in this killing established beyond reasonable doubt.

29. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber concludes that Nizeyimana authorised the killing of Rosalie Gicanda. Defence evidence that Bizimana was punished for this attack was unpersuasive, lacked credibility and was contradicted by other evidence. Nizeyimana bears criminal responsibility for this crime.

(xi) Roadblocks

30. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana is responsible for the killing of Remy Rwekaza and the shooting of Witness ZAV, both Tutsis, at the Gikongoro and Kigali roads junction roadblock around 21 April 1994. It further alleges that ESO soldiers acting on Nizeyimana's orders and authorisation killed a Tutsi professor, Pierre Claver Karenzi, at the nearby Hotel Faucon roadblock on the same day. Finally, the Indictment alleges that, around 5 May 1994, Nizeyimana ordered the killing of Beata Uwambaye, a Tutsi, at the roadblock where Rwekaza was killed and Witness ZAV shot.

31. Turning to the killing of Remy Rwekaza and the shooting of Witness ZAV around 21 April 1994, as well as the killing of Beata Uwambaye at the same roadblock weeks later, the Prosecution presented compelling first-hand evidence that Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to perpetrate these attacks. The Defence has presented alibi evidence, indicating that on both dates, Nizeyimana was in Gikongoro prefecture. For the reasons detailed in the judgement, the Chamber has found that Nizeyimana's alibi is not credible and does not call into question the evidence supporting these allegations. The Chamber has found that Nizeyimana is criminally responsible for the killings of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye. He is also liable for the serious bodily harm to Witness ZAV.

32. There is no direct evidence implicating Nizeyimana in the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock around 21 April 1994. However, the record demonstrates that the Hotel Faucon roadblock was among a network of geographically proximate roadblocks manned by ESO soldiers that were openly and notoriously targeting and killing Tutsis during this period in April.

33. The only reasonable inference is that the instructions Nizeyimana issued at the Gikongoro and Kigali roads junction roadblock were necessarily transmitted and consistent with those issued to the Hotel Faucon roadblock only a short distance down the road. In light of Nizeyimana's high rank and considerable authority within the ESO, as well as his proven involvement in killings at a nearby roadblock, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana authorised the killing of Tutsis, and by implication, the murder of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock. He is criminally responsible for this killing. The Chamber, however, has not found that Nizeyimana can be held liable for the killing of Karenzi's wife, Alphonsine Mukamusoni, at the Karenzi residence on the same day.

(xii) Attack on the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya Residences

34. Prosecution and Defence evidence confirms that in the last third of April 1994, the homes of Butare's Deputy Prosecutor, Jean Baptiste Matabaro, and a Butare Sub-Prefect, Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya, were raided. These two officials, members of their families and others staying in their residences in Butare town were executed a short distance away. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana led ESO soldiers in this attack.

35. Three Prosecution witnesses provided first-hand evidence of Nizeyimana's involvement in this murder operation. They testified that it occurred in the early evening of 22 April 1994. The Defence, however, presented evidence that this attack occurred on 21 April. It points to Prosecution evidence that also supports this conclusion. Furthermore, it relies on alibi evidence indicating that Nizeyimana was not in Butare on the evening of 21 April.

36. Having considered all the relevant evidence, the Chamber finds the Prosecution evidence in regards to these killings established beyond reasonable doubt. The alibi is not credible and does not call into question Nizeyimana's involvement in this attack. He is criminally liable for it.

(xiii) Attacks on Butare University Hospital

37. The Indictment charges Nizeyimana with several specific killings at the Butare University Hospital starting around 22 April 1994, as well as general killings by particular soldiers, including ESO soldiers.

38. There is no direct evidence of Nizeyimana's involvement in any particular killings at Butare University Hospital. Some Prosecution evidence tends to implicate Presidential Guards in targeted attacks. While the record demonstrates that an ESO soldier killed a man as alleged in the Indictment, evidence of Nizeyimana's involvement is indirect and unconvincing. He cannot be held responsible. Other evidence of killings is insufficient to support findings beyond reasonable doubt or establish Nizeyimana's liability. These allegations are dismissed.

(xiv) Attacks on Groupe Scolaire

39. Evidence before the Chamber leaves no doubt that ESO soldiers, led by ESO Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi, abducted between 50 and 140 Tutsi civilians from Groupe Scolaire around 29 April 1994. These civilians were taken to Rwasave valley where soldiers and Interahamwe killed them. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana ordered and authorised these killings.

40. Two Prosecution witnesses placed Nizeyimana at the Groupe Scolaire during the attack. However, the Chamber has fundamental concerns about the ability of one witness to identify Nizeyimana. With respect to the second Prosecution witness, the Chamber has general concerns about his credibility given his status as an accomplice. Furthermore, his evidence implicating Nizeyimana was brief and general. The record fails to support Nizeyimana's criminal liability on any basis. Evidence in support of another purported attack at Groupe Scolaire was indirect. It cannot support findings beyond reasonable doubt.

(xv) Attack on Benebikira Convent

41. The Indictment alleges that, around 30 April 1994, militia as well as ESO and Ngoma camp soldiers removed 25 Tutsi children from the Benebikira Convent. The Indictment further charges that these children were brought to an area below the Ineza Hotel and killed with others in Nizeyimana's presence.

42. The record reflects that Ngoma Camp soldiers participated in the abduction of Tutsi children from the Benebikira Convent and their subsequent killing. However, only one witness testified that ESO soldiers participated in this attack. The Chamber has some concerns about the credibility of this aspect of his testimony. Likewise his evidence implicating Nizeyimana is weak. The Chamber further views this witness's evidence with caution given his status as an alleged accomplice. It cannot support findings beyond reasonable doubt.

(xvi) Verdict

43. On the basis of the proven criminal conduct, and as set forth in detail in the Legal Findings (III), the Chamber has found Nizeyimana guilty of genocide, extermination and murder as crimes against humanity as well as murder as a war crime. The Chamber has entered convictions pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute. In some instances, the Chamber has concluded that Nizeyimana could also bear criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute for the same conduct. However, it would be impermissible to enter convictions under both articles. Consequently, the Chamber has only considered Nizeyimana's superior responsibility in light of sentencing.

(xvii) Sentence

44. Having considered the gravity of the crimes for which Nizeyimana has been convicted, as well as all the aggravating and mitigating circumstances, the Chamber has the discretion to impose a single sentence and chooses to do so. Considering the relevant circumstances, the Chamber sentences Ildéphonse Nizeyimana to life imprisonment. He shall remain in the custody of the Tribunal pending transfer to the state where he will serve his sentence.

2. ALLEGATIONS OF BIAS

45. On 8 November 2011, the Defence filed its Closing Brief.² Contained therein, under the Chapter “Legal Issues”, is a section related to the appearance of bias. Specifically, the Defence raised the issue of appearance of bias with respect to Presiding Judge Muthoga, and, by implication, the entire Bench.³

46. On 15 March 2012, the Chamber issued a proprio motu decision dismissing the Defence arguments set forth in its Closing Brief.⁴ The Chamber noted that the Defence had not requested the disqualification of the Presiding Judge or Bench.⁵ Accordingly, the Chamber found that the general Defence submissions and observations regarding bias did not amount to an application for disqualification as envisaged by Rule 15(B). Furthermore, the Chamber held that case-law prevented the Presiding Judge or the Bench from ruling on allegations of bias against it.⁶

47. In its decision, the Chamber observed that an application for disqualification should have instead been made to the Presiding Judge of the Chamber seised of the proceedings, which in this case is Judge Vagn Joensen, the Presiding Judge of Trial Chamber III.⁷ The Defence has not filed any further application with respect to this allegation.

² Nizeyimana Defence Closing Brief (“Closing Brief”), 8 November 2011.

⁶ Proprio Motu Decision on Defence Submissions of Bias (TC), 15 March 2012, paras. 7-8.

⁷ Proprio Motu Decision on Defence Submissions of Bias (TC), 15 March 2012, paras. 8-9; Corrigendum to Proprio Motu Decision on Defence Submissions of Bias (TC), 30 March 2012.

CHAPTER II: FACTUAL FINDINGS

1. RAPES OF WITNESS BUQ AND OTHERS, 6-9 APRIL 1994

Introduction

48. The Indictment alleges that between 6 April and 9 April 1994, FAR soldiers, under the operational region, command, and influence of Nizeyimana, raped Witness BUQ and her housemates daily at a residence near the ESO. Furthermore, on 9 April, one soldier removed Witness BUQ to a nearby house, where he raped her repeatedly for approximately two weeks. The Prosecution relies on the evidence of Witness BUQ.⁸

49. The Defence argues that Witness BUQ fabricated her evidence to implicate Nizeyimana, pointing to her membership in ABASA and her failure to affirm details of her evidence in the Hategekima case, where she testified on the same matter.⁹ It also questions the plausibility of her testimony with regard to the alleged sequence of events.¹⁰

Prosecution Witness BUQ

50. Witness BUQ, a Tutsi, lived in Butare town in 1994 with two other young women, Albertine and Cécile, not far from Nizeyimana's home.¹¹ Between about 8.00 and 8.30 p.m. on 6 April, following the news of President Habyarimana's death, the witness, Albertine, a Hutu, and Cécile, a Tutsi, were left alone in their residence.¹² Later that night, five soldiers forcibly entered the premises, stating that the plane of their "father" – Habyarimana – had crashed and they blamed Tutsis for having killed him.¹³ The soldiers were all heavily armed, carrying grenades and rifles and wearing camouflage fatigues, as well as berets.¹⁴ One of the attackers – dressed in an ESO uniform that the witness described as camouflage "combat uniform" and a black beret – referred to himself as "Rubaga" or "pitiless ... butcher", but she did not know his real name.¹⁵ She was later told by a soldier called Ndererimana that Rubaga was a driver at the ESO.¹⁶

⁸ Indictment, para. 32(i)-(iii); Prosecution Closing Brief paras. 207-210. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution did not lead any evidence supporting Indictment paragraph 32(iv) as it relates to a soldier called Ndererimana raping her for two weeks. See Witness BUQ, T. 17 February 2011, pp. 59-61 (testified that Ndererimana asked the witness if she was willing to be his wife; however, she only testified about this soldier checking in on her and bringing her food, without any mention of sexual violence occurring). Notably, the Prosecution makes no reference to this particular allegation in its Closing Brief. It is dismissed.

51. The soldiers told the young women that “Tutsis had been handed over” and “that their superiors had authorised them to rape as they wished”.¹⁷ Warning the women that there was nothing they could do, the soldiers undressed them and forced them into a room.¹⁸ Each of the five soldiers took turns raping the women for approximately 15 minutes.¹⁹

52. In light of the soldiers’ prior comments that “Tutsis had been handed over” and fearing that soldiers, who were from the area, would be blocking the roads, the witness and the other two women remained in their home.²⁰ On 7 April 1994, at an unspecified time, four different “soldiers” entered the premises and each took turns raping the young women.²¹ Like the soldiers before, they claimed that the women had no rights.²² During the attack Albertine disappeared and the witness does not know what happened to her.²³

53. Around 9 April 1994, in the mid afternoon, three different soldiers entered the residence, repeating the comments made on the previous two occasions that “Tutsis had killed their father” and that these women had been handed over.²⁴ After raping the witness, a soldier called Ndererimana, a Gisenyi native from the Ngoma Camp, told her that she was unlikely to survive and asked her to be his wife.²⁵ The witness accepted his proposal and they left while the other two soldiers were raping Cécile.²⁶ Ndererimana left the witness alone in a nearby house occasionally checking in on her and bringing her food.²⁷ Two weeks after her arrival, a soldier advised her to flee because the Inkotanyi were approaching and her life was at risk.²⁸ That night she left the house.²⁹ The witness suffered health problems requiring surgery as a result of the rapes.³⁰ She does not know what happened to Cécile since the last time she saw her in 1994.³¹

Deliberations

54. Through Witness BUQ, the Prosecution presented evidence that, on 6 April 1994, five soldiers forcibly entered the witness’s home to rape her and two other young women.³² Witness BUQ identified a “Rubaga” as coming from the ESO, primarily relying on his camouflage uniform and black beret.³³ Additionally, the Prosecution presented evidence of similar attacks by largely unidentified soldiers on 7 and 9 April.³⁴

55. The Defence challenges Witness BUQ's credibility based on her association with ABASA, a support group for surviving rape victims. It notes that other Prosecution witnesses belong to this organisation, raising concerns about evidence fabrication.³⁵ Evidence before the Chamber reflects that ABASA members share their experiences with each other and counselling experts.³⁶ Moreover, Prosecution Witness FAX was a member of ABASA and she and Witness BUQ knew each other.³⁷ Likewise, Prosecution Witness DCO also belonged to the group and identified Witnesses BUQ and FAX as members.³⁸

56. Notwithstanding, the record does not raise reasonable concerns that Witness BUQ's evidence is fabricated or that she received any coaching in order for her testimony to implicate Nizeyimana. Indeed, Witness BUQ is the sole witness testifying in support of these allegations. Her ABASA membership and related associations do not render her testimony unreliable or partial against the Accused. Furthermore, the mere fact that she testified to her belief that Nizeyimana was a superior within the ESO command structure is largely uncontested by Defence evidence. This too does not create reasonable concerns of bias on her part.

57. The Defence further asserts that Witness BUQ tailored her evidence to implicate Nizeyimana.³⁹ In particular, it notes that in the Hategekimana trial she testified about being raped by a Ngoma Camp soldier called Ndererimana when she was ultimately removed to a separate house around 9 April 1994. However, in this trial, she made no mention of being raped once removed to that location.

58. Like her testimony in Hategekimana, Witness BUQ confirmed that Ndererimana, a Ngoma Camp soldier, had removed her from her house around 9 April 1994. Notwithstanding, a summary of her evidence provided for by the Trial Chamber in Hategekimana indicates that she expressly testified that she was raped by Ndererimana during this period.⁴⁰ She did not testify to this effect in this proceeding, although, notably she was not expressly questioned by either party as to whether she was raped during this period.⁴¹

59. While the Chamber considers the variance between her testimony in Hategekimana and this proceeding material as it pertains to criminal conduct of Butare soldiers generally, it questions to what extent it raises concerns about her evidence implicating Nizeyimana through the actions of an ESO soldier called "Rubaga".⁴² There is a distinct possibility that ³⁸ Witness DCO, T. 10 February 2011, p. 69.

⁴² Indeed, the Defence has made no submissions suggesting that her testimony on the date of the early rapes in the Hategekimana proceeding is inconsistent with her testimony in this case. Notably, the Hategekimana trial

she did not provide evidence about being raped by Ndererimana after being removed in the Nizeyimana trial precisely because she was not expressly questioned and because the assailant was a Ngoma Camp soldier (rather than an ESO soldier). Indeed, the Chamber observes that her evidence as summarised by the Hategekimana Trial Chamber relating to the 6 April 1994 attack is materially consistent with her testimony in this proceeding in that it implicates an ESO soldier called “Rubaga”.⁴³

60. The Defence has also challenged Witness BUQ’s evidence as it relates to timing. It argues that while she provided a time-frame for the first attack in her testimony in the Hategekimana case, she refused to do so in this one. Notably, the Defence suggests that her evidence was not accepted by the Hategekimana trial, because the Chamber considered her testimony about the timing of the event unlikely.⁴⁴

61. The Chamber observes that Witness BUQ’s evidence reflects that she frequently had difficulty recalling the time or day of particular events.⁴⁵ Her inability to recall these details is reasonable given the traumatic nature of the events as well as the fact that she remained exclusively inside their home once the attacks started.⁴⁶ Nearly two years have elapsed since she testified in the Hategekimana trial. The Chamber is not convinced that her inability to provide an approximate time of day the first attack in this proceeding raises the reasonable possibility that her evidence is somehow fabricated to now implicate Nizeyimana.

62. Turning to Witness BUQ’s ability to identify the perpetrators, the Chamber observes that, during the 6 April 1994 attack, she singled out one of the assailants as an ESO soldier called “Rubaga”.⁴⁷ She explained that her identification was based on his camouflage judgement reveals that witness has consistently implicated ESO soldier “Rubaga” as participating in rapes in which she was a victim. See Hategekimana Trial Judgement, para. 174. As noted elsewhere, the Chamber does not consider that prior consistent statements bolster a witness’s credibility but may reflect that certain discrepancies are immaterial in nature.

⁴⁴ See Defence Closing Brief, paras. 460, 462.

⁴⁵ Regarding the first attack: Witness BUQ, T. 17 February 2011, pp. 57 (“Q. Approximately what time were you attacked by soldiers? A. During the night. I can’t tell you the precise time.”), 71 (“Q. Now, that was around 10 p.m., according to your previous testimony. Can you also confirm that? A. If you read my testimony – my statement – well, that is maybe the time I gave, but I have to state today that I do not recall the precise time. ... Q. Madam Witness, didn’t you testify before in the Hategekimana case that the neighbourhood was surrounded around 10 p.m. at night? A. I already stated that after my employers left, the soldiers arrived, but I didn’t specify when the soldiers entered the house.”). Regarding the second attack: T. 17 February 2011, p. 58 (“Q. What part of the day did the four soldiers arrive? A. For me the day was long. It was almost impossible for me to distinguish night from day and day from night. Therefore, I cannot tell you what time of the day or night it was.”). Regarding the third attack: T. 17 February 2011, p. 60 (“JUDGE PARK: Madam Witness, do you remember the approximate date of the third attack? THE WITNESS: I think that it was on the 9th, although it was difficult to tell the days. But I think it might have been on the 9th.”).

uniform and black beret, that during the attack he referred to himself by this name and that an Ngoma Camp soldier, Ndererimana, later confirmed that Rubaga was a driver at the ESO.⁴⁸

63. Although her description of Rubaga's uniform is consistent with other evidence about what soldiers in Butare – as opposed to gendarmes – were wearing in 1994, it fails to provide any characteristics that necessarily signal its distinctiveness as an ESO uniform.⁴⁹ Nevertheless, other evidence in the record suggests that a soldier referred to as “Rubaga” worked at the ESO.⁵⁰

64. Turning to the hearsay identification of Rubaga as an ESO soldier by Ndererimana, the Chamber observes that Witness BUQ specified that Rubaga and Ndererimana participated butcher, who fears nothing” (T. 17 February 2011, p. 72). The Chamber observes that the word kubaga in Kinyarwanda is the verb to slaughter.

⁴⁸ Witness BUQ, T. 17 February 2011, pp. 57, 61, 72.

in separate attacks.⁵¹ She explained that Ndererimana would still have been able to identify Rubaga not because she ever saw them together, but based on her belief that “they were all involved in the same operation”, they were acting with the approval of “the authorities”, and “they were all informed of what ... other soldiers were doing”.⁵²

65. The Chamber considers that the totality of this evidence provides considerable circumstantial features, which lead to only one reasonable conclusion that, on the evening of 6 to 7 April 1994, an ESO soldier referred to as “Rubaga” was among others who participated in an attack that involved the raping of Witness BUQ, another Tutsi female and a Hutu female. The statements by the assailants firmly establish that the point of the attack was motivated by the victims’ actual (and in one case perceived) Tutsi ethnicity.⁵³ The Chamber has no doubt that the acts constituted sexual violence, and based on Witness BUQ’s evidence she was a virgin prior to the rapes who subsequently required surgery as a result of them, that these acts resulted in severe mental and bodily harm.

66. Having considered and determined the above, the Chamber recalls that there is no direct evidence of Nizeyimana’s involvement in any of the attacks alleged by Witness BUQ. While she described the initial assailants as stating that they were following orders of their superiors, such evidence is hearsay, would be self-serving for the attackers at the time, and is of limited probative value. Furthermore, Nizeyimana was not expressly named as the superior who issued such instructions. Moreover, the Chamber has elsewhere found that evidence of Nizeyimana ordering ESO soldiers to rape and kill Tutsis on 7 April 1994 was unreliable.⁵⁴

67. Finally, Witness BUQ’s evidence raises the very reasonable possibility that only one of the assailants – “Rubaga” – was a soldier from the ESO camp. The relative privacy of the attacks creates questions as to whether Nizeyimana ordered, knew or would have known that an ESO soldier referred to as “Rubaga” raped Witness BUQ and two other women in a private residence on the evening of 6 to 7 April 1994. In so finding, the Chamber is mindful of the proximity of these attacks to the ESO camp and Nizeyimana’s home. However, such circumstances cannot lead to only one reasonable conclusion that Nizeyimana was involved in, aware of, or should have been aware of, this conduct, particularly in light of the relative privacy of the attack and its timing immediately after the President’s death.

68. Finally, the lack of any direct evidence implicating Nizeyimana in the subsequent attacks described by Witness BUQ, as well as ambiguities as to who the soldiers were, cannot support criminal liability against the Accused. While the Indictment seeks to establish Nizeyimana’s criminal liability for the conduct of soldiers other than those assigned to the ESO, the record as it relates to these crimes fails to create any reliable nexus to demonstrate criminal culpability. These allegations are dismissed.

⁵¹ See, e.g., Witness BUQ, T. 17 February 2011, p. 73 (“Q. ... Now, the soldiers who came the second time and the third time, they were different. If I understood correctly your evidence in chief, they were different people from the ones who came the first night. That is correct as well? A. Yes, they were different.”).

⁵² Witness BUQ, T. 17 February 2011, p. 73.

⁵³ Again, the statements Witness BUQ recalled hearing were very similar to women who were raped by soldiers elsewhere in Butare town. See Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, pp. 11-12 (“JUDGE FREMR: ... Had the soldiers before the rape and during the rape made any comments or had they provided you with an explanation of their behaviour? THE WITNESS: It was said that the soldiers had been – or, rather, that the Tutsis had been handed over and that they were supposed to die.”).

⁵⁴ The Chamber further notes that the evidence of Prosecution Witnesses BUR and YAA and about orders issued on the evening of 6 April 1994 also fail to reflect that Nizeyimana ordered soldiers to rape Tutsis. See Witness BUR, T. 2 February 2011, pp. 74-76; Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 60-61.

2. ORDER TO RAPE AND KILL TUTSIS, 7 APRIL 1994

Introduction

69. The Indictment alleges that, around 7 April 1994, Nizeyimana convened FAR officers and soldiers at the ESO and ordered them to kill Tutsi civilians and rape Tutsi women. The Prosecution makes no express reference to the relevant Indictment paragraph but appears to rely on the testimony of Witness BUR in support of it.⁵⁵ The Defence argues that Witness BUR's testimony is uncorroborated and that he is not credible. Defence Witnesses RWV11 and Thomas Ruzindana provided relevant evidence.⁵⁶

Evidence

Prosecution Witness BUR

70. In April 1994, Witness BUR, a Hutu, was a sergeant at the ESO in Butare.⁵⁷ The day following the death of the President, around 12.00 p.m., he observed a meeting in Muvunyi's office attended by Nizeyimana, Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi, Ngoma Camp Commander Ildéphonse Hategekimana, Tumba Gendarmerie Camp Commander Cyriaque Habyarabatura, the Gikongoro gendarmerie squad commander and the Nyanza gendarmerie squad commander.⁵⁸ The meeting lasted approximately 30 minutes and Nizeyimana subsequently convened a select group of between 100 to 200 soldiers on the camp's tarmac area.⁵⁹ Nizeyimana informed the soldiers that "they" had decided to kill Tutsis and take their property.⁶⁰ He also instructed them to kill Tutsis with bayonets in order to save bullets.⁶¹ Nizeyimana also "asked" the soldiers to rape Tutsi women and then kill them.⁶²

71. Following this, Nizeyimana ordered Witness BUR's section of 12 soldiers to patrol areas of Butare town inhabited by persons on a list, which the witness never saw, of important Tutsis to be killed.⁶³ He carried out patrols on foot around Butare town and went to Prefect Juvénal Habyarimana's home to ensure that he did not flee.⁶⁴ The witness was also

The Prosecution also references Witness BUR's testimony about this 7 April 1994 gathering as supporting Indictment paragraph 10(i). In that section of its Closing Brief, the Prosecution also points to the summaries of Witnesses AZD, BDE, ZAW, YAA and ZT, who also testified about a meeting at the ESO around 7 April 1994. See Prosecution Closing Brief, paras. 43-62. later instructed to go to Queen Gicanda's house and to supervise the situation at roadblocks, receiving these instructions in person and over the telecommunications radio directly from Nizeyimana.⁶⁵

Defence Witnesses RWV11 and Thomas Ruzindana

72. Witness RWV11, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO in April 1994.⁶⁶ Witness Ruzindana, an ESO cadet, was present at the ESO on 7 April.⁶⁷ They were unaware of any assembly on the ESO's tarmac on the morning of 7 April and both denied ever hearing Nizeyimana call on soldiers to rape Tutsis.⁶⁸

Deliberations

73. The Prosecution appears to rely solely on Witness BUR in support of the allegation that, during a 7 April 1994 assembly of soldiers at ESO, Nizeyimana ordered them to rape and kill Tutsis. Notably, several other Prosecution witnesses testified that Nizeyimana was either present at or spoke during an assembly of ESO soldiers on 7 April. Among other differences, none of these Prosecution witnesses testified that Nizeyimana expressly ordered the raping and killing of Tutsis and the looting of their properties.⁶⁹ The absence of any Prosecution evidence corroborating Witness BUR's account is surprising in light of the numerous Prosecution witnesses who testified that they were at the ESO on 7 April and led evidence of Nizeyimana's role at the assemblies that day.

74. Of greater significance, the Defence challenged that Witness BUR was assigned to the ESO in April 1994 or was even in Butare that month based on Rwandan Gacaca court records from February 2010. The relevant excerpt reflects that Witness BUR testified in a Gacaca proceeding and was asked if he was in Butare during the genocide. His recorded response was that he was a member of the Para Commando Battalion living in Kigali, that he went to Gitarama, left Gitarama for Gikongoro on 25 April, and left Gikongoro for Butare around 4 May. He went back to Gikongoro on 7 May.⁷⁰ Witness BUR was later asked how he could provide relevant evidence if he had only been in Butare for "two days".⁷¹ The record reflects him responding that he had asked fellow soldiers about the conduct of the accused in that proceeding.⁷²

75. The witness rejected the content of the Rwandan Gacaca court document, suggesting that the name to which such statements were attributed was different than his and that the document failed to demonstrate that it was the record from a Gacaca court.⁷³ Notably, he confirmed that the signature under the relevant text resembled his own.⁷⁴ Furthermore, the spelling of the name is consistent with the witness's.⁷⁵ Finally, the Chamber has no doubt about the authenticity of the document. The Defence cross-examined the witness with records provided by the Prosecution. The ultimate exhibit is a certified copy of Rwandan Gacaca court records.⁷⁶

76. The witness's account in Rwandan Gacaca court proceedings in February 2010, which was also given under oath, is materially inconsistent with his testimony before this Chamber as it relates to the alleged 7 April 1994 meeting.⁷⁷ It raises questions about his physical presence in Butare on that day (or at any time in April). It creates doubts about whether he was assigned to the ESO (and if he would have been present at an assembly of its soldiers), and about whether he could identify Nizeyimana generally. Indeed, no other Prosecution or Defence witness confirmed that Witness BUR was an ESO soldier or present at the camp in April.⁷⁸

77. Under the circumstances, the Chamber is of the view that his evidence lacks basic credibility. The possibility that ESO soldiers might have later raped and killed Tutsis in no way reconciles the Chamber's fundamental concerns about whether Witness BUR was even in Butare on 7 April 1994 to purportedly hear Nizeyimana issue orders to do so. This allegation is dismissed. In light of the above, the Chamber considers it unnecessary to evaluate the testimonies of Defence Witnesses RWV11 and Ruzindana here.⁷⁹

⁷⁵ Compare Exhibit P18 (Witness BUR's Personal Information Sheet), with Exhibit D14 (Gacaca Record), pp. 51, 55. In his testimony, the witness indicates that his name uses an "l" in place of an "r". The Chamber observes that throughout this proceeding these letters have been used interchangeably. Despite his suggestion that there is an "i" where a "u" should be, the witness's observation is incorrect as the Gacaca record uses a "u". Witness BUR, T. 3 February 2011, p. 82.

3. MEETINGS, 7-22 APRIL 1994

3.1 Meeting of 7 April 1994

Introduction

78. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana met with FAR officers and ESO soldiers, including Second Lieutenants Bizimana, Gakwerere, Ndayambaje, Gatsinzi and Chief Warrant Officer Ntibiramira at the ESO on 7 April 1994. These were some of many gatherings that occurred between 7 April and July where Tutsis were identified and listed to be killed. The Prosecution refers to Witnesses AZD, BDE, YAA, ZT, ZAW, ZY and BUR.⁸⁰

79. The Defence does not expressly deny that meetings took place on 7 April 1994, but submits that if any gathering occurred, it was an administrative, informative meeting devoid of any criminal conduct. Furthermore, Nizeyimana did not issue any criminal orders and the Prosecution evidence on this point is unreliable. Defence Witnesses CKN10, OUV03, CKN10, RWV11, Jean Népomuscène Bunani, ZML07, Thomas Ruzindana and ZML13 provided relevant evidence.⁸¹

Prosecution Witnesses AZD, BDE, YAA, ZT, ZAW and ZY

80. Witnesses AZD, BDE, YAA, ZT, ZAW and ZY were assigned to the ESO in April 1994.⁸² Witnesses AZD, YAA, ZAW, ZT and BDE all attended a general assembly of soldiers on the tarmac of the ESO on 7 April.⁸³ The assembly commenced between 7.00 or ⁸⁰ Indictment, paras. 9-10(i); Prosecution Closing Brief, paras. 43-62; T. 7 December 2011, pp. 7, 18 (Prosecution Closing Arguments). The Chamber recalls its finding that paragraph 9 is “relatively vague”, but that when read in conjunction with paragraph 10, “paragraph 9 is clearly intended to be an introduction” and cautions the Prosecution that an accused can only be convicted of crimes that are charged in the indictment. See Decision on Defence Preliminary Motion on Defects in the Indictment (TC), 15 December 2010, para. 39.

⁸² Witness AZD was a non-commissioned officer working in the camp. Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 64, 66; Exhibit P15 (Witness AZD’s Personal Information Sheet). Witness BDE was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994. Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, pp. 8-9; Exhibit P13 (Witness BDE’s Personal Information Sheet). Witness YAA was an instructor and warrant officer at the ESO in April 1994. Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 60; Exhibit P16 (Witness YAA’s Personal Information Sheet). Witness ZT was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994. Witness ZT, T. 7 February 2011, p. 7; Exhibit P19 (Witness ZT’s Personal Information Sheet). Witness ZAW was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994. Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 3; Exhibit P10 (Witness ZAW’s Personal Information Sheet). Witness ZY was a student at the ESO in April 1994. Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 45, 51, 52; Exhibit P11 (Witness ZY’s Personal Information Sheet).

⁸³ Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 70, 72; T. 1 February 2011, p. 46; Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 61-62; Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 40; Witness ZT, T. 7 February 2011, p. 8; Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 14. Witness ZY was not in Butare at that time, but later learned of an assembly occurring that day. Witness ZY, T. 27 January 2011, p. 15. Witness ZY did attend an assembly on 9 April, during which Nizeyimana spoke for about 20 minutes and told the soldiers present that they were no longer considered cadets and they would be carrying out military activities until further notice. She saw Nizeyimana go into his office with Warrant Officer Ntamuhanga, Warrant Officer Kubwimana and Sergeant Muhayimana. When Nizeyimana came out of his office again, the soldiers, including Witness ZY, were divided into sections and platoons and left. See Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 49-50.

8.00 a.m., and lasted for approximately 30 to 40 minutes.⁸⁴ Witnesses AZD, ZT, BDE and ZAW noted that all ESO soldiers were present at the gathering.⁸⁵ Various witnesses saw Captain Nizeyimana at the assembly and Witness YAA noted that Nizeyimana chaired the assembly.⁸⁶ Witness AZD identified Lieutenant Colonel Muvunyi, Théodore Sindikubwabo and Colonel Marcel Gatsinzi as attending, while Witness BDE recalled having seen Lieutenant Colonel Muvunyi, Second Lieutenant Bizimana, Second Lieutenant Alphonse Ndayambaje, Second Lieutenant Ezechiel Gakwerere and Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi.⁸⁷ Witness BDE recalled that Colonel Marcel Gatsinzi was in his office.⁸⁸

81. Colonel Muvunyi informed those present at the assembly that President Habyarimana's plane had been shot down, discussed the prevailing situation and told the soldiers that they were to remain on stand-by.⁸⁹ After Muvunyi spoke, Nizeyimana told the soldiers that President Habyarimana's plane had been shot down, calling the RPF responsible for the act.⁹⁰ Witness YAA heard Nizeyimana tell everyone that they had to ready themselves to intervene or to go on a mission if necessary.⁹¹ Witnesses BDE recalled Nizeyimana telling the cadets that classes were suspended, that they were now soldiers and as such responsible for providing security and that they had to wait for instructions.⁹²

82. Witnesses AZD and BDE observed Nizeyimana meet with unspecified platoon heads and company commanders in his office on 7 April 1994 following the gathering on the tarmac.⁹³ Witness BDE saw Nizeyimana enter his office, from the tarmac where she remained assembled with the other ESO soldiers.⁹⁴ Neither Witness AZD nor BDE attended the meeting, which, by Witness BDE's account, lasted between 10 and 15 minutes.⁹⁵

83. Witnesses AZD and BDE had already left when orders or instructions, if any, were given to soldiers after the platoon heads and company commanders meeting.⁹⁶ Witness AZD

Witness ZAW referred to an assembly during the day on 7 April 1994 but did not provide any details. See Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 40. Witnesses AZD, ZY, YAA, ZT and ZAW did not specify how long the assembly lasted.

was unaware of any other instructions handed down on 7 April 1994, but heard that roadblocks were set up in Butare town that day.⁹⁷ Witness BDE heard from male soldiers who had remained on the tarmac that they were placed into teams that would provide security in the city centre or take up positions in the camp.⁹⁸ She heard that soldiers had been deployed at locations including Magerwa (near the fuel depot), near Butare city's entrance at the roundabout near the crossroads leading to Gikongoro and the Taba neighbourhood, outside the Hotel Faucon, the roundabout at Kwabihira, at the entrance of the University of Rwanda and in front of the Arab Quarter.⁹⁹

84. According to Witness ZT, three platoons were formed with Second Lieutenant Jean-Pierre Bizimana assigned as the commander after the general assembly in the morning of 7 April 1994.¹⁰⁰ Some soldiers were then deployed to provide security to the camp, while others were assigned to various unidentified areas around Butare.¹⁰¹

85. In April 1994, Witness BUR, a Hutu, was a sergeant at the ESO in Butare.¹⁰² The day following the death of President Habyarimana, around 12.00 p.m., the witness observed a meeting in Colonel Muvunyi's office attended by Nizeyimana, Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi, Ngoma Camp Commander Ildéphonse Hategekimana, Tumba Gendarmerie Camp Commander Cyriaque Habyarabatuma, the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Squad Commander and the Nyanza Gendarmerie Squad Commander.¹⁰³ The meeting lasted approximately 30 minutes and Nizeyimana subsequently convened a select group of between 100 to 200 soldiers on the camp's tarmac area to receive instructions.¹⁰⁴

86. Nizeyimana informed the soldiers assembled of what had transpired at the meeting in Muvunyi's office, and told them that "they" had decided to kill Tutsis and to take their property.¹⁰⁵ Nizeyimana instructed the soldiers to kill Tutsis with bayonets in order to save bullets.¹⁰⁶ He also "asked" the soldiers to rape Tutsi women and then kill them.¹⁰⁷

87. Following the assembly, Nizeyimana ordered Witness BUR's section of 12 soldiers to patrol areas of Butare town inhabited by persons on a list of important Tutsis to be killed, which Nizeyimana had in his office.¹⁰⁸ Witness BUR never saw the list, but learned about its existence from Nizeyimana's escort, Léonidas Busharire.¹⁰⁹ Busharire told him that a deputy prosecutor working in the Butare prosecutors office was on the list, as well as the name

Sonera, an entrepreneur, and Mr. Bicakumuyange, Gatorano and Ndakaza.¹¹⁰ The latter was one of the important members of the Nkura football association.¹¹¹ Following Nizeyimana's instructions, the witness carried out patrols on foot around Butare town and went to Prefect Habyarimana's home to ensure that he did not flee.¹¹² The witness was also later instructed to go to Queen Gicanda's house and to supervise the situation at roadblocks, receiving these instructions in person and over the telecommunications radio directly from Nizeyimana.¹¹³

Defence Witness OUV03

88. Witness OUV03, a Hutu, was an officer who worked at the ESO in 1994.¹¹⁴ On the morning of 7 April, a meeting was held in Colonel Marcel Gatsinzi's office, not far from Witness OUV03's post.¹¹⁵ He observed that only officers who had attended a gathering on the evening of 6 April attended the meeting.¹¹⁶ There were about 15 people who attended that meeting.¹¹⁷ Nizeyimana did not attend the 6 April meeting, because he had the flu.¹¹⁸ After the meeting, Captain Twagiramungu and Gendarmerie Lieutenant Ndibwami, who had also attended the meeting, told the witness that they had discussed Colonel Gatsinzi's immediate appointment of army Chief of Staff and that Lieutenant Colonel Muvunyi would replace him as camp commander.¹¹⁹ No assembly was held on 7 April.¹²⁰

Defence Witnesses CKN10, RWV11, Jean Népomuscène Bunani, ZML07, Thomas Ruzindana and ZML13

89. Defence Witnesses CKN10, RWV11, Bunani, ZML07, Ruzindana and ZML13 were present at the ESO in April 1994.¹²¹ With the exception of Witness Ruzindana, each witness was in their respective defensive positions in or around the ESO camp on the evening of 6 April and into the morning of 7 April.¹²² None of the witnesses attended an assembly on 7 April and they did not see any meeting take place.¹²³

Deliberations

90. Prosecution Witnesses AZD, BDE, YAA, ZAW and ZT gave first-hand evidence about a general assembly that was held at the ESO on the morning of 7 April 1994. Witnesses AZD, YAA, BDE and ZT all saw Nizeyimana at this assembly and Witnesses AZD, YAA and BDE heard him address the gathering. Witnesses AZD and BDE saw Nizeyimana enter his office with the platoon heads and company commanders following the assembly. When they emerged from the meeting, soldiers were divided into platoons and ordered to deploy to various locations around Butare town.

91. At the outset, the Chamber notes that Witnesses AZD and BDE's second-hand and circumstantial evidence as it relates to the Nizeyimana's participation in a meeting involving FAR officers, and ESO soldiers, including Second Lieutenants Bizimana, Gakwerere, Ndayambaje, Gatsinzi and Chief Warrant Officer Ntibiramira, fails to implicate Nizeyimana in any criminal conduct. While the evidence reflects that ESO cadets were deployed in Butare town on or around 7 April 1994, shortly after President Habyarimana's plane crashed, there is no evidence of resulting criminal conduct as a consequence of this action.¹²⁴ Indeed, the record shows that the identification and targeting of Tutsis at defensive positions throughout Butare town taken by ESO soldiers appears to have commenced towards 19 April, when President Théodore Sindikubwabo delivered a speech in Butare.¹²⁵

92. In addition to Witnesses AZD and BDE, Prosecution Witness BUR also provided first-hand evidence of the assembly that took place on 7 April 1994 and a meeting attended by Nizeyimana, Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi, Ngoma Camp Commander Ildéphonse Hategekimana, Tumba Gendarmerie Camp Commander Cyriaque Habyarabatuma, the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Squad Commander and the Nyanza Gendarmerie Squad Commander in Colonel Muvunyi's office. Witness BUR is further the only witness to testify about the existence of a list of prominent Tutsis and Nizeyimana having issued orders to the soldiers assembled on the tarmac to kill and rape Tutsis.

93. Notably, Witness BUR's testimony regarding Nizeyimana's statements to rape and kill finds no corroboration, notwithstanding the numerous other Prosecution witnesses who testified that Nizeyimana was either present at, or spoke during, an assembly of ESO soldiers on 7 April 1994. Moreover, the Chamber has elsewhere considered in detail Witness BUR's evidence about his observations on this day. His evidence that he was at the ESO Camp on 7 April, or even an ESO soldier have been brought into question by statements he made in was sent to his defensive position at Rwabayanga on the night of 6 April and remained there until 8 April 1994; Witness ZML07 described his position as being a considerable distance from the assembly point); Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, pp. 45-46 (Witness ZML13 was at his position located at the ESO's nouvelle formule building, not far from the Rwabayanga post from about 8.30 p.m. on 6 April 1994 until 5.30 a.m. on 7 April; at 7.00 a.m. he went to breakfast after which he went to a room not far from the school command office where he was assigned as the non-commissioned officer for the week). Witness Ruzindana did not specify where his position was located. None of the witnesses specifically discussed their ability to see the tarmac or Nizeyimana's office from their position.

¹²³ Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 36; Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 14; Witness Bunani, T. 10 June 2011, p. 47; Witness ZML07, T. 18 May 2011, pp. 8-9; Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 25; Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 46. Witness ZML13 stated there were no assemblies held at ESO during the genocide. T. 7 June 2011, p. 57.

Rwanda in Gacaca proceedings there. The Chamber concluded elsewhere that Witness BUR lacks basic credibility.¹²⁶ The same analysis applies here.

94. In light of the above, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution failed to elicit evidence suggesting that Nizeyimana discussed the identification and targeting of Tutsi civilians who were to be killed, during a meeting with platoon heads in the morning of 7 April 1994. Moreover, it failed to adduce any evidence suggesting that subsequent killings and targeting of Tutsi civilians by ESO soldiers were conducted as a result of this meeting. Accordingly, this allegation is dismissed.

3.2 Assembly of 8 April 1994

Introduction

95. The Indictment alleges that an assembly took place on 8 April 1994 with numerous FAR soldiers, including Lieutenant Colonel Muvunyi, during which Nizeyimana said to fight Tutsis. The Prosecution relies on Witnesses ZY and Rony Zachariah.¹²⁷

96. The Defence submits that there is no evidence in support of this allegation, except for Witness ZY's hearsay account, which does not reflect Nizeyimana's presence at this meeting or any form of incitement that was conveyed during this gathering. Moreover, Defence witnesses provide evidence contradicting that any such meeting ever took place on 8 April 1994. The Defence relies on Witnesses ZML07, Jean-Népomuscène Bunani, Thomas Ruzindana and RWV11.¹²⁸

Prosecution Witness ZY

97. In April 1994, Witness ZY, a Tutsi, was a cadet at the ESO.¹²⁹ Witness ZY knew of an assembly that took place on 8 April, even though she did not attend this gathering herself.¹³⁰ She noted that they would usually assemble each morning at the ESO, during which the soldiers would receive instructions they were to implement.¹³¹

Prosecution Witness Rony Zachariah

98. Witness Zachariah was a doctor for Médecins Sans Frontières working at the Butare University Hospital in April 1994.¹³² Witness Zachariah met with Colonel Muvunyi for the first time on 8 April, to get authorisation passes in order to freely move around Butare.¹³³ Colonel Muvunyi had been in a meeting when he came out to speak to Witness Zachariah.¹³⁴

Defence Witnesses ZML07, Jean-Népomuscène Bunani, Thomas Ruzindana and RWV11

99. Witnesses ZML07 and RWV11 did not know of or recall an assembly taking place at the ESO on 8 April 1994, because they were at their respective defensive positions within the Witness ZY did not further explain her basis for knowing that an assembly took place, other than her assertion that assemblies took place on a daily basis.

ESO Camp.¹³⁵ Witnesses Bunani and Ruzindana knew there was no assembly on that day, because they would have been present at the gathering if it had taken place.¹³⁶

Deliberations

100. At the outset, the Chamber observes that the Prosecution does not set out the evidence which relates to Indictment paragraph 10(ii) in its Closing Brief, but instead refers to general evidence set out in support of its Rule 98*bis* Response. This practice can hardly be construed as the Prosecution pursuing this allegation in earnest.

101. Notably, the Prosecution did not present any direct evidence in support of its allegation that an assembly took place on 8 April 1994, during which Nizeyimana instructed soldiers to fight Tutsis. Instead, it relies on two witnesses who were not present at the ESO during the time when the assembly took place. Prosecution Witness ZY “knew” of an assembly that took place on 8 April, without explaining her basis for this knowledge, other than the fact that an assembly took place every morning. However, the gathering of soldiers on the tarmac of the ESO on a daily basis is contradicted by other Prosecution evidence.¹³⁷

102. Witness Zachariah did not speak of an assembly, but noted that Colonel Muvunyi came out to greet him, despite having been in a meeting at that time. Notably, neither witness mentioned Nizeyimana as having been present at this assembly or provide evidence of his instructions to fight Tutsis to those gathered on the tarmac. Consequently, it finds it unnecessary to consider the Defence evidence in detail. In the absence of evidence demonstrating that Nizeyimana incited soldiers gathered at an assembly on 8 April 1994 to fight Tutsis, this allegation is dismissed.

¹³⁶ Witness Bunani, T. 10 June 2011, pp. 47-48; Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 27.

¹³⁷ Indeed, her account that a gathering took place every day during that period is contradicted by Prosecution Witness BDE, who stated that the assemblies “were not as frequent as before”. Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 20.

3.3 Assembly of 20 April 1994

Introduction

103. The Indictment alleges that an assembly took place around 9.00 a.m. on 20 April 1994, with numerous FAR soldiers, during which Nizeyimana gave orders regarding roadblocks. A second meeting took place that day inside a meeting room with Colonel Muvunyi and approximately one dozen ESO officers. The Prosecution appears to rely on Witnesses ZY and BDE.¹³⁸

104. The Defence submits that there exists no evidence of an assembly on 20 April 1994, during which Nizeyimana gave orders. Instead, the Prosecution relies on general allegations of meetings taking place at the ESO on unspecified dates.¹³⁹

Prosecution Witnesses ZY and BDE

105. Witness ZY noted that they would usually assemble each morning at the ESO, during which the soldiers would receive instructions they were to implement.¹⁴⁰ Witness BDE recalled having attended an assembly at the ESO towards the end of April or beginning of May 1994.¹⁴¹

Deliberations

106. The Prosecution has led a considerable amount of general evidence of meetings that took place at the ESO in April 1994.¹⁴² It has not, however, linked this evidence into a cohesive narrative and has done less to show how the evidence fits within the particularised allegations in Indictment paragraph 10(iii). Indeed, the Chamber observes that the Prosecution presented no evidence of an assembly that took place on 20 April, during which Nizeyimana gave orders regarding roadblocks. Similarly, there is no evidence of a second meeting taking place on that day inside a meeting room, with Colonel Muvunyi and a dozen ESO officers. The only evidence the Prosecution appears to rely on consists of two ESO

¹³⁸ Indictment para. 10(iii); Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 43; Rule 98bis Response, paras. 23-24, 26. Similar to the practice described above, the Prosecution again refers to its Rule 98bis Response in support of Indictment paragraph 10(iii), rather than setting out its evidence in a cohesive and succinct manner in its Closing Brief. In the absence of any further guidance, the Chamber concluded that the Prosecution appears to rely on Witnesses ZY and BDE.

¹⁴¹ Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 20.

¹⁴² In its Closing Brief, the Prosecution refers to its Rule 98bis response in support of Indictment paragraphs 10(ii) (iii) and (v). Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 43. The Prosecution's Rule 98bis Response, however, points generally to evidence of Nizeyimana having attended meetings with other officers at the ESO. The evidence is just that however – general. There are no dates provided for the meetings and none of the witnesses provided evidence on orders given by Nizeyimana following these meetings or any other criminal conduct, as alleged in Indictment paragraph 10(ii)(iii) and (v). See Rule 98bis Response, paras. 23-42. Given the absence of any dates or context linking their testimony specifically to Indictment paragraph 10(iii), the Chamber shall not make any findings on the evidence of Prosecution Witnesses AZD, Anaclet Dufitumukiza, Justin Gahizi and ZAW as it relates to this Indictment paragraph.

cadets, one of whom recalls an assembly on an unspecified date at the end of April. Neither witness mentioned Nizeyimana or any orders he gave in regards to roadblocks at these gatherings. This allegation is dismissed.

3.4 Meeting at Gatsinzi's Bar, Second Half of April 1994

Introduction

107. The Indictment alleges that a meeting took place at Dr. Théophile's bar during the second half of April 1994 with FAR officers, soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma Camp, local administrative officials, Interahamwe and civilians. The Prosecution relies on Witness ZBH.¹⁴³ The Defence challenges the credibility of Witness ZBH.¹⁴⁴

Prosecution Witness ZBH

108. In April 1994, Witness ZBH, a Hutu, was a civilian who had previously worked as a "helper" at ESO in 1991, who, among other things, washed clothing and polished shoes.¹⁴⁵ On an unspecified date, a meeting was held at Dr. Théophile's bar in Gahenerezo, which was attended by Major Cyriaque Habyarabatuma, Corporal Bernard Mukinisha, Corporal Juvénal Nzabarinda, Safari, who was a member of the RAF and ran a barbeque at Gatsinzi's bar, Mathieu Kazungu, former President Théodore Sindikubwabo, Alexis Hakizimana, Gaspard Twagirayezu, the commander of Camp Ngoma, the bourgmestre of the Huye Commune, Jonathan Ruremesha, Chief Warrant Officer Rekeraho, Joseph Muganga, who was the president of the MRND in the Huye commune and Commander Ildéphonse Hategekimana.¹⁴⁶ Also in attendance were Captain Venuste Gatwaza, First Private Ngendahimana, Corporal Ndayambaje, Rutanihubwoba, Jonas Ndayisaba, who worked at the University library, Vital Koffi, who was a member of the population and Isaac Munyampundu.¹⁴⁷ Witness ZBH was present at the meeting as well.¹⁴⁸

109. During this meeting, the decision was taken that Tutsis who had sought refuge at various locations around the area would not be allowed to return home and would all have to be killed.¹⁴⁹ The areas discussed included the Mbazi stadium in Byiza, the Huye commune office, the Huye school, the Matyazo dispensary, the valley downhill from the museum, and other sites.¹⁵⁰ Gatwaza and his fellow soldiers had received orders during that meeting.¹⁵¹ Rekeraho stated during this meeting that all Hutus had to be separated from the Tutsis and that the houses of Tutsis were to be destroyed such that only ruins remained.¹⁵² Lieutenant Hategekimana, along with the gendarmerie commander, told Commander Gatwaza, from the Ngoma Camp, that they had brought boxes of ammunition and grenades.¹⁵³ Witness ZBH

offloaded the ammunition, and was ordered to take it to Commander Gatwaza.¹⁵⁴ The ammunition was subsequently used in attacks against Tutsis.¹⁵⁵

Deliberations

110. The Prosecution relies on Witness ZBH alone to establish that a meeting took place at Dr. Théophile's bar around the second half of April 1994, during which it was decided to target and kill Tutsis. The Chamber shall review Witness ZBH's general credibility as well as purported inconsistencies between his evidence and information given elsewhere.

111. Witness ZBH was incarcerated at the time of his testimony for his participation in the genocide in Rwanda in 1994.¹⁵⁶ The Chamber has some concerns that Witness ZBH's evidence in this proceeding may have been used as an opportunity to deflect responsibility for crimes. It might also have been motivated by a desire to obtain lenient treatment from Rwandan judicial authorities.

112. Moreover, the Chamber notes that the Defence had Witness ZBH read out excerpts from a Rwandan judicial proceeding that appears to find that he accepted money in return for not testifying against Major Cyriaque Habyarabatura.¹⁵⁷ The same Rwandan court further appears to have found evidence of Witness ZBH having encouraged other detainees to provide false testimony.¹⁵⁸ The Rwanda judicial document was not exhibited and the Chamber notes that Witness AZM denied having heard that Witness ZBH "invented false stories" about him.¹⁵⁹

113. As a general matter, credibility observations of judges reviewing an entirely separate record are of little probative value in this proceeding.¹⁶⁰ However, judicial findings that a witness has been convicted for a crime of dishonesty or has lied in a separate proceeding – rather than just general credibility concerns – could be a basis for considering his or her evidence before this Tribunal with caution.¹⁶¹ While the record before the Chamber is

Georges Rutaganda*, Case No. ICTR-96-03-R, Decision on Requests for Reconsideration, Review, Assignment of Counsel, Disclosure, and Clarification (AC), 8 December 2006, paras. 15, 20 (alleged findings in a Rwandan proceeding that Tribunal witnesses generally lacked credibility were insufficient to justify review proceedings); Niyitegeka v. The Prosecutor, Case No. ICTR-96-14-A, Confidential Decision on Appellant's Extremely Urgent Motion of Delivery of Judgement and for the Admission of Additional Evidence (AC), 5 July 2004, para. 18 (holding that even if an immigration court were to have deemed a witness not credible, "it would simply amount to a decision by a different finder of a fact based on different testimony").

unclear, these circumstances as well as Witness ZBH's incarceration at the time of his testimony necessitate that his evidence be viewed with the appropriate caution.

114. Of particular significance, Witness ZBH's 2003 confession to Rwandan judicial authorities contains reference to this particular meeting.¹⁶² He subsequently talked about this gathering in pro justitia statements given in June 2005 and June 2009.¹⁶³ What is striking about each of these documents is that they contain a relatively detailed list of who attended the meetings. Remarkably, none identifies Nizeyimana as being present.¹⁶⁴

115. Indeed, the Chamber observes that the Prosecution refers exclusively to testimony from the witness elicited during cross-examination.¹⁶⁵ Notably, the testimony cited is Witness ZBH reading his confession from 2003.¹⁶⁶ While Witness ZBH was subsequently questioned on the contents of this statement, he never expressly confirmed nor denied the substance of this aspect of his confession.¹⁶⁷ In this regard, the Chamber recalls that the Tribunal's Rules of Procedure and Evidence evince a clear preference for live testimony.¹⁶⁸ Prior statements of a witness who provides live testimony are primarily relevant to a Trial Chamber in its assessment of the witness's credibility. It is not necessarily the case that they should or could generally in and of themselves constitute evidence that the content thereof is truthful.¹⁶⁹

116. The fact that Witness ZBH read his 2003 confession in court, does not necessarily transform it into "live testimony". Rather, the failure to have the witness confirm the accuracy of his 2003 confession leaves the testimony cited by the Prosecution as unchecked, out-of-court hearsay. Raising additional concerns, the Prosecution did not question the witness on the meeting at Dr. Théophile's bar on examination-in-chief, and did not subsequently raise it on re-examination. His evidence fails to implicate Nizeyimana in this meeting. Given the nature of the evidence solicited and the caution with which the Chamber has decided to view Witness ZBH's testimony, this practice does not meet the required threshold necessary to establish facts beyond a reasonable doubt. This allegation has not been proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

3.5 Meeting at Gahenerezo, Ngoma Commune, 21 or 22 April 1994

Introduction

117. The Indictment alleges that a meeting was held at Gahenerezo in Ngoma commune on 21 or 22 April 1994, with FAR soldiers, soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma Camp, local administrative officials, Interahamwe and civilians. The Prosecution relies on Witness ZBH.¹⁷⁰ The Defence challenges the credibility of Witness ZBH.¹⁷¹

Evidence and Deliberations

118. Witness ZBH is the sole witness who, according to the Prosecution, provides evidence of a meeting that took place at Gahenerezo in Ngoma commune on 21 or 22 April 1994.¹⁷² The Prosecution, while admitting that Witness ZBH does not refer to a roadblock called “Gahenerezo” during his examination-in-chief, instead relies on evidence contained in Witness ZBH’s Rwandan confession in support for this allegation.¹⁷³

119. Notably, the portion of Witness ZBH’s confession to which the Prosecution refers states generally that “it was at the meetings held by the soldiers that a decision was made to set up three roadblocks on Cyangugu road. Thus, one roadblock, which we manned, was set up at Gahenerezo (...).”¹⁷⁴ The statement then generally implicates Chief Warrant Officer Rekeraho, Commander Hategekimana and Nizeyimana in killings that were committed at roadblocks set up pursuant to their orders.¹⁷⁵ No mention is made of any specific meeting on 21 or 22 April 1994 at Gahenerezo with the participants set out in the Indictment.

120. Witness ZBH was not asked to confirm this content while testifying. Indeed, Witness ZBH was not questioned at all on any meeting taking place at Gahenerezo, let alone a gathering on 21 or 22 April between soldiers, local administrative officials, Interahamwe and other civilians.

121. The Chamber recalls that the Tribunal’s Rules of Procedure and Evidence evince a clear preference for live testimony.¹⁷⁶ Prior statements of a witness who provides live testimony are primarily relevant to a Trial Chamber in its assessment of the witness’s credibility. It is not necessarily the case that they should or could generally in and of themselves constitute evidence that the content thereof is truthful.¹⁷⁷ Under the circumstances, the evidence relied upon by the Prosecution cannot support findings beyond reasonable doubt. This allegation is dismissed.

¹⁷² Similar to the instances set out above, the Prosecution again refers to its Rule 98*bis* Response in support of Indictment paragraph 10(v), rather than setting out its evidence in a cohesive and succinct manner in its Closing Brief.

4. KILLINGS OUTSIDE BUTARE TOWN, MID-APRIL 1994

4.1 Killing of the Ruhutinyanya Family

Introduction

122. The Indictment alleges that between 16 and 19 April 1994, members of the Ruhutinyanya family were forcibly apprehended by ESO soldiers at a roadblock near the Burundi border and forced to return to the ESO. Following Nizeyimana's instructions, Second Lieutenant Bizimana engaged a number of subordinate officers to target the civilian victims, who were killed on the orders or instigation of Nizeyimana. The Prosecution relies on Witnesses XAG, YAL, ZAW, AZD, BDE, ZY and Anaclet Dufitumukiza.¹⁷⁸

123. The Defence argues that the ESO soldiers saved the Ruhutinyanya family at the border on 17 April 1994 and attempted to safely deliver them across it the following day upon orders of Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi. It submits that the evidence is inconclusive regarding whether the family was killed, but it appears to have happened at the hands of Burundian soldiers when they arrived at the border, without any involvement of Nizeyimana. The Defence further contends that Prosecution witnesses lack credibility. Defence Witnesses ZML07, RWV11, CKN10, OUV03 and Désiré Ufitimana provided relevant evidence.¹⁷⁹

Prosecution Witness XAG

124. In April 1994, Witness XAG, a Hutu, was a member of the gendarmerie based at the Tumba Camp in Butare.¹⁸⁰ Sometime after the death of President Habyarimana, Witness XAG and a colleague, Witness YAL, were assigned by the camp commander to accompany the Ruhutinyanya family to the Akanyaru border crossing into Burundi.¹⁸¹ The two gendarmes joined Mr. Ruhutinyanya in a pickup truck, while other Ruhutinyanya family members traveled in a minibus.¹⁸²

¹⁷⁸ Indictment, para. 19; Prosecution Closing Brief, paras. 254-285; T. 7 December 2011, p. 33 (Prosecution Closing Arguments). The Prosecution also relies on evidence relating to the killing of Mr. Ruhutinyanya. See Prosecution Closing Brief, paras. 283-285; Prosecution Response to the Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, para. 48. The Defence has challenged that sufficient notice was given for this event. Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 52-54. The Prosecution concedes that this event is not pleaded and could not serve as a basis for conviction. Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 285; see also Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, p. 81; T. 24 January 2011, pp. 42-44. Considering the highly prejudicial nature of this evidence and its remoteness in time, geographic location and perpetrators, the Chamber shall not make findings in relation to it.

125. The convoy left between 1.00 and 2.00 p.m. but was stopped at a roadblock near the Akanyaru border post.¹⁸³ There, armed civilians acted in a threatening fashion.¹⁸⁴ Negotiations to allow passage of the convoy through the roadblock failed, prompting Mr. Ruhutinyanya to leave in his pickup truck toward Butare, while the gendarmes and Ruhutinyanya family members in the minibus remained.¹⁸⁵ In response, those manning the roadblock “tried to kill” members of the group.¹⁸⁶

126. Between 5.00 and 5.30 p.m., a pickup truck from the ESO arrived at the roadblock.¹⁸⁷ The vehicle was mounted with a machine gun, contained approximately six soldiers and a white man whom they were escorting to the Akanyaru border post.¹⁸⁸ Witness XAG’s colleague requested their assistance, but was told to wait until the soldiers returned from the border.¹⁸⁹ When the ESO soldiers returned, they promised those manning the roadblock that they would “punish” the gendarmes and the Ruhutinyanya family members, and all were allowed to depart thereafter.¹⁹⁰ Witness XAG assumed that the ESO soldiers’ promise was a lie intended to convince those manning the roadblock to release the gendarmes and the Ruhutinyanya family members.¹⁹¹ To his surprise, however, the soldiers compelled the group to travel to the ESO.¹⁹² They arrived at the ESO after dark, about two hours after they had left the roadblock.¹⁹³

127. The minivan containing the family stayed inside the camp, while the gendarmes were escorted to Nizeyimana’s office.¹⁹⁴ The first sergeant accompanying Witness XAG and his colleague saluted Nizeyimana and explained to him that they had surprised Witness XAG and his colleague while they were escorting Inyenzi.¹⁹⁵ Though the gendarmes explained that they were following orders, Nizeyimana was “not happy”.¹⁹⁶ Nizeyimana confiscated their identity cards and ordered that they be detained, but he did not have their FAL rifles taken from them.¹⁹⁷ The gendarmes asked to be given food, and Nizeyimana granted this request.¹⁹⁸ They were escorted from his office, down a hill and towards a kitchen.¹⁹⁹ However, Witness XAG and his colleague, noticing that soldiers were not paying attention to them, escaped from the ESO and returned to the Tumba Camp.²⁰⁰

128. Witness XAG heard the following day from an ESO lieutenant that, on the orders of Nizeyimana, the Ruhutinyanya family was returned to the roadblock so that those manning it would kill them.²⁰¹ Unidentified soldiers also told him that the family was killed inside the ESO.²⁰²

Prosecution Witness YAL

129. In April 1994, Witness YAL, a Hutu, was a gendarme at the Tumba Camp in Butare.²⁰³ Witness YAL's camp commander, gendarmerie General Cyriaque Habyarabatuma, ordered him and a colleague, Witness XAG, to escort Mr. Ruhutinyanya, a Tutsi business owner, and his family to the Burundi border.²⁰⁴ Around 3.00 p.m. on 17 April, the gendarmes arrived at Mr. Ruhutinyanya's home and escorted the family to a roadblock.²⁰⁵ Witness YAL explained that the situation at the border roadblock was chaotic, with more than a thousand civilians and hostile Interahamwe present.²⁰⁶ Mr. Ruhutinyanya left the roadblock and returned towards Butare, apparently having become concerned about what might happen there.²⁰⁷ However, his family and the gendarmes remained.²⁰⁸

130. Approximately 15 to 20 minutes after their arrival at the roadblock, Witness YAL saw a Toyota pickup truck under the command of a first sergeant approach the roadblock, containing ESO soldiers and a white man.²⁰⁹ The ESO soldiers instructed those manning the roadblock not to let the minibus through, and continued on their way to the border.²¹⁰ On their return, the soldiers retrieved Witness YAL, his colleague, and Ruhutinyanya's family from the roadblock area and escorted them to the ESO, arriving there around 8.30 p.m.²¹¹ The Ruhutinyanya family members remained in the ESO courtyard, with their vehicle parked approximately seven metres from the guard room.²¹² The two gendarmes were taken to the corps de garde, where Witness YAL was joined by the first sergeant from the pickup truck, Second Lieutenant Gakwerere, and Nizeyimana.²¹³

131. The first sergeant introduced Witness YAL and his colleague to Nizeyimana as the "accomplice soldiers transporting the Inkotanyi".²¹⁴ Nizeyimana responded that the gendarmes "were accomplices who were protecting the Inkotanyi and that [they] had to die".²¹⁵ He then began to beat Witness YAL and Witness XAG, assisted by Gakwerere.²¹⁶ After about two hours, an acquaintance of Witness YAL, Chief Warrant Officer Ntibiramira, arrived.²¹⁷ Ntibiramira convinced Nizeyimana to free the two gendarmes, though their weapons and identity cards were confiscated.²¹⁸ The next day, Witness YAL heard from others at the Tumba Camp that the Ruhutinyanya family members had been returned to the roadblock where they had been stopped and killed.²¹⁹

Prosecution Witness ZAW

132. Witness ZAW, a Hutu, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.²²⁰ Around 6.00 p.m. on 21 or 22 April 1994, Witness ZAW observed a Toyota Hiace minibus filled with women and children parked at the ESO.²²¹ He later spoke to one of the vehicle's occupants, who explained that the passengers were members of the Ruhutinyanya family.²²²

133. Witness ZAW saw the minibus at the ESO the following morning.²²³ While positioned about 10 to 15 metres away from Nizeyimana that morning, the witness heard the captain instruct Sergeant Major Nyirimanzi to return the Ruhutinyanya family members to the "place where he had taken them from", as Nizeyimana did not need to see "Inyenzis" in the camp.²²⁴ Chief Warrant Officer Ntibiramira was also present.²²⁵ From Nizeyimana's comments, Witness ZAW deduced that Nyirimanzi, with the assistance of other soldiers, had brought the Ruhutinyanya family to the ESO.²²⁶ The witness later learned that the family had previously been stopped at the Akanyaru border while attempting to flee to Burundi.²²⁷

134. Sergeant Nyirimanzi, in the company of other soldiers, removed the family from the ESO.²²⁸ Witness ZAW did not observe this, but later heard from his colleagues who had also escorted the Ruhutinyanyas from the ESO, Eric Ntirenganya and Iyamuremye, that the family had been killed at the roadblock manned by Interahamwe in the Kigembe commune around the Akanyaru border.²²⁹

Prosecution Witness AZD

135. In April 1994, Witness AZD, a Tutsi bearing a Hutu identity card, was a non-commissioned officer at the ESO.²³⁰ Sometime after President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech in Butare and between 21 and 26 April, Witness AZD overheard a discussion between First Sergeant Nyirimanzi and Nizeyimana.²³¹ The witness, a member of the general staff and services company, assembled outside near the command offices, in front of Nizeyimana's office, and was about three to five metres from them.²³² Nyirimanzi told Nizeyimana that he had escorted the Ruhutinyanya family to the ESO from the Akanyaru area as they were attempting to flee to Burundi.²³³ Nizeyimana replied that the family should be taken back to that area.²³⁴

136. The witness, who knew Mr. Ruhutinyanya and his wife, then saw a minibus from a distance but did not approach it.²³⁵ He learned from ESO soldiers that the vehicle contained the Ruhutinyanya family and had arrived the previous evening between 7.00 and 7.30 p.m.²³⁶ The day after the minibus's departure, the witness heard that the family members who had been brought to the ESO had been killed.²³⁷ Witness AZD never saw a member of the Ruhutinyanya family again.²³⁸

Prosecution Witness BDE

137. Witness BDE, a Hutu, was a nouvelle formule cadet at the ESO in April 1994.²³⁹ Between 7.00 and 7.15 p.m. on a day shortly before 19 April, Witness BDE observed a Hiace minibus containing women, children (and young girls) at the ESO.²⁴⁰ The vehicle was visible to soldiers at the entrance to the ESO, but she did not notice soldiers guarding it.²⁴¹ No other civilian vehicle was present at the camp on that day.²⁴²

138. Witness BDE, in the company of Pascasie Uwimana, approached the vehicle and spoke to a woman who identified herself as Ruhutinyanya's wife.²⁴³ She explained that they were members of his family that had left for Burundi.²⁴⁴ However, they had been stopped by Interahamwe at a roadblock near the border in Kigembe commune.²⁴⁵ The Interahamwe noticed that the group contained Tutsis and wanted to kill them.²⁴⁶ While members of the group began to negotiate with the Interahamwe, soldiers coming from the direction of the Akanyaru border arrived.²⁴⁷ The minibus occupants informed the soldiers about the situation and the soldiers told the Interahamwe that they would take them to Butare.²⁴⁸ Witness BDE spoke with the occupants for about five to 10 minutes.²⁴⁹

139. The minibus was gone the following day.²⁵⁰ Witness BDE was told by unidentified male colleagues in the refectory that Nizeyimana nearly killed Sergeant Major Nyirimanzi, who brought the family to the ESO.²⁵¹ They stated that Nizeyimana had ordered the bus's occupants, who he identified as Inyenzi, to be "taken back to their place of origin because he didn't need them in the camp".²⁵² These colleagues also said that the group was "chased out of camp", returned to the location where they were first retrieved and murdered.²⁵³ The witness did not know who killed the Ruhutinyanyas or the precise circumstances of their death.²⁵⁴

140. Witness ZY, a Tutsi, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.²⁵⁵ One evening, around 6.00 p.m., she saw a minivan full of women, children, and some men, parked in the ESO.²⁵⁶ The witness observed about three ESO cadets from the third batch discreetly positioned close to the vehicle while others were nearby.²⁵⁷ The cadets insulted the van's occupants and spit in their faces.²⁵⁸

141. Curious, the witness approached the vehicle and spoke to a young girl called Kayitesi.²⁵⁹ The girl explained that they had fled to Burundi, but were intercepted by Interahamwe near the Akanyaru border.²⁶⁰ Soldiers subsequently brought the vehicle to the ESO.²⁶¹ The girl expressed her fear that those in the van would be killed unfairly for the "errors or the acts of people they did not even know".²⁶² Witness ZY spoke with the girl for approximately two hours.²⁶³ The witness also observed Claire Mukamuzoni speak to the vehicle's occupants.²⁶⁴

142. While speaking to Kayitesi, the cadets, including one from Byumba nicknamed "Blindé", sternly informed the witness that Nizeyimana had ordered them to guard the minivan and that Nizeyimana would decide the occupants' fate.²⁶⁵ The witness was directed to stay clear of the vehicle.²⁶⁶

143. After breakfast the following day, around 7.00 a.m., the witness spoke with an ESO cadet from the third batch that had been guarding the minivan the previous evening.²⁶⁷ Dark-skinned and a native of Byumba, he told the witness that he and his group of soldiers murdered all the vehicle's occupants, including a small child, in Rwasave.²⁶⁸ Rwasave was located in a valley "on the lower side of the Groupe Scolaire" and not on the Kigembe commune border.²⁶⁹

Prosecution Witness Anaclét Dufitumukiza

144. Witness Dufitumukiza, a Tutsi, was a corporal in the gendarmerie posted to the Tumba Camp in Butare in April 1994.²⁷⁰ Witness YAL told the Witness Dufitumukiza that he escorted the Ruhutinyanya family to the border, after which the bus was stopped by ESO soldiers and was sent to the ESO.²⁷¹ Witness YAL also told Witness Dufitumukiza that he had almost been killed at the ESO.²⁷² Witness Dufitumukiza learned that the Ruhutinyanya family members were later killed.²⁷³

Defence Witness ZML07

145. At one point, Witness ZML07 testified that Second Lieutenant Bizimana identified the civilians in the minibus as the Ruhutinyanya family and explained that the soldiers would accompany them to the Burundi border. See T. 18 May 2011, p. 35; Exhibit D37 (Names of Soldiers).

it.²⁷⁷ While he did not know the vehicle's occupants or check their identities, the witness concluded that they were Tutsis based on their appearances.²⁷⁸

146. Second Lieutenant Bizimana led the mission, which included five soldiers and a driver of an ESO pickup truck.²⁷⁹ The soldiers were armed with rifles and hand guns and had approximately 100 rounds of ammunition.²⁸⁰ They did not have communication devices that would have allowed them to contact the ESO.²⁸¹ The minibus led the convoy towards the Burundi border, with the ESO vehicle following a short distance behind it.²⁸² They passed two civilian roadblocks without incident.²⁸³ A third barrier, located between 500 metres to one kilometre from the Burundian border, was guarded by civilians carrying traditional weapons and guns.²⁸⁴ Bizimana attempted to negotiate the convoy's passage, but those manning the roadblock refused, accusing the soldiers of transporting Tutsis.²⁸⁵

147. In an attempt to intimidate those administering the roadblock, Bizimana shot his firearm into the air.²⁸⁶ Simultaneously, a civilian assailant removed a passenger from the minibus, prompting one of the soldiers, Emanuel Manilakiza, to shoot and kill the assailant.²⁸⁷ The witness then heard shots from a "gas machine gun" and other automatic weapons, which he believed were from Burundian soldiers at the border.²⁸⁸ The ESO soldiers fled, and Witness ZML07 took cover alone behind a nearby hill.²⁸⁹

148. After "some minutes", the gunshots reduced.²⁹⁰ The witness walked to the road, about 500 metres to one kilometre away from the roadblock, where he found the ESO pickup truck and ESO soldiers.²⁹¹ Bizimana ordered that the group return to camp, where they arrived a little more than two hours later.²⁹²

149. The witness did not see what happened to the Ruhutinyanya family or the minibus, and none of the members of the mission spoke to him about their fate.²⁹³ However, having heard sustained gunshots while fleeing, he believed that the Ruhutinyanyas had been killed.²⁹⁴ He did not know if a report about the incident was made to the camp commander, Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi.²⁹⁵

Defence Witness RWV11

150. Witness RWV11, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO in April 1994.²⁹⁶ Around 7.30 p.m. on 17 April, the witness, while stationed at the roadblock in the Arab quarter close to the southern entrance of the ESO, saw soldiers in a supply vehicle returning to the ESO with a Hiace minivan containing approximately 15 civilians.²⁹⁷ The vehicle stopped at the northern entrance to the ESO, approximately 100 metres from the witness's position, before being allowed inside.²⁹⁸

151. Between 8.00 and 8.30 p.m. that evening, the witness went to the northern entrance of the ESO and spoke with Sergeant Shadrack Kagimbangabo, who controlled that guard post.²⁹⁹ Kagimbangabo explained that the soldiers saved the civilians from a mob that had tried to kill them while on a supply mission to Kigembe commune.³⁰⁰ The civilians had been attempting to go to Burundi and now wanted to enter the ESO to obtain laissez-passers.³⁰¹ The civilians were compelled to remain in the vehicle and within the ESO because the camp commander, who was not present, was the only authority that could issue these documents.³⁰² Nizeyimana was not present at the camp either, having left the ESO around 6:30 p.m. to attend to his sick child at home.³⁰³ From about 30 metres away, the witness observed the minibus parked close to the command office and soldiers close to it.³⁰⁴

152. Around 8.00 a.m. the following morning – 18 April 1994 – Witness RWV11 observed the minivan and an ESO pickup truck carrying four soldiers – armed with R4 rifles and Kalashnikovs – and Second Lieutenant Bizimana leave the camp.³⁰⁵ The witness heard that the civilians had been issued laissez-passers, most likely by Muvunyi, and that Bizimana had been assigned by Muvunyi to transport the civilians to Akanyaru.³⁰⁶

153. When Bizimana returned to the ESO, he stated that the convoy had been stopped by Interahamwe at a roadblock on the way to the Burundi border.³⁰⁷ The Interahamwe stated that the soldiers were accompanying the same Inyenzi they had encountered the previous evening.³⁰⁸ An altercation ensued when the Interahamwe refused to let the convoy pass.³⁰⁹ Bizimana fired into the air, prompting Burundian soldiers to fire on the ESO soldiers from across the border.³¹⁰ The Burundian soldiers had more powerful weapons, forcing the ESO soldiers to leave the Ruhutinyanyas at the roadblock.³¹¹ Witness RWV11 heard that the

Defence Witness CKN10

154. Witness CKN10, a Hutu, was a sergeant at the ESO in April 1994.³¹³ On 17 April, he was positioned at the main entrance of the ESO, starting at 4.00 p.m.³¹⁴ Nizeyimana arrived at the camp around 6.30 or 7.00 p.m.³¹⁵ Between 8.30 and 9.30 p.m., Witness CKN10 observed a Hiace minibus stop at a roadblock in the Arab quarter before continuing onto the witness's post.³¹⁶ The minibus contained a corporal and members of the Ruhutinyanya family, who the witness knew lived in Butare.³¹⁷ Mr. Ruhutinyanya, a Tutsi, was not among them.³¹⁸ The corporal on the minibus "explained the situation" to the witness.³¹⁹ Specifically, the Ruhutinyanya family had been travelling to Burundi, but were stopped and almost killed at a roadblock before the soldier helped them retreat.³²⁰

155. The vehicle parked inside the camp a few metres from where Witness CKN10 was posted.³²¹ Witness CKN10, who stayed at his post until 4.00 p.m. the following day, noted that the Ruhutinyanya family remained in the minibus throughout the evening.³²² Soldiers spent the evening looking for "identification documents" to enable the family to travel to Burundi.³²³

156. Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi arrived at the camp on the morning of 18 April 1994.³²⁴ The witness informed Muvunyi about the civilians' arrival and, though not present when it occurred, believed that the Muvunyi issued travel documents to the family.³²⁵ The family left the ESO between 10.00 and 11.00 a.m. that day, with a military escort that included Second Lieutenant Bizimana.³²⁶ On a subsequent day, Witness CKN10 learned from Corporal Rubaga, who had been posted at Akanyaru, that the family was unable to cross the border and was massacred.³²⁷

Defence Witness OUV03

157. Witness OUV03, a Hutu, was an officer at the ESO in 1994.³²⁸ He heard from other ESO soldiers that Bizimana had been asked to take “Ruhutinyanya” across the border and subsequently killed him.³²⁹ Lieutenant Colonel Muvunyi arrested him for the crime, but Bizimana was never prosecuted because they had to flee.³³⁰

Defence Witness Désiré Ufitimana

158. In April 1994, Witness Ufitimana, a Hutu, was a cadet at the ESO.³³¹ Around 20 April, Witness Ufitimana was assigned on a small mission to accompany an Italian ambassador and a group of Tutsi priests and sisters to the border post around Akanyaru, after which he crossed into Burundi.³³² The ambassador and his group had six vehicles, which they drove themselves.³³³ The ESO provided three vehicles to escort the convoy to the border with armed soldiers.³³⁴ They passed a lot of roadblocks on their way to Akanyaru and often had to spend a long time explaining to the people manning the barriers why the soldiers were in the company of this group, whom the civilians identified as Tutsi.³³⁵ The civilians manning the roadblocks were like “enraged or rabid dogs”.³³⁶ They had dried banana leaves, which they used as camouflage and were generally “scary”.³³⁷ The convoy frequently had to negotiate their way through roadblocks, and when the civilians refused to let them pass, the soldiers would threaten to use force against them.³³⁸ Ultimately, the civilians understood and let them through.³³⁹

159. Once they got to the border crossing, Witness Ufitimana was able to discern soldiers on the Burundi side of the border.³⁴⁰ At the Rwandan customs post there were civilians and customs officers.³⁴¹ The group then thanked the soldiers for escorting them.³⁴²

160. The evidence uniformly demonstrates that around 17 April 1994, ESO soldiers freed members of the Ruhutinyanya family from hostile, armed civilians, including Interahamwe, at a roadblock close to the Akanyaru border crossing near Burundi.³⁴³ ESO soldiers then accompanied the Ruhutinyanyas to the ESO Camp, where they arrived that evening and remained through the night. The following day, on approximately 18 April, armed ESO soldiers, led by Second Lieutenant Pierre Bizimana, escorted the Ruhutinyanyas from the ESO back to the border crossing.

161. In this context, the Chamber must determine whether Nizeyimana was involved in a decision to return the Ruhutinyanya family to the roadblock near the Akanyaru border in order to have them killed. Furthermore, it must determine whether, in fact, members of the Ruhutinyanya family were killed. The Chamber shall address these issues in turn.

(i) Decision to Remove the Ruhutinyanya Family from the ESO, 17-18 April 1994

162. The Prosecution argues that Nizeyimana ordered the removal of the Ruhutinyanya family in order to have them eliminated. In particular, it points to the evidence of Witnesses XAG and YAL, who testified that on the evening of their arrival, Nizeyimana was informed of the Ruhutinyanyas' presence. The family was referred to as Inyenzi or Inkotanyi, and Nizeyimana expressed anger about their presence in the camp. Similarly, Prosecution Witness ZY heard from cadets guarding the vehicle that same evening that Nizeyimana had assigned them to guard the minibus and that he would decide the occupants' fates. Furthermore, the following morning Prosecution Witnesses ZAW and AZD heard Nizeyimana instruct Sergeant Nyirimanzi to return the Ruhutinyanya family to where they had been found.

163. The Chamber shall first evaluate the evidence of Witnesses XAG and YAL, the two gendarmes assigned to escort the Ruhutinyanya family to Burundi who were later brought to the ESO. While Witnesses XAG and YAL testified on the same day, the Chamber observes that the Defence raised no challenges concerning the circumstances in which they provided evidence. Nothing in the record suggests that either witness had an ostensible interest in testifying against Nizeyimana, or that the two witnesses colluded.³⁴⁴

164. Witnesses XAG and YAL provided strikingly consistent accounts of what happened in the vicinity of the Akanyaru border crossing preceding their arrival at the ESO.³⁴⁵ Differences in their testimonies about these events are immaterial.³⁴⁶ Indeed, the Defence

³⁴³ The Chamber observes that the evidence is not uniform in terms of when the Ruhutinyanya family was brought to the ESO Camp. Its conclusion on this particular point is discussed in detail below.

³⁴⁴ According to the personal information sheets, Witness XAG worked as a police officer in the East Province at the time of his testimony and Witness YAL was incarcerated in Gikongoro. See Exhibits P8 and P9, respectively.

³⁴⁵ With regard to the consistencies, Witnesses XAG and YAL testified that the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp commander ordered them to escort the Ruhutinyanya family to Burundi. Each described being detained by hostile armed civilians at a roadblock near the Akanyaru border. Both stated that ESO soldiers, who were accompanied by a white man, arrived and departed from the roadblock. They subsequently returned, intervened and escorted the gendarmes and the Ruhutinyanyas, who were in a minivan, back to the ESO. They consistently asserted that they arrived at the camp at night.

³⁴⁶ For example, Witness XAG testified that this event occurred after President Sindikubwabo's speech in Butare (or 19 April 1994), while Witness YAL testified that it happened on 17 April 1994. As discussed in greater detail below, the Chamber accepts Witness YAL's corroborated account that this event occurred around 17 April 1994. Notably, Witness XAG's testimony about the timing of this event was general. He conceded that "[he could not] remember the date", which is reasonable in light of the considerable passage of time between the event and his testimony. Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, p. 29. Likewise, only Witness YAL made reference submissions appear to accept the accounts of Witnesses XAG and YAL as they pertain to what occurred at the roadblock near the Akanyaru border crossing, only challenging their evidence as it relates to their subsequent presence at the ESO.³⁴⁷

165. The Chamber next evaluates the evidence of Witnesses XAG and YAL about what occurred once they arrived at the ESO. Compelling similarities are present. Both testified that a first sergeant, who had escorted the witnesses from the roadblock near Akanyaru, brought the gendarmes to a room where they met Nizeyimana.³⁴⁸ Each stated that the first sergeant informed Nizeyimana that the gendarmes had been assisting Inyenzi or Inkotanyi.³⁴⁹ Both described Nizeyimana as responding angrily to this information and confiscating their identification cards.³⁵⁰ The witnesses stated that they tried to explain their actions.³⁵¹ The witnesses testified that they later “escaped” or “slipped away” and reported the incident to their camp commander late that evening.³⁵²

166. Notable differences, however, do emerge. In particular, Witness YAL testified that the gendarmes were disarmed and beaten by Nizeyimana and others with fists, kicks and truncheons. He conceded that he was bloody and injured from the assault and stated that he was later treated by doctors at his military camp.³⁵³ According to Witness YAL, the beating lasted up to two hours and ended only after the intervention of Chief Warrant Officer Ntibiramira.³⁵⁴ After leaving Nizeyimana, Witness YAL testified that he approached the

to the presence of the assistant bourgmestre of Kigembe commune. Notably, Witness XAG was not questioned about the presence of the deputy bourgmestre of Kigembe commune. Witness YAL’s testimony about his presence was elicited largely through cross-examination concerning a prior statement dated 21 March 2011. See Witness YAL, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 58-59, 62-63. His evidence depicts the deputy bourgmestre’s role at the roadblock as secondary to that of the ESO soldiers, who both witnesses recalled being present. Under the circumstances, any inconsistency between the testimonies of Witnesses XAG and YAL is not material. Finally, the Chamber notes that Witness XAG’s evidence suggests that, while at the roadblock, he held the impression that the ESO soldiers were trying to assist him and Witness YAL. See Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 30 (an ESO soldier explained that he would “assist” the gendarmes), 31 (“as [the ESO soldiers] promised that they were going to assist”), 40 (referring to the ESO soldiers as assisting the gendarmes by extracting them from the roadblock). By contrast, Witness YAL’s testimony suggests that, while detained at the roadblock, he viewed the ESO soldiers as issuing commands to the civilians to stop the convoy from passing. See Witness YAL, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 58 (denying that the ESO soldiers assisted the gendarmes at the roadblock), 58-59 (ESO soldiers initially told the gendarmes to wait at the roadblock), 59-60 (soldiers ultimately instructed those at the roadblock not to allow the passage of the convoy), 63 (ESO soldiers stated that the convoy was not to pass the roadblock). These differences of opinion are immaterial. Indeed, aspects of Witness XAG’s evidence would support Witness YAL’s view that the ESO soldiers were in control of whether the gendarmes would be allowed through the roadblock. Specifically, Witness XAG testified that the ESO soldiers, once having taken custody of the gendarmes and the Ruhutinyanya family, told those guarding the checkpoint that they intended to punish them, and the witness later concluded that the ESO soldiers were not trying to help the gendarmes. See Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 31, 40.

minibus and warned its occupants to close the windows in order to prevent ESO soldiers from planting weapons on them.³⁵⁵

167. By contrast, Witness XAG made no mention of being assaulted by Nizeyimana. Rather, he testified that Nizeyimana ordered that the gendarmes be detained and given food from the ESO kitchen.³⁵⁶ Furthermore, Witness XAG volunteered that the witnesses retained possession of their weapons.³⁵⁷ According to Witness XAG, he and his colleague only remained at the ESO Camp for one hour and he made no mention of Witness YAL returning to the minibus after leaving Nizeyimana's office.³⁵⁸

168. Witness XAG was not questioned about being assaulted by Nizeyimana and others. Nonetheless, the omission is striking in light of his otherwise detailed account of what happened while he was in Nizeyimana's presence. Other differences, including whether or not the gendarmes were disarmed, the length of their time at the ESO and whether Witness YAL spoke with the minibus's occupants before leaving the camp, are also unexplained.

169. However, the inconsistencies pertain to peripheral events and fail to raise doubts about the fundamentally consistent evidence that they were brought to Nizeyimana and that the captain was informed about the presence of the Ruhutinyanya family – who were labelled as Inyenzi or Inkotanyi – at the ESO.³⁵⁹ As discussed below, these aspects of their evidence find compelling circumstantial corroboration from other Prosecution witnesses.³⁶⁰

170. Having considered the similarities and differences between the testimonies of Witnesses XAG and YAL, the Chamber turns to assess their identification of Nizeyimana. With respect to Witness XAG, the Chamber observes that he was not an ESO soldier and had only been in Butare about two months prior to April 1994.³⁶¹ His ability to identify Nizeyimana was not elicited through direct examination or challenged on cross-examination. Nonetheless, he correctly identified Nizeyimana as a “captain” and explained how the first sergeant had saluted Nizeyimana while he was sitting at his desk.³⁶²

171. Witness XAG's identification of Nizeyimana at the ESO that evening was directly corroborated by Witness YAL. The latter had been posted at the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp, which is in Butare town, since 1987.³⁶³ While he could not give precise details pertaining to the timing of Nizeyimana's arrival at the ESO or his exact position there, he generally

³⁵⁸ See Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, p. 42.

³⁵⁹ Another notable difference between the testimonies of Witnesses XAG and YAL was that the former stated that the gendarmes remained in possession of their firearms, namely FAL rifles, while Witness YAL testified that their weapons were confiscated. Compare Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 32, 41, with Witness YAL, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 63-64. The Chamber considers that this too constitutes peripheral evidence and the inconsistencies between it do not raise concerns about the fundamental features of the witnesses' testimonies.

³⁶⁰ However, the Chamber considers Witness YAL's evidence of Nizeyimana and other soldiers assaulting the gendarmes, in light of its variance with Witness XAG's evidence, as unproven.

³⁶¹ See Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 27, 38.

testified that Nizeyimana was a captain who was well known and influential.³⁶⁴ The Chamber considers this identification reliable, notwithstanding the witness's inability to identify Nizeyimana in court while testifying nearly 17 years after 1994.³⁶⁵

172. The Chamber must now evaluate the evidence of Witnesses XAG and YAL in the context of the remaining evidence. Notably, Prosecution Witnesses ZAW, BDE and ZY, as well as Defence Witnesses RWV11 and CNK10, provided first-hand corroboration that the Ruhutinyanya family was brought to the ESO in a minibus one evening in April 1994. However, the Defence has challenged that Witnesses XAG and YAL were also present, noting that no other witness placed the gendarmes at the ESO that evening.³⁶⁶

173. In the Chamber's view, the absence of additional evidence corroborating the presence of Witnesses XAG and YAL at the ESO does not raise concerns about their testimonies that they were there. Notably, Defence Witnesses RWV11 and CNK10, who observed the arrival of the Ruhutinyanya family at the ESO, were not questioned about the presence of the gendarmes among the soldiers or the civilians that entered the camp.³⁶⁷ Likewise, Witnesses XAG and YAL gave evidence suggesting that they were escorted directly into a building to meet Nizeyimana.³⁶⁸ Notably, Witnesses ZAW, BDE and ZY observed the minibus once it was already within the ESO, raising the distinct possibility that Witnesses XAG and YAL were not with it or the Ruhutinyanya family at that time.³⁶⁹

174. The Chamber observes that Witness ZY testified that she spoke with a passenger of the minibus for approximately two hours and made no mention of gendarmes passing it.³⁷⁰ Notably, Witness YAL testified that he spoke with the vehicle's occupants after leaving Nizeyimana in the corps de garde room.³⁷¹ For the reasons detailed below, the Chamber finds no inconsistency in their evidence.

175. At the outset, while Witness ZY testified that she spoke with the minibus occupants for two hours, she also stated that she was not continuously present at it.³⁷² Furthermore, even assuming Witness YAL spoke to the minibus occupants while Witness ZY was in its vicinity, the latter's evidence indicated that anyone passing through the yard could stop to speak with them.³⁷³ This was confirmed by Witness ZAW, who did just that.³⁷⁴ Like Defence Witnesses RWV11 and CNK10, Prosecution Witness ZY was not asked if she observed gendarmes in the camp that evening.

³⁶⁵ See Witness YAL, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 53-54.

³⁶⁶ Defence Closing Brief, para. 305.

³⁶⁷ Indeed, while Witness RWV11 observed the minibus enter the ESO, he was positioned approximately 100 metres away when it occurred and he did not approach the minibus once it was in the camp. See Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 17-18, 49-50. This too, would mitigate his ability to observe the presence of gendarmes among the soldiers and civilians.

³⁶⁸ See Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, p. 41 (the gendarmes were brought immediately to Nizeyimana's office); Witness YAL, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 49, 63 (once inside the ESO, the gendarmes were brought to a room called the corps de garde to meet Nizeyimana).

³⁶⁹ See Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 4, 34; Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 22; Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 55-56, T. 27 January 2011, p. 63.

³⁷⁰ Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 56-58; T. 27 January 2011, pp. 62-63.

³⁷¹ Witness YAL, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 50-51.

³⁷² See Witness ZY, T. 27 January 2011, p. 63.

³⁷⁴ See Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 4-5, 34-35.

176. Indeed, Defence evidence confirms that soldiers were near the vehicle and that there was considerable activity relating to its presence in the camp.³⁷⁵ In the Chamber's view, these circumstances would have further served to conceal the gendarmes' fleeting presence around the minibus. The absence of any reference to them in Witness ZY's testimony does not amount to a reasonable contradiction of the testimonies of Witnesses XAG and YAL that they were at the ESO that evening.

177. Finally, the Defence challenges the evidence of Witnesses XAG and YAL by pointing to evidence indicating that Nizeyimana was not in the camp when they arrived. Defence Witness RWV11 testified that Nizeyimana had left around 6.30 p.m., prior to the arrival of the Ruhutinyanya family.³⁷⁶ While Witness RWV11 specified that the captain departed to treat a sick child, his evidence is brief and does not reveal his basis of knowledge.³⁷⁷ Notably, Defence Witness CKN10, who was posted at the camp's main entrance, testified about Nizeyimana arriving at the camp around 6.30 or 7.00 p.m. and gave no indication that he left.³⁷⁸

178. Indeed, Witnesses XAG and YAL's evidence that Nizeyimana was in the camp that evening and involved in the Ruhutinyanya situation finds circumstantial corroboration through the testimony of Witness ZY. Specifically, she spoke to cadets near the minibus, who had told her that Nizeyimana had assigned them to guard the vehicle and that he would decide the occupants' fates.³⁷⁹ The Chamber considers this aspect of her testimony compelling when viewed among all the relevant evidence.³⁸⁰ Moreover, Witness AZM, who accompanied Nizeyimana to Cyahinda parish on 17 April 1994, testified that he had returned to the ESO Camp with the captain around 7.00 p.m. that evening.³⁸¹

³⁷⁵ See Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 50 (observed soldiers close to the minibus while it was parked inside the ESO); Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 42 (soldiers spent the evening looking for "identification documents" so the family could travel to Burundi).

³⁷⁶ Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 59. The Chamber also considers the testimony of Witness OUV03, who briefly testified that he was informed by Nizeyimana that he was going to go to the hospital to attend to his sick child on dates "beyond" 16 or 17 April. See Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, p. 55.

³⁷⁸ See Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 43.

³⁷⁹ Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 55, 57-59; T. 27 January 2011, p. 7.

³⁸⁰ The Defence has challenged the reliability of Witness ZY's evidence generally. For example, while Witness ZY saw Witness BDE speaking with the minibus's occupants, Witness BDE denied that Witness ZY was present while she was around the minibus. See Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 34-35. Furthermore, Witness BDE did not observe soldiers guarding the minibus and denied that another civilian vehicle was in camp that day. See T. 28 January 2011, p. 23; T. 31 January 2011, p. 35. By contrast, Witness ZY testified about the presence of cadets guarding the minibus and the presence of an Interahamwe vehicle near the minibus. Prosecution Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 55, 57-59. At the outset, the Chamber observes that Witness BDE's presence at the minibus was brief – about five to 10 minutes – compared to Witness ZY's two hour stay there. Compare Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 23, with Prosecution Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, p. 58, T. 27 January 2011, pp. 62-63. The differing circumstances of their vantage points would have allowed Witness ZY to make more detailed observations as well as observe acts and incidents that would have occurred outside Witness BDE's presence. In this regard, the fact that Witness BDE did not see Witness ZY observe soldiers guarding the minibus or another civilian vehicle present in camp does not necessarily contradict Witness ZY's evidence. Indeed, Witness RWV11 confirmed Witness ZY's account that soldiers were positioned near the minibus. See Defence Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 50.

³⁸¹ See II.4.2. Witness AZM's testimony of Nizeyimana's presence at the ESO Camp around 7.00 p.m. is consistent with evidence of Witnesses YAL and XAG, who saw Nizeyimana there later that evening.

179. Based on the foregoing, the evidence demonstrates that Witnesses XAG and YAL returned to the ESO Camp with ESO soldiers and the Ruhutinyanya family on the evening of 17 April 1994. The Chamber concludes that the gendarmes were brought to Nizeyimana by a first sergeant, who informed the captain that the soldiers were accompanying Inyenzi or Inkotanyi. This angered Nizeyimana, and the gendarmes tried to explain their actions. The Chamber now turns to the evidence of Witnesses ZAW and AZD, who testified that, the following morning, they heard Nizeyimana tell Sergeant Nyirimanzi to remove the Ruhutinyanya family from the ESO.

180. Before assessing the evidence of Witnesses ZAW and AZD in detail, the Chamber shall consider alleged internal inconsistencies as well as general challenges to their credibility. With respect to Witness ZAW, the Defence confronted him with excerpts from a prior statement he had given to Tribunal investigators in May 2010 and signed in June 2010. The statement reads that the witness heard Nizeyimana instruct Sergeant Nyirimanzi and Warrant Officer Ntibiramira to remove the minibus the evening it arrived at the ESO (rather than the following morning).³⁸² The Defence further highlighted that the June 2010 statement indicates that the witness learned of the identities of the bus's occupants the following day (rather than the evening they arrived).³⁸³

181. Witness ZAW explained that his interview occurred long after this event in 1994. After further reflection, he was able to recall that he observed Nizeyimana give these instructions in the morning and that he had spoken to persons on the bus.³⁸⁴ The witness's explanation is reasonable in light of the considerable passage of time between the events and his statement to Tribunal investigators. The variances are immaterial when viewed in light of the fundamental consistencies between his statement and testimony.

182. Turning to Witness AZD, the Defence mounts several challenges to his general credibility. In particular, it argues that he lied when questioned if he assisted the Tribunal's Office of the Prosecutor during investigations into the Hategekimana case as well as falsified medical documents for Witness YAA.³⁸⁵

183. When initially questioned, Witness AZD denied having worked for the Tribunal's Office of the Prosecutor.³⁸⁶ When provided further details, including the relevant period and that it related to the Hategekimana case, the witness affirmed that the Tribunal's Kigali Office of the Prosecutor requested assistance. He further stated that he helped an individual from that office locate the Ngoma Camp and identify certain things there.³⁸⁷ The witness explained that he did this without compensation.³⁸⁸

184. In the Chamber's view, the witness's limited assistance to the Tribunal's Office of the Prosecutor in Kigali does not render his evidence in this case partial or unreliable. Nor does his initial inability to recall having provided this assistance – particularly because it was uncompensated and limited in nature – suggest that he sought to withhold this information.

³⁸⁷ Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 33-35.

³⁸⁸ Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, p. 35.

185. Turning to Witness AZD's alleged falsification of medical leave documents, the Chamber observes that Witness YAA testified that he had deserted his post in Kigali in mid-May 1994 and that Witness AZD provided an authorisation that Witness YAA was ill.³⁸⁹ Witness YAA stated he was not ill and that this was meant to assist him.³⁹⁰ Witness AZD denied that Witness YAA was a deserter but conceded that he might have granted Witness YAA sick leave because his wife was pregnant.³⁹¹ Witness YAA confirmed that he had a pregnant wife, who gave birth in June.³⁹²

186. The circumstances in 1994 were clearly different from the context in which Witness AZD testified in this proceeding. Witness YAA, a Tutsi, had lost confidence in any protection the Rwandan army could provide him and his Tutsi wife.³⁹³ To the extent Witness AZD improperly authorised sick leave, which allowed Witness YAA to be with his pregnant wife during the war in 1994, the Chamber does not consider that such prior conduct raises questions about the witness's fidelity to the testimonial oath in this proceeding.³⁹⁴ It in no way raises reasonable concerns that Witness AZD, at the time of his testimony, possessed motivations or incentives to lie to the Chamber or implicate Nizeyimana.

187. Having considered internal credibility issues and challenges to general reliability, the Chamber shall now assess the witnesses' evidence as it relates to the event. Witnesses ZAW and AZD testified that, the day following the arrival of the Ruhutinyanya family, they heard Nizeyimana speaking with Sergeant Nyirimanzi. Witness ZAW was standing 10 to 15 metres from them while Witness AZD testified that he was four to five metres away.³⁹⁵ Witness ZAW heard Nizeyimana tell Nyirimanzi to return the Ruhutinyanya family "to the place where he had taken them from" and Nizeyimana state that "he did not need Inyenzis at the camp".³⁹⁶ Witness AZD heard Nyirimanzi explain that he had brought the Ruhutinyanya family from around Akanyaru, prompting Nizeyimana to respond that "this family should be taken back where they had been brought from".³⁹⁷

188. Viewed together, the Chamber considers these accounts fundamentally consistent and compelling. Noting the minor differences as to what precisely was heard by the witnesses and who exactly was present when Nizeyimana gave the instructions, the Chamber considers that these accounts are fundamentally consistent.³⁹⁸ Witness ZAW's testimony was brief and did not describe the precise location where the conversation took place. Notwithstanding, Witness AZD's testimony reflects that it happened in a relatively public area inside the camp.³⁹⁹

The Chamber considers that evidence about whether Witness AZD improperly authorised sick leave for Witness YAA is ambiguous, and distinguishable from, for example, a conviction for forgery. See Nchamihigo Appeal Judgement, paras. 77, 83 (overturning factual findings when the Trial Chamber failed to exercise sufficient caution in evaluating the testimony of a single witness who had been convicted for forgery).

189. Similarly, the Chamber has no doubt in the abilities of both witnesses to have identified Nizeyimana in April 1994. Both were posted at the ESO at the time – Witness ZAW having joined in 1991 and Witness AZD in November 1993.⁴⁰⁰ Both correctly testified that Nizeyimana held the position of S2/S3 and Witness ZAW identified him in court.⁴⁰¹

190. In addition, the testimonies of Witnesses ZAW and AZD are bolstered by the circumstantial corroboration of Witnesses XAG and BDE. Witness XAG testified that a lieutenant from the ESO informed him that the Ruhutinyanya family, on the orders of Nizeyimana, were returned to the roadblock and killed the day after they were detained at the ESO.⁴⁰²

191. Witness BDE also heard from ESO colleagues that Nizeyimana nearly “killed” Sergeant Nyirimanzi for bringing the Ruhutinyanyas into the ESO and that Nizeyimana, who referred to the family as “Inyenzi”, ordered that they be “taken back to their place of origin because he didn't need them in the camp”.⁴⁰³ The Chamber considers this aspect of Witness BDE's testimony, when viewed among all the relevant evidence, compelling.⁴⁰⁴ Indeed, evidence of Nizeyimana being angered about the presence of the Ruhutinyanya family is strikingly consistent with the testimonies of Witnesses XAG and YAL (discussed above), and Nizeyimana consequently ordering their removal, compelling.

192. The Defence challenges the Prosecution evidence, noting in particular variant dates provided by Witnesses ZAW and AZD. Witness ZAW estimated that he observed Nizeyimana speaking with Sergeant Nyirimanzi “around” 21 or 22 April 1994 and Witness AZD confirmed that this occurred after President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech in Butare between 21 and 26 April.⁴⁰⁵

193. The evidence uniformly demonstrates that the Ruhutinyanya family arrived at the ESO Camp on an evening in April 1994 and left the following day. Based on the consistent

And that is where this company assembled and this area was directly opposite his office.”), 36.

⁴⁰³ Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, pp. 23-24; T. 31 January 2011, pp. 35-36, 43.

⁴⁰⁴ Defence challenges to Witness BDE's evidence concerning this event primarily focus on the differences between her account and Witness ZY's testimony. The Chamber has discussed this in detail previously in this section.

⁴⁰⁵ Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 4; Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 5-7, 35. Witness AZD estimated that the minibus arrived between 20 and 25 April 1994 but that he had overheard the conversation between First Sergeant Nyirimanzi and Nizeyimana the following day. T. 1 February 2011, p. 5.

and detailed testimonies of Prosecution Witnesses YAL and BDE as well as Defence Witness ZML07 the Chamber has determined that the Ruhutinyanya family was brought to the ESO around 17 April and left the following day, approximately 18 April.⁴⁰⁶ In this regard, the evidence of Witness ZAW and AZD is inconsistent with these conclusions.

194. However, the Chamber notes that Witness ZAW only provided an estimate about the date and was not questioned extensively on the issue.⁴⁰⁷ Witness AZD testified that President Théodore Sindikubwabo's 19 April 1994 speech triggered acts of genocide and was certain that his observations concerning the Ruhutinyanya family happened after the speech.⁴⁰⁸ However, his evidence also reflects that he could only provide estimates, given the considerable passage of time.⁴⁰⁹ The inabilities of the witnesses to recall the precise dates are reasonable due to the passage of time and the variances do not raise doubts about their otherwise consistent and compelling accounts.

195. Having considered the Prosecution evidence, the Chamber turns to the relevant testimonies of the Defence witnesses. Contrary to the Prosecution witnesses, Defence Witnesses RWV11 and CKN10 testified that Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi arranged for the removal of the Ruhutinyanya family from the ESO. Their evidence, however, is second-hand.⁴¹⁰ Witness ZML07, who accompanied the Ruhutinyanya family from the camp, did not know who ordered the mission.⁴¹¹

196. In the Chamber's view, the second-hand evidence of Witnesses RWV11 and CKN10 is of relatively little probative value. The Chamber has elsewhere raised concerns about the fundamental credibility of their evidence.⁴¹² It does not raise doubts with the direct accounts of Witnesses ZAW and AZD that Nizeyimana instructed Sergeant Nyirimanzi to have the Ruhutinyanyas removed from the ESO and returned to where they had come from. In so finding, the Chamber has also considered Witness ZML07's first-hand account that Sergeant ⁴⁰⁶ Specifically, Witness YAL, the gendarme, identified 17 April 1994 as the exact date of his mission to escort the Ruhutinyanya to the border crossing. Prosecution Witness YAL, T. 25 January 2011, p. 48. Witness BDE recalled that the Ruhutinyanya family was brought to the ESO prior the President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech in Butare on 19 April 1994. Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 22; T. 31 January 2011, p. 36. Witness ZML07 repeatedly estimated that he escorted the Ruhutinyanya family from the ESO "around" 17 April 1994. Defence Witness ZML07, T. 18 May 2011, pp. 10, 26. The Chamber observes that Defence Witnesses RWV11 and CKN10 also testified that the Ruhutinyanya family was brought to the ESO on 17 April and that they left the following day. The Chamber has elsewhere questioned the fundamental credibility of these witnesses. See II.13.2. Notwithstanding, the Chamber considers that this aspect of their testimonies offers limited corroboration concerning the timing of this event.

But all I recall is that it was towards the end of April, that is, after the 20th, between the 20th and the 25th of April 1994. It was around that time, but let me repeat, I apologise, because I cannot remember dates.").

Nyirimanzi did not participate in the removal of the Ruhutinyanya family from the camp.⁴¹³ That other soldiers ultimately acted on these instructions, does not raise reasonable doubt in the first-hand evidence of Witnesses ZAW and AZD that Nizeyimana ordered the removal of the Ruhutinyanya family from the ESO.

197. Having considered the above, the Chamber must assess whether Nizeyimana's instructions amounted to an order or instigation to kill the Ruhutinyanya family. At the outset, none of the Prosecution witnesses testified that Nizeyimana ordered that the Ruhutinyanya family be killed. Furthermore, while Witnesses XAG and YAL testified about the particular threat the Interahamwe posed to the Ruhutinyanya family at the roadblock near the Akanyaru border crossing,⁴¹⁴ the Prosecution evidence does not provide direct evidence of Nizeyimana being informed of this or potential dangers of returning the family to the roadblock.⁴¹⁵

We answered that we were gendarmes who had been given a mission by our superiors and that we were merely respecting the orders of our commander, in accordance with the rules which stipulated that we could carry out escort missions. Captain Nizeyimana was not happy with that and he seized our service cards. We tried to explain and justify ourselves, but he did not want to understand us.”), 41 (“Q. You had the discussion with him about how you were taking people to the border and how you were to be locked up for the night. ... And then you left his office and you did not talk with him again that night. Correct? A. We left Captain Nizeyimana in his office. When we went outside, we tried to escape from the person who was responsible for guarding us, but we were not able to talk to Captain Nizeyimana that evening.”); Witness YAL, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 49 (“A. And they beat us up saying that we had transported accomplices. We responded that we had not transported any accomplices and that this was a family that had some problems which we were protecting. The soldiers did not understand this and continued to beat us.”), 50 (“Q. And did Captain Nizeyimana say anything to you while you were in the office? A. Did he specify that place to which they should be returned back? THE WITNESS: I thank you, Your Honour. It was being said that those people had been taken to a place that might have been known by

198. Having accepted the evidence of Witnesses XAG, YAL, ZAW and AZD, the Chamber considers it inconceivable that Nizeyimana would not have known of the particular threat posed by returning the Ruhutinyanya family to where they had come from – the roadblock near the Akanyaru border. The information about what had happened to the family there prior to their arrival at the ESO Camp circulated widely among ESO soldiers within the camp.⁴¹⁶ Given the overnight duration of the Ruhutinyanya family's presence there, it is doubtless that Nizeyimana would have acquired this information over the several hours that elapsed. Indeed, as an S2/S3 officer charged with intelligence and operations, as well as a captain issuing orders to lower ranking soldiers, it is inconceivable that Nizeyimana would have deployed ESO soldiers to return the Ruhutinyanya family to a particular location without first considering what circumstances the convoy would be facing.⁴¹⁷ The only reasonable inference is that the very danger the Ruhutinyanya family had faced at the roadblock was the reason why Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to return the family to that very location.

199. Moreover, the evidence of Nizeyimana's anger towards the presence of this family, characterised by him and others as Inyenzi or Inkotanyi, further reflects disgust with the fact that resources were being employed to protect the Tutsi family. Indeed, such disgust falls squarely in line with the Chamber's conclusions elsewhere that Nizeyimana, around this same time, substantially and significantly contributed to the preparations of an overwhelming military assault on displaced Tutsis at the Cyahinda parish.⁴¹⁸ Notably, this attack on the Tutsi refugees there occurred after they had effectively defended themselves against initial incursions by the Nyakizu bourgmestre and gendarmes, and, indeed, managed to kill at least two gendarmes.⁴¹⁹

Captain Nizeyimana, but I did not know the place. Subsequently, I learned that those people had been stopped at the Akanyaru border as they were attempting to flee into Burundi.”), 35 (“Q. And the following day in the morning, that’s when you saw Nizeyimana insulting the people who had brought the bus there, and you heard him telling them to take that vehicle back where it had come from because, and I’m quoting you from my notes, he didn’t – Nizeyimana said he didn’t need to see Inyenzis in the camp. That’s correct as well? A. Yes, Counsel.”); Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 5 (“A. ... When a soldier who had the rank of first sergeant called Nyirimanzi, First Sergeant Nyirimanzi ... told Captain Nizeyimana that he had brought Ruhutinyanya’s family from the road near Akanyaru when the family was fleeing to Burundi. And he responded that this family should be taken back where they had been brought from. ... Q. When you said he said “take them back”, who were you referring to? A. I am referring to Captain Nizeyimana ... I’m referring to him because the first sergeant talked to him and mentioned the fact that he had brought the family which was fleeing towards Burundi. So I am referring to Captain Ildéphonse Nizeyimana.”), 35-36 (“Q. Now, sir, you stated to the Court that one day you saw Mr. Nizeyimana speaking to Nyirimanzi saying to – something like, ‘Get rid of these people. Take them back where they came from.’ I have two questions here. First, is it not true this event happened prior to the speech of Dr. Sindikubwabo? A. That is not true, because that happened after the speech. ... Q. Okay. Now, you stated that you were on the tarmac, and you heard Nyirimanzi speaking to Nizeyimana. And you were 4 metres away or 5 metres away when he allegedly made those comments about getting rid of them. Is that correct, or am I wrong? A. Yes, that’s what I said.”).

⁴¹⁷ Indeed, the testimony of Witness RWV11, an ESO soldier, presumes that Bizimana, who led the Ruhutinyanyas away, necessarily would have known about the dangers that would confront them. See Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 73-75. The same would apply to the higher ranking soldier who ordered the removal.

⁴¹⁸ See II.4.2.

⁴¹⁹ See II.4.2.

200. Moreover, the record compellingly explains why the instructions overheard by Witnesses ZAW and AZD were not explicit orders to kill. Notably, this conversation was occurring in a relatively public venue when the full resources of the ESO Camp had not been turned towards the unabated slaughter of Tutsis or opposition figureheads.

201. Based on the above, the Chamber considers that the only reasonable inference is that Nizeyimana gave these instructions – namely returning the family to the place from where they were retrieved by ESO soldiers – knowing that the implementation of this order would lead to the slaughter of the Ruhutinyanya family. The Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana’s order substantially and significantly contributed to the Ruhutinyanya family’s removal and resulting killings.

202. In reaching this finding, the Chamber has also considered the evidence of Witness ZML07, whose testimony does not reflect that the Ruhutinyanya family were removed from the ESO for the purpose of being killed. Rather, the ESO soldiers were attempting to bring the family into Burundi.⁴²⁰ Witnesses RWV11 and CKN10 also testified that the purpose of the mission was to secure the family’s passage into Burundi.⁴²¹

203. Moreover, Witness ZML07 testified that the mission was unsuccessful because of an ensuing fight with Interahamwe manning a roadblock near the border and Burundian soldiers, who fired upon the ESO soldiers. Witness RWV11 corroborated aspects of Witness ZML07’s account, testifying that he heard from Second Lieutenant Pierre Bizimana that an altercation occurred at the roadblock and that Burundian soldiers fired upon the ESO soldiers.⁴²²

204. The Defence does not carry a burden of proof. Nonetheless, it remains appropriate to assess the reliability of the Defence evidence against conflicting Prosecution testimonies.⁴²³ At the outset, the Chamber considers that, even if credited, the second-hand evidence of Witnesses RWV11 and CKN10 as to the purpose of the mission is of little probative value when weighed against the first-hand accounts of the Prosecution witnesses and the compelling circumstantial evidence suggesting otherwise. The Chamber reiterates its fundamental concerns as it relates to the reliability of these witnesses.⁴²⁴

205. Turning to the evidence of Witness ZML07, the Chamber observes that he is the only witness who testified about this incident that has an ostensible personal interest in the Chamber’s assessment of it. As one of the ESO soldiers who left with the Ruhutinyanya family from the ESO Camp, it would be self-incriminatory to say that the purpose of the mission was to kill them. As a Rwandan in exile at the time of his testimony, the Chamber has concerns that he may have used his appearance before the Tribunal as an attempt to provide evidence that would exonerate him of liability as it relates to the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family.⁴²⁵ Indeed, the Chamber notes that Witness ZML07 left a uniformly negative impression with each member of this Bench. Having considered the relevant circumstances, as well as the witness’s demeanour during his viva voce evidence, the Chamber finds his evidence regarding the events at the roadblock that led to the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family patently unbelievable.

206. The Chamber observes that Witness ZML07's account about the altercation at the roadblock near the Akanyaru border post is detailed, and that Witness RWV11's evidence of what he heard closely corresponds to Witness ZML07's evidence. However, the Chamber finds these accounts prima facie unbelievable. The Chamber has considerable doubts that Interahamwe at this roadblock would have acted so aggressively towards this armed contingent of soldiers. It also is unable to credit evidence that Burundian soldiers would have subsequently fired upon a roadblock 500 metres to one kilometre inside of Rwanda.⁴²⁶ Indeed, Witness ZML07's evidence tends to suggest that the ESO soldiers were nearly out of range, or were in fact out of range of the firearms allegedly employed by the Burundian soldiers.⁴²⁷

207. Moreover, the fact that no attempt was made to retrieve the Ruhutinyanya family further belies that the purpose was to safely convey the Ruhutinyanya family across the border. Indeed, Witness ZML07's description of the soldiers deliberately placing a minivan full of civilians at the front of the convoy, as a means to safely deliver it through a roadblock where it had previously experienced considerable hostility, further demonstrates that the purpose was to shepherd the van towards the roadblock rather than convey it through the barrier.⁴²⁸

208. Furthermore, a broad review of the record reflects that, around this time, Lieutenant Bizimana effectuated attacks on select targets.⁴²⁹ His involvement in this operation lends ⁴²⁶ There is evidence that soldiers were deployed near the border with Burundi, although it is not clear if they were posted at the Akanyaru border crossing. See Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 26 (learned that ESO units were "deployed near the border" shortly after the President's death); Witness Hitayezu, T. 9 June 2011, p. 61 (confirming that ESO soldier Kanyeshyamba was assigned to guard the Akanyaru post at the border with Burundi); Witness OUV03, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 69, 71, T. 31 May 2011, p. 59 (as early as 6 April 1994, units were deployed to Kigembe and Kibayi communes to patrol the border with Burundi). Indeed, the Defence argues that the ESO deployed soldiers to Akanyaru. See Defence Closing Brief, para. 559. The Chamber notes that Witness Ufitimana did not describe the presence of ESO soldiers at the Akanyaru border post. Indeed, he only saw civilians and customs officers at the Rwandan side of the border. Witness Ufitimana, T. 26 May 2011, p. 11. However, the Chamber does not consider this a material fact, which would undermine his credibility in regards to this allegation.

⁴²⁷ Witness ZML07, T. 18 May 2011, pp. 25-26.

⁴²⁸ Witness ZML07, T. 18 May 2011, pp. 19 ("A. The two vehicles were close to each other, but the minibus was ahead. But our pickup was following closely behind."), 22 ("Q. I will ask a little more. For six soldiers including one officer, took this mission to escort this family, your team faced roadblocks – three roadblocks. Why did you choose the rear escort position instead of front escort? A. I think that I have already explained that point. However, I will repeat it. I have already said that our pickup truck was behind the minibus, but the distance between the two vehicles was very small. When we would get to a roadblock, our platoon leader would get out of the pickup truck and go and speak to the people manning at a given roadblock."), 36 ("A. I'm going to be brief. Personally I observe that the Prosecutor is suggesting that we were forcing the minibus to go in a certain direction, and that is not the case. When you escort somebody you don't place yourself before that person. When you escort somebody you position yourself behind the escorted person to protect him. Now, regarding the mission that was assigned to us, there wasn't a big distance between the minibus that we were escorting and our own vehicle. And we thought that the situation was not as dangerous, and we did not envisage that there will be any problem carrying out that problem (sic). We never expected that there were people who were going to prevent us from escorting the family to the border and for them to cross the border. The prevailing situation was not a war situation, as such.").

⁴²⁹ See II.6.2.

further credence to the Chamber's conclusion that it was aimed at the elimination, rather than the safe passage, of the Tutsi civilians he was accompanying.

209. Indeed, the plausibility of Witness ZML07's account is undermined by Witness Ufitimana, an ESO soldier who testified that he escorted a convoy of Tutsi civilians to the Akanyaru border just days after the Ruhutinyanya family was brought there. The two missions share strikingly similar circumstances. Like the Ruhutinyanya convoy, Witness Ufitimana and other armed ESO soldiers in three vehicles accompanied an Italian ambassador and a group of Tutsis, who were driving in their own vehicles, to the border with Burundi on 20 April 1994.⁴³⁰ While Ufitimana described facing difficulties at many roadblocks manned by civilians acting like "rabid dogs", the ESO soldiers were able to negotiate their way through. They managed to safely deliver the group to the border with Burundi.⁴³¹ Indeed, Witness Ufitimana's evidence reflects that when faced with difficulties, the soldiers managed to make their way through roadblocks by threatening force.

210. In the Chamber's view, Witness Ufitimana's evidence undermines the plausibility of the purported dangers armed civilians posed to a convoy of ESO soldiers escorting the Ruhutinyanya family at a roadblock near the Akanyaru border crossing. Indeed, the only reasonable conclusions are that these soldiers either shepherded members of that family to their death by leaving them at the roadblock, and / or did so and directly participated in the killing.

211. Moreover, the fact that one group of ESO soldiers sought to safely escort Tutsis across the border while others contributed directly to another group's killing is not irreconcilable. Witness Ufitimana's group was not only accompanying Tutsis, but also a foreign ambassador. Ensuring the safe passage of Witness Ufitimana's group had international and diplomatic implications that the killing of a Tutsi family from Butare did not.

212. Additionally, the fact that Witness RWV11 heard a story that closely corresponded with Witness ZML07's purported first-hand account is, in the Chamber's view, far from dispositive. Notably, the Chamber has elsewhere questioned Witness RWV11's credibility generally because his evidence at points appears exaggerated as a means of exculpating Nizeyimana or, as shown earlier, is inconsistent with other evidence tending to implicate Nizeyimana in this particular event.⁴³² The Chamber again remarks that Witness RWV11 left a uniformly negative impression with each member of this Bench. Having considered the relevant circumstances, as well as the witness's demeanour during his viva voce evidence, the Chamber has concerns about his credibility.

213. Furthermore, even if the Chamber were to credit Witness RWV11's evidence, the Chamber has no doubt that this story was concocted so as not to implicate the soldiers involved in the mission. Notably, the removal of the Ruhutinyanya family occurred at a period when large scale attacks on Tutsis had not yet commenced in Butare town. While the record reflects that shortly after, groups of ESO soldiers were organised and participated in targeted attacks on Tutsis and others, the full resources of the ESO Camp were not. Indeed, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana ordered the family to be removed to where they had first been retrieved knowing that they would be killed, but at a geographically distant location, and under circumstances that would allow him and ESO soldiers escorting them plausible deniability of their involvement.

214. Based on the above, the Chamber finds that Nizeyimana ordered the removal of the Ruhutinyanya family, knowing that the implementation of this order would lead to the slaughter of the Ruhutinyanya family. The Chamber has no doubt that in doing so, Nizeyimana shared the intention of those who ultimately killed the Ruhutinyanya family.

215. Furthermore, the Chamber has no doubt that the ESO soldiers accompanying the family either executed the Ruhutinyanya's themselves or brought them to the roadblock to be slaughtered. As discussed in detail below, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana's order substantially and significantly contributed to the Ruhutinyanya family's removal and resulting killings.

(ii) Killing of the Ruhutinyanya family

216. The Chamber observes that none of the evidence pertaining to the death of the Ruhutinyanya family is direct. The Chamber may make findings based on circumstantial evidence so long as it is the only reasonable conclusion.⁴³³ The Chamber also has the discretion to cautiously consider hearsay evidence and has the discretion to rely on it.⁴³⁴ The weight and probative value afforded to hearsay evidence will usually be less than that accorded to evidence of a witness who has given it under oath and who has been cross-examined.⁴³⁵

217. In this context, the Chamber considers that the circumstantial and hearsay evidence relating to the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family near the Akanyaru border is sufficiently reliable to allow for findings beyond reasonable doubt. At the outset, it notes that Defence Witness ZML07 provided a first-hand account that he and other ESO soldiers, including Second Lieutenant Pierre Bizimana, accompanied the Ruhutinyanya family to a roadblock manned by armed civilians close to the Akanyaru border crossing. Although he was not sure, he believed based on the sustained gunshots he heard while fleeing, that the Ruhutinyanyas had been killed at the border.⁴³⁶ While the Chamber has considerable reservations about Witness ZML07's evidence as to how the Ruhutinyanya family were killed, it finds his concession that they were in fact killed in that area compelling. Indeed, there is a significant amount of second-hand evidence from various sources, including Prosecution and Defence witnesses that support this conclusion.⁴³⁷

218. Other second-hand evidence that the family was killed at Rwasave or inside the ESO camp is supported by only a single witness in each instance.⁴³⁸ This evidence reflects the dangers of relying on hearsay. However, without a direct account offering a competing narrative or any indication that the family survived, the Chamber is satisfied that the diversity of sources demonstrates that the Ruhutinyanya family was killed in the vicinity of a roadblock near the Akanyaru border crossing around 18 April 1994. This is the only reasonable conclusion given the evidence.⁴³⁹

219. Similarly, the Chamber has no doubt that the ESO soldiers who transported the Ruhutinyanyas to this location significantly and substantially contributed to their murders and intended this outcome. Indeed, it is significant that Second Lieutenant Bizimana led this operation. Only days later, he also led a team of ESO soldiers in the extraction and killing of Rosalie Gicanda, the former Tutsi Queen of Rwanda, and other persons in her household.⁴⁴⁰ The Chamber has no doubt that either the ESO soldiers who transported the family to the roadblock and or the armed civilians and Interahamwe manning it directly participated in the killing of members of this family.

220. Furthermore, given the undisputed fact that Mr. Ruhutinyanya was Tutsi,⁴⁴¹ that the minivan's occupants were members of his family and included children,⁴⁴² and that those inside the minivan were perceived to be Tutsis,⁴⁴³ the only reasonable conclusion is that a significant number of the victims within the minibus were Tutsis, were identified as such, and killed on that basis. Such a conclusion is necessarily supported by the considerable evidence in this proceeding that Tutsis were targeted by soldiers and civilian militia, including Interahamwe at roadblocks.⁴⁴⁴ The Chamber shall consider these conclusions in its Legal Findings (III).

4.2 Cyahinda Parish Massacre

Introduction

221. The Indictment alleges that from approximately 15 April until 20 April 1994, Nizeyimana authorised, ordered, or instigated soldiers from the ESO, Ngoma Camp, and Butare Gendarmerie Camp, militiamen, Burundian refugees, and armed civilians from Nyakizu and surrounding communes to kill Tutsi civilians who had taken refuge at Cyahinda Parish. Specifically, around 17 April, Nizeyimana and Prefect Jean Baptiste Habyalimana went to Cyahinda Parish and met with the Tutsi refugees, after which it was decided that soldiers would be sent to the parish. The next day, around 18 April, following Nizeyimana's instructions, a number of ESO soldiers and "others", led by Warrant Officer Paul Kanyeshyamba, as well as gendarmes led by Second Lieutenant Majoro, exercised their command to target the civilian victims. Soldiers, militiamen and armed civilians killed thousands of Tutsis civilians at Cyahinda Parish on the orders or instigation of Nizeyimana. Prosecution Witnesses AZM, Anaclet Dufitumukiza, ZBK, ZCC, GEN and XAG provided relevant evidence.⁴⁴⁵

222. The Defence concedes that Nizeyimana went to Cyahinda Parish, where thousands of Tutsis had sought refuge, and does not dispute that an attack occurred there. However, the Defence submits that the Prosecution evidence lacks credibility. Furthermore, the evidence fails to establish the involvement of ESO soldiers or Nizeyimana. Defence Witnesses Jean Marie Vianney Mushi, ZML10, RWV09, Thomas Ruzindana, OUV03, CKN10 and Valens Hahirwa provided relevant evidence.⁴⁴⁶

Prosecution Witness AZM

223. Witness AZM, a Hutu, was a member of the prefecture security committee in Butare in April 1994.⁴⁴⁷ On the afternoon of 17 April 1994, the witness, Nizeyimana, Butare Prefect Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, Prosecutor Mathias Bushishi and a priest called Nyaminani, went to Cyahinda Parish.⁴⁴⁸ A gendarme guarding the refugees who had gathered there had been killed by them.⁴⁴⁹ This delegation of the prefecture security committee went to the parish to "iron out" the refugees' security issues.⁴⁵⁰

⁴⁴⁵ Indictment, para. 13; Prosecution Closing Brief, paras. 98-118; T. 7 December 2011, pp. 3, 15-17 (Prosecution Closing Arguments). The Prosecution also points to the evidence of Justin Gahizi. This evidence is summarised elsewhere but considered here. II.12.1.

⁴⁵⁰ Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 63-64.

224. Although not allowed to enter the Cyahinda Parish buildings, the witness observed nearly 3,000 refugees, who were from Gikongoro prefecture.⁴⁵¹ Upon arrival, Father Nyaminani negotiated with the refugees, who acceded to speaking with the entire security delegation once shown that the Tutsi prefect, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, was among them.⁴⁵² The refugees agreed to return the corpse of the gendarme on the condition that the gendarmes guarding the parish be replaced with soldiers.⁴⁵³ The delegation retrieved the body, but briefly into the discussions, a Tutsi refugee was injured by Hutus who stole a cow, causing an uprising among the refugees that forced the security delegation to leave around 5.00 p.m.⁴⁵⁴

225. The security delegation returned to Butare and all went to the ESO Camp's officers' mess to have a drink.⁴⁵⁵ Around 7.00 p.m., they heard on the radio that Jean Baptiste Habyalimana had been dismissed as Butare's prefect.⁴⁵⁶ Witness AZM believed that soldiers were sent to Cyahinda Parish because the prefect had previously explained to the witness that this was why Nizeyimana formed part of the delegation and because the refugees had asked for soldiers.⁴⁵⁷

226. In April 1994, Witness Dufitumukiza, a Tutsi, was a gendarme corporal who worked as a driver at the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp in Butare town.⁴⁵⁸ Two or three days before 19 April, gendarmes led by Second Lieutenant Majaro were sent to Cyahinda Parish to recover the body of one of two gendarmes who had been killed by Tutsi refugees that had fled from Nyaruguru and other regions of Butare and gathered at the parish.⁴⁵⁹ Before their departure, the witness saw the gendarmes in possession of their personal firearms take a heavy machine gun operated by three people from the armoury.⁴⁶⁰ Although Witness Dufitumukiza did not talk to the envoy, he believed that the gendarmes, sent under the pretence of protecting the refugees, actually intended to disarm the Tutsis at the parish and seek revenge for the killing of their colleagues.⁴⁶¹

227. On 19 April 1994, gendarmerie Sergeant Major Mugisha instructed Witness Dufitumukiza to retrieve the gendarmes that had previously been sent to Cyahinda Parish as well as the corpse of the gendarme who had been killed there.⁴⁶² Witness Dufitumukiza left the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp around 11.00 a.m. and arrived at the Nyakizu commune office, situated on a hill near Cyahinda Parish, around 12.30 p.m.⁴⁶³ He drove a Toyota Stout 2200 pickup.⁴⁶⁴

228. Upon arrival at the commune office, Witness Dufitumukiza heard heavy machine gun fire and grenades exploding and saw that Tutsis had been killed.⁴⁶⁵ From a very short distance, and while positioned in front of the office, he saw ESO Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba commanding about 11 ESO soldiers who fired support weapons towards Cyahinda Parish.⁴⁶⁶ The weapons included one 60 millimetre mortar, a heavy machine gun (which was stationary), and other machine guns.⁴⁶⁷ Only the ESO, a training institution, had such heavy weaponry.⁴⁶⁸ He heard Kanyashyamba, who he knew well, shout to the soldiers “[s]ee that no one gets away” and instruct a “Hutu” in a Daihatsu pickup to get Hutus to surround the hill to prevent Tutsis from getting away.⁴⁶⁹ He also saw Kanyashyamba firing his rifle “furiously at refugees”.⁴⁷⁰

229. Soldiers participating in the attacks were “scattered all over the place”, including the woods and nearby hills.⁴⁷¹ Hutus surrounded the “hill” and killed Tutsis that had escaped with bladed or traditional weapons.⁴⁷² Witness Dufitumukiza remained there between 20 to 30 minutes in order to allow the approximately 11 gendarmes, who had been awaiting his arrival, to recover all their equipment.⁴⁷³ While he did not observe any of the gendarmes participate in what he described as a “massacre” of the refugees at Cyahinda Parish, he believed that they in fact had.⁴⁷⁴ They left, along with the corpse of the gendarme who had previously been killed, and returned to the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp.⁴⁷⁵ captured and brought to a compound where Burundian refugees assaulted her.⁴⁷⁷ Gendarmes and their driver, who was Witness ZBK's neighbor, arrived.⁴⁷⁸ They had been sent by the bourgmestre to remove a woman, but she was not there.⁴⁷⁹ The driver took the witness and placed her in the gendarmes' Daihatsu pickup.⁴⁸⁰ They went to the bourgmestre's home, retrieved the bourgmestre's wife and her children, the commune driver as well as his wife and children, and went to the commune office, arriving around 9.00 a.m. that day.⁴⁸¹ There, the bourgmestre's wife instructed Witness ZBK to come into the commune office with those families.⁴⁸²

231. From inside the commune office, Witness ZBK looked out the window and could see the Cyahinda Parish on an opposite hill, situated approximately one kilometre away.⁴⁸³ The witness was aware that Tutsi refugees from Gikongoro had been gathering there since 9 April 1994. That day she observed persons with their livestock carrying personal belongings, travelling through a wooded area to towards the parish.⁴⁸⁴ On 15 April, she heard screams from Cyahinda Parish and believed that Interahamwe were killing the displaced Tutsis there.⁴⁸⁵ She also saw gendarmes and communal police leave the commune office for the parish and believed that they went there to kill Tutsis as well.⁴⁸⁶ The attack lasted until about 3.00 p.m., when gendarmes returned to the commune office, stating that while refugees had been killed, they had defended the parish and killed gendarmes in the process.⁴⁸⁷

232. That afternoon, President Théodore Sindikubwabo addressed a large crowd, including Interahamwe from the commune that had surrounded the commune office.⁴⁸⁸ He admonished them that the situation was similar to that experienced during the 1959 revolution, and that each needed to defend "himself".⁴⁸⁹ Nyakizu Bourgmestre Ladislas Ntaganzwa then informed those gathered that he had heard the president and would reinforce them.⁴⁹⁰ He told the crowd to continue to "work", which the witness interpreted as continuing to "kill[] people".⁴⁹¹

⁴⁸³ Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, pp. 13, 61-62. From the commune office Witness ZBK clarified that there was a wooded area and school between the commune office and Cyahinda Parish, but that one could recognise the parish buildings including the church, sisters' convent and school. T. 19 January 2011, pp. 13, 61-62. The distance was significant enough so that Witness ZBK could not recognise persons who were, for example, in the church courtyard and she would have been unable to distinguish if one person was shooting another. Rather, the witness could only recognise larger movements, such as a person running. T. 19 January 2011, pp. 13, 61-62.

233. Between 9.00 or 10.00 p.m. that evening, Bourgmestre Ntaganzwa, who the witness knew, came to the commune office.⁴⁹² He had a light wound, which he explained had been inflicted while at Cyahinda Parish.⁴⁹³ He stated that he would go to the ESO the following day to get reinforcements, who the witness understood would “come and exterminate all the Tutsis”.⁴⁹⁴ Ntaganzwa left with his wife.⁴⁹⁵ The next day, the witness did not hear much gunfire or screams and she was unsure of the situation.⁴⁹⁶

234. Before 7.00 a.m. on a following day, Ntaganzwa returned to the commune office, retrieved his diary, and again informed the witness that he was going to the ESO to seek reinforcements.⁴⁹⁷ On Sunday, 17 April 1994, two days after her arrival at the commune office, Witness ZBK heard gendarmes who were positioned around the commune office announce the arrival of military lorries around 12.00 p.m.⁴⁹⁸ She observed two vehicles, referred to as CTA, Siteya or Tata, park in front of the commune office.⁴⁹⁹ One lorry could carry about 35 soldiers.⁵⁰⁰

235. Soldiers, some wearing fully green or camouflage uniforms, black berets or metal helmets, some in plastic looking overcoats, and some carrying grenades, exited hastily from the vehicles.⁵⁰¹ A number of soldiers ran in the direction of Cyahinda Parish while she observed others connecting “grenades”, “rockets” or devices to the nozzles of their weapons.⁵⁰² She heard some soldiers say that they were going to “Rukuguru” hill.⁵⁰³ She did not see heavy weapons being positioned in front of the commune office and believed that the soldiers were positioned away from it.⁵⁰⁴ Witness ZBK heard gunfire and explosions and was uncertain if it came from the vicinity of the commune office.⁵⁰⁵

236. When calm had returned two days after the attacks, on 19 April 1994, the bourgmestre returned to the commune office and took Witness ZBK to the large Red Cross camp.⁵⁰⁶ She spent two days there before leaving for Butare town.⁵⁰⁷

Prosecution Witness ZCC

237. Witness ZCC, a Tutsi, was a Red Cross volunteer in April 1994.⁵⁰⁸ Approximately four days following the shooting of President Habyarimana's plane, the witness went to Cyahinda Parish with members of the Red Cross.⁵⁰⁹ He saw more than 3,000 persons who he had heard were Tutsis.⁵¹⁰ Refugees informed the group that they had fled attacks on Tutsis.⁵¹¹

238. Sometime after 10 April but before 18 April 1994, Witness ZCC was at the Red Cross tents based at Nyabidande hill, metres from the commune office.⁵¹² He saw Nyakizu bourgmestre, "Ladislas", take gendarmes who guarded the Red Cross facility in his vehicle to go to Cyahinda Parish.⁵¹³ The witness heard gunfire.⁵¹⁴ When they returned about one hour later, the gendarmes told Witness ZCC and others that the bourgmestre instructed them to fire.⁵¹⁵ They complied with the order and the refugees responded by throwing stones, killing one gendarme and forcing the rest to retreat.⁵¹⁶

239. The Nyakizu bourgmestre, in the presence of the witness and the other Red Cross workers, asked the head of the Red Cross operation to retrieve the gendarme's body from Cyahinda Parish.⁵¹⁷ Witness ZCC drove there with the commune vehicle.⁵¹⁸ At the parish he saw numerous wounded Tutsi refugees, who appeared to have been shot.⁵¹⁹ They were allowed to take the body of the gendarme – Musanganira – which they found downhill from the parish, next to the hostels.⁵²⁰ He appeared to have died from blunt trauma caused by sticks and stones, rather than sharp objects or bullets.⁵²¹

240. On a weekend day, Witness ZCC, a colleague named Alexandre and a driver left with the gendarme's corpse and drove it approximately 30 to 40 kilometres to the mortuary at the Butare University Hospital.⁵²² They left the body there between 3.00 and 4.00 p.m.⁵²³ Having run out of fuel, the vehicle was left at the Red Cross coordination centre and the witness went to his home in Mpare sector, Huye commune.⁵²⁴

241. The next morning, the witness returned to Butare town.⁵²⁵ Efforts were made to find an alternative way to get back to Nyakizu commune because the vehicle was still out of fuel.⁵²⁶ Witness ZCC joined driver, Ruwire, who was getting fuel at the Hotel Ibis for a red Toyota Stout belonging to the Nyakizu commune.⁵²⁷ Having obtained the fuel, they went to the ESO Camp, where they remained for approximately one and a half hours.⁵²⁸ The vehicle left ESO with the witness, the driver, two soldiers armed with rifles, a communal policeman and the Nyakizu bourgmestre, “Ladislav”, who ordered the driver to go fast.⁵²⁹ One soldier referred to the other during the drive as “CDR”.⁵³⁰ They arrived at the Nyakizu commune office around 10.00 a.m. and Witness ZCC went to his Red Cross tent, situated about five metres from the office.⁵³¹

242. Around 1.00 p.m., the witness left his tent and went to the commune office courtyard as four military lorries arrived.⁵³² Two parked near the commune office, carrying between 50 and 60 soldiers, while two others parked at the CERAI office, which was “a few metres” from the commune office.⁵³³ The soldiers wore combat fatigues, worn-out uniforms, camouflage and ordinary uniforms.⁵³⁴ All wore black berets that bore the “insignia of the army”, which were distinguishable from the red berets worn by gendarmes.⁵³⁵ The witness did not know any of the soldiers or what camp they came from.⁵³⁶

243. Six soldiers entered the commune office while the others remained in the vehicles.⁵³⁷ When the six soldiers exited five minutes later, they joined the others, went to the “lower side of the road” near an avocado farm, and started firing at people and livestock on Cyahinda hill, who fled to the church.⁵³⁸ Carrying “self-loading” firearms or light “NATO” weapons that fired 30 bullets rather than 24, the soldiers continued to move through the valley towards the church and the buildings at Cyahinda Parish and shoot at the Tutsis there.⁵³⁹ The witness estimated that Cyahinda Parish was about one and a half times the width of a football field as the crow flies, or around 120 metres from the commune office.⁵⁴⁰

244. At a certain point in the fighting, Witness ZCC, accompanied gendarmes posted near the Red Cross tents and moved towards Cyahinda Parish.⁵⁴¹ The witness observed gendarmes, Interahamwe and Burundian refugees “finishing off” the victims with small axes,

Prosecution Witness GEN

245. In April 1994, Witness GEN, a Tutsi, worked at Cyahinda Parish, which was surrounded by a wooded area and Rukugutu and Nyabidande hills on either side.⁵⁴⁷ At 8.00 a.m. on Friday, 15 April, the witness, her husband, a niece, and a nephew fled attacks in her neighborhood.⁵⁴⁸ They arrived at Cyahinda Parish around 10.00 a.m., observing nearly 10,000 refugees, scattered throughout the parish complex and in the nearby woods.⁵⁴⁹ Many were children, young adults and the elderly – very few were adult males.⁵⁵⁰ The refugees informed the witness that they had been displaced from neighboring communes such as Rushishi, Nyirera and Kibeho, due to attacks on Tutsis.⁵⁵¹

246. Upon arriving at the parish, Witness GEN also saw Nyakizu bourgmestre Ladislas Ntaganzwa accompanied by gendarmes in khaki uniforms and red berets, who were also carrying firearms.⁵⁵² Speaking into a microphone, Ntaganzwa counted from one to three, and on three, the witness heard gunfire.⁵⁵³ She hid behind a classroom and after about 30 minutes the bourgmestre and two gendarmes passed by her.⁵⁵⁴ While Ntaganzwa ordered them to kill her, one gendarme, whom the witness had helped while he was in school, prevented it.⁵⁵⁵

247. Witness GEN hid in a stable that night and saw many wounded refugees as well as corpses the following day.⁵⁵⁶ She remained in the parish that evening.⁵⁵⁷ The next day, 17 April 1994, around 2.00 p.m., persons wearing military fatigues fired on the witness and others at Cyahinda Parish from Rukugutu hill.⁵⁵⁸ Refugees were also fired on from

248. The witness fled to Mount Nyakizu that day and firing continued into the evening.⁵⁶⁰ It recommenced the following morning between 9.00 and 10.00 a.m. and the witness heard explosions and saw bursts of flames and dust from her position on Nyakizu hill.⁵⁶¹ The impact of projectiles on the church walls was visible.⁵⁶² Survivors told the witness that corpses were found inside and outside the parish buildings.⁵⁶³ She fled Nyakizu hill around 3.00 a.m. that evening.⁵⁶⁴ Witness GEN later learned that Butare Prefect Jean Baptiste Habyalimana went to Cyahinda Parish after she had left for Mount Nyakizu.⁵⁶⁵

Prosecution Witness XAG

249. In April 1994, Witness XAG, a Hutu, was a member of the gendarmerie based at the Tumba camp in Butare.⁵⁶⁶ Fellow gendarmes told the witness that gendarmes had been assigned to protect the refugees from Gikongoro, who were staying at Cyahinda Parish.⁵⁶⁷ One gendarme entered and was disarmed and killed.⁵⁶⁸ Civilian and military authorities held a meeting and retrieved the body either the day of, or one day prior to President Théodore Sindikubwabo's arrival there.⁵⁶⁹

Defence Witness Jean Marie Vianney Mushi

250. Witness Mushi, a Hutu, lived on Rukugutu hill, about 100 metres from the Cyahinda commercial centre and 300 metres from Cyahinda Parish.⁵⁷⁰ His house and Cyahinda Parish were about one kilometre from the Nyakizu commune office.⁵⁷¹

three days and spoke to refugees, who eventually numbered in the thousands.⁵⁷³ He learned that Tutsis were fleeing neighboring attacks in areas like Mubuga commune.⁵⁷⁴

252. The witness was told that about three to four days after the initial arrival of refugees, two gendarmes were killed and that the bourgmestre was wounded.⁵⁷⁵ Rumours spread that members of “Kagame’s army”, armed with rifles, infiltrated the refugees at the parish.⁵⁷⁶ The following day, the witness saw vehicles pass through the Cyahinda commercial centre, including a communal transport with communal police and gendarmes.⁵⁷⁷ Onlookers identified Butare’s prefect and a “soldier” in the convoy.⁵⁷⁸ About 20 minutes later, Witness Mushi observed the vehicles return.⁵⁷⁹ He learned that the prefect had tried to negotiate with the refugees, who ultimately refused to return the bodies of the gendarmes.⁵⁸⁰

254. Starting around 7.00 p.m., Witness Mushi heard gunshots in the vicinity of Cyahinda Parish, which continued through the evening until around 2.00 or 3.00 a.m.⁵⁸⁵ That night, Witness Mushi, and all who lived on Rukugu hill, fled to an unidentified hill out of fear.⁵⁸⁶ The next morning, Witness Mushi and the others remained at this hill as they heard gunshots and saw refugees being attacked now on Nyakizu hill.⁵⁸⁷ He observed Burundian refugees and civilians armed with machetes as well as gendarmes passing his position and going in the direction of Nyakizu hill.⁵⁸⁸ The gunfire ceased between 12.00 and 1.00 p.m.⁵⁸⁹ As gendarmes and “other people” returned, they informed Witness Mushi, and others who had fled, that it was safe to go home.⁵⁹⁰ Attacks of a lesser intensity continued for the next two to three days.⁵⁹¹ After the violence ceased, Witness Mushi went to Cyahinda Parish.⁵⁹² He saw bodies and fled out of fear.⁵⁹³

Defence Witness ZML10

255. Witness ZML10, a Hutu, worked at a school in 1994 and lived in Nyakizu commune, about eight to 10 kilometres from Cyahinda.⁵⁹⁴ In the days after President Juvénal Habyarimana's plane crash, Tutsis from neighboring communes as well as from Witness ZML10's locality were being attacked, prompting several to flee to Cyahinda Parish.⁵⁹⁵

256. Around 14 April 1994, Witness ZML10 learned that large numbers of refugees had arrived at Cyahinda Parish, that they had killed two gendarmes, and wounded the bourgmestre.⁵⁹⁶ About four to five days after hearing this information, around 10.00 and 11.00 a.m., the witness and between seven to 10 Hutu neighbors left on foot for the parish to participate in attacks on the displaced Tutsis there.⁵⁹⁷ Some of the Hutus were armed with machetes or stones.⁵⁹⁸

257. They arrived at the Cyahinda business centre between 2.00 and 3.00 p.m.⁵⁹⁹ Witness ZML10 and five or six members of the original group then crossed the river and went to the commune office, where the witness observed an empty military vehicle and the red communal pickup.⁶⁰⁰ Sometime between 3.30 and 4.30 p.m., they heard gunfire from Cyahinda Parish and went there.⁶⁰¹

258. Once at Cyahinda Parish, the witness observed from close range gendarmes, wearing red berets, firing at the refugees, which included Tutsi men, women and children numbering in the thousands.⁶⁰² The gendarmes were divided into several groups and, gauging from the gunfire, the witness estimated that there were between 20 and 30 of them.⁶⁰³ Witness ZML10, armed with a stick, participated in attacks on the Tutsis, who were perceived as Inkotanyi.⁶⁰⁴ While he did not enter the church, he moved around it as well as the "Sisters' banana plantation".⁶⁰⁵ Numerous civilian assailants joined the attack, but the witness did not see any soldiers.⁶⁰⁶ He left around 6.00 p.m.⁶⁰⁷ He could still hear gunshots and believed that the attack was growing in intensity.⁶⁰⁸

Defence Witness RWV09

259. Witness RWV09, a Hutu, was a military officer who was assigned to the ESO Camp around 13 or 14 April 1994 and lived there.⁶⁰⁹ Witness RWV09 learned that violence occurred between gendarmes, on the one hand, and Tutsi officials and refugees gathered at Cyahinda Parish, on the other.⁶¹⁰ On 17 April, Nizeyimana and the Butare prefect were part of a delegation that went to the parish to investigate the disturbances.⁶¹¹ Nizeyimana, as well as a team of soldiers, were responsible for providing security to the prefect on this mission.⁶¹² Nizeyimana returned to camp around 6.00 p.m. and the witness was not aware of any violence during the mission.⁶¹³

260. Witness RWV09 was unaware of any ESO trucks leaving the ESO Camp on 18 April 1994.⁶¹⁴ Likewise, he heard that gendarmes from the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp were sent to Cyahinda Parish to provide security, but he denied that ESO soldiers were also sent there.⁶¹⁵

Defence Witness Thomas Ruzindana

261. In April 1994, Witness Ruzindana, a Hutu, was a cadet in a platoon led by Ndayambaje.⁶¹⁶ He generally recalled that between 15 and 17 April, Nizeyimana went on a pacification mission to Cyahinda.⁶¹⁷ Nizeyimana was accompanied by a civilian, whose name the witness no longer recalled.⁶¹⁸ Witness Ruzindana did not observe or hear that two to four military trucks with soldiers went to Cyahinda.⁶¹⁹ Likewise, he never heard that two to four truckloads of ESO soldiers were dispatched from the camp and attacked thousands of “people” there.⁶²⁰

Defence Witnesses OUV03 and CKN10

262. Witnesses OUV03 and CKN10, Hutus, were soldiers at the ESO in April 1994.⁶²¹ Nizeyimana personally told Witness OUV03 on 17 April that he would be going to Cyahinda Parish in Nyakizu commune, accompanied by ESO subordinate personnel.⁶²²

263. On 17 April 1994, Witness CKN10 was positioned at the main entrance of the ESO, starting at 4.00 p.m.⁶²³ When he arrived he received a message to pass on to Nizeyimana, who had not spent the night at the ESO because he had gone on mission to Cyahinda.⁶²⁴ Nizeyimana arrived at the Camp around 6.30 and 7.00 p.m. that evening.⁶²⁵

264. Witness CKN10, who remained at his post until 4.00 p.m. the following day, did not see ESO soldiers pass his post in a truck.⁶²⁶ Witness OUV03 believed that there were three Mercedes-Benz lorries at the ESO, while Witness CKN10 believed that there were three to four.⁶²⁷

Defence Witness Valens Hahirwa

265. Witness Hahirwa was a Defence investigator for Nizeyimana at the time of his testimony.⁶²⁸ Cyahinda Parish was located 46 kilometres by road from Hotel Faucon in Butare town.⁶²⁹ Nyakizu commune office was 44 kilometres away.⁶³⁰ It took him 15 minutes to walk from the commune office to Cyahinda Parish, taking a less direct route.⁶³¹ Witness Hahirwa took a picture of the parish from the commune office, admitted as Defence Exhibit D66(B) and stated that he could not see the church from the point from where he took the photograph.⁶³²

Deliberations

266. The evidence reflects that in the days following the killing of President Juvénal Habyarimana on 6 April 1994, primarily Tutsi civilians fled attacks in communes neighbouring Nyakizu and made their way to Cyahinda Parish. A considerable complex, estimates before the Chamber demonstrate that thousands of displaced men, women and children filled the parish facilities.

267. Furthermore, Prosecution and Defence evidence proves that in the second third of April 1994 – likely 15 April – the Nyakizu bourgmestre, Ladislas Ntaganzwa, took gendarmes to the Cyahinda Parish complex. The gendarmes attacked the displaced persons staying at Cyahinda, but the refugees fought back. They managed to kill at least two gendarmes and wounded the bourgmestre. Subsequently, a security delegation, which included Butare's Tutsi prefect, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, and Nizeyimana, went to Cyahinda Parish to meet with those living there. Finally, the evidence undoubtedly confirms that a crushing assault was launched by civilian militia and security forces against those staying at Cyahinda Parish. Thousands of the displaced persons, primarily Tutsis, were killed, their bodies scattered throughout the complex. Survivors fled.

268. In this context, the Prosecution seeks to hold Nizeyimana responsible for the later attack on Cyahinda Parish "on or around 18 April 1994". It alleges that soldiers from ESO platoons and "other" soldiers exercised their command responsibility, which led to "soldiers, militiamen and armed civilians" killing thousands of Tutsi civilians.⁶³³ The Prosecution case relies primarily on the evidence of Witnesses ZBK, ZCC and GEN, who all testified that soldiers participated in the attack on Cyahinda Parish. Furthermore, Prosecution Witness Anaclét Dufitumukiza, a gendarme assigned to retrieving colleagues from the Nyakizu commune office, saw ESO Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba leading around 11 soldiers in attacks on the parish and directing civilian assailants as well. The Prosecution also points to other circumstantial evidence that the Nyakizu bourgmestre went to the ESO before the attack. In support of Witness Dufitumukiza's identification of ESO soldiers, it highlights evidence that Kanyashyamba was Nizeyimana's subordinate and was deployed in the region.

269. The Defence concedes that a large scale attack followed the killing of gendarmes and wounding of the Nyakizu bourgmestre. However, it presented evidence disputing the participation of any soldiers – much less ESO soldiers. It argues that the evidence of the Prosecution witnesses, when viewed individually and collectively, lacks credibility.

270. In light of the Indictment allegations and the evidence, the Chamber considers that a threshold determination must be made as to whether soldiers (and, in particular, ESO soldiers) participated in the concluding attacks on Cyahinda Parish. Furthermore, the Chamber shall consider what role, if any, Nizeyimana had in the attack. For the sake of clarity, the Chamber shall first provide a brief summary of the relevant Prosecution evidence concerning the attacks on Cyahinda Parish. Next, it will address general credibility challenges to the Prosecution evidence, followed by alleged inconsistencies within each witness's testimony, as well as with prior statements made by them. The Chamber shall consider the merits of the Prosecution evidence viewed collectively and in light of Defence evidence. Finally, the Chamber shall consider whether the evidence supports Nizeyimana's involvement in the attack. Although set forth separately, the analysis in each section is informed by that in the others.

(i) Introduction

271. Witnesses ZBK and GEN provided first-hand accounts of soldiers participating in an attack on Cyahinda Parish around 17 April 1994. Witness ZCC also provided direct testimony of soldiers attacking the parish on a day following a weekend day in mid-April. Moreover, Witness Dufitumukiza testified to seeing soldiers attacking Cyahinda Parish on 19 April and specified that ESO soldiers were participating. Witnesses ZBK, ZCC and ⁶³³ Indictment, para. 13(ii).

Dufitumukiza all gave direct evidence of soldiers launching the attack while in the immediate vicinity of the Nyakizu commune office, situated on Nyibadande hill. Witness GEN's observations of the assault were from inside the Cyahinda Parish facilities and then from Nyakizu hill.

(ii) General Credibility Challenges

272. At the outset, the Defence does not challenge Witness GEN's evidence.⁶³⁴ Furthermore, the Chamber has no concerns about the general credibility of Witnesses ZBK, ZCC or GEN. None are accomplices or have an apparent interest in implicating Nizeyimana.

273. With respect to Witness Dufitumukiza, the Chamber has no ostensible concerns about his general credibility. The witness's position within the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp is uncontested and his evidence, when viewed with other evidence about the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp, firmly supports that he was assigned there. Likewise, Witness Dufitumukiza was not incarcerated at the time his testimony. While he was an accused before a Rwandan Gacaca court in 2006, there is no evidence that he had any pending genocide proceedings against him in Rwanda at the time of his testimony.⁶³⁵ Again, the Chamber finds no ostensible interest for the witness to implicate Nizeyimana.

274. Nonetheless, the Defence argues that Witness Dufitumukiza used his testimony in this proceeding to shift blame for the attack on Cyahinda Parish from gendarmes at the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp to ESO soldiers.⁶³⁶ The fallacy of this argument was exposed by the Defence. During cross-examination, Witness Dufitumukiza confirmed that he provided evidence in Rwanda that assisted in securing the conviction of Tumba Gendarmerie Camp commander Cyriaque Habyarabatura for his role in the killings at Cyahinda Parish.⁶³⁷ Under these circumstances, there is no basis to suggest that Witness Dufitumukiza now seeks to shift blame for the attacks from gendarmes to ESO soldiers or Nizeyimana.

(iii) Alleged Inconsistencies within Testimonies as well as with Prior Statements

275. Turning to alleged inconsistencies within the witnesses' evidence as well as with prior statements, the Defence raises a number of challenges to Witness ZBK's evidence.⁶³⁸ Of significance, the Defence confronted Witness ZBK with her 1996 statement to Tribunal investigators, which reads that during the night of 15 April 1994, the bourgmestre retrieved

⁶³⁵ See Exhibit P5 (Witness Dufitumukiza's Personal Information Sheet); T. 20 January 2011, p. 32.

⁶³⁶ Defence Closing Brief, paras. 322, 347-353.

⁶³⁷ Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 31, 50-51.

⁶³⁸ The Defence submits that Witness ZBK's testimony about how she arrived at the commune office is inconsistent with her November 1996 statement to Tribunal investigators. Defence Closing Brief, para. 345. Having reviewed all the relevant testimony, the Chamber considers that there is no material discrepancy between her testimony during direct examination and her 1996 statement. Rather, her testimony, which was led by Prosecution counsel, was less detailed. Her cross-examination merely confirmed the details present in her statement. Compare Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, pp. 15, with 53-59. Likewise, the Defence argues that her evidence reflects that gendarmes, not soldiers, participated in the attack as she initially discussed gendarmes putting grenades on their rifles. Defence Closing Brief, para. 341. In the Chamber's view, Witness ZBK clearly explained that she saw soldiers doing this and received explanations from gendarmes. T. 19 January 2011, pp. 23-24, 62, 65-67. These challenges do not raise reasonable doubts about her evidence.

his wife from the commune office, while he asked the witness to stay. “[The witness] was put behind his office in a Red Cross tent”.⁶³⁹

276. Witness ZBK stated that this was a recording error, affirming her testimony that she remained in the commune office and did not go to the nearby Red Cross facility until 19 April 1994.⁶⁴⁰ To the extent that the 1996 statement is inconsistent with the witness’s testimony, the Chamber considers the difference immaterial.⁶⁴¹ Moreover, the 1996 statement is ambiguous as to whether the witness left that night or later.⁶⁴² This purported inconsistency does not impact the witness’s reliability or evidence.

277. Turning to Witness ZCC, the Defence argues that Witness ZCC’s evidence is “pure fantasy”, highlighting in particular his description of the location from which the soldiers started to fire at the Cyahinda Parish and the witness’s position during the event.⁶⁴³ As discussed in greater detail below, the Chamber considers Witness ZCC evidence of observing soldiers arrive at Nyakizu commune, head towards Cyahinda Parish, and firing on it credible and convincing. The Chamber does not consider that the confusion as it relates to other aspects of his account about the attack raises questions in regards to his observations from the Nyakizu commune office.⁶⁴⁴

278. The Defence argues that Witness Dufitumukiza’s statement to Tribunal investigators in 2000 is inconsistent with his testimony.⁶⁴⁵ In material respects, the statement describes the gendarmes, who the witness ultimately retrieved from Cyahinda Parish, leaving with “heavy artillery and machine guns”. It further reflects Witness Dufitumukiza having concerns that these gendarmes would attack Cyahinda Parish.⁶⁴⁶

279. The Defence argues that these excerpts reflect that gendarmes acquired weapons – namely heavy artillery – which Witness Dufitumukiza testified only the ESO had possession ⁶³⁹ Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, p. 54.

⁶⁴⁰ Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, pp. 57, 60.

⁶⁴¹ Notably, the Red Cross camp was essentially at the same location as the commune office, only metres from it. Witness ZCC, T. 18 January 2011, p. 48; cf. Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, p. 25 (gendarmes advised the bourgmestre to take the witness from the Red Cross camp if he did not want her “to be killed at the commune office”). Thus, even if Witness ZBK had moved to the Red Cross tents near the commune office, her vantage point as it concerned events around the Nyakizu commune office would not have been significantly different.

⁶⁴² See Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, p. 54 (“During the night, the bourgmestre took his family to Butare. He asked me to stay, adding that he could not guarantee my security. I was put behind his office in a Red Cross tent.”).

⁶⁴³ Defence Closing Brief, para. 342.

⁶⁴⁴ Witness ZCC’s description of whether gendarmes participated in the attack was unclear. Compare Witness ZCC, T. 18 January 2011, p. 37 (“A. ... but the gendarmes did not open fire on the refugees ...”) and T. 18 January 2011, p. 55 (“Q. What were the gendarmes doing during the attack? A. Nothing. They were standing at the place where our tents were set up and we were all looking towards Cyahinda to find out what was going on there.”), with T. 18 January 2011, p. 54 (“Q. Other than the soldiers and the gendarmes that you were with, who else did you see during the attack? A. The soldiers moved forward shooting, and the gendarmes and the Burundian refugees and the Interahamwes were finishing off the victims who had not yet died.”).

⁶⁴⁵ Defence Closing Brief, para. 351.

of.⁶⁴⁷ Furthermore, the Defence suggests that the statement tends to implicate gendarmes, not soldiers in the attack.⁶⁴⁸ The Chamber shall address these issues in turn.

280. With respect to the weapons, Witness Dufitumukiza explained that the gendarmes did not take heavy support weapons, but only a heavy machine gun operated by three persons and their personal firearms.⁶⁴⁹ Notably, a statement of his evidence in a Rwandan proceeding indicates that he had said that the gendarmes left with “rifles as well as light and heavy weapons”.⁶⁵⁰ While his evidence may be inconsistent with the statement from 2000, the Chamber considers the discrepancy immaterial. They appear to be technical in nature and could have been easily overlooked in summarising or reviewing the statement.

281. Turning to the other purported inconsistency, the Chamber observes that Witness Dufitumukiza testified that he did not observe gendarmes participating in the attack on Cyahinda Parish when he arrived.⁶⁵¹ This is not inconsistent with his statement from 2000, which does not indicate that he did.⁶⁵² Indeed, the statement reflects that when Witness Dufitumukiza arrived to pick up the gendarmes, he observed “... dead bodies all over the valley. There were some survivors but the chief warrant officer ordered the soldiers to finish the work”.⁶⁵³ This is generally consistent with his testimony that ESO Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba was directing soldiers participating in the attack.⁶⁵⁴

(iv) Merits of the Prosecution Evidence

282. Having considered the initial challenges to their evidence, the Chamber finds that Witnesses ZBK, ZCC and Dufitumukiza provided fundamentally consistent accounts about an attack on Cyahinda Parish launched from the Nyakizu commune office. Their evidence finds limited support from Witness GEN. Witness ZBK, a Tutsi, testified that on Sunday, 17 April 1994, she was hiding in the Nyakizu commune office. Around 12.00 p.m., she looked out the office window and saw two military lorries, which could carry about 35 soldiers each, park in front of it. She heard that other lorries carrying soldiers had gone past the office to another location.

⁶⁴⁷ See Defence Closing Brief, para. 350; see also Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, p. 9 (describing 60 millimetre mortars being fired at Cyahinda Parish and noting that only ESO had “heavy weapons” while other camps only had “light weapons”).

⁶⁵⁰ Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, p. 51.

⁶⁵¹ Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 8, 47.

⁶⁵² When questioned about his 2000 statement to Tribunal investigators, Witness Dufitumukiza repeatedly confirmed its contents to the extent that it reflected his belief that the gendarmes leaving for Cyahinda Parish would attack the Tutsis who had killed gendarmes there. See Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 46-47.

⁶⁵³ Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, p. 43 (emphasis added).

⁶⁵⁴ The Chamber recalls that prior consistent statements do not bolster a witness’s credibility. Ntakirutimana Appeal Judgement, para. 147 (“The Rules of Procedure and Evidence of the Tribunal do not expressly forbid the use of prior consistent statements to bolster credibility. However, the Appeals Chamber is of the view that prior consistent statements cannot be used to bolster a witness’s credibility, except to rebut a charge of recent fabrication of testimony. The fact that a witness testifies in a manner consistent with an earlier statement does not establish that the witness was truthful on either occasion; after all, an unlikely or untrustworthy story is not made more likely or more trustworthy simply by rote repetition.”).

283. Similarly, Witness ZCC worked for the Red Cross, which had set up tents metres from the Nyakizu commune office. Around 1.00 p.m., on a day following what he believed was a “weekend” day, the witness moved from inside his tent to the courtyard of the commune office. From this position, he observed four military trucks arrive: two parked near the commune office while two more continued to the CERAI office. Two of the trucks carried between 50 and 60 soldiers.⁶⁵⁵

284. Like Witnesses ZBK and ZCC, Witness Dufitumukiza’s observations were made from the immediate vicinity of the Nyakizu commune office. However, his evidence reflects that the soldiers arrived before he did.⁶⁵⁶ Witness Dufitumukiza stated that he arrived at Cyahinda Parish on 19 April 1994 around 12.30 p.m. Once at the Nyakizu commune office, he observed about 11 ESO soldiers, led by ESO Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba, in the midst of an attack on Cyahinda parish. Other soldiers were “scattered all over the place”, including the woods and nearby hills.⁶⁵⁷

285. Furthermore, Witness GEN, who was at Cyahinda Parish on 17 April 1994, testified that persons in “military fatigues” shot at her from Rukugutu hill and that refugees were also fired upon from Nyabidande hill, where the Nyakizu commune office is located.⁶⁵⁸ Notably, Witness ZBK overheard soldiers stating that they were going to “Rukuguru” hill, offering circumstantial support for Witness GEN’s testimony that persons in military fatigues attacked from there.⁶⁵⁹ However, the Chamber has some reservations about Witness GEN’s ability to observe what was happening at the Nyakizu commune office.⁶⁶⁰ Nonetheless, her position among the refugees would have afforded her a unique opportunity to learn that attackers, including soldiers, were also mounting an assault from Nyabidande hill.

286. At this juncture, it is important to note some differences among the Prosecution evidence as it relates to the date of the attack. Witness Dufitumukiza’s testimony reflects that ⁶⁵⁵ The Defence, without express reference to Witness ZCC’s evidence that two military lorries continued on to the CERAI office, argues that he testified that 120 soldiers got off the trucks, and therefore, his evidence is inconsistent with Witness ZBK’s about the number of soldiers present. Defence Closing Brief, para. 342. Notably, when pressed to identify the number of soldiers, his evidence, although only an estimate, focused on how many soldiers were on two vehicles parked near the commune office (rather than all four). See Witness ZCC, T. 18 January 2011, pp. 48, 50, 51 (“THE WITNESS: I would say that the two trucks that were parked near the commune office could have been transporting between 50 and 60 soldiers. But this is a merely estimate because I did not count those soldiers. MR. PRESIDENT: Yes. Is it each or both? THE WITNESS: You asked me to give you an approximate number, and I would say that one truck could have been transported 30 soldiers.”). Notably, when Witness ZBK was pressed to give an estimate of the soldiers present, she qualified her estimate by noting that a gendarme told her that other lorries carrying soldiers had gone elsewhere. Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, p. 30. See also T. 19 January 2011, p. 20. In this regard, their evidence is remarkably consistent.

⁶⁵⁶ In this regard, the Chamber considers it immaterial that Witness Dufitumukiza did not testify about military vehicles in the vicinity of the Nyakizu commune office. Understandably, his evidence reflects that he was focused on the ongoing violence that he observed upon his arrival and during his brief stay there.

⁶⁵⁸ Witness GEN, T. 18 January 2011, p. 77; T. 19 January 2011, pp. 6-7.

⁶⁵⁹ Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, p. 62.

⁶⁶⁰ While Witness GEN testified that she observed persons in military fatigues who were shooting at her from Rutuguku hill, her evidence appears to suggest that she only heard the persons who were also shooting from Nyabidande hill. Witness GEN, T. 18 January 2011, pp. 6-7. Furthermore, based on her own description, the commune office was on Nyabidande hill, which was on the opposite side of Cyahinda Parish from Rutuguku hill. T. 18 January 2011, p. 77; T. 19 January 2011, p. 7. This would appear to have limited her ability to have viewed what was happening on Rutuguku hill and Nyabidande hill at the same time.

he observed an attack on 19 April 1994, which fell on a Tuesday.⁶⁶¹ When confronted with a recording of his evidence in a Rwandan proceeding suggesting that he went there on 18 April, he stated that he was certain that he went there on 19 April.⁶⁶²

287. To the contrary, Witness ZBK testified that the attack happened on a Sunday, two days after her arrival at the Nyakizu commune, on 15 April 1994.⁶⁶³ Thus, her evidence tends to reflect that the attack happened on 17 April, although she also conceded it could also have been 18 April.⁶⁶⁴ Witness GEN's evidence also reflects that the major attack commenced on 17 April 1994, the day she fled to Nyakizu hill.⁶⁶⁵

288. Although Witness ZCC did not identify the date the soldiers attacked Cyahinda Parish, his evidence reflects that it was a day after he went to Butare town, which he believed was a weekend day.⁶⁶⁶ As noted above, 19 April 1994 was a Tuesday. Thus, the date provided by Witness Dufitumukiza is not the day identified by Witness ZCC.

⁶⁶¹ Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, p. 6 (“Q. Did you ever go to Cyahinda parish in April 1994? A. Yes. The 19th was a Tuesday. I went there on the 19th. It was a Tuesday. I’m sorry, I’m talking about the 19th of April. It was a Tuesday. The 19th of April 1994.”). Cf. T. 20 January 2011, p. 8 (“Q. When you arrived to the parish on the 19th, how long were you there that day? A. I did not pay attention to the time, but I believe that I stayed there for between 20 to 30 minutes, the time that it took for the gendarmes to pick up everything they wanted to collect from that place.”).

⁶⁶² Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, p. 51 (“Q. Now, for the record, I have read the 19th of April. Did you read the 19th of April or the 18th of April? A. Let me repeat. ‘Participation in criminal activities in the death of refugees at Cyahinda. Units under his orders and Anaclet’s statement. See transcript 73, page 3, on 17th of April when the refugees at Cyahinda tried to defend themselves, and when they killed three gendarmes on the following day, 18th April 1994, Major Habyarabatumba sent gendarmes commanded by Second Lieutenant Gakwerere. Those gendarmes were armed with heavy and light weapons. So they were sent to kill refugees and to recover the bodies of the killed gendarmes.’ Q. So was that the testimony wasn’t that the testimony that you gave in the trial of Major Habyarabatumba in Rwanda? Is that correct? A. Yes. I gave evidence in the same manner I’m testifying before this Tribunal. It’s obvious that other evidence confirmed or corroborated my testimony. I have to say that I am not very sure about the dates. The only date about which I am absolutely sure is the 19th of April when I went to get those people.”).

⁶⁶³ Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, pp. 19 (“Q. Did you ever see these reinforcements? A. ... I believe that must have been a Sunday. When towards noon I saw trucks, military trucks, arrive. ...”), 20 (“Q. And which day was this? A. It isn’t easy for us to remember dates and times and days, but if I try to remember, I believe the soldiers arrived on a Sunday. I arrived the commune office on a Friday and that was two days before the arrival of the soldiers.”), 34 (“Q. Fine. And you told him also that a little later, around noon, as your testimony was today, the soldiers arrived; is that correct? A. If I talked about the following day, then maybe you misunderstood me. ... So if you were led to believe, or if you understood that the soldiers arrived on the day following my arrival at the commune office, that is not correct. Rather, it is two days after we arrived rather, I arrived on Friday and the situation on Saturday was still confusing, and it is only on Sunday around noon that I saw the soldiers.”), 35 (“Q. Fine. So you arrived at the commune office on the 15th and the soldiers arrived on the 17th. Is that exact? A. That is likely what it was. As I as I told you before, no one had a watch and there was no calendar so it is very likely that the soldier arrived soldiers arrived the commune office on the 17th or the 18th.”), 36 (“So with him I spent two nights in the commune office prior to that attack which was which was launched against the Cyahinda parish. I believe you can assist me in clarifying the situation yourself.”).

⁶⁶⁵ Witness GEN, T. 18 January 2011, p. 75; T. 19 January 2011, pp. 7-8.

⁶⁶⁶ Witness ZCC, T. 18 January 2011, pp. 43-44 (believing that they left the body of the gendarme at the mortuary on a weekend day). The Defence raised a notice objection to Witness ZCC’s evidence that he stopped at the ESO with the bourgmestre before returning to Cyahinda Parish. See Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 41-44. The Chamber recalls that the Prosecution is required to state the charges and the material facts underpinning those charges in the Indictment. See Ntagerura et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 21; Nahimana et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 347; Blaškić Appeal Judgement, para. 219. Witness ZCC’s

289. In the Chamber's view, the differences are immaterial and the evidence reasonably reflects some confusion as to the date. Witness ZBK generally had some difficulty providing dates.⁶⁶⁷ While Witness GEN specified that she fled on 17 April 1994, her evidence lacks contextual clues demonstrating how she was aware of this.⁶⁶⁸ Furthermore, although Witness Dufitumukiza expressed certainty that he went to the Nyakizu commune office on 19 April, he had previously stated in a Rwandan proceeding that he went on 18 April.⁶⁶⁹

290. In this regard, the Chamber considers it significant that Prosecution and Defence evidence generally confirms that a security delegation, of which Nizeyimana was a part, went to Cyahinda Parish on 17 April 1994.⁶⁷⁰ Witness AZM provided compelling contextual clues that support the date.⁶⁷¹ Moreover, the Prosecution and Defence evidence suggests that the security delegation arrived after the gendarmes were killed and the Nyakizu bourgmestre was wounded at Cyahinda Parish.⁶⁷² The Defence submits that the large scale attack on the parish followed this visit and reliable evidence reflects this.⁶⁷³

291. Consequently, the evidence of Witnesses ZBK and GEN of an attack launched on 17 April 1994 appears to be off.⁶⁷⁴ However, the inability of the witnesses to provide the "correct" date in this context does not raise doubts about their otherwise credible and compelling observations. Witnesses ZBK and GEN were displaced Tutsis fleeing attacks. Likewise, Witness ZCC was a Red Cross worker, who also would have been reasonably traumatised by the events unfolding at the Cyahinda Parish. Ultimately, the discrepancies are minor in nature given the significant amount of time that elapsed between the events and their testimonies. Rather, the fundamentally consistent and compelling parallels among the evidence about his presence at the ESO camp, although relevant to the pleaded charge, reflects evidence rather than material facts that must be set forth in the Indictment. Accordingly, the Chamber dismisses this objection.

⁶⁷⁰ See, e.g., Prosecution Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, p. 63; Defence Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, p. 14. The Chamber has elsewhere questioned the credibility of Witness OUV03. See II.13.2. Notwithstanding, it considers his evidence about the date to offer limited corroboration. Defence Witness OUV03, T. 1 June 2011, p. 10.

⁶⁷¹ For example, Witness AZM testified that the security delegation travelled to Cyahinda Parish on 17 April 1994, and that evening, when they returned, it was announced over the radio that Butare Prefect Jean Baptiste Habyalimana had been removed from office. Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 65, 67-68.

⁶⁷² See, e.g., Prosecution Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 64, 66-67 (explaining that the security delegation needed to go to Cyahinda, as the refugees had killed a gendarme; they retrieved the body from the refugees); Defence Witness Mushi, T. 11 May 2011, pp. 35-36, 41 (observed a convoy, which fellow observers said included the prefect and a soldier; heard that they had come to obtain the bodies of the gendarmes killed at Cyahinda Parish); cf. Defence Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 14, 49 (the security delegation went to Cyahinda Parish because of disputes between Tutsis there and the gendarmes guarding them).

⁶⁷³ See Defence Closing Brief, paras. 326-328, 335-336. See, e.g., Defence Witness Mushi, T. 11 May 2011, pp. 36-38 (observed gendarmes and communal police going to Cyahinda Parish a day after the prefects visit; he heard gunshots that evening). Cf. Prosecution Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, p. 64 (observed about 3,000 refugees gathered at the Cyahinda Parish, and, although not allowed inside the complex's buildings, did not describe seeing evidence of large scale violence); Defence Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, p. 21 (did not hear of incidents of violence during the 17 April 1994 mission). But see Prosecution Witness GEN, T. 19 January 2011, p. 9 (learned that Butare Prefect Jean Baptiste Habyalimana went to Cyahinda Parish after she had fled on 17 April 1994 from attacks on Cyahinda Parish).

⁶⁷⁴ Witness ZCC's evidence, which could suggest that attack happened on a Monday, is not necessarily inconsistent.

evidence of Witnesses ZBK, ZCC and Dufitumukiza (discussed below) establish that they all observed the same attack, which appears to have happened around 18 April.

292. Turning back to the observations of the Prosecution witnesses, Witnesses ZBK and ZCC identified the security personnel that arrived at the Nyakizu commune office as soldiers based on their uniforms, accoutrements, and, in some instances, their black berets.⁶⁷⁵ Their testimonies are consistent with other evidence about the soldiers' attire in Butare at that time.⁶⁷⁶ Each witness convincingly explained how the uniforms of these soldiers were distinctive from those worn by gendarmes.⁶⁷⁷ Nonetheless, Witness ZCC conceded that he did not know any of the soldiers or from which camp they came.⁶⁷⁸ Witness ZBK was not asked from which camp the soldiers came.

293. Witness Dufitumukiza's general evidence about the differences between the uniforms of soldiers and gendarmes corroborates the identification of soldiers made by Witnesses ZBK and ZCC.⁶⁷⁹ Of greater significance, Witness Dufitumukiza expressly identified Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba as the commander of a support group of about 11 ESO soldiers.⁶⁸⁰ The Chamber is satisfied that Witness Dufitumukiza would have been able to identify ESO soldiers and Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba in April 1994. As a member of one of three military camps in Butare town, Witness Dufitumukiza's testimony that he knew most soldiers there is compelling.⁶⁸¹ Likewise, there is no dispute that a warrant officer named Paul Kanyashyamba was stationed at the ESO in April.⁶⁸² Although Witness Dufitumukiza did not know the commune from which Kanyashyamba came, his identification of Kanyashyamba – from a short distance and in the middle of the day – is compelling.⁶⁸³

Did you also know, Mr. Witness, Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba? A. Yes, I knew Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba. But for some time now I don't know the camp in which he is. I got to know him during the killings.").

⁶⁸³ Witness Dufitumukiza, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 8, 40, 53.

294. Next, the Chamber observes that Witnesses ZBK, ZCC and Dufitumukiza each testified that the soldiers carried specialised weapons. Witness ZBK referred to “bombs – rockets” or “grenades” that would attach to the end of the soldiers’ rifles and various grenades carried on soldiers’ belts.⁶⁸⁴ The witness heard gunfire and explosions.⁶⁸⁵ Witness ZCC referred to soldiers exiting the lorries with “self-loading” firearms and observed light “NATO” weapons, which were not set up.⁶⁸⁶ He later observed traces of grenade attacks on the parish buildings.⁶⁸⁷ Witness Dufitumukiza observed a 60 millimetre mortar, a heavy machine gun that “had to be installed in the ground”, and other machine guns.⁶⁸⁸ He also heard grenades exploding.⁶⁸⁹ Offering further circumstantial corroboration, Witness GEN heard explosions and saw plumes of dust and bursts of flames in an attack the day after the initial assault and could see the impact of projectiles on the church walls.⁶⁹⁰

295. The Chamber considers that the differences among the testimonies of Witnesses ZBK, ZCC and Dufitumukiza as they relate to the weapons carried or employed by the soldiers around the Nyakizu commune office are immaterial. At the outset, Witness ZBK, a civilian clarified that she could not distinguish between light or heavy weaponry.⁶⁹¹ Likewise, Witness GEN was unable to distinguish between the sounds of “heavy weaponry and light weapons”, raising the reasonable possibility that Witness ZBK could not either.⁶⁹²

296. Furthermore, while neither Witness ZBK nor ZCC saw soldiers using stationary weapons in the immediate vicinity of the commune office, the Chamber considers that the varying vantage points and the traumatic nature of the circumstances could have resulted in these variances. First, Witness Dufitumukiza only saw one 60 millimetre mortar and one heavy machine gun while at the commune office.⁶⁹³ Moreover, when pressed on whether soldiers fired from beside the commune office, Witness ZBK stated that she “[did] not know”, as she could only observe through “a single window” and could not see “all the corners of the courtyard of the commune office”.⁶⁹⁴ Likewise, Witness ZCC’s testimony of the weapons he saw intimates that he did not see all of them.⁶⁹⁵ Furthermore, his evidence reflects that he did not remain at the commune office once the soldiers started attacking the parish.⁶⁹⁶

⁶⁸⁴ Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, pp. 20, 23-24, 62, 65-66. Witness ZBK explained that gendarmes demonstrated to her that the attachment used by the soldiers on their rifles were stream rockets. T. 19 January 2011, pp. 23-24.

I could not distinguish or tell the difference between the types of weapons. I couldn’t tell between heavy weaponry or light weaponry. Mr. President, Your Honours, I’m talking as a layperson.”).

⁶⁹⁵ Witness ZCC, T. 18 January 2011, p. 52 (“Q. What weapons did you see when the soldiers started shooting at Cyahinda office? A. If I were to go by the weapons that I saw from my position, most of those weapons were self loading weapons. But there were also others which were the NATO-type weapons.”) (emphasis added).

⁶⁹⁶ Witness ZCC, T. 18 January 2011, pp. 36-37, 54-55.

297. The Chamber observes that Witness Dufitumukiza testified that he could see “a mortar, 60 millimetres ... used to fire at the hill where the church was located. There was also heavy machine gun fire that was also firing towards the hill”.⁶⁹⁷ At the outset, credible evidence reflects that the commune office is situated approximately one kilometre from the Cyahinda Parish.⁶⁹⁸ The Chamber has elsewhere considered evidence that the shooting range of a heavy gas machine gun was only 400 to 600 metres and has expressed considerable reservations about whether one would be used to shoot at targets nearly a kilometre away.⁶⁹⁹ On an initial review, Witness Dufitumukiza’s evidence about the use of the heavy machine gun appears to suggest that it was to fire at targets nearly a kilometre away. Specifically, he testified about firing “towards the hill”.⁷⁰⁰

298. Imprecise, Witness Dufitumukiza’s evidence also reflects that he observed Tutsis being killed. Moreover, Witness ZCC’s evidence similarly reflects that soldiers commenced firing a short distance away from the commune office. Indeed, the record reflects that refugees occupied not just the buildings, but were positioned throughout the complex’s facilities.⁷⁰¹ In the Chamber’s view, his description of the use of the heavy machine gun is credible and convincing.

299. The same is true with Witness Dufitumukiza’s evidence of the use of a 60 millimetre mortar. The evidence demonstrates that those attacking Cyahinda Parish created a perimeter, attacking from Nyabidande and Rukugutu hills. They fired on dispersed refugees and prevented their flight from the premises. Such action would be complimented by heavy mortar fire on the parish facilities, preventing the displaced Tutsis from seeking refuge in the buildings, and forcing them into the perimeter. Furthermore, although Witness Dufitumukiza was not present when the soldiers arrived, his time estimate of his arrival – 12.30 p.m. – put him there near the beginning of the attack described by Witnesses ZBK and ZCC. Witness Dufitumukiza was only there for about 20 to 30 minutes. The early stages of the attack would have offered prime timing to launch heavy fire on Cyahinda’s buildings, before friendly attackers got too close.

300. Having assessed the Prosecution evidence, the Chamber now turns to the Defence evidence. Through the testimonies of Defence Witnesses Mushi and ZML10, the Defence presented direct accounts that soldiers did not participate in an attack on Cyahinda Parish.

301. At the outset, Witness Mushi was in the Cyahinda commercial centre when he saw gendarmes going in the direction of Cyahinda Parish on the day he first heard firing there, around the middle of April 1994.⁷⁰² In the Chamber’s view, the activity that Witness Mushi saw would have distracted him from observing what was occurring at Nyabidande hill, where ⁷⁰² Witness Mushi noted that refugees started to arrive about five to seven days after President Habyarimana’s plane was shot down. Witness Mushi, T. 11 May 2011, pp. 32-33. About three to four days after their arrival, the witness heard that the gendarmes had been killed at the Cyahinda Parish. T. 11 May 2011, pp. 33-35, 41. The day after this incident, Witness Mushi saw the vehicle pass through the Cyahinda commercial centre. T. 11 May 2011, pp. 35-36.

the Nyakizu commune office was located. Moreover, the kilometre between his position and Nyabidande hill would have limited his ability see any such activity.⁷⁰³

302. Of greater significance, Witness Mushi's evidence reflects that he fled to an unidentified hill upon hearing gunshots.⁷⁰⁴ Although he discussed seeing people firing at refugees on Nyakizu hill and hearing gunshots there the day after the initial attack,⁷⁰⁵ his evidence tends to reflect that he only heard gunfire from Cyahinda Parish on the preceding day.⁷⁰⁶ The probative value of his evidence about what was happening at and around Cyahinda Parish, including the Nyakizu commune office, is limited.

303. Witness ZML10's evidence is more probative than Witness Mushi's. As a civilian participant in the attack, Witness ZML10's estimates appear to place him at Nyabidande hill and the Nyakizu commune office around 18 or 19 April 1994.⁷⁰⁷ Presuming his evidence pertains to same the attack described by the Prosecution witnesses, it tends to reflect that he arrived at the Nyakizu commune office after Witnesses ZBK and ZCC suggested that soldiers had already started to move towards Cyahinda Parish and assault it.⁷⁰⁸ As noted above, Witness Dufitumukiza's evidence also appears to have pertained to the initial stages of the attack, and his evidence tends to reflect that he left before Witness ZML10 would have arrived there. However, Witness ZML10's testimony appears to be inconsistent with much of the Prosecution evidence, as he seems to have only heard gunfire once at the commune office.⁷⁰⁹ Nonetheless, he observed a military "pickup"⁷¹⁰ parked near the commune office, offering circumstantial support for Witnesses ZBK and ZCC's evidence that military vehicles with soldiers arrived prior to the attack on Cyahinda Parish.

304. Furthermore, although Witness ZML10 did not see soldiers participating in the attack, it is imperative to consider his evidence in context. At the outset, Cyahinda Parish was a ⁷⁰⁴ Witness Mushi, T. 11 May 2011, p. 54.

⁷⁰⁵ Witness Mushi, T. 11 May 2011, pp. 37-38. Indeed, his evidence is equivocal as to whether he actually saw attacks at Nyakizu hill. While he initially testified that he did, he later stated that he heard gunshots (T. 11 May 2011, p. 38) and testified about seeing armed members of the population going past his position towards Nyakizu hill and leaving it (T. 11 May 2011, pp. 37, 54).

⁷⁰⁶ Witness Mushi, T. 11 May 2011, pp. 37-38 (testifying that unable to go to Cyahinda Parish, he "heard" gunshots in the evening), 38 (no longer heard gunshots coming from Cyahinda Parish the following morning).

⁷⁰⁷ Witness ZML10, T. 16 May 2011, p. 5 ("Q. And in relation to the time when you took your leave from your work, can you recall when it is that you started hearing about refugees in Cyahinda? A. After the attack on the president's plane on the 6th – I already said that five days later I took my leave – my annual leave. And three days later we started hearing information to the effect that a large number of people had sought refuge at Cyahinda and that those people came from all over. Q. How did you hear about it? A. People who were going back and forth as usual. So we were going to the market. They went to pay visits to friends, and when they came back, they told us that they had been to Cyahinda and that they had seen a large number of refugees there. Q. Thank you. Did there come a time when you decided to go to Cyahinda yourself? A. Yes. Q. When in relation to the time where you heard those informations (sic) about the presence of refugees did you decide to go to Cyahinda? A. I would say about four to five days after hearing about it that I decided to go to Cyahinda. Q. And what prompted that decision to go? A. I decided to go to Cyahinda – because you heard those rumours about the presence of refugees in Cyahinda. So I decided to go there and see for myself whether the information I had heard was indeed true.") (emphasis added).

⁷⁰⁸ Witness ZML10 testified that he arrived at the Cyahinda shopping centre between 2.00 and 3.00 p.m. Defence Witness ZML10, T. 16 May 2011, p. 7. By contrast, Witnesses ZBK and ZCC testified that soldiers arrived around 12.00 or 1.00 p.m., respectively. substantial facility comprising several buildings and fields.⁷¹¹ Furthermore, the evidence reflects that the assault occurred throughout the complex.⁷¹² Thus, the scale of the attack and the area in which it was conducted would necessarily limit the ability to view all of the assailants. Witness ZML10's testimony reflects that he did not go to all sections of the parish facilities.⁷¹³ Moreover, his presence there was limited and he left while the attack was ongoing.⁷¹⁴

305. Furthermore, Witness ZML10's evidence reflects that his active participation in the attack necessarily limited his ability to carefully and comprehensively view all of his fellow attackers.⁷¹⁵ While he visually identified some gendarmes firing at the refugees, his evidence also reflects that the gendarmes were difficult to spot as they had been divided into groups. Indeed, his estimate of how many gendarmes were present was based on the amount of firing he heard rather than the number he saw.⁷¹⁶ Seeing some gendarmes firing rifles and hearing gunfire is not necessarily inconsistent with other evidence that soldiers also participated in the attack.

306. In the Chamber's view, the relatively direct evidence of Witnesses Mushi and ZML10 fails to raise reasonable doubt in the fundamentally consistent and first-hand accounts of Witnesses ZBK, ZCC and Dufitumukiza that soldiers launched an attack on Cyahinda Parish from the Nyakizu commune office. These conclusions rest not only on the analysis above, but also on the Chamber's observations of the demeanour of each witness.

307. The Chamber shall now turn to Defence evidence tending to suggest that ESO soldiers did not participate in the attack on Cyahinda Parish, and that trucks carrying the ⁷¹⁵ Witness ZML10, T. 16 May 2011, pp. 24 ("Q. So, Mr. Witness, you went to Cyahinda parish the day of the major attack and there were thousands of people there and the situation was chaotic? A. Yes. Q. Your attention was focused on the attack and its objective? A. Yes. Q. And while you were focused, you weren't paying attention to everything that was going on around you? A. Could you give me an example[?]? Q. You were busy killing the refugees; correct? A. I wasn't the only one. There was no security. And when there is no peace, we have only one goal. I was focused on those refugees."), 25 ("MR. PRESIDENT: No. But what I am saying is, if, for instance, you were killing in the church, inside, you wouldn't know who is killing outside or what is happening or whatever. You are concentrated on the area you are operating. Is that not the case? THE WITNESS: That is the case, indeed.").

⁷¹⁶ Witness ZML10, T. 16 May 2011, p. 10 ("Q. How many of those gendarmes would you say there was or did you notice involved in the attack? A. They divided themselves into several groups, so it was difficult for me to count them. But if I should gauge by the gunshots that I could hear, there could be 20 – between 20 and 25, possibly 30.").

soldiers did not leave from the ESO Camp around 18 April 1994.⁷¹⁷ Specifically, Witnesses RWV09 and Ruzindana generally denied that ESO soldiers were sent to Cyahinda Parish or participated in attacks there. Witness RWV09 was unaware of any ESO trucks leaving the ESO Camp on 18 April.⁷¹⁸ Likewise Witness CKN10, who was posted at the ESO Camp's main entrance from 4.00 p.m. on 17 April to 4.00 p.m. the following day, did not see a single truck carrying ESO soldiers leave.⁷¹⁹

308. The general denials that ESO soldiers participated in attacks at Cyahinda Parish is of limited probative value. This evidence came from ESO soldiers who were not at the parish during the assault.⁷²⁰ The Chamber has elsewhere raised concerns about the credibility of Witnesses Ruzindana and CKN10.⁷²¹ It considers that the same concerns apply here. The testimony of Witness RWV09 is probative as it relates to the allocation of ESO vehicles in the second half of April 1994.⁷²² His denial that trucks were not allocated for the purposes of transporting soldiers from the ESO is of low probative value.

309. The Chamber observes that Witness CKN10's position at the ESO Camp's main entrance from 4.00 p.m. on 17 to 4.00 p.m. 18 April 1994 provided him with the ability to directly observe some traffic coming in and out of the ESO Camp. Notwithstanding, other Defence evidence tends to reflect that the entrance at which this witness was not positioned – the southern entrance through the Arab Quarter – was used by soldiers and supply lorries.⁷²³ Consequently, his evidence is far from dispositive. Indeed, his blanket assertions that he did not see any ESO soldiers aboard a truck leave the ESO through his post on 18 April appears to contradict his testimony, and that of other witnesses, that the Ruhutinyanya family left that morning with soldiers.⁷²⁴ Again, the Chamber recalls that it has expressed considerable ⁷¹⁷ The Defence refers to Prosecution Exhibit 62, noting that Alison des Forges's testimony in the Butare trial supports the Defence assertion that the gendarmerie "forced people to attack" Cyahinda parish, and they collaborated with the communal police. T. 7 December 2011, pp. 58-59 (Defence Closing Arguments); Exhibit P62 (Transcript and Exhibits of Alison des Forges's Testimony during the Butare trial), pp. 1239-1240, 1242, 1244. The Chamber observes that Witness des Forges's evidence in the Butare trial generally corroborates the events as set out above. Exhibit P62, pp. 411, 1239-1244. Notably, Witness des Forges mentioned that the reinforcement from Butare was military in nature, while the assistance from Gikongoro was from civilians. Exhibit P62, p. 1240. The Chamber observes that the questioning of Witness des Forges focused on the involvement of the gendarmerie, rather than the ESO. Indeed, Witness des Forges described the visit by Jean Baptiste Habyalimana and Major Cyriaque Habyarabatura on 17 April 1994, without reference to Nizeyimana. The Chamber has already noted that there exists no dispute in regards to the fact that Nizeyimana joined this delegation to Cyahinda parish. Accordingly, the Chamber does not consider her evidence in the Butare trial dispositive insofar as it relates to the involvement of ESO soldiers.

⁷¹⁸ Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 14, 49.

⁷¹⁹ Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, pp. 42-44; T. 30 May 2011, pp. 8, 51.

⁷²⁰ The Chamber observes that Witness RWV09 was confronted with aspects of his testimony in the Butare case, wherein he stated that just before the "19th" ESO soldiers and gendarmes from Tumba were requested to go to communes in Butare where insecurity was prevailing. He further identified Ruhashya and Nyakizu as examples. Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, p. 50. The witness conceded that Cyahinda Parish was in Nyakizu commune, but stated that gendarmes, not ESO soldiers were sent there, while ESO soldiers were sent to Ruhashya commune. T. 8 June 2011, p. 51.

⁷²² See Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 14, 48-51.

⁷²⁴ Witness CKN10 saw the members of the Ruhutinyanya family leave the Camp escorted by ESO soldiers. Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, pp. 43-44. Notably, Witness ZML07 testified that they followed the Ruhutinyanya family's vehicle in an ESO pickup truck. See II.4.1.

reservations about Witness CKN10's credibility, and these reservations extend to this evidence as well.

310. Notwithstanding these denials, the Chamber observes that Witness Dufitumukiza only identified Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba commanding around 11 ESO soldiers. In this regard, the Prosecution evidence does not support the assertion that all the soldiers present and participating in the Cyahinda Parish attack came from the ESO. Indeed, other evidence in the record, consistent with Witness Dufitumukiza's account, reflects that ESO soldiers played supporting roles in larger attacks.⁷²⁵ The denials that trucks did not leave from the ESO Camp does not undermine the otherwise compelling and first-hand accounts of Witnesses ZBK and ZZC that lorries carrying soldiers arrived at Cyahinda Parish on the same day. Likewise, the Defence evidence does not raise reasonable doubts in Witness Dufitumukiza's evidence that some of the soldiers were ESO soldiers, including Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba.

311. Based on the foregoing, the collective record establishes beyond reasonable doubt that soldiers, including a contingent of around 11 ESO soldiers and Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba, were among the assailants who participated in the attack on Cyahinda Parish around 18 April 1994. The actions of ESO soldiers directly contributed to the killing of thousands of displaced civilians who were primarily Tutsis. The Chamber shall next consider the implication of these conclusions as it relates to Nizeyimana.

(v) Nizeyimana's Involvement in the Attack

312. Turning next to Nizeyimana's involvement in the attack on Cyahinda Parish, the Chamber observes that there is no direct evidence of him ordering, instigating or authorising the assault. Similarly, there is no evidence placing him at the scene during the attack.

313. Nonetheless, the Chamber observes that it is undisputed that Nizeyimana was part of a team sent to evaluate the security situation at Cyahinda Parish. Ostensibly, this delegation, which included a priest as well as Butare's Tutsi prefect, was sent to ease the tensions between the refugees and the gendarmes that had been deployed to "protect" them. Nonetheless, the only significant event that followed the visit of the security delegation was the highly coordinated and heavily armed attack on Cyahinda Parish, which relied a great deal on the offensive efforts of soldiers, as well as the supporting firepower of ESO soldiers.

314. The attack on Cyahinda Parish must necessarily be considered in the context of ESO's function in the region as well as Nizeyimana's particular position. The ESO was the Butare and Gikongoro prefectures' operational command centre.⁷²⁶ Of particular significance, Nizeyimana's experience within the offices of the S2 and S3 – which were charged with intelligence as well as training and operations – lends considerable circumstantial support for his involvement in the planning and execution of this military operation, particularly as it related to the involvement of ESO soldiers.⁷²⁷ There is Defence evidence that Chief Warrant

⁷²⁶ See III.2.2.2.

⁷²⁷ See III.2.2.2. Indeed, while the Chamber has elsewhere expressed its reservations about the credibility of Witness OUV03, it considers his concessions that Nizeyimana, particularly after the death of the President Juvénal Habyarimana, focused on gathering and assessing information as it related to the war front credible in light of other evidence regarding Nizeyimana's responsibilities around that time. See Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, pp. 12-13, 17; T. 1 June 2011, p. 9. See also III.2.2.2.

Officer Kanyashyamba reported directly to Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi.⁷²⁸ Nonetheless, Prosecution and Defence evidence also reflects that Kanyashyamba worked with Nizeyimana and that Nizeyimana had power over or gave orders to Kanyashyamba.⁷²⁹

315. It is inconceivable that such a tactical assault, which involved ESO soldiers utilising specialised arms, would have occurred in Nyakizu commune, Butare prefecture without the approval of the ESO command. Moreover, Nizeyimana's presence at the Cyahinda Parish necessarily allowed him to examine – from military intelligence and operations perspectives – the strengths and weaknesses of the displaced Tutsis who had fortified themselves within Cyahinda Parish's grounds and successfully staved off initial armed assaults by the bourgmestre and the gendarmes. Notably, the weaponry later utilised by ESO soldiers had the power to weaken structural safe havens for the refugees within the parish facilities and eliminate numbers of them from a safe distance.

316. When viewed in light of Nizeyimana's subsequent return to the ESO Camp, the immediacy of the ensuing attack after the visit and the participation of ESO soldiers (including Kanyashyamba) in it, the only reasonable conclusion is that Nizeyimana both contributed to the planning of the following military operation and that he authorised the participation of ESO soldiers in it as well.⁷³⁰ Indeed, the Chamber has no doubt that the participation of the ESO soldiers and the weaponry utilised reflect Nizeyimana's on the ground assessment of the situation at Cyahinda Parish and was a direct result of Nizeyimana's contributions to the planning and authorisation of this assault. The Chamber shall consider the implications of these conclusions in its Legal Findings (III).

⁷²⁸ See Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 19; Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, pp. 18-19, 24, T. 1 June 2011, p. 9.

⁷²⁹ Defence Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, pp. 17-18 (“MR. PRESIDENT: [Nizeyimana] was very busy. But he was working all alone in the whole – in the issue of deciphering intelligence and communicating it, all that he was doing all alone single-handedly or without any soldier participating in it? THE WITNESS: I told you that Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba was one of the people who worked under his orders.”); Defence Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 10-11 (testifying that around 15 April 1994, Nizeyimana was the S2/S3 officer and that Chief Warrant Officers Kanyeshyamba and Nzampanima were within those departments); Prosecution Witness Gahizi, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 27-28 (testifying that Nizeyimana had “powers over a group of soldiers” that looted, which included Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba). The Chamber has considered Witness Gahizi's evidence with appropriate caution. See II.6.2. However, his general observations in this instance are supported by Defence evidence and are compelling.

⁷³⁰ In this regard, the Defence evidence that Nizeyimana was replaced as the S2/S3 on 17 or 18 April 1994 by Second Lieutenant Gakwerere, even if credited, in no way raises doubts about Nizeyimana's participation at least in the planning and authorisation phases of this attack.

5. BUTARE UNIVERSITY, MID-APRIL TO MAY 1994

5.1 Killing of Tutsi Civilians

Introduction

317. The Indictment alleges that from on or about 16 April 1994, Nizeyimana ordered and instigated soldiers from the FAR, ESO, Ngoma Camp, Butare Gendarmerie Camp and Interahamwe, who were members of the joint criminal enterprise, to kill many Tutsi civilians at the National University of Rwanda in Butare (“Butare University”). Specifically, under Nizeyimana’s authorisation, Chief Warrant Office Damien Ntamuhanga engaged a number of subordinate FAR soldiers from his platoon, including Sergeant Major Innocent Sibomana and others, and exercised his command to target the civilian victims, using lists and identity cards to assist with that purpose. The Prosecution relies on the evidence of Witnesses ZCB, Jules Kayibanda, ZBH, Anaclet Dufitumukiza, ZT and BDE. Prosecution Witnesses AZM and ZAP also provided relevant evidence.⁷³¹

318. The Defence generally submits that Nizeyimana was not involved in the attack on the Butare University and that there exists little evidence of him ordering or instigating others to target civilian victims. Moreover, the Presidential Guard, rather than ESO soldiers were likely responsible for the attack and the events that occurred between 20 April 1994 and the end of that month. Furthermore, the Defence challenges the credibility of Prosecution Witnesses Jules Kayibanda, ZCB, ZBH and ZT. Defence Witnesses BEJ01, Martin Mukeshimana, Joseph Ngezahayo, MAL06, Martin Mutarutinya and ZML02 provided relevant evidence.⁷³²

Prosecution Witness ZCB

319. In April 1994, Witness ZCB, a Tutsi, was a student at the Butare University.⁷³³ Sometime before 21 April, a meeting was held at the stadium, presided over by the Vice-Rector of the university, Jean Berchmans Nshimyumuremyi.⁷³⁴ Nizeyimana, who was introduced to the students by Berchmans as the military officer in charge of security, was also present.⁷³⁵ The meeting was convened in order to clarify the security situation at the university.⁷³⁶ In responding to a question by a student about the insecurity at the university, Berchmans told them that the students who felt unsafe could write their names down on a list and the university administration would provide them with transport back to their native areas.⁷³⁷ Nizeyimana confirmed that the soldiers would escort the buses to the various regions.⁷³⁸ He asserted that there were enough soldiers to provide security and reminded the students that the country's enemy was the Tutsi.⁷³⁹ The meeting, which was attended by more than 100 students, lasted for about an hour and a half to two hours, after which the students who felt unsafe put their names on a list.⁷⁴⁰

320. Approximately one or two days later, a second meeting, which lasted only 10 or 15 minutes, was held at the stadium during the afternoon.⁷⁴¹ Berchmans informed the students that the program had changed and that there were no buses available to transport the students back to their native regions.⁷⁴² Nizeyimana was in attendance at this meeting as well.⁷⁴³ The tension increased and people were afraid that there was a hidden agenda.⁷⁴⁴ After the meeting, Witness ZCB and other students returned to their rooms.⁷⁴⁵ Some students fled or hid in their bedrooms.⁷⁴⁶

321. On or around 21 April 1994, at about 3.00 p.m., the soldiers arrived at the university campus.⁷⁴⁷ As Witness ZCB was standing by his door, a student ran past him crying out for help.⁷⁴⁸ She said that a huge number of soldiers carrying weapons had just entered the campus.⁷⁴⁹ Witness ZCB tried to seek refuge in another room, because his room was "known". Specifically, he had received threats there before and was referred to as an Inkotanyi.⁷⁵⁰ The witness was eventually discovered by the soldiers.⁷⁵¹ There was one soldier wearing a uniform which was unfamiliar to him.⁷⁵² He had heard rumours that Presidential Guard soldiers were in town.⁷⁵³ This soldier was accompanied by two ESO soldiers and two students.⁷⁵⁴ He knew they were from the ESO because they were young and their uniforms were somewhat worn out.⁷⁵⁵ Each soldier was carrying a rifle and the two young soldiers had grenades.⁷⁵⁶

322. The soldier, whom he thought to be a member of the Presidential Guard, called out Witness ZCB's name, which was contained on a list, and asked the witness to confirm whether it was him.⁷⁵⁷ When the Presidential Guard showed him the list, he was able to discern several pages of lists containing names thereon.⁷⁵⁸ His name was third on the list, and he saw the name of a friend, who was also a Tutsi.⁷⁵⁹ The soldiers then dragged him to his room, and asked him to give them the “attack plan against Butare” and any weapon or rifle he was concealing.⁷⁶⁰ When Witness ZCB answered that he had no such plan, they ransacked his room.⁷⁶¹

323. Having found nothing, they became aggressive and hit him on the head, causing Witness ZCB to lose consciousness.⁷⁶² Eventually the two ESO soldiers grabbed him by the belt and brought him to a location next to the restaurant, where the witness saw about 20 other Tutsi students.⁷⁶³ Other soldiers were still looking for students they had labelled as “accomplices of the enemy”.⁷⁶⁴ They were everywhere, walking around the university.⁷⁶⁵ The witness was unable to estimate how many soldiers there were in total.⁷⁶⁶

324. Up until that point, it did not appear as though any of the students had been severely attacked yet.⁷⁶⁷ However, all students who were arrested were subsequently taken to a long corridor, which passed in front of the student hall known as “Viet” or “Vietnam”, where they thought they would be killed.⁷⁶⁸ They were brutally shoved while being led away, with people screaming and begging.⁷⁶⁹ It was a scene of violence and humiliation.⁷⁷⁰ The soldiers who were accompanying them each had their own personal weapon, though Witness ZCB did not know the exact type of weapons.⁷⁷¹ An “influential” female friend saw him and tried to persuade the soldier that he was neither a soldier, nor an Inyenzi, to no avail.⁷⁷²

325. The soldiers continued to lead the arrested students down a path that passed by the water tower.⁷⁷³ They left the paved road and took a dirt road which was quite dark, where they were attacked by students carrying traditional weapons, such as iron rods and clubs.⁷⁷⁴ Most of these students were members of the MRND or the CDR.⁷⁷⁵ Witness ZCB was struck

If I say that she was influential, it is because I had not known her for a long time, but in the few days preceding the killings which were perpetrated at the campus, she had been able to contact me because I had attended the same secondary school as her elder sister who lived in – who lived out of Rwanda at the time. And that elder sister sent her a letter asking her to greet me, and the girl then looked for me and contacted me. We got to know each other and we met, and that is how I told her how I had known her elder sister in secondary school.”). by some iron rods and clubs too.⁷⁷⁶ It was as if the students were working with the soldiers who were leading them to their death.⁷⁷⁷ Both groups were involved in acts of torture against the arrested students.⁷⁷⁸ Witness ZCB had not yet heard gunshots at this point.⁷⁷⁹ Some people fell on the ground, because they were being beaten.⁷⁸⁰ It was impossible to flee.⁷⁸¹

326. As they were about to leave the campus by tarmac road, Witness ZCB was hit on the head with a club and fell down.⁷⁸² When he was on the ground, he heard the voice of the female student who had tried to intervene on his behalf earlier.⁷⁸³ She was in the company of a soldier from the Presidential Guard.⁷⁸⁴ This time she was able to convince the soldiers to let him go.⁷⁸⁵ Witness ZCB thought that she was affiliated with the MRND or the CDR and was playing a major role in the operation.⁷⁸⁶

327. Witness ZCB then saw the other victims lying on the ground, covered in blood.⁷⁸⁷ He believed some to be dead, others were agonising.⁷⁸⁸ Witness ZCB went into hiding and was eventually assisted in leaving the university area by a soldier he thought to be from the ESO.⁷⁸⁹

328. In April 1994, Witness Kayibanda, a Hutu, was a student at the Butare University.⁷⁹⁰ On 20 April, around 2.00 or 3.00 p.m. Kayibanda attended a meeting led by the Vice-Rector of the university, Jean Berchmans Nshimyumuremyi, with all the students at the stadium.⁷⁹¹ Berchmans was accompanied by civilian and military figures of authority.⁷⁹² He recognised the military figures, because they wore their camouflage uniforms.⁷⁹³ The primary point emphasised by Berchmans during this meeting was that the students had to start carrying their identification cards on them at all times, as opposed to their student cards.⁷⁹⁴ The reason being that the identification cards contained one's ethnicity.⁷⁹⁵ The students protested the decision of carrying these cards but to no avail.⁷⁹⁶

329. The following day, 21 April 1994, approximately 10 soldiers entered the university campus, with a weapon pulled by a vehicle.⁷⁹⁷ Witness Kayibanda watched as they convened the committee of the general association of Rwandan students, who gave the soldiers a list of students, containing their names, the room in which they resided and their ethnicity.⁷⁹⁸ Once the soldiers had the list, they left.⁷⁹⁹ Around 1.00 or 2.00 p.m. that same day, approximately 10 soldiers, equipped with firearms, returned to "use those lists".⁸⁰⁰ A rumour had circulated that some Inyenzis were hiding on campus, which is why the soldiers came with the lists.⁸⁰¹ On this occasion, a student was "hacked" and subsequently died in the hospital.⁸⁰² The soldiers also "brought" a group of students who were characterised as accomplices of the Inyenzis.⁸⁰³

330. Witness Kayibanda thought the soldiers who came in the first group were Presidential Guards based on the new uniforms they were wearing.⁸⁰⁴ The second group of soldiers appeared to be young.⁸⁰⁵ They were amongst the gendarmes, who wore red berets, and the Presidential Guard.⁸⁰⁶ Later on, a student by the name of Sibomana, who was often referred to as "Sergeant", told the witness that he was coming from the ESO.⁸⁰⁷ There were other waves of attacks and subsequently some soldiers arrived who were supposed to ensure the security at the university.⁸⁰⁸ In reality, however, they were looking out for victims who could have escaped.⁸⁰⁹ Sibomana, who spent the day at the campus, told him these "elements" came from the ESO.⁸¹⁰

331. The third attack occurred on the same day in the evening.⁸¹¹ Approximately 600 visibly young soldiers surrounded the entire campus so that no one could escape.⁸¹² They were wearing their "normal" uniform, some with black berets and some with helmets similar to those worn by motorcyclists.⁸¹³ Among the soldiers were members of the Presidential Guard and gendarmes wearing red berets.⁸¹⁴ Explosions could be heard everywhere, and the young soldiers were armed with Kalashnikovs and different types of grenades.⁸¹⁵ The soldiers found the students at the restaurant, where they started calling out different names.⁸¹⁶ Witness Kayibanda soon realised that they were calling out names of students who had not yet arrived.⁸¹⁷ The soldiers then asked the students to exit the restaurant, presenting their identification cards.⁸¹⁸ The students were separated into Tutsis, who were led to the handball pitch, and Hutus, who were sent back to their rooms.⁸¹⁹ Witness Kayibanda, a Hutu, was sent back to his room.⁸²⁰

332. Shortly thereafter, the soldiers systematically searched the rooms without even looking at the lists, because they thought students were hiding there.⁸²¹ When they knocked on Witness Kayibanda's door, the young soldiers asked him why he was not helping to defend against the enemies, or Tutsis.⁸²² Witness Kayibanda was led out by them and assisted them in carrying out their search.⁸²³ Once they found an enemy, they would take them to a "sorting center" that was prepared by the "professional" soldiers.⁸²⁴ The head of Witness Kayibanda's group would hand over the identity cards that they had taken from the students and, if the professional soldier decided the student had to pass through a roadblock, that victim would not return.⁸²⁵

333. There were three blocks at the university, but all victims who were "arrested" were taken to the same place.⁸²⁶ Witness Kayibanda did not know how many students were taken from the campus that night.⁸²⁷ The search for students continued on into the next morning, when they also canvassed the woods surrounding the campus.⁸²⁸

334. Witness Kayibanda did not know who commanded this attack and did not see anyone issuing orders throughout the assault.⁸²⁹ He just knew that Sibomana was acting as a liaison between the soldiers and provided them with some information once they got to the campus.⁸³⁰ He saw soldiers kill and carry out their operations, but did not see a coordination of the various groups participating in the attacks.⁸³¹

Prosecution Witness AZM

336. Witness AZM, a Hutu, was a member of the prefecture security committee in Butare in April 1994.⁸³⁸ He heard at a security committee meeting a few days after 19 April, from either Vice-Rector Jean Berchmans Nshimyumuremyi or the area Commander Tharcisse Muvunyi, that university students had been killed.⁸³⁹ Muvunyi asked Berchmans during the meeting whether he had enough soldiers at his disposal, to which he responded that their numbers were adequate.⁸⁴⁰ At a following meeting, Berchmans announced that he no longer needed the food stamps he had requested, because the people for whom he was seeking assistance were no longer alive.⁸⁴¹

Witness ZAP was at Rosalie Gicanda's house in April 1994.⁸⁴⁸ On 20 April, Witness ZAP was taken in a vehicle, along with Rosalie Gicanda by soldiers, who subsequently stopped at the ESO.⁸⁴⁹ The leader of the soldiers and a few others exited the vehicle and entered the ESO Camp.⁸⁵⁰ Other soldiers approached the car and said that they had discovered some Inyenzi and that they would treat them the same way they had treated the university students.⁸⁵¹ They told the witness they had just warmed their bayonets.⁸⁵²

340. In 1994, Witness Mukeshimana, a Hutu, was a medical student at the Butare University.⁸⁵³ Between 19 and 21 April there was a meeting of about 100 students at the Kamuniza stadium, presided over by the Vice-Rector Jean Berchmans Nshimyumuremyi.⁸⁵⁴ Nizeyimana was not present at this meeting, nor was there any other soldier there.⁸⁵⁵ The primary issues discussed were security at the university and the delivery of food to students, as well as transport for students who wanted to return to their areas of origin.⁸⁵⁶ The meeting lasted less than an hour.⁸⁵⁷ While food was provided after the meeting, the transport never materialised because of the insecurity in getting to the various regions to which the students wanted to be transported.⁸⁵⁸ Witness Mukeshimana was not aware of another meeting taking place.⁸⁵⁹ He did not know whether lists containing the names of students were created.⁸⁶⁰

Sometime after 20 April 1994, in the afternoon, Witness Mukeshimana saw about 10 armed soldiers enter the university campus.⁸⁶¹ He estimated their ages to range between 25 and 30 years.⁸⁶² He did not know where the soldiers came from and did not see any officers among this group.⁸⁶³ He saw the soldiers enter the university residences and saw people on the ground at the basketball court around 4.00 p.m., whom he thought soldiers had told to sit

Around 20 April 1994, a meeting was held shortly after breakfast at the stadium, chaired by the Executive-Secretary Rudatsikira and Vice-Rector Jean Berchmans Nshimyumuremyi.⁸⁷³ During this meeting, they discussed the distribution of lodging for people who were fleeing, food and transportation for students who wanted to return to their native regions.⁸⁷⁴ The university said that it was impossible to arrange buses to bring the students back to their native regions.⁸⁷⁵ The meeting lasted about one and a half hours.⁸⁷⁶ Witness ZML02 estimated there to be about 80 students at the university around that time.⁸⁷⁷ No one else addressed the students at this meeting and there were no soldiers present.⁸⁷⁸ towards their hostels, whereas Tutsis were told to go to the basketball pitch, which was opposite the restaurant.⁹⁰² He heard that four students had been sent to that pitch.⁹⁰³

349. When he exited the restaurant, he noticed that one armed person was wearing a green military uniform with a black beret.⁹⁰⁴ He carried a weapon and his face looked old and wrinkled.⁹⁰⁵ Witness Mutarutinya did not know what unit this soldier came from, but subsequently heard that he, and two or three others, were members of the Presidential Guard.⁹⁰⁶ He did not see any students assisting these soldiers when he was at the refectory.⁹⁰⁷ Witness Mutarutinya assumed that those directed to the basketball court must have been killed, because he heard gun shots from the direction of the arboretum, a small artificial forest, shortly after he got to his room.⁹⁰⁸ The soldiers were not receiving assistance from other students.⁹⁰⁹

350. In the days following this incursion, the student body at the campus decreased.⁹¹⁰ Many students were fearful and sought refuge elsewhere, as they had heard of subsequent abductions of students.⁹¹¹ He did not see the students being abducted, but heard that armed civilians and soldiers took them away.⁹¹²

Defence Witness Joseph Ngezahayo

351. In April 1994, Witness Ngezahayo, a Hutu, was a student and worked as a laundry man for Jean Nepo Hategekimana at the ESO.⁹¹³ About two weeks after President Habyarimana's plane was shot down, the witness walked over to the university to have something to eat around 11.40 a.m.⁹¹⁴ On that day, around 12.30 or 1.00 p.m., about a dozen soldiers entered the campus.⁹¹⁵ The oldest could not have been more than 30, but they were generally between 27 and 28 years old.⁹¹⁶ Witness Ngezahayo knew the ESO soldiers well and was therefore able to conclude that these soldiers were not from this camp.⁹¹⁷ Instead, the soldiers told him they were from Kigali.⁹¹⁸ Witness Ngezahayo knew there were no officers among the group, because he did not see any stars on their epaulettes.⁹¹⁹

352. The soldiers first went to the student service before going towards the hostel.⁹²⁰ Once there, they said that they were looking for students who may have been hiding there.⁹²¹ The soldiers, who were assisted by students and who were mostly affiliated with MRND, searched the hostels and took some students to the basketball court located in front of the refectory.⁹²² Witness Ngezahayo watched the event unfold from his location in front of the restaurant des connards, which is about 11 metres from the basketball pitch.⁹²³ Once at the basketball court, the soldiers asked the students to present their identity cards and put between 28 to 30 Tutsis to one side.⁹²⁴ The soldiers did not check his identification card, because it was clear from his clothes that he was not a student.⁹²⁵

353. Around 2.00 p.m., the soldiers took the Tutsi students to the INRS, which was located outside the campus on the other side of the tarmac road.⁹²⁶ Witness Ngezahayo followed the soldiers as they took the students away until he got to the edge of the campus.⁹²⁷ He believes the students were killed, because he did not see them return to the university thereafter.⁹²⁸ On that occasion, Witness Ngezahayo saw soldiers from the Presidential Guard kill a Hutu tailor named Cassien in a banana grove close to the university campus.⁹²⁹ He spent about 10 minutes at the university on this occasion and then went home.⁹³⁰

354. The following day, Witness Ngezahayo returned to the university around 8.00 a.m. to bring some clothes he had for students.⁹³¹ Standing next to guava trees outside the student department, the witness saw the soldiers return that day.⁹³² Witness Ngezahayo concluded they were the same group of soldiers based on their uniforms and the size of the group.⁹³³ They asked the student department for the master key to enter all student rooms. However, he did not see them enter the university on this occasion.⁹³⁴ After having collected the master key, the witness overheard students, who were accompanying the soldiers, bragging that those who thought they had locked themselves inside their room were going to “get it from

355. Not more than five students were arrested that day and were taken to the national laboratory.⁹³⁷ These students did not return to the campus either.⁹³⁸ Witness Ngezahayo was told by 15-year-old kids, who had followed the students, that they had been killed at the IRNS.⁹³⁹ The witness thought the soldiers had spent the night at the Groupe Scolaire.⁹⁴⁰ The soldiers did not return to the university after this second occasion.⁹⁴¹ Witness Ngezahayo did not speak to the soldiers on either occasion.⁹⁴² He was about five metres from the soldiers.⁹⁴³

Defence Witness MAL06

356. In April 1994, Witness MAL06, a Hutu, worked at the Butare University.⁹⁴⁴ On or around 25 April, at about 5.00 p.m., eight armed soldiers entered the refectory known as de Salaud and asked students for their identity cards.⁹⁴⁵ There were less than 20 students inside the refectory at the time.⁹⁴⁶ Witness MAL06 was inside the refectory and saw some soldiers come in and others waited outside.⁹⁴⁷ They did not ask him to show his identity card.⁹⁴⁸ At some point they asked all students to exit the restaurant, after which they continued checking the identity cards outside.⁹⁴⁹ Witness MAL06 did not see whether the soldiers had a list of names.⁹⁵⁰ Some of the students were taken away, though Witness MAL06 did not know why.⁹⁵¹ He heard later from other students that those taken away had been killed.⁹⁵² The witness saw some students pointing out their colleagues and showing them to soldiers.⁹⁵³

357. The soldiers were wearing new uniforms and new black berets, not usually seen in Butare, and were acting hostile.⁹⁵⁴ The following day, students were saying that the soldiers in the refectory had been members of the Presidential Guard.⁹⁵⁵ While the uniforms may have been the same, he did not recognise the faces of these soldiers. Consequently, he knew that they were not from the ESO.⁹⁵⁶ Moreover, they acted different from ESO soldiers.⁹⁵⁷

358. The next day, the same soldiers returned to the university campus and asked where the various hostels were located.⁹⁵⁸ This time they requested that Witness MAL06 show them his identity card.⁹⁵⁹ Witness MAL06 did not see or hear about students getting killed at the university while he was working there.⁹⁶⁰ He stopped working about three days after the second visit by the soldiers, because he was afraid he would get killed.⁹⁶¹ A colleague had alerted him not to come, because he may get hurt.⁹⁶²

Defence Witness BEJ01

359. Witness BEJ01, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in 1994.⁹⁶³ Witness BEJ01 had been given a list by his colleagues at the university, which contained the names of approximately 50 to 70 families, who wanted to flee Butare by bus.⁹⁶⁴ He summarised the list and gave it to the Vice-Rector of Butare University, Jean Berchmans Nshimiyumuremyi around 12 April.⁹⁶⁵ No one was transported out of Butare by bus.⁹⁶⁶ The majority of the families contained on that list survived.⁹⁶⁷ Witness BEJ01 did not go to the university after 12 April.⁹⁶⁸

Defence Witness OUV03

360. In April 1994, Witness OUV03, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO.⁹⁶⁹ When Nizeyimana left the ESO Camp, he would tell Witness OUV03, so that the latter could get in touch with him should the need arise, including when he went to locations such as the uniform. Indeed, the difference, as I told you, between those soldiers who arrived and – it’s, in fact – that I did not recognise – I noticed that it was the first time I was seeing their faces. That is why I said a while ago that these were new people who had arrived at the restaurant. JUDGE FREMR: Okay, you are talking about faces, but I would be more interested about the differences as to the look of uniforms if any. THE WITNESS: ESO soldiers had a normal military uniform. MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Witness, what is a normal military uniform? What colour is normal? THE WITNESS: They had a camouflage uniform and black berets. JUDGE FREMR: Okay, and those soldiers who came to the university, what kind of – or, what colour was their uniform and berets? THE WITNESS: Their berets were also black, but they had new uniforms. If you look at their behaviour, you could notice that they were different from the soldiers that we knew or that we were used to. JUDGE FREMR: But as to the colour of the uniform, was the same? ... the transfer of these students appears to be a logical procedure, particularly in light of a similar process that was followed earlier with respect to the university staff.

365. Moreover, both Witnesses Mukeshimana and ZML02 did not indicate their desire to leave the university for their native regions and may therefore not have been aware of the procedures other students followed to make known their intent to leave.⁹⁷⁸ It appears that only students who feared remaining in Butare by virtue of the increase in violence, such as Witness ZCB, would have put their names on a list.⁹⁷⁹ In light of Witness ZCB's first-hand testimony, supported by the circumstantial evidence of Defence Witnesses BEJ01, Mukeshimana and ZML02, the Chamber is satisfied that lists of student names were compiled after the 20 April 1994 meeting.

366. Turning to the link between the creation of these lists and Nizeyimana, the Chamber observes that the Prosecution has presented no direct evidence suggesting Nizeyimana was responsible for these lists or was in any way connected thereto. Witness ZCB is the sole witness to have identified Nizeyimana at the meeting. According to him, Berchmans specifically introduced him as "Captain Nizeyimana" and noted that he convened the meeting "in order to clarify the situation and that he was with a military officer in charge of securities so that they could see how they could resolve the problem".⁹⁸⁰

367. According to Witness ZCB, Nizeyimana also spoke, confirming his assistance in escorting the buses with students back to their native regions and reminding the students that the Tutsis were the enemy. Witness Kayibanda provides circumstantial corroboration for Witness ZCB's evidence, having seen military figures of authority at the meeting. Notwithstanding, Witness Kayibanda did not identify any particular individual and did not make reference to a military official speaking at the meeting, specifically cautioning the students about the Tutsi enemy. Notably, Defence Witnesses Mukeshimana and ZML02 did not see Nizeyimana or any other military figures at this meeting.

368. While Witness ZCB saw that the soldier was wearing a military uniform with three stripes on his shoulder and a beret, he was not asked whether he knew Nizeyimana prior to this meeting or had ever heard of him before this date.⁹⁸¹ Indeed, it is unclear how long Witness ZCB had resided in Butare as a student before this meeting occurred, and he did not indicate that he had any prior knowledge of the existence of Nizeyimana. This raises questions about the quality of his identification.

369. The Defence confronted Witness ZCB with a prior statement made to Tribunal investigators in 2003, detailing his account of the 20 April 1994 meeting. Notably, this statement does not reference Nizeyimana by name, but instead states that the Vice-Rector was accompanied "by a high-ranking military officer whom [he] thought was a captain".⁹⁸² The witness explained that the investigators had come to talk to him about Berchmans and that he therefore did not consider it pertinent to specifically reference Nizeyimana by name.⁹⁸³ The Chamber considers it reasonable that the witness may have focused on details surrounding Berchmans when questioned specifically about him.

370. However, given the absence of Nizeyimana's name in Witness ZCB's prior statement, the general nature of his identification, the uncorroborated evidence of Nizeyimana's speech before the students and Witnesses Mukeshimana and ZML02's denial of the presence of soldiers at this meeting, the Chamber does not find that the Prosecution met its burden of proving that Nizeyimana was in fact present at this gathering.⁹⁸⁴

371. Witness ZCB is the only witness to provide evidence of a second meeting approximately one or two days after the 20 April 1994 meeting, during which Nizeyimana was present. This meeting at the stadium only lasted about 10 to 15 minutes and was meant to inform the students that the plan to evacuate students out of Butare to their native regions would not go forward. The Chamber observes that Witnesses Mukeshimana and ZML02 provide circumstantial evidence to the extent that they knew that the buses would not be provided by the university and the plan to transport the students back to their homes had been cancelled.⁹⁸⁵

372. However, none of the other witnesses who were present at the first meeting knew of a second meeting immediately following 20 April 1994. Indeed, the majority of witnesses, including Witness ZCB, described soldiers entering the campus the following day, on or around 21 April. Only Witness ZML02 spoke of a second meeting, but this occurred well after the campus was attacked by soldiers on 28 April and was convened to discuss the manner in which students could contribute to securing the campus.⁹⁸⁶ In light of the absence of any evidence in support of Witness ZCB's testimony regarding the second meeting, which Nizeyimana is said to have attended, the Chamber cannot find beyond a reasonable doubt that this gathering in fact took place.

(ii) Attack on Butare University, Around 21 April 1994

373. The evidence reflects that on an evening shortly after President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech in Butare, armed and uniformed soldiers entered the university campus, searched its premises and separated Tutsi students from other students.⁹⁸⁷ The soldiers searched the student residences and entered the restaurant, where they asked those inside to present their identity cards. Tutsi students were subsequently gathered at the basketball court, outside the restaurant and killed outside the campus.

⁹⁸³ Witness ZCB, T. 18 January 2011, pp. 10-11, 17.

⁹⁸⁴ The Chamber notes that the Defence objected to Witness ZCB's evidence of Nizeyimana's presence at this meeting on the basis of notice. See Witness ZCB, T. 17 January 2011, pp. 32, 36, 58; Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 39-40. Given the Chamber's finding that it does not intend to rely on Witness ZCB's evidence as it relates to Nizeyimana's presence at the meeting, the Chamber need not address the objections raised by the Defence.

⁹⁸⁶ Witness ZML02, T. 17 May 2011, pp. 7, 23, 29.

⁹⁸⁷ See, e.g., Prosecution Witness ZBC, T. 17 January 2011, pp. 34-37; Prosecution Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, pp. 47-54; Defence Witness Mukeshimana, T. 23 May 2011, pp. 37, 42-43, 42, 54; Defence Witness Mutarutinya, T. 23 May 2011, pp. 7, 17-21; Defence Witness Ngezahayo, T. 24 May 2011, pp. 48-50, 64, 69; Defence Witness MAL06, T. 16 May 2011, pp. 37-39, 48, 54-55; Defence Witness ZML02, T. 17 May 2011, pp. 11-12, 27-30.

374. In this context, the Prosecution argues that Nizeyimana orchestrated the identification and killing of Tutsi students at the university. The Chamber observes that the Indictment is ambiguous as to the date upon which this attack is to have taken place. Indeed, Indictment paragraph 14(i) does not provide a date, whereas Indictment paragraph 14(ii) describes an attack on or about 19 April 1994. The Defence witnesses concur that an attack took place at the university, during which students were killed. However, the evidence diverges in respect to the date upon which the assault took place.

375. Contrary to the Indictment, the Prosecution and Defence evidence uniformly suggests that an attack took place after 19 April 1994. Indeed, Prosecution Witnesses Kayibanda and ZCB and Defence Witnesses Mutarutinya and ZML02 testified that an attack on the university took place on 21 April.⁹⁸⁸ Defence Witness Mukeshimana noted that the attack occurred “sometime after 20 April in the afternoon”, while Defence Witness Ngezahayo placed the event about two weeks after President Habyarimana’s plane crash. By contrast, Defence Witness MAL06 noted that an attack took place on or around 25 April.

376. Despite the ambiguity in dates, Prosecution Witnesses Kayibanda and ZCB and Defence Witnesses Mukeshimana, Ngezahayo, Mutarutinya, MAL06 and ZML02 all provide a very similar narrative with regards to the soldiers’ arrival and subsequent operations at the university. Indeed, Prosecution Witnesses Kayibanda and Defence Witnesses Mutarutinya, MAL06 and ZML02 described how soldiers entered the university restaurant around the evening, between 5.00 and 6.00 p.m.⁹⁸⁹ The soldiers asked the students to show their identity cards and the students were separated according to their ethnicity. They were subsequently taken to the basketball court outside the restaurant, where other students, taken from their rooms, were gathered as well.⁹⁹⁰ Further corroboration for this evidence is provided by Witness ZCB, who was himself taken from the hostels and initially gathered at a location next to the restaurant with other Tutsi students.⁹⁹¹

377. Defence Witness Ngezahayo saw about a dozen soldiers enter the campus around 12.30 or 1.00 p.m., go towards the hostels looking for students and take them to the basketball court, where they were asked to show their identity cards.⁹⁹² Similarly, Witness Mukeshimana saw about 10 soldiers enter the campus and go to the university residences. He subsequently saw people, whom he thought were forced to be there by the soldiers, sitting on the ground at the basketball pitch around 4.00 p.m.⁹⁹³ Given the similarity of the first-hand accounts of the manner in which the soldiers operated, the approximate timing of their arrival

⁹⁸⁸ The Chamber notes that Witness ZBH provides evidence about an attack on 22 April 1994, during which students were identified and killed by civilians and soldiers alike. The Chamber shall discuss his evidence as it relates to this attack under Indictment paragraph 14(iii).

Witnesses Kayibanda, Ngezahayo and Mukeshimana described seeing between 10 and 12 soldiers enter the premises on 21 April 1994. See Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, pp. 48-50; Witness Ngezahayo, T. 24 May 2011, pp. 49, 51; Witness Mukeshimana, T. 23 May, 2011, pp. 37, 43.

and the number of soldiers present, the Chamber is satisfied that they in fact are testifying about the same attack, which occurred on or about 21 April 1994.⁹⁹⁴

378. Turning to the tools used by the soldiers to identify civilian victims at the university campus, Prosecution Witnesses Kayibanda, ZCB and Defence Witness Ngezahayo observed how the soldiers entered the hostels in search of students.⁹⁹⁵ Witness Kayibanda described the search as “systematic”, as soldiers moved through the hostels using lists to identify and target civilian victims.⁹⁹⁶ Indeed, when Witness ZCB was discovered at his hostel, a soldier, whom he thought to be a Presidential Guard, showed him a list which contained his name and asked the witness to confirm who he was.⁹⁹⁷ When he looked at the list, he recognised another name contained thereon, who he identified as Tutsi.⁹⁹⁸ Further support for the practice of separation of Tutsis was provided by Witness Ngezahayo. He saw soldiers ask for identity cards and then separate between 28 and 30 Tutsi students at the basketball pitch.⁹⁹⁹

379. Defence Witness ZML02, who was on her way to the restaurant when she was stopped by the soldiers and asked to identify herself, did not see anyone using lists that day. However, Witness ZML02, after having been asked to show her identity card, was allowed to enter the restaurant and would not have seen the assailants move around the hostels with lists. The fact that she did not see lists being used at the university is therefore of limited probative value. The Chamber is satisfied, based on the totality of the evidence, that the assailants who were at the campus used identification cards and lists to target civilian victims, specifically those with the Tutsi ethnicity.

380. However, the Chamber observes that there exists no direct evidence linking the lists that were created during the meeting at the stadium on or around 20 April 1994, with the lists that were used to identify and separate Tutsi students at the university. Indeed, Witness Kayibanda noted that the general association of Rwandan students handed the lists over to the soldiers, Witness ZCB identified a member of the Presidential Guard with a list.¹⁰⁰⁰ While it is entirely plausible that the various assailants at the university were distributed lists for use when identifying Tutsi students, the only direct evidence in regards to the creation thereof implicates the Vice-Rector Berchmans, who instructed the students to put down their names if they wanted to be transported back to their native regions. As noted above, there is nothing on the record that demonstrates Nizeyimana was involved in the creation and usage of such lists.

381. The evidence demonstrates that the students who were separated and brought to the basketball pitch were subsequently led away and killed. Witness ZBC, who was led away with a group of students by soldiers, while other MRND and CDR affiliated students beat them with iron clubs and bars. At some point he heard gunshots too. Witness ZCB believed they were being led to their death and thought he saw victims on the ground, whom he thought to be dead, before he was saved. Similarly, Witness Kayibanda noted that he saw the soldiers “kill and carry out their operations”.¹⁰⁰¹ Their first-hand evidence is supported by Defence Witnesses Mutarutinya and Ngezahayo, who presumed that the students who were taken from the basketball pitch were subsequently killed.¹⁰⁰²

382. Prosecution Witnesses AZM and ZAP provide further second-hand circumstantial support for the fate suffered by the civilian victims at the university. Witness AZM heard from either Vice-Rector Berchmans or Colonel Muvunyi at a security committee meeting a few days after 19 April 1994 that Butare University students had been killed.¹⁰⁰³ Similarly, Witness ZAP, when, being taken away by ESO soldiers, was told she would suffer the same fate as the university students.¹⁰⁰⁴ They told the witness they had just warmed their bayonets.¹⁰⁰⁵ The Chamber has no doubt that assailants entered the university’s campus, identified and targeted Tutsis, after which those identified as such were killed.

383. The critical question, consequently, for the Chamber is whether Nizeyimana can be held responsible for these killings. At the outset, the Chamber notes that the Prosecution presented no evidence of Chief Warrant Officer Damien Ntamuhanga’s involvement in the attack as alleged by Indictment paragraph 14(i). Indeed, not one witness referred to Ntamuhanga having been present at the university or having engaged in targeting civilians at this location. The allegation in regards to his engagement of other soldiers upon authorisation of Nizeyimana to target civilian victims is dismissed. Similarly, there is no evidence of Nizeyimana having been present at the university during the attack that took place on 21 April 1994.

384. The Chamber shall turn to the identity of the soldiers who participated in the attack on the university. Prosecution Witnesses ZCB and Kayibanda provided first-hand evidence of ESO soldiers who were involved in the attack at the university. Specifically, Witness ZCB recounted how he was tracked down at his hostel, interrogated in his room and led away by soldiers to a location next to the restaurant. From there, he and other students were taken along a path by the soldiers, to what he thought would be his death. Witness ZCB identified a member of the Presidential Guard who carried a list with his name on it. However, he consistently implicated ESO soldiers in his abduction from the hostel and subsequent walk to where he thought he would be killed.

385. Specifically, Witness ZCB identified two young soldiers that he thought came from the ESO based on their youth and worn-out uniforms. They were accompanying the Presidential Guard, who was carrying a list with Witness ZCB’s name contained thereon. The ESO soldiers interrogated him in his room and eventually led him to the basketball pitch. When taken to another location with approximately 20 other students by the ESO soldiers, they were beaten by both soldiers and students affiliated with the MRND and CDR along the way.¹⁰⁰⁶ The Chamber considers that Witness ZCB’s close physical proximity with the soldiers would have given him ample opportunity to observe and identify the soldiers in his company. Furthermore, the record gives considerable circumstantial support to the proposition that ESO soldiers could be distinguished among those from other camps based on their relative youth.¹⁰⁰⁷

386. Witness ZCB's evidence is supported by Witness Kayibanda, who also provided first-hand evidence of the attack. Before turning to the merits of his evidence, the Chamber shall first assess his general credibility. The Defence challenges Witness Kayibanda's credibility on the basis of contradictory evidence in regards to a prior encounter with Defence Witness Dimitri.¹⁰⁰⁸

387. Witness Kayibanda testified in court that he met with Defence Witness Dimitri in 2008, who represented to him that she worked for the Tribunal's Office of the Prosecutor.¹⁰⁰⁹ On cross-examination, Witness Kayibanda confirmed that his meetings with Witness Dimitri were related to the defence of Désiré Munyaneza, who was facing trial in Canada on charges of genocide.¹⁰¹⁰ He insisted that he refused to testify on behalf of Munyaneza and similarly refused to appear before the Kenya rogatory commission.¹⁰¹¹ Witness Kayibanda's reasons for refusing to do so elicited contradictory and confusing responses, ranging from his conscience preventing him from testifying on behalf of someone charged with genocide related crimes, to having been threatened by two police officers in Kigali, to not having any relevant information about Munyaneza.¹⁰¹²

388. When confronted with two written declarations of his intent to testify on behalf of Munyaneza, Witness Kayibanda asserted that he had not accepted Witness Dimitri's proposal to provide evidence and gave confusing explanations for the presence of his signature on the documents.¹⁰¹³ The Chamber notes that it is readily apparent from the documents that ¹⁰⁰⁷ See, e.g., Defence Witness KEN06, T. 20 September 2011, pp. 4, 29 (joined ESO's nouvelle formule as a 13-year-old in 1989); Prosecution Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 76-77 (testifying that ESO soldiers could be distinguished from Ngoma Camp soldiers based on age and that the oldest cadets from the first batch were ages 15 to 17); Defence Witness Nsabimana, T. 18 May 2011, p. 70 (ESO soldiers could be "recognised from the fact that they were young"). Indeed, the nouvelle formule model allowed cadets to enter ESO after finishing primary school. ¹⁰⁰⁹ Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, pp. 62-63. Witness Kayibanda met with Witness Dimitri a total of three times. T. 3 February 2011, p. 9; T. 3 February 2011, p. 21. During cross-examination, Witness Kayibanda again stated that he did not know that Witness Dimitri was the Defence counsel for Munyaneza. T. 3 February 2011, p. 28.

¹⁰¹⁰ Witness Kayibanda, T. 3 February 2011, pp. 10-13; 17-18; 21-24; 27-30; see also Exhibit D11 (Declaration of Witness Kayibanda); Exhibit D12 (Declaration on Witness Kayibanda). After testifying extensively about refusing Defence Witness Dimitri's request that he testify in the defence of Munyaneza, the witness continued to assert that he did not understand that Witness Dimitri was acting as defence counsel for Munyaneza. While the record reflects that Witness Kayibanda may have been confused at some point during his meeting with Witness Dimitri, the Chamber has no doubt that he understood that the meetings on 3 and 5 January were related to the defence of Munyaneza.

Witness Kayibanda was subsequently shown an e-mail to Dimitri, which he confirmed was his that also exhibited his intent to testify on Witness Dimitri's status as a Defence counsel must have been known to Kayibanda. Specifically, both declarations contain a paragraph in which Kayibanda, who has initialled the page, affirms that he met with members of the Defence team for Munyaneza.¹⁰¹⁴ Both of the documents are signed by Witnesses Kayibanda and Dimitri alike.¹⁰¹⁵ Notwithstanding, Kayibanda continued to insist he was unaware of Witness Dimitri's status as Defence counsel, despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Witness Kayibanda's inconsistent evidence in regards to his knowledge of Witness Dimitri's status as a Defence counsel and the reasons for which he declined to testify on behalf of Munyaneza, raises questions about the quality of his evidence.

389. Additionally, Witness Kayibanda admitted to having assisted soldiers in the attack on students at the university on 21 April 1994.¹⁰¹⁶ Given his prior incarceration and status as a possible accomplice, as well as his less than truthful account about the nature of his meetings with Witness Dimitri, the Chamber shall approach his evidence with appropriate caution.¹⁰¹⁷

390. Turning to the merits of his evidence, Witness Kayibanda testified that he saw a number of soldiers enter the university who appeared to be young.¹⁰¹⁸ Moreover, the witness identified a student commanding soldiers at the campus, Innocent Sibomana, also known as "Sergeant", who told the witness he was at the ESO.¹⁰¹⁹ Sibomana further informed Witness Kayibanda that the "elements" who came to the university in subsequent waves, and were supposed to provide security, were ESO soldiers. Witness Kayibanda noted that Sibomana acted as a "liaison" between the soldiers and that he provided "some information" to the soldiers once they got to the campus.¹⁰²⁰

391. The presence of Innocent Sibomana at the university finds support by Prosecution Witness ZT, who saw Sibomana in the vicinity, on an unspecified date in April 1994, with Tutsis whom she thought he was going to kill.¹⁰²¹ Similarly Prosecution Witness BDE heard from Fulgence Niyibizi that Sibomana was involved in the killings at the university.¹⁰²² Witness AZD also saw Sibomana at a roadblock around the university.¹⁰²³ Based on the combined evidence of Witnesses Kayibanda, BDE and ZT, the Chamber concludes that Innocent Sibomana, a soldier who was studying at the Butare University, and thereby under ESO's de jure authority, was present at the university on 21 April, commanding soldiers.

392. Prosecution Witnesses BDE and Dufitumukiza provided additional second-hand evidence of specific ESO soldiers whom they believed were generally involved in killing Tutsis at the university. Witness BDE “knew” that Corporal Sekimonyo and Fulgence Niyibizi, both ESO soldiers, carried out killings at the university.¹⁰²⁴ While Witness BDE’s evidence provides circumstantial corroboration for Witness Kayibanda’s testimony in regards to Sibomana’s presence at the campus, there is no further support on the record for the presence of Corporal Sekimonyo and Fulgence Niyibizi at the university. Given the second-hand and uncorroborated nature of her evidence, the Chamber considers it of limited probative value in this regard.

393. In addition, Witness Dufitumukiza testified that he knew that Second Lieutenant Gakwerere was present and led attacks on students at the university.¹⁰²⁵ However, Witness Dufitumukiza admittedly never saw Second Lieutenant Gakwerere at the university and did not explain his basis for knowing that Gakwerere was involved or the precise nature of his involvement. While Witness Dufitumukiza’s impressions of Gakwerere’s activities are relevant and probative, they do not establish facts beyond reasonable doubt. His evidence of Gakwerere’s presence at the university is corroborated by Witness ZBH, who noted Gakwerere’s presence at the university on 22 April 1994, in addition to Corporal Rutayisire, alias Rubaga, and Corporal Mazimpaka.¹⁰²⁶ Notwithstanding, his evidence too remains general and vague in nature and does not detail the extent to which, if at all, these soldiers were involved in specific crimes at the university. Their evidence fails to establish findings beyond a reasonable doubt.

394. Having broadly viewed the record as it relates to the involvement of ESO soldiers in this particular attack on the Butare University, the Chamber notes the striking similarities regarding the descriptions of how ESO soldiers conducted themselves. Like Witness ZCB, Witness Kayibanda also testified that the ESO soldiers appeared to work in concert with members of the Presidential Guard and the gendarmerie. Specifically, the ESO soldiers, after having identified students, brought the victims to a “sorting centre” that was prepared by the “professional soldiers”, who would then decide what would become of the victim.¹⁰²⁷ Like Witness ZCB’s account, they played a supporting role of removing and detaining those identified as Tutsis.

395. In the Chamber’s view, the presence of ESO soldiers at the university is not inconsistent with Prosecution and Defence evidence of an “older” group of soldiers who arrived at the university on or around 21 April 1994, wearing new uniforms and black berets. Prosecution Witnesses ZCB and Kayibanda as well as Defence Witnesses Mutarutinya, MAL06 and ZML02 all described soldiers whom they were unable to identify with certainty, but whom they uniformly thought to have been members of the Presidential Guard.¹⁰²⁸

¹⁰²⁶ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 47-48.

¹⁰²⁷ See, e.g., Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, p. 52.

¹⁰²⁸ Witness ZCB, T. 17 January 2011, pp. 38, 58 (saw one soldier who was wearing a uniform that was new to him and heard rumours that the Presidential Guard was in town); Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, pp. 48-49 (thought the soldiers in the first group were Presidential Guard based on their new uniforms); Witness Mutarutinya, T. 23 May 2011, p. 8 (saw a soldier in a green military uniform with a black beret, who looked old

Further circumstantial support is provided by Defence Witnesses Mukeshimana and Ngezahayo, who saw soldiers who were between 28 and 30 years-old.¹⁰²⁹ Witness Ngezahayo added that these soldiers acted different from the ESO soldiers, whom he knew, and that one of the soldiers had told him he was from Kigali.¹⁰³⁰

396. The record demonstrates that the Presidential Guard was present at the university on 21 April 1994 and appeared to be leading this operation. Nonetheless, ESO soldiers provided direct and substantial assistance in the identification and separation of Tutsi students. The fact that they assisted the Presidential Guard in their operations, and thus played a more secondary role in the assault, only lends further support to their identification as ESO soldiers. Their young age and inexperience in comparison to the operational capabilities of the Presidential Guard would reasonably have resulted in the ESO soldiers taking on a more supporting role during this attack on Tutsi university students.

397. The evidence also reflects that students assisted soldiers in their operations at the university. Indeed, Witness Kayibanda, himself a student, admitted to having assisted the soldiers in identifying and targeting Tutsi students at the university.¹⁰³¹ Witness ZCB noted that students accompanied the soldiers when they were identifying Tutsi students in his hostel. Defence Witness Ngezahayo also provided evidence of the participation by students affiliated with the MRND in the attacks on the university.¹⁰³²

398. Accordingly, the evidence assessed above demonstrates that ESO soldiers were present and contributing to the crimes committed at the university on or about 21 April 1994.¹⁰³³ Their central role in the separation, detention and ultimate attack on students identified as Tutsis demonstrates beyond question that those participating in the attack held genocidal intent. While the evidence is less direct about ESO soldiers actually killing students during the attack on the university, there is no question that the assault on the university intended the killing of Tutsi students. The evidence is clear that the contribution made by the ESO soldiers to the accomplishment of this goal was substantial and significant.

¹⁰³³ Nizeyimana cannot be held liable for the crimes committed by Presidential Guards as the Indictment is materially defective as it relates to the pleading of their criminal conduct. The Chamber repeatedly instructed the Prosecution to clearly delineate the camps encompassed within "FAR soldiers" in relation to several Indictment paragraphs, including this one. See, e.g., Decision on Prosecutor's Request for Leave to File an Amended Indictment, 25 February 2010, paras. 17, 28, Order II; Decision on Nizeyimana's Preliminary Motion on Defects in the Amended Indictment ("June 2010 Decision"), 9 June 2010, para. 29; Decision on Nizeyimana's Motion to Order the Prosecutor to Conform with a Trial Chamber Decision and Strike Parts of the June 18 Amended Indictment ("July 2010 Decision"), 12 July 2010, paras. 6-7; Decision on Defence Preliminary Motion on Defects in the Indictment ("December 2010 Decision"), 16 December 2010, paras. 47-51. However, the Prosecution never included the Presidential Guard therein, nor was it included in paragraph 5 of the Indictment, which lists the members of the Joint Criminal Enterprise. Moreover, the body of the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not include Presidential Guard as perpetrators of the killings at the university. See Pre-Trial Brief, paras. 125-132. Similarly, the will-say statement of Witnesses ZBC, annexed to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, does not make reference to Presidential Guards. See Witness ZBC's will-say statement, pp. 35-36.

399. Notwithstanding, there is no evidence directly implicating Nizeyimana in this attack, and the record fails to demonstrate that he provided substantial or significant assistance to the crimes committed during it. Moreover, having considered the entire record, as well as the Chamber's considerations of Nizeyimana's authority during the relevant period, the Chamber is not satisfied that Nizeyimana may be held liable as a superior.¹⁰³⁴ In particular, given the involvement of Presidential Guards, the record may be interpreted to reasonably reflect that ESO units were re-subordinated within a command structure of this more elite operational force. Under the circumstances, and particularly in light of the dearth of any evidence linking this assault to Nizeyimana, the Chamber is not satisfied that the record reflects that Nizeyimana exercised effective control over the ESO soldiers contributing to this operation.¹⁰³⁵

¹⁰³⁵ See Blagojević and Jokić Appeal Judgement, paras. 300-304 (affirming the Trial Chamber's determination that while a superior exercised "command control" over a subordinate who had committed crimes, the presence of a parallel authority who was present in the area and issuing orders and instructions, raised doubts that the Defendant exercised "effective control" over that subordinate).

5.2 Sexual Violence

Introduction

400. The Indictment alleges that on or about 19 April 1994, attacks occurred at the university against students identified as Tutsi, during which gunshots were fired and female victims were targeted by soldiers from the FAR, ESO, Ngoma Camp and Butare Gendarmerie Camp and Interahamwe militia who committed crimes of sexual violence.¹⁰³⁶

401. The Prosecution does not point to any evidence in support of the allegation that female victims were targeted by soldiers, who committed acts of sexual violence against them. However, Witness ZCB provided relevant testimony. The Defence challenges Nizeyimana's responsibility in relation to attacks at the university.¹⁰³⁷

Prosecution Witness ZCB

402. On or about 21 April 1994, Witness ZCB saw ESO soldiers abduct some girls from their rooms.¹⁰³⁸ When they were being taken out of their rooms, the girls were screaming, leading him to believe that the soldiers were taking them away to harm them.¹⁰³⁹ Indeed, from what Witness ZCB observed, the girls were being abducted so that they could be raped.¹⁰⁴⁰ He subsequently saw one of the girls, who confirmed that she had been raped.¹⁰⁴¹ Witness ZCB knew the soldiers who took the girls were from the ESO, because they were young and were wearing worn-out uniforms.¹⁰⁴² According to him, "everybody at the university knew that those soldiers belonged to the military camp known as ESO".¹⁰⁴³

Deliberations

403. The Chamber has discussed above evidence regarding the attack on civilian victims at the university, including the use of lists and identification cards, under Indictment paragraph 14(i). Given the Prosecution's failure to clearly delineate the evidence according to the Indictment paragraph, the Chamber shall focus on the allegation of sexual violence, the only crime pleaded in Indictment paragraph 14(ii). Prosecution Witness ZCB is the sole witness who testified to acts of sexual violence perpetrated against women at the university by ESO soldiers.

404. Witness ZCB's evidence is circumstantial and second-hand. He saw girls being taken from their rooms by ESO soldiers, but he did not see what happened to them following their abductions. Witness ZCB inferred that the soldiers intended to harm them. The only manner in which he was able to verify whether the girls were raped, is when he spoke to one on an unidentified date afterward. She confirmed what happened to her.

405. There is considerable credible evidence that soldiers engaged in sexual violence against women during this period. Nonetheless, Witness ZCB's circumstantial and second-hand evidence is vague both to the timing of his discussion with his source and her identity. In this context, the Prosecution has failed to establish facts based on its exacting burden of proof. Indeed, its failure to even cite this evidence raises questions as to whether it continues to pursue this allegation and whether it could be a basis for conviction.¹⁰⁴⁴ This allegation is dismissed.

5.3 Killing of Four Women by Nizeyimana

Introduction

406. The Indictment alleges that on or about 22 April 1994, Nizeyimana led unknown FAR soldiers and Interahamwe to the university and personally shot and killed four female civilians identified as Tutsi in a building at the university. The Prosecution relies on Witness ZBH.¹⁰⁴⁵ The Defence challenges Witness ZBH's credibility and submits that his evidence is uncorroborated and fabricated.¹⁰⁴⁶

Prosecution Witness ZBH

407. In April 1994, Witness ZBH, a Hutu, was a civilian who had previously worked as a "helper" at ESO in 1991.¹⁰⁴⁷ He was recruited into killing Tutsis during the genocide by soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma Camps, who would round civilians up in town or at roadblocks and tell them they had "work" for them to do.¹⁰⁴⁸

408. On or around 22 April 1994, Witness ZBH was taken with a big group of youths to the ESO Camp, from where they were transported to the Butare University in the company of soldiers.¹⁰⁴⁹ Their leader at the time was Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, who carried a list of young Tutsi students who were at the university.¹⁰⁵⁰ Witness ZBH did not know how Shalom got or put together that list.¹⁰⁵¹ He generally testified, however, that Nizeyimana was working closely with Shalom.¹⁰⁵² They both issued orders to them when they were waiting to be transported at the ESO.¹⁰⁵³ Lieutenant Gakwerere, Corporal Rutayisire, alias Rubaga, and Corporal Mazimpaka were present at the university as well.¹⁰⁵⁴

409. On their way to the university, Witness ZBH saw Nizeyimana pass them by.¹⁰⁵⁵ Nizeyimana spoke to the soldiers who were manning the roadblock in front of the university to inform them of the group's arrival.¹⁰⁵⁶ When Witness ZBH and his group got to the roadblock, they were allowed to pass and left Nizeyimana there.¹⁰⁵⁷ Before they even started killing students, Witness ZBH saw Nizeyimana personally fire his pistol and shoot four girls at the residence called Cambodia.¹⁰⁵⁸ Nizeyimana thereby showed them an example.¹⁰⁵⁹ Nizeyimana said that he had killed those girls because they did not obey his orders or fulfil his needs.¹⁰⁶⁰ They left the bodies there and went to the rooms of the students in that residence.¹⁰⁶¹

410. The youths surrounded the students' dormitories, while the woods around the university were encircled by soldiers.¹⁰⁶² Many were killed, including those who were in the arboretum.¹⁰⁶³ The students in the hostels had locked themselves in, but Witness ZBH's group broke through the doors and killed the students.¹⁰⁶⁴ In addition to his group of youths, there was a group from the ESO and another group guarding the forest around the university.¹⁰⁶⁵ After they finished the killing of the students under the supervision of the soldiers, they took the students' mattresses, clothes and shoes.¹⁰⁶⁶ They spent approximately two hours at the university.¹⁰⁶⁷

411. The Chamber notes that Witness ZBH is the sole witness to testify about Nizeyimana leading soldiers and Interahamwe to the university and Nizeyimana having personally shot and killed four girls in front of the Cambodia residence on campus on or about 22 April 1994. The Chamber has elsewhere considered in detail the context in which Witness ZBH testified and his general credibility and determined that his evidence is to be approached with caution.¹⁰⁶⁸ The same analysis applies here.

412. Witness ZBH, a civilian who admitted to collaborating with soldiers in an attack on students at the university on or around 22 April 1994, testified that a group of civilians led by Shalom was rounded up and brought to the ESO where they received orders, including some from Nizeyimana. Upon receiving the orders, they joined the ESO soldiers and set out for the university, where they expected to loot property and identify and kill students. Before turning to the merits, the Chamber will discuss credibility issues specific to this allegation.

¹⁰⁵⁷ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, p. 49. Witness ZBH subsequently stated that Nizeyimana entered his vehicle, passed through the roadblock, after which the group followed him to the university. T. 8 February 2011, p. 50.

¹⁰⁶⁰ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 59-60. Witness ZBH stated earlier that "it was said" at the time that Nizeyimana shot the girls because they did not obey him, instead of having heard Nizeyimana say this himself. T. 8 February 2011, p. 59.

¹⁰⁶⁷ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, p. 50.

¹⁰⁶⁸ See II.3.4.

413. Witness ZBH confessed to, and was convicted for, his involvement in the killings at the university and other genocide related crimes.¹⁰⁶⁹ Nonetheless, when questioned about his involvement in the various incidents to which he testified, Witness ZBH consistently deflected any responsibility on his part and instead insisted he was “forced” or tricked by soldiers to participate in killings.¹⁰⁷⁰

414. However, Witness ZBH’s testimony is largely consistent with his 2003 confession to the extent that he provides evidence on the involvement of Nizeyimana and Shalom Ntahobali.¹⁰⁷¹ Witness ZBH’s confession before the Gacaca court about Nizeyimana’s involvement in the crime was made in 2003, while the witness was incarcerated.¹⁰⁷² The Chamber observes that prior consistent statements do not bolster a witness’s credibility.¹⁰⁷³ Whatever ulterior motives Witness ZBH has to provide testimony inculcating Nizeyimana, the Chamber has no reasonable concerns it has been tainted by his incarceration.

415. Turning to the ability of Witness ZBH to identify the specific soldiers, the Chamber has elsewhere noted that his position as a “helper” at the ESO in 1991, as well as his admitted collaboration with soldiers during the genocide, would have allowed him to identify soldiers ¹⁰⁷⁰ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 37 (“Q. In 1994, did you have any knowledge about soldiers from ESO committing any acts of violence against civilians in Butare town? And if so, can you name some of the places where the violence occurred. Just briefly. A. Still in that respect, I would say we were involved in the killings, and we wouldn’t have committed those killings without the help of soldiers. As a matter of fact, all the investigators who come and meet me are told that. I would like to tell the Chamber that the commanders of camp Ngoma and ESO, including Tharcisse Muvunyi, who was a colonel; and Captain Ildéphonse Nizeyimana; Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo; Ildéphonse Hategekimana, who was the commander of the Ngoma camp; Lieutenant Alphonse Nteziryayo; Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi and many others compelled us and sensitised us to understand Tutsis as being our enemies and that we had to do everything in our power to get rid of them. As a matter of fact, during that time there were battles everywhere. Gatsinzi, Muvunyi and Nizeyimana told us that if we did not get rid of those people who belonged to the other ethnic group, those people would later on harm us, and that is why the soldiers compelled us and forced us to be involved in the attacks against the Tutsis who had sought refuge in various areas.”), 39 (“A. We were led by soldiers who had come from Ngoma camp and from ESO camp. As I told you earlier, anyone who did not want to collaborate with them would at times be killed. All members of the public were therefore obliged to participate in those operations. That is how we killed people.”); (“A. I only killed because the accused incited me to kill.”), 40 (“A. Often soldiers would take people throughout the town or at roadblocks. That is how they gathered us. They found us either in town or at roadblocks. They often said that they would give us work without specifying what that work was. And when we got to sites – the various sites we could not refuse doing what they had asked us to do because they had the power.”), 54 (“A. If soldiers had not dragged us to kill those people I would not have been in prison today, Mr. President. You have to understand that we could not have resisted those soldiers when they gave us those orders. ... So what I’m saying is that if it had not – if I had not been compelled to kill under duress I would not have done so.”).

¹⁰⁷¹ See Exhibit D15B (Witness ZBH’s Prior Confession), p. 33; Witness ZBH, T. 9 February 2011, p. 48. The Defence argued that Witness ZBH, who kept a copy of his confession, had modified the one that he gave to the Prosecution in 2010, adding Nizeyimana’s name in several places after the fact. Defence Closing Brief, paras. 170-179. In particular, it argues that the exhibited confession reveals that a reference to Nizeyimana’s involvement in the killing of the four girls was included at the bottom of the page, thereby inferring that it had been added at a later date. Defence Closing Brief, para. 177. Given the Chamber’s conclusions, it need not make any determination as to whether Witness ZBH modified his confession as it relates to this allegation.

¹⁰⁷² Exhibit D15B (Witness ZBH’s Prior Confession).

¹⁰⁷³ Ntakirutimana Appeal Judgement, para. 147.

from the ESO.¹⁰⁷⁴ This position is certain as it relates to higher ranking officers, such as Nizeyimana, who were well known in and around Butare at the time.

416. The Chamber observes that Defence Witnesses Ngezahayo, ZML02 and Mutarutinya, provide support for the continuation of attacks on students following 21 April 1994. Indeed, Witness Ngezahayo, who was at the university the day following the main attack, saw the soldiers return and conduct searches in the student hostels.¹⁰⁷⁵ Similarly, Witness ZML02 also saw soldiers return to the campus on 22 April.¹⁰⁷⁶ Witness Mutarutinya noted that he continued to hear stories about students being abducted following the main attack on 21 April by armed civilians and soldiers.¹⁰⁷⁷

417. Notwithstanding his ability to identify Nizeyimana and the general corroboration for the continuation of the attack on 22 April 1994, there are no other witnesses who saw Nizeyimana at the university on that day and no evidence, other than Witness ZBH's testimony, was presented of the murder of the four girls by Nizeyimana. Similarly, there is no corroboration for the collaboration described by Witness ZBH between Nizeyimana and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali. Only Defence Witness OUV03 noted that Nizeyimana would let him know where he went, including at the university, so Witness OUV03 could get in touch with him should the need arise.¹⁰⁷⁸ However, Witness OUV03 did not provide any context or details in support of Nizeyimana's presence at the university. Indeed, the witness did not mention a date or the reasons for which Nizeyimana went to the university.

418. Given the caution with which it decided to approach Witness ZBH's evidence and the uncorroborated nature of his testimony, the Chamber is unable to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Nizeyimana led a group of soldiers and Interahamwe to the university, where he shot and killed four girls in the presence of Witness ZBH on or around 22 April 1994. This allegation is dismissed.

¹⁰⁷⁴ See II.3.4; II.11. Witness ZBH was not questioned on the amount of time spent at the ESO as a helper in 1991. See Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 35-36; T. 9 February 2011, p. 51; Exhibit P21 (Witness ZBH's Personal Information Sheet).

5.4 Killings near the Butare University Laboratory

Introduction

419. The indictment alleges that during the period of late April and May 1994, civilians identified as Tutsi were taken to the university where many were killed at the site of a large pit near the university laboratory by soldiers from the FAR, ESO, Ngoma Camp and Butare Gendarmerie Camp and Interahamwe.¹⁰⁷⁹ The Prosecution does not point to any evidence in support of this allegation. The Defence did not address this allegation, because no evidence was presented in relation thereto.¹⁰⁸⁰

Deliberations

420. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution failed to point to any evidence in support of the allegation that Tutsi civilians were killed at the sit of a large pit near the university laboratory between late April and May 1994. After having conducted a careful review of the record, the Chamber finds no evidence related to killings other than those summarised and assessed above. Accordingly, the Chamber dismisses this allegation.

6. TARGETED ATTACKS IN BUTARE TOWN, LATE APRIL 1994

6.1 Killing at Vincent Ntezimana's Home

Introduction

421. The Indictment alleges that, in late April or early May 1994, the Accused along with Vincent Ntezimana ordered the killing of a female youth identified as Tutsi. After Ntezimana provided a knife, the assailant killed the woman in Ntezimana's home. The Prosecution relies on the evidence of Witness AJP.¹⁰⁸¹ The Defence challenges the credibility of Witness AJP, emphasising his status as an accomplice and suggesting that this event occurred in May 1994. Defence Witness BEJ01, BUV02 and Valens Hahirwa provided relevant evidence.¹⁰⁸²

Prosecution Witness AJP

422. Witness AJP, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in 1994.¹⁰⁸³ He was a former ESO cadet with close ties to Nizeyimana.¹⁰⁸⁴ Around 23 and 24 April, two young women who were living with Nizeyimana were asked to move to Vincent Ntezimana's home. The women had revealed that soldiers staying with Nizeyimana were involved in killing and looting.¹⁰⁸⁵

423. On an unspecified day – after 21 April 1994, but prior to the killing of the Ngrambe family – Nizeyimana, Vincent Ntezimana and Doctor Jean Mukimbiri, ordered Witness AJP and one of Nizeyimana's escorts to kill the two women for their indiscretions.¹⁰⁸⁶ Nizeyimana ¹⁰⁸¹ Indictment, para. 28; Prosecution Closing Brief, paras. 439-461. The Prosecution also cites to the evidence of Prosecution Rebuttal Witness Antoinette Bizimenyera in support of Witness AJP's testimony. See Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 443. The Chamber allowed rebuttal evidence for the purpose of refuting evidence of a new matter arising from the Defence case. It expressly warned that rebuttal evidence could not be used to "re-open or perfect" the Prosecution case. Decision on Prosecutor's Motion for Leave to Present Evidence in Rebuttal to the Alibi Evidence (TC), 7 June 2011, para. 20; see also Decision on Extremely Urgent Motion for Reconsideration of Trial Chamber 7 June 2011, on Prosecutor's Motion for Leave to Present Evidence in Rebuttal to the Alibi Evidence (TC), 15 June 2011, para. 28. Consequently, the Chamber shall not consider this "fresh evidence", as the Prosecution has not demonstrated factors that would allow evidence from Witness Bizimenyera to be used for purposes other than rebuttal. See Kordić and Čerkez Appeal Judgement, para. 222 quoting Čelebići Appeal Judgement para. 283.

In 2001, immediately upon being arrested, Witness AJP confessed to his participation in the genocide in Butare through killing and looting. Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 36, 54-57, 75; T. 17 February 2011, pp. 11-12. He was tried by a Gacaca court in 2007, sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment. He was released days later in light of the fact that he had already served half his sentence and that he was entitled to a sentence reduction based on his confession. Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 36, 49, 57-59. At the time of his testimony, Witness AJP was living in exile and awaiting the outcome of his appeal against a subsequent rape conviction pertaining to an incident after the genocide. threatened to kill Witness AJP if he did not carry out the order.¹⁰⁸⁷ Wearing a military uniform and carrying a rifle Nizeyimana had given him, the witness and the soldier found the young women at Ntezimana's home.¹⁰⁸⁸ The witness and the soldier, who was a nouvelle formule cadet, escorted them to a forested area nearby and each shot one of the women.¹⁰⁸⁹

424. The witness presumed that the young woman he had shot was dead, as she did not return to Ntezimana's home the following day.¹⁰⁹⁰ However, around 10.00 a.m., Ntezimana scolded the witness at his work, asking why he had not killed the girl.¹⁰⁹¹ Nizeyimana also called the witness and asked the same question.¹⁰⁹² That evening, the witness found Nizeyimana, Mukimbiri and Ntezimana at Nizeyimana's home.¹⁰⁹³ They ordered him to kill, causing the witness to fear that he would be killed if he did not follow the orders.¹⁰⁹⁴

425. Witness AJP and Rudasingwa left and found the girl at Ntezimana's home.¹⁰⁹⁵ There, Ntezimana, who was also present, had a knife given to Longin Rudasingwa, stating that the witness should no longer use a rifle.¹⁰⁹⁶ Rudasingwa gave Witness AJP the knife and he killed her.¹⁰⁹⁷ They put her corpse in a vehicle and left her in the same wooded area where he had shot her the night before.¹⁰⁹⁸

Defence Witness BEJ01

426. Witness BEJ01, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in 1994.¹⁰⁹⁹ Around 14 May 1994, or shortly thereafter, Witness BEJ01 returned to Vincent Ntezimana's home, where Caritas, a member of the house staff, informed the witness that a paramilitary soldier had almost beat a woman to death.¹¹⁰⁰ Witness BEJ01 walked into Ntezimana's yard and, a few minutes later, observed Witness AJP kill a young girl with a knife.¹¹⁰¹ The witness believed that she was a Hutu and that she previously "went out" often with Witness AJP.¹¹⁰² Longin Rudasingwa and Jean Marie Vianney Valois were also at Ntezimana's house at this time, although the witness was unsure if they witnessed the murder.¹¹⁰³

Defence Witness BUV02

428. Witness BUV02, a Hutu, was detained from 1997 to 2007 for genocide related charges.¹¹⁰⁶ He confessed to genocide related crimes and was sentenced to 24 years' imprisonment by a Gacaca court in May 2007.¹¹⁰⁷ He was released immediately, having already been incarcerated for 10 years and assigned six years of community service as probation.¹¹⁰⁸ He was later acquitted by a court of first instance.¹¹⁰⁹

429. Witnesses BUV02 and AJP were incarcerated together and the latter was a member of the Ukuri committee in prison.¹¹¹⁰ This committee had been established to encourage prisoners to tell the truth and confess to crimes.¹¹¹¹ Witness AJP reviewed confessions and frequently encouraged prisoners to make false accusations against certain persons.¹¹¹² On an unidentified occasion, Witness AJP asked Witness BUV02 to falsely allege that Nizeyimana established and controlled roadblocks.¹¹¹³

430. Witness BUV02 heard Witness AJP give a public confession between 2002 and 2004 as well as discuss his crimes while the two were incarcerated together.¹¹¹⁴ Witness AJP stated that Nizeyimana had ordered Witness AJP to commit the killings in Butare town.¹¹¹⁵ While Witness BUV02 was not with Witness AJP for these crimes, he believed that the allegations against Nizeyimana were fabricated.¹¹¹⁶

431. During the genocide, Witness BUV02 observed Witness AJP in a military uniform driving in a white Peugeot pickup.¹¹¹⁷ He testified generally that this vehicle was used to "transport killers".¹¹¹⁸

Defence Witness Valens Hahirwa

432. Valens Hahirwa was a Defence investigator for Nizeyimana at the time of his testimony.¹¹¹⁹ He went to the Prosecutor's office in Nyamagabe, Rwanda (formerly Gikongoro).¹¹²⁰ Among other things, he obtained a copy of a 2010 Rwandan judgment, which had found Witness AJP guilty of the rape of a minor. The judgement ordered Witness AJP's immediate arrest.¹¹²¹ Nyamagabe prosecutors, who continued to have possession of the case file, were unaware of any appeal being filed.¹¹²²

433. The Prosecution and Defence evidence reflects that during the genocide, Witness AJP killed a girl near Vincent Ntezimana's home using a knife. Ntezimana's home was in the immediate vicinity of Nizeyimana's.¹¹²³ In this context, the Chamber must consider whether Nizeyimana ordered Witness AJP to kill the girl. Before assessing the merits of this allegation, the Chamber notes that the Prosecution has conceded that the evidence, which does not establish the victim's ethnicity as Tutsi, cannot support the Indictment's genocide count (Count 1).¹¹²⁴

434. The Chamber will first review the context in which Witness AJP testified. Witness AJP confessed to, and was convicted for, the killing of this young woman in Rwanda.¹¹²⁵ Notably, his statements to Tribunal investigators about Nizeyimana's involvement in the crime were made in 2003 and 2005, while the witness was incarcerated.¹¹²⁶

435. To the extent that Witness AJP has consistently implicated Nizeyimana in the killing of this young woman through confessions to Rwandan prosecutors or Tribunal investigators, the Chamber observes that prior consistent statements do not bolster a witness's credibility.¹¹²⁷ Indeed, it is the Chamber's view that on each of these occasions, Witness AJP's allegations against the Accused may have been motivated by a desire to deflect responsibility for his crimes and obtain lenient treatment from Rwandan judicial or prison authorities.¹¹²⁸

¹¹²⁸ The evidence reflects that prisoners in the Karubanda prison who confessed to crimes were moved to a separate section of the prison nicknamed "Arusha". Prosecution Witness AZM, T. 24 January 2011, p. 36; Prosecution Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, p. 61; Prosecution Witness Kayibanda, T. 3 February 2011, p. 38; Prosecution Witness ZBH, T. 9 February 2011, p. 34; Defence Witness BUV02, T. 10 May 2011, p. 59; Defence Witness ZML10, T. 16 May 2011, p. 13. There, prisoners had more spacious accommodations, greater access to water and bathroom facilities and longer family visits than those in the prison's other wings. Prosecution Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 59-62; Defence Witness BUV02, T. 10 May 2011, p. 59; Defence Witness ZML10, T. 16 May 2011, p. 14; but see Prosecution Witness ZBH, T. 9 February 2011, pp. 34-35 (denying that detainees in the "Arusha" block were given preferential treatment or had better living conditions). However, the evidence of Prosecution Witnesses AJP, AZM and ZBH reflect that prisoners were transferred to ensure the security of those who confessed from attacks from other prisoners, who might have been implicated in these confessions. Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, p. 61; Witness AZM, T. 24 January 2011, pp. 17, 36; Witness ZBH, T. 9 February 2011, pp. 34-35. However, Defence Witness BUV02 denied that there were any security concerns and that the purpose of moving prisoners to another wing was only to reward them for having confessed. Witness BUV02, T. 10 May 2011, pp. 71-72; cf. Defence Witness ZML10, T. 16 May 2011, p. 13 (was not worried about being in danger when transferred to Arusha facility of Butare's central prison). Witness AJP explained that more generous visitation rights were granted to him in order to facilitate his

436. In an attempt to bolster these very suspicions, the Defence presented evidence that Witness AJP did fabricate allegations against persons – including Nizeyimana – while incarcerated. Specifically, Witness BUV02 testified that Witness AJP asked him to falsely allege that Nizeyimana was involved in the administration of roadblocks.

437. In the Chamber's view, Witness BUV02's account of Witness AJP asking him to fabricate allegations against Nizeyimana was remarkably sparse, failing to indicate where and when the conversation (or conversations) took place.¹¹²⁹ In contrast with Witness BUV02's evidence, Prosecution Witness ZBH heard that Witness AJP had destroyed confessions that implicated Nizeyimana. He explained that Witness AJP was close with the captain and had set up a roadblock with Nizeyimana near the captain's home and thus he was friendly towards soldiers.¹¹³⁰

438. It is undisputed that, while incarcerated, Witness AJP was part of the Ukuri, a committee established to encourage prisoners to confess.¹¹³¹ Likewise, the record reflects that Witness AJP encouraged and organised confessions of co-detainees.¹¹³² Prosecution Witness Jules Kayibanda, who was incarcerated with Witness AJP, confirmed that Witness AJP reviewed confessions, but his evidence does not reflect that he forced prisoners to falsely implicate persons.¹¹³³ Witness AZM, who was also incarcerated with Witness AJP, had no knowledge of Witness AJP reviewing confessions or returning them to prisoners.¹¹³⁴ Defence Witness ZML10, who was a member of the Ukuri committee with Witness AJP, was not asked any questions as to whether Witness AJP sought to influence prisoners' confessions.¹¹³⁵ In the Chamber's view, Witness BUV02's evidence of Witness AJP attempting to obtain fabricated confessions implicating Nizeyimana is far from conclusive, although it is possible that he was actively involved in monitoring (and possibly altering) their content.¹¹³⁶ role in obtaining confessions from those outside the prison given his position in the Ukuri and that this was not a reward for having confessed. Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 61–62. Witness AJP stated that prisoners did not know whether making confessional statements would secure their release or not. Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, p. 61. Witness FAX testified that Witness AJP received clemency in his 2007 Gacaca proceeding because he confessed to his crimes and implicated co-perpetrators. 439. Of greater significance, Witness BUV02 conceded that he was not with Witness AJP when he killed persons allegedly on Nizeyimana's orders, which would include this particular event.¹¹³⁷ Rather, he only expressed his belief that Witness AJP was lying about Nizeyimana's involvement in this crime. The Chamber also has some reservations about other aspects of Witness BUV02's evidence.¹¹³⁸ While his testimony is disputed and far from dispositive, it is sufficient to justify careful scrutiny of Witness AJP's testimony and view it with appropriate caution.

440. Furthermore, although Witness AJP had completed his sentence for this particular crime when testifying before the Tribunal, he was living in exile, pending the appeal of a subsequent criminal conviction for rape that occurred after the genocide. Contrary to Witness AJP's assertions that he was not required to be incarcerated while the appeal was pending, Rwandan judicial documents suggest otherwise.¹¹³⁹ Indeed, Defence evidence, although far from conclusive, tends to suggest that Witness AJP has not appealed his conviction.¹¹⁴⁰

441. Witness AJP's refusal to acknowledge his fugitive status raises concerns about his general credibility.¹¹⁴¹ Moreover, the Chamber observes that the witness conceded that his prior cooperation with his prosecution for the genocide led to the government extending him certain benefits, which upset victims of the genocide.¹¹⁴² This context raises the possibility that Witness AJP is now motivated to testify against Nizeyimana in order to positively impact his ongoing criminal proceedings and to assist him in reintegrating into Rwanda. These circumstances also warrant a cautious analysis of this witness's evidence.

442. Finally, Witness AJP's evidence tends to reflect that his family had a falling out with Nizeyimana's while they were in exile.¹¹⁴³ The possibility that Witness AJP remained angered by a dispute between their families cannot be ignored.¹¹⁴⁴

443. Turning to the allegation at issue, the Defence has challenged Witness AJP's evidence through alleged inconsistencies among his prior statements to Tribunal investigators as well as a Belgian judicial document concerning this particular crime. For example, the witness testified that he first shot the victim and then returned the following day and killed her using

Witness AZM, T. 24 January 2011, p. 37. However, the evidence shows that Witness AJP, by virtue of his position, was permitted to leave the prison in order to visit the prosecutor's office in Butare. a knife. However, his 2003 statement to Tribunal investigators reflects that the witness had said that he returned and shot the woman for a second time before killing her with a knife.¹¹⁴⁵

444. The Chamber observes that the witness's own accounts were confusing. At first, he appeared to testify (and later accept) that he had shot the girl again on the second occasion.¹¹⁴⁶ However, he later clarified by emphasising that when he shot the girl, she did not die and that he subsequently killed her based on the follow-up instructions he had received.¹¹⁴⁷ He suggested that the Tribunal investigator was mistaken in recording that he shot the woman on the second day as well.¹¹⁴⁸

445. The Chamber finds the witness's explanation reasonable, particularly in light of his 2005 statement to Tribunal investigators. That account, like much of his testimony, reflects that he was prevented from shooting the woman on the second occasion and was instead given a knife to kill her.¹¹⁴⁹

446. Moreover, the Chamber considers that the fundamental features of the excerpts of Witness AJP's statements to Tribunal investigators from 2003 and 2005 are remarkably consistent with his evidence before the Tribunal.¹¹⁵⁰ Indeed, Defence evidence confirms that Witness AJP killed this girl. The exact details of how he effectuated it do not impact Witness AJP's evidence that he did. In the Chamber's view, how the witness killed the girl is not material as to whether Nizeyimana ordered him to do it.¹¹⁵¹

447. The Defence next sought to challenge Witness AJP's evidence through excerpts from a Belgian judicial document pertaining to this killing. In particular, the excerpt read into the record reflected that the event occurred in mid-May 1994.¹¹⁵² Notably, however, this document also reflects that this information was provided by Vincent Ntezimana, not the witness.¹¹⁵³ The witness denied having made this statement to Belgian authorities.¹¹⁵⁴ Indeed, the relevant Belgian judicial determination reflects that that proceeding had concluded that the crime fell within an unspecified period between 6 April and 27 May.¹¹⁵⁵

448. The Defence also challenged Witness AJP's evidence as it related to Longin Rudasingwa's involvement in the killing of the girl. It argued that, notwithstanding Witness AJP's 2005 public confession of Rudasingwa's involvement, Rudasingwa remained a free man, working as a dentist in Kigali.¹¹⁵⁶ It further suggested that Rudasingwa was a Tutsi.¹¹⁵⁷

449. The Defence has not supported its contentions with any evidence. Indeed, Witness BEJ01 testified that a Longin "Ndasingwa" was at Ntezimana's home when the girl was killed, although the witness was unsure if he observed it.¹¹⁵⁸ Furthermore, the possibility that Longin Rudasingwa has not been prosecuted in Rwanda (or anywhere else) for his purported involvement in this killing does not necessarily reflect inaccuracies in Witness AJP's account or impact his credibility.

450. Turning to the merits of Witness AJP's evidence, the Chamber has no doubts about the witness's ability to identify Nizeyimana. His evidence about his time at the ESO as a cadet in the accelerated training program starting in 1991 is clear and coherent.¹¹⁵⁹ He correctly identified Nizeyimana as the S2/S3 officer, which is not refuted by the Defence.¹¹⁶⁰ Furthermore, the core circumstances regarding the relatively close working and personal relationship between Witness AJP and Nizeyimana are compelling.¹¹⁶¹ Parts of Witness AJP's description of his relationship with Nizeyimana, including a continuous presence at Nizeyimana's home into April 1994, are corroborated by Defence evidence.¹¹⁶²

451. Rather, the Defence challenges Witness AJP's version of events through the testimony of Witness BEJ01. Notably, Witness BEJ01's evidence confirms that Vincent Ntezimana was involved, in and convicted for, his participation in this killing.¹¹⁶³ However, Witness BEJ01 refuted that Nizeyimana had anything to do with the crime, testifying that he was not in Butare. Indeed, Witness BEJ01 testified that this event occurred on 14 May 1994, ¹¹⁵² See Witness AJP, T. 17 February 2011, p. 9.

¹¹⁵³ See Witness AJP, T. 17 February 2011, p. 10. Indeed, the Chamber observes that the ultimate findings of the Belgian judicial authorities indicate that this crime was committed between 6 April and 27 May 1994. See Exhibit P52 (Multiple Accused Judgement), p. 43.

¹¹⁶² See Witness BEJ01, T. 9 June 2011, pp. 9, 12-13, 32 (confirming Witness AJP's evidence about his immediate proximity to Nizeyimana in 1993 and 1994).

a period in which Nizeyimana has presented alibi evidence that he was commanding a training centre at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture.

452. At the outset, the Chamber observes that Witness BEJ01 had a close personal relationship with Nizeyimana. He viewed the Accused as a “close” friend and confirmed that his relationship with Nizeyimana guaranteed him relative security during the genocide.¹¹⁶⁴ In this regard, the Chamber has some concerns about the impartiality of this witness. Indeed, Witness BEJ01’s testimony, suggesting his innocence as it relates to this crime, is at odds with a judgement that imposed criminal liability upon him for it.¹¹⁶⁵ The Prosecution has presented other evidence of Witness BEJ01’s extremism.¹¹⁶⁶ This raises further concerns about his accounting of this event.

453. Notwithstanding the frailties in the Defence evidence, it is for the Prosecution to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. The Chamber has reservations about Witness AJP’s uncorroborated explanation as to why Nizeyimana wanted this girl killed – namely because she had publicly discussed that soldiers from his home were looting and killing. Witness AJP’s evidence fails to evince how Nizeyimana would have learned this. Notably, Witness AJP’s evidence reflects that this appears to be the first order Nizeyimana had given him to kill, and that it occurred prior to the killings of the Ngarambe and Maniraho families.¹¹⁶⁷ In that regard, his account fails to reflect what killings this girl would have been discussing.

454. While the Chamber views Witness BEJ01’s evidence with caution, he places the killing at a time when Nizeyimana was not constantly present in Butare.¹¹⁶⁸ Moreover, Witness BEJ01’s testimony reflects that Witness AJP and the victim had a pre-existing relationship.¹¹⁶⁹ Under the circumstances, the Chamber cannot exclude the reasonable possibility that this murder might have resulted from a deterioration of it.

455. Viewing Witness AJP’s evidence with necessary caution, the Chamber is unable to make findings beyond a reasonable doubt about Nizeyimana’s involvement in this crime based on Witness AJP’s testimony alone. Mindful that much of Witness AJP’s evidence is undisputed, or even supported by Defence evidence, his testimony regarding Nizeyimana’s involvement is uncorroborated and contested. Likewise, Witness AJP’s unsupported evidence fails to establish that Nizeyimana could be held liable as a superior for this particular killing. Based on the foregoing, this charge is dismissed.

6.2 Killing of Rosalie Gicanda and Others

Introduction

456. The Indictment alleges that on or about 21 April 1994, Nizeyimana ordered or authorised soldiers from the ESO, Ngoma Camp and the Butare Gendarmerie Camp, along with armed civilians, to kill Rosalie Gicanda. Specifically, following Nizeyimana's instructions, Second Lieutenant Bizimana took a number of subordinate FAR soldiers with him, including Corporal Aloys Mazimpaka and armed civilians, including Dr. Kageruga, to the home of Gicanda under the auspices of a search. As a result, soldiers acting under the orders and authorisation of Nizeyimana forcibly removed and killed Gicanda and other persons who were residing in her home. The Prosecution relies on Witnesses ZAP, ZAR, AZD, Justin Gahizi, BDE, ZAL, ZBH, ZY, ZT and AJP.¹¹⁷⁰

457. The Defence submits that the evidence fails to establish a link between Nizeyimana and the perpetrators of the murder of Rosalie Gicanda and others. Moreover, Nizeyimana was in Mata on a reconnaissance mission on or about 21 April 1994. It further challenges the credibility of Prosecution Witnesses AJP, ZBH, Gahizi and AZD. The Defence relies on Witnesses Aggripine Nyiranzabonimana, Emmanuel Habyarimana, Augustin Mushimiyanana, RWV11 and OUV03.¹¹⁷¹

458. Witness ZAP was at Rosalie Gicanda's house in April 1994.¹¹⁷² On 20 April, around noon, many soldiers arrived at Gicanda's house.¹¹⁷³ Witness ZAP was with Gicanda in the garden of her residence, which was located at the Ngoma commune office.¹¹⁷⁴ Inside the house there was a woman called Mukadi, who was sick, Jean Damascène Paris, Alphonse Sayidiya, Marie and servants called Awuleliya, Callixte Kayigamba and Anastase.¹¹⁷⁵ Some soldiers climbed over the fence because the gate was closed, and then opened the gate for those still standing outside.¹¹⁷⁶ The soldiers surrounded the compound, while others climbed trees.¹¹⁷⁷

459. After alerting Gicanda, Witness ZAP ran into the house, where she already found some soldiers.¹¹⁷⁸ The soldiers said there were Inyenzi living in the house.¹¹⁷⁹ When Gicanda entered the residence, the soldiers' leader ordered everyone out and informed her that they had come to search for weapons.¹¹⁸⁰ Gicanda informed the soldier that there were no weapons in the house and asked the soldier what they would do if they indeed found none.¹¹⁸¹ The soldier responded that he did not know.¹¹⁸²

460. The soldiers searched the house thoroughly and found letters written to Gicanda by a white lady called Marie Paul or Yvonne, documents and other personal effects belonging to Gicanda's family.¹¹⁸³ Some of these items were given to the leader of the group of soldiers who she heard talking over a radio saying "jaguar, jaguar" and other words that the witness did not understand.¹¹⁸⁴ Gicanda and other members of her household, including Witness ZAP, were ordered to board the vehicle belonging to the soldiers.¹¹⁸⁵ When Gicanda asked to get her identity card, the soldier responded that they did not need them.¹¹⁸⁶

461. The vehicle carrying Gicanda and the others stopped at the ESO where the leader of the soldiers and a few other soldiers got out of the vehicle and entered the ESO.¹¹⁸⁷ Other soldiers came and told them they had found Inyenzi and that they would treat them the same way they had treated the university students.¹¹⁸⁸ They told them that they had just warmed their bayonets.¹¹⁸⁹

462. When the leader of the soldiers returned, they left the ESO and passed through the woods by the university, in the direction of "Kadahokwa".¹¹⁹⁰ Along the way, the soldiers slapped and hit them with their fists and threatened to kill Mr. Damascène with a bayonet.¹¹⁹¹ They stopped at a bridge connecting the two woods after the small Mukura river and were ordered out of the vehicle.¹¹⁹² The soldiers fired into the air about three times.¹¹⁹³ When Gicanda said she wanted to make a request, the soldiers shouted that it was not worth it because their hour had come.¹¹⁹⁴ Their commander ordered the soldiers to shut up and granted Gicanda's request to say one prayer.¹¹⁹⁵

463. When they started reciting the prayer, the soldiers started shooting.¹¹⁹⁶ Witness ZAP did not know what happened afterwards, because she immediately fell to the ground.¹¹⁹⁷ When she regained consciousness, she noticed the soldiers were dragging them towards a ditch and left immediately.¹¹⁹⁸ Gicanda was not yet dead, but could not speak and was

Prosecution Witness ZAR Rule 92bis Statement

464. Witness ZAR was at Gicanda's residence in April 1994.¹²⁰² On an unspecified date, more than 10 soldiers, accompanied by Dr. Kageruka, came to Gicanda's house in a civilian double cabin vehicle.¹²⁰³ Witness ZAR did not know their names, but would have been able to recognise them if he saw them again.¹²⁰⁴ Some of the soldiers had climbed over the gate and opened the fence to let the others in.¹²⁰⁵ The military had surrounded the house and told Alphonse, who was a taxi driver, that all the people inside the residence had to get out and sit outside.¹²⁰⁶ He added that anyone who exited through the "other door" would be shot dead.¹²⁰⁷ Witness ZAP, Paris Damascène, Aureliya, Callixte, Grace, Alphonse and Rosalie Gicanda exited the house.¹²⁰⁸ Witness ZAR was already outside when they came out of the house.¹²⁰⁹

465. The soldiers asked them whether Inyenzi were in the house, but they told them there were none.¹²¹⁰ When the soldiers asked them what would happen if they found firearms or ammunition in the house, the soldiers responded that they would kill them in any case.¹²¹¹ Witness ZAR, Alphonse and Damascène were ordered to enter the house with the soldiers, who proceeded to search the residence.¹²¹² When they exited the house again, they were all ordered to board the vehicle.¹²¹³ The soldiers asked for identity cards and upon seeing his, told Witness ZAR that he was an accomplice too.¹²¹⁴ Their leader then ordered him to stay behind to take care of an old lady known as Mukazi, who was sick.¹²¹⁵ Witness ZAR saw the abduction of Gicanda and the other residents take place, but did not know the circumstances of their death.¹²¹⁶ However, a girl called Grace survived the abduction.¹²¹⁷

466. In April 1994, Witness ZBH, a Hutu, was a civilian who had previously worked as a “helper” at the ESO in 1991.¹²¹⁸ Without specifying the date, Witness ZBH noted that he “was there” when Rosalie Gicanda was abducted, as he was playing tennis with his brother on a lawn that was located between the Butare main road and Queen Gicanda’s residence.¹²¹⁹ Gakwerere, alias Rwatsi, and Corporal Mazimpaka were involved in the abduction.¹²²⁰ Gicanda was taken alone, around midday, sometime prior to 20 April.¹²²¹ There were other people in her house at the time, including a young driver, a boy whose name was Alphonse and a young girl who sold milk.¹²²² Witness ZBH was not present when Gicanda was killed.¹²²³

Prosecution Witness AZD

467. In April 1994, Witness AZD, a Tutsi with a Hutu identification card, was a non-commissioned officer at the ESO.¹²²⁴ He knew that Rosalie Gicanda, who was an “old lady”, was the spouse of the former king of Rwanda, Mutara Rudahirwa, and that she lived in the Buye area.¹²²⁵ Sometime between 20 and 25 April, between 7.00 and 8.00 p.m., he was in the ESO officers’ mess when he heard Second Lieutenant Bizimana, nicknamed “Rwatsi” and Second Lieutenant Gakwerere report to Nizeyimana that they had just killed Gicanda “by torture”.¹²²⁶ Witness AZD could clearly hear what they said because he was only a few metres away from them when they spoke to Nizeyimana.¹²²⁷

Prosecution Witness Justin Gahizi

468. In April 1994, Witness Gahizi was a sergeant at the ESO.¹²²⁸ On an unspecified date, Witness Gahizi was in the officers’ mess in the evening with several other people when he overheard Nizeyimana speaking to Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana, also known as “Rwatsi”.¹²²⁹ Specifically, Witness Gahizi heard Nizeyimana ask what happened, to which Bizimana responded: “Mission accomplished: we have killed Rose Gicanda”.¹²³⁰ It was known at the time that he had killed Gicanda in the small wooded area, which was behind the

Prosecution Witness AJP

469. Witness AJP, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in 1994.¹²³⁴ On an unspecified date, Nizeyimana informed Witness AJP that Rosalie Gicanda was killed by Second Lieutenant Bizimana.¹²³⁵

Prosecution Witness BDE

470. Witness BDE, a Hutu, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.¹²³⁶ On an unspecified date, Witness BDE heard from a young man, Gaston Lyonso, who was in her class and posted to guard Second Lieutenant Bizimana's house, that Nizeyimana had ordered Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gakwerere to "bring Rosalie Gicanda, the former queen of the country".¹²³⁷ Upon those instructions they went to get Gicanda and killed her immediately.¹²³⁸

Prosecution Witness ZY

471. Witness ZY, a Tutsi, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.¹²³⁹ She knew about Rosalie Gicanda from her history class and knew that the former queen lived behind the Huye stadium in Butare town.¹²⁴⁰ On an unspecified date, at a time when killings had not yet commenced in Butare, Witness ZY was at the ESO cafeteria when cadets from the third batch arrived and said that they “committed an abomination” by killing the Queen of Rwanda.¹²⁴¹ They also stated that they had killed “everybody who was at Gicanda’s house”.¹²⁴² They specified that they had gone there with the third batch commander, Bizimana, who was nicknamed “Rwatsi”, but that Nizeyimana had killed her.¹²⁴³

Prosecution Witness ZT

472. In April 1994, Witness ZT, a Tutsi, was a cadet at the ESO.¹²⁴⁴ Witness ZT knew that Rosalie Gicanda, the former Queen of Rwanda, lived in Butare town and was killed during the “war”.¹²⁴⁵ Specifically, on an unspecified date, the witness was in the refectory when a young ESO cadet named Léonard Musabyimana was bragging about having killed some “big people”.¹²⁴⁶ When asked to identify such individuals, he stated that he was among the group that removed Gicanda from her house and stated that “Rwatsi”, the nickname of Lieutenant Bizimana, had “took her away”.¹²⁴⁷ The witness interpreted this to mean that Bizimana had killed the queen.¹²⁴⁸

Prosecution Witness ZAL

473. In April 1994, Witness ZAL, a Tutsi, worked at the Butare University Hospital.¹²⁴⁹ At an unidentified time, Witness ZAL was with a group of unspecified persons who identified a soldier named Mazimpaka.¹²⁵⁰ A person among the group informed the witness that Mazimpaka had stated he had killed “Queen Gicanda” and feared that the situation would degenerate in the hospital in light of his presence.¹²⁵¹ However, the witness later learned from a girl admitted into the hospital that Mazimpaka stated he was tired of killing and that, in fact, he assisted persons at the hospital.¹²⁵²

Defence Witness OUV03

474. In April 1994, Witness OUV03, a Hutu, was an officer at the ESO.¹²⁵³ On 21 April, around 8.30 p.m., Witness OUV03 heard from Chief Warrant Officer Damien Ntamuhanga that Second Lieutenant Bizimana had killed Rosalie Gicanda.¹²⁵⁴ Since Ntamuhanga told Witness OUV03 about the incident, he assumed that it meant that Ntamuhanga had already drawn up a report and submitted it to the superior officer, so that the military police work could be done.¹²⁵⁵ He thought Ntamuhanga provided him with this information, because he believed Witness OUV03 would not leave the ESO.¹²⁵⁶ Given that Witness OUV03 did not move from his post a lot, some information got to him “belatedly”.¹²⁵⁷

475. It was incumbent upon the ESO camp commander to punish Bizimana.¹²⁵⁸ On 21 April 1994, Witness OUV03 thought that Bizimana had been arrested; however he later heard that Bizimana had been ordered to stop working on the grounds that he was going to be arrested for the crime he had committed.¹²⁵⁹ On 24 April he heard that Bizimana had in fact been arrested, together with all the members of the anti-looting section.¹²⁶⁰ Colonel Muvunyi was the one who arrested him and wanted him to be handed over to the courts.¹²⁶¹ Unfortunately they fled before he could be handed over to the proper authorities.¹²⁶²

Defence Witness RWV11

476. In April 1994, Witness RWV11, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO.¹²⁶³ On 22 April, when Witness RWV11 returned from Mata, he was informed by Sergeant Mugiraneza that Rosalie Gicanda had been killed by members of the anti-looting unit led by Second Lieutenant Pierre Bizimana, alias Rwatsi.¹²⁶⁴ Members of that unit went to Gicanda’s residence and said they saw weapons in her house.¹²⁶⁵ Witness RWV11 was shocked by this, because he knew that conducting searches was not part of their mission.¹²⁶⁶ He was moved by this incident, because these soldiers were in charge of protecting people and instead they killed them.¹²⁶⁷ The people who killed Gicanda were not punished by their superiors.¹²⁶⁸

Defence Witness BUV02

477. In April 1994, Witness BUV02, a Hutu, was a cook in Butare.¹²⁶⁹ He spoke to Second Lieutenant Bizimana around 2.00 or 3.00 p.m. only hours after Rosalie Gicanda, a Tutsi, and members of her family were killed.¹²⁷⁰ He could not confirm what day this incident took place, but knew that the killing occurred shortly after President Sindikubwabo’s speech.¹²⁷¹ Witness BUV02 was at a bar when Bizimana and a group of approximately eight soldiers came in looking for a drink to celebrate.¹²⁷² They had arrived in a red Toyota Stout, which was parked not far from the bar.¹²⁷³ Bizimana told the witness that “[t]he situation is serious I’ve just killed the queen don’t be indifferent”.¹²⁷⁴

478. Bizimana further told him that they had searched Gicanda’s house, then abducted her, and killed her at another location.¹²⁷⁵ Specifically, they passed by Mpare and Musange and that she was killed on the river, Akadahokwa.¹²⁷⁶ Bizimana said that he had killed Gicanda to set an example and to show that even prominent people could be killed.¹²⁷⁷ Bizimana was with Sergeants Mazimpaka and Birasa when they killed Gicanda.¹²⁷⁸ Both Mazimpaka and Birasa were at the bar with Bizimana, and Mazimpaka was talking to the witness with Bizimana about the murder of the queen.¹²⁷⁹

479. Witness ZML07, a Hutu, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.¹²⁸⁰ After Rosalie Gicanda was killed, he was told by someone who had been there that Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana led the operation that resulted in her murder.¹²⁸¹ The ESO soldiers, led by Bizimana, had gone to Gicanda’s house on the pretext of conducting a search for military equipment.¹²⁸² Moreover, Emanuel Manilakiza, a cadet in the third batch, told the witness that he had been on the mission to Gicanda and that Ignace Bwenge and Mukomeza, both ESO cadets, were there as well.¹²⁸³

Defence Witness Emmanuel Habyarimana

480. In April 1994, Witness Habyarimana, a Hutu, was a senior officer in the Rwandan army.¹²⁸⁴ On 21 April, in the evening, Witness Habyarimana met with Lieutenant Colonel Muvunyi in the officers’ mess, when he heard that Gicanda had been killed.¹²⁸⁵ Colonel Muvunyi confirmed that she had indeed been killed.¹²⁸⁶ Witness Habyarimana did not want to believe it, because Queen Gicanda came from his native area and had been like a mother to him; he knew her well.¹²⁸⁷ Muvunyi was also “complaining about it” and said he would conduct investigations to ensure that the person who committed this crime would be punished.¹²⁸⁸

482. Witness CKN10, a Hutu, was an ESO cadet in April 1994.¹²⁹¹ On an unspecified date, Félicien Mugiraneza, a cadet at the ESO, told Witness CKN10 that he had been present with Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana when Rosalie Gicanda was killed.¹²⁹²

Defence Witness Augustin Mushimiyimana

483. Witness Mushimiyimana, a Hutu, was an officer based at the flight squadron at Kanombe airport in April 1994.¹²⁹³ Witness Mushimiyimana heard people talk about Rosalie Gicanda's death on the morning of 22 April.¹²⁹⁴ However, he did not know whether she had been killed the evening prior or that same morning.¹²⁹⁵

Deliberations

484. The Prosecution and Defence evidence indicates that the former Queen of Rwanda, Rosalie Gicanda, was abducted and killed by a group of soldiers led by Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana.¹²⁹⁶ Sometime in April 1994, soldiers came to Gicanda's house, conducted a search and ordered nearly everyone out of the residence. The soldiers then made several of the individuals, including Rosalie Gicanda, board the soldiers' vehicle, after which they took them to another location. The soldiers then fired on those removed from the house.

485. The Chamber observes that the statements of Prosecution Witnesses ZAP and ZAR, admitted pursuant to Rule 92bis, provide the only first-hand accounts of the abduction of Gicanda and others from the queen's home by soldiers.¹²⁹⁷ Similarly, Witness ZAP's statement is the only first-hand evidence regarding the ensuing killing of Gicanda and others by those soldiers. Their evidence was not subjected to cross-examination. Other Trial Chambers have limited the use of statements admitted pursuant to Rule 92bis so that the evidence contained in such statements "may lead to a conviction only if there is other evidence which corroborates the statement[s]".¹²⁹⁸

486. Nonetheless, the general features of Witnesses ZAP and ZAR's accounts are not disputed. Prosecution and Defence evidence, although circumstantial and second-hand, corroborate the 92bis statements and confirm that Gicanda and several others found in her home were killed by soldiers. Moreover, the record demonstrates that Gicanda, the former Queen of Rwanda, was a Tutsi.¹²⁹⁹ The Chamber considers these facts established beyond reasonable doubt based on a broad review of the record.

487. Furthermore, the Defence and Prosecution evidence confirms that this attack was committed by ESO soldiers led by Second Lieutenant Bizimana.¹³⁰⁰ Specifically, Prosecution Witnesses AZD, Gahizi, BDE, ZY, ZT and AJP and Defence Witnesses OUV03, BUV02, ZML07 and CKN10 all gave evidence tending to implicate Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana in the killing of Gicanda and others taken from her home. Although indirect, there is also evidence from multiple sources that ESO soldiers Second Lieutenant Gakwerere and Defence Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 47-48 (heard from an ESO cadet that he had been with Second Lieutenant Bizimana when Gicanda was killed).

¹²⁹⁷ The Chamber observes that Witness ZBH also testified to having observed soldiers entering Gicanda's home and remove her. The Chamber recalls the need to view Witness ZBH's evidence with caution. See II.3.4.. It considers his evidence, of having observed the abduction of Gicanda while playing tennis near her house, prima facie unbelievable. His evidence tends to reflect that Gicanda was removed alone. Witness ZBH, T. 9 February 2011, p. 4. Furthermore, given other accounts that soldiers had to scale a fence to get to the property, it is not at all clear that he could have seen the abduction. Exhibit P40D(E) (Witness ZAP's Pro Justitia Statement), p. 2; Exhibit P40E(E) (Witness ZAR's Pro Justitia Statement), p. 2. The Chamber places no value in his evidence to the extent that it suggests that he saw this event.

Prosecution Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, p. 49 (confirming the accuracy of a prior statement, in which he stated that Gicanda "was killed because she was a Tutsi").

¹³⁰⁰ The Defence acknowledges the extensive Prosecution and Defence evidence implicating Second Lieutenant Bizimana and ESO soldiers in this killing, and that remedial actions were taken at the ESO in light of the event. See Defence Closing Brief, paras. 238, 242.

Corporal Mazimpaka were among the assailants.¹³⁰¹ Moreover, Prosecution and Defence evidence also tends to implicate ESO soldiers from the third batch.¹³⁰²

488. The Chamber has considered the individual credibility of the witnesses. It notes fundamental consistencies among the evidence and the diversity of sources of this information. Furthermore, many of the out-of-court sources appeared to be participants in the attack, thus raising the reliability of the hearsay evidence presented to the Chamber. The fact that these sources were implicating themselves in the attack also tends to bolster their hearsay statements, which are self-incriminatory. The Chamber finds that the record is sufficiently credible and reliable to conclude beyond reasonable doubt that Second Lieutenant Bizimana commanded a group ESO soldiers in the abduction and killing of Gicanda and others taken from her house.¹³⁰³

489. In this context, the Chamber must assess Nizeyimana's involvement in this incident. The Defence argues that the Prosecution evidence tending to implicate Nizeyimana is unbelievable.¹³⁰⁴ Moreover, the Defence submits that the killing occurred on 21 April 1994, when Nizeyimana was on a reconnaissance mission at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture. In the Defence's view, this necessarily undermines Nizeyimana's contribution.¹³⁰⁵ The Chamber shall assess the merits of the evidence implicating Nizeyimana in light of these arguments below.

(i) Nizeyimana's Involvement in the Killing of Rosalie Gicanda and Others

490. The Prosecution alleges that Second Lieutenant Bizimana and other soldiers, under the orders or authorisation of Nizeyimana, killed Gicanda and others residing at her home.¹³⁰⁶ In this regard, the Chamber notes that Witness ZY heard that Nizeyimana, in fact, killed Gicanda.¹³⁰⁷ While aspects of her evidence are corroborated – namely the presence of Second Lieutenant Bizimana and ESO soldiers in this attack – this detail is not corroborated. Indeed, it is contrary to other evidence in the record as it relates to who killed Gicanda. Her hearsay evidence is insufficient to establish that Nizeyimana physically killed Gicanda.

¹³⁰¹ Prosecution Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 78-79, T. 1 February 2011, p. 48 (overheard Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gakwerere inform Nizeyimana of the murder of Gicanda); Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 29 (heard that Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gakwerere killed Gicanda); Prosecution Witness ZAL, T. 14 February 2011, p. 39 (heard that Mazimpaka was part of the group that had killed Gicanda); Defence Witness BUV02, T. 10 May 2011, p. 75 (saw Mazimpaka with Bizimana, both of whom spoke about their involvement in the murder of Gicanda).

¹³⁰² Prosecution Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, p. 69 (cadets in the third batch were involved in the murder of Gicanda); Defence Witness ZML07, T. 18 May 2011, p. 32; Exhibit D37 (Names of Soldiers) (Emanuel Manilakiza, a cadet in the third batch, told the witness that he had been on the mission to Gicanda).

¹³⁰³ The Defence arguments reflect Second Lieutenant Bizimana and Corporal Aloys Mazimpaka were convicted in Rwanda for the killing of Gicanda, that numerous sources in this trial implicate them and that the evidence, although weak, “establishes how the murder might have occurred and the identity of the perpetrators”. See Defence Closing Brief, paras. 233 (emphasis added), 238-243; see also T. 7 December 2011, p. 60 (Defence Closing Arguments) (“... the evidence is fairly clear about who [murdered Queen Gicanda]. Second Lieutenant Bizimana and Corporal Aloys Mazimpaka are in jail in Rwanda today for participating in that crime.”).

¹³⁰⁷ Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, p. 69.

491. Turning to other evidence of Nizeyimana's involvement, there is no direct evidence of Nizeyimana issuing orders or authorising the killing of Gicanda in advance. Nonetheless, Witness BDE heard from a cadet guarding Second Lieutenant Bizimana's home that Nizeyimana ordered Bizimana and Second Lieutenant Gakwerere to "bring Rosalie Gicanda". Upon those instructions they left and immediately killed her.¹³⁰⁸ Before reviewing the merits of this evidence, the Chamber shall address general credibility challenges to this witness.

492. The Defence argues that Witness BDE met "frequently" with others to discuss testifying against Nizeyimana. While Witness BDE confirmed that she met with Prosecution Witnesses Gahizi and ZT, she expressly denied discussing the merits of her evidence with them.¹³⁰⁹ The Defence did not raise this issue when cross-examining Witnesses Gahizi or ZT. The Defence arguments are unfounded. Nothing in Witness BDE's evidence reflects questionable overlaps with that provided by Witnesses Gahizi and ZT. Indeed, her testimony related to this particular allegation is distinct from the other witnesses.

493. Turning to Witness BDE's evidence, she heard from a cadet called Gaston Lyonso that Nizeyimana ordered Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gakwerere to "bring Rosalie Gicanda". Upon those instructions, they left and immediately killed her.¹³¹⁰ This evidence is hearsay. While it reflects that her source was guarding Bizimana's house, allowing the possibility that he overheard this conversation among Nizeyimana, Bizimana and Gakwerere, it is not clear that he did.¹³¹¹ Similarly, Witness BDE does not provide a date upon which her conversation with Lyonso took place, raising more questions about the directness of the information. This evidence alone is insufficient to support findings beyond reasonable doubt.

494. Notwithstanding, Prosecution Witnesses AZD and Gahizi testified to having overheard Bizimana report to Nizeyimana, while in the ESO officers' mess, that Gicanda had been killed.¹³¹² Moreover, Witness AJP testified that Nizeyimana informed him and unidentified others that Second Lieutenant Bizimana had killed Gicanda.¹³¹³ The Chamber shall first address general credibility concerns as it relates to these witnesses before turning to the merits of their evidence.

495. The Chamber has elsewhere considered in detail the context in which Witness AZD testified and found him generally credible.¹³¹⁴ The same analysis applies here. The Defence submits that Witness AZD lied about the discussion that took place between Nizeyimana and Bizimana. Specifically, it points to Witness AZD's prior statement to Tribunal investigators, which indicates that Witness YAA was present for the conversation. However, Witness YAA testified that he was not in Butare at the time.¹³¹⁵

496. Witness AZD did not mention Witness YAA's name during his examination-in-chief when describing the conversation in the officers' mess. Indeed, Witness YAA's presence at the mess was only elicited during cross-examination when he was requested to read the excerpt of his prior statement relating to Gicanda's killing. Witness AZD was asked generally to confirm if the contents of the statement were accurate, which he did.¹³¹⁶ He was not asked specifically about Witness YAA's presence during that conversation.

497. Witness YAA testified that he was absent from Butare from 12 or 13 April until mid May 1994.¹³¹⁷ Consequently, he would not have been present during a conversation that took place between 20 and 25 April in the ESO officers' mess, as described by Witness AZD. However, the Chamber does not consider Witness YAA's presence during this conversation material to Witness AZD's testimony.

498. Indeed, the excerpt of Witness AZD's statement to Tribunal investigators is otherwise consistent with the fundamental and material aspects of his testimony. Specifically, it recounts how Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gakwerere killed the queen in the last part of April 1994. It reflects that Witness AZD was in the officers' mess when Bizimana and Gakwerere reported to Nizeyimana that they had carried out his instructions in relation to this killing.¹³¹⁸ The inconsistency regarding the presence of Witness YAA does not raise doubt with respect to Witness AZD's otherwise compelling evidence.

499. Turning to Witness Gahizi, the Chamber considers that he was a difficult witness. Much of his testimony was dilatory, and he was non-responsive to questions asked. Moreover, Witness Gahizi testified that Nizeyimana had detained him in 1994.¹³¹⁹ Having fully considered his demeanour and the witness's admitted fractious past with Nizeyimana, the Chamber is mindful of the possibly partial nature of his evidence.¹³²⁰

500. Indeed, aspects of his evidence appear exaggerated to generally inculcate Nizeyimana and inconsistent with his prior evidence in the Muvunyi case. Specifically, Witness Gahizi

¹³¹⁸ See Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, p. 49 (reading excerpts of Witness AZD's statement to Tribunal investigators).

¹³¹⁹ The Defence argues that Gahizi's evidence before the Chamber that he was detained by Nizeyimana is both a lie, as Nizeyimana was no longer in Butare town, and inconsistent with a prior statement Witness Gahizi gave to Tribunal investigators in 2002. Defence Closing Brief, para. 89. Notably, the Chamber has elsewhere determined that Nizeyimana has not raised the reasonable possibility that he only once returned to Butare town after being assigned to command the Mata training facility. See II.13.3. Furthermore, Witness Gahizi testified that Nizeyimana ordered him jailed, although his detention was brief due to the chaos of people evacuating camp. T. 7 February 2011, pp. 41, 44. Upon cross-examination, the witness confirmed that he was detained in May and remained in detention until sometime in June, which is also reflected in his statement to Tribunal investigators. T. 8 February 2011, pp. 19-21. The Chamber finds no reasonable inconsistency.

¹³²⁰ As other evidence of Gahizi's bias, the Defence refers to Witness Gahizi as a "key organizer" for the Prosecution, arguing that he tried to recruit Witness KEN06 to testify on behalf of the Prosecution and assisted Witness BDE in preparing for her testimony. Defence Closing Brief, para. 85. Witness Gahizi was not challenged by the Defence with these propositions during his testimony. Witness BDE expressly denied that she and Witness Gahizi had discussed the contents of their testimonies. See Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, p. 31. Witness KEN06 testified that she and Gahizi met after Nizeyimana's arrest in 2009. He asked the witness if she could give evidence. The witness indicated that she "was going to speak the truth ... about Nizeyimana" and that she and Gahizi "were not able to come to an agreement on that". Nonetheless, the witness testified that she did not know that Gahizi was a Prosecution witness and refused to testify about what Gahizi asked her to provide evidence on. Witness KEN06, T. 20 September 2011, pp. 44-46. The Chamber does not find that Witness KEN06's evidence amounts to a prima facie showing that Gahizi attempted to influence her to falsely incriminate Nizeyimana. Their respective testimonies reflect that they held vastly different opinions about Nizeyimana's involvement in the genocide. That the two did not agree on Nizeyimana's role (or lack thereof) is understandable and indeed a reasonable outcome.

testified before this Chamber that the Accused had “supernatural powers” that inspired fear in Butare inhabitants.¹³²¹ The witness noted that Nizeyimana had a “monopoly of power” even during meetings that Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi attended.¹³²² According to Witness Gahizi, Nizeyimana was more feared than Muvunyi, and Muvunyi could not oppose his decisions.¹³²³

501. By contrast, Witness Gahizi testified in the Muvunyi trial that Nizeyimana “could not have done anything without the support of Colonel Muvunyi”.¹³²⁴ In an attempt to explain the discrepancy, Witness Gahizi essentially rejected his prior testimony and insisted that Nizeyimana’s decisions could not be opposed by anyone and that he was “the most powerful”. He added that this did not mean that Muvunyi was unaware of Nizeyimana’s actions and that they were acting together during the killings.¹³²⁵ He gave examples of Nizeyimana travelling without Muvunyi’s authorisation as evidence of Nizeyimana’s unrestricted power.¹³²⁶ The Chamber does not find Witness Gahizi’s explanations entirely convincing.

502. Moreover, Witness Gahizi testified that the situation at the ESO was not such that its administrative officials were “overwhelmed”.¹³²⁷ By contrast, in the Muvunyi trial, he gave evidence that the situation in April 1994 was not “normal” and that it “was beyond the control of those in charge”.¹³²⁸ In an attempt to explain the apparent discrepancy, Witness Gahizi stated that Nizeyimana became “abnormal” or had a “disorder in his mind” and that he had decided to kill.¹³²⁹ The remainder of his explanation appeared unresponsive to highlighted inconsistency.¹³³⁰ Again, Witness Gahizi’s explanations were not compelling.

503. Accordingly, the Chamber has doubts about Witness Gahizi’s evidence attributing absolute power to Nizeyimana, exceeding that of Muvunyi. It has reservations that his evidence demonstrates that Nizeyimana had complete control over ESO soldiers. The Chamber also has concerns about the witness’s bias against the Accused. It shall assess his evidence with appropriate caution.

504. Turning to Witness AJP, the Chamber has elsewhere discussed in detail the context in which the witness testified and determined that it would view his evidence with the appropriate caution.¹³³¹ The same concerns apply in this context. Witness AJP’s prior conviction as an accomplice in the genocide warrants caution and his apparent status as a fugitive raises further concerns. Specifically, the Chamber considers that his testimony before the Tribunal may be motivated by a desire to positively impact his ongoing criminal proceedings and increase his ability to reintegrate into Rwanda. Finally, the deterioration of his relationship with Nizeyimana while the two were in exile further suggests that his evidence implicating the Accused should be treated with caution.¹³³²

505. Having assessed the general credibility concerns pertaining to Witnesses AZD, Gahizi and AJP, the Chamber now turns to the merits of their respective evidence. The Chamber finds, and the Defence does not dispute, that Witnesses AZD and Gahizi, as ESO officers, would have been in a position to identify both Nizeyimana and Second Lieutenant Bizimana. Likewise, there is no dispute that Witness AJP could identify Nizeyimana in April 1994. Parts of Witness AJP's description of his relationship with Nizeyimana, including a continuous presence at Nizeyimana's home into April 1994, are corroborated by Defence evidence.¹³³³

506. Witnesses AZD and Gahizi provided strikingly consistent accounts. Witness AZD testified that he was in the officers' mess between 7.00 and 8.00 p.m. when he overheard Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gakwerere report to Nizeyimana that they had just killed Gicanda.¹³³⁴ Witness AZD said they had spoken in the "national language" and that it meant that they had "[k]illed in a special manner, somehow killed by torture".¹³³⁵

507. Witness Gahizi generally testified that persons who committed killings returned "in the evenings".¹³³⁶ As one example, he explained how he overheard a conversation between Second Lieutenant Bizimana and Nizeyimana, which also took place in the officers' mess. Upon questioning by Nizeyimana, Bizimana responded: "Mission accomplished. We killed Rose Gicanda".¹³³⁷

508. Similarly, both witnesses testified that the mess was small, allowing the witnesses and others to hear what was being said.¹³³⁸ Having considered the differences concerning what each witness heard, the Chamber finds them immaterial, particularly in light of the considerable passage of time since the event. The core elements of their evidence are fundamentally consistent – namely that Nizeyimana was being informed that Gicanda had been killed. Notable differences do emerge, however. Specifically, Witness AZD described Second Lieutenant Gakwerere reporting the event alongside Bizimana,¹³³⁹ while Witness ¹³³⁸ Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, p. 79 ("A. ... So you can imagine what the dimensions of an officers' mess is. It was not a big building, so I was able to clearly hear what they were saying."); Witness Gahizi, T. 7 February 2011, pp. 30 ("A. We had a small or narrow officers' mess, so everyone could hear what was being said. The distance was similar to that between the end of this courtroom and the Judges' bench. I can't give you the distance in metres. You see, in a bar when you are at a counter, chairs and stools are close to one another."), 31 ("A. ... For example, the distance was similar to the distance between me and the lady in front of me. The officers' mess was very narrow.").

¹³³⁹ Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, p. 78 ("Q. Do you have any knowledge about what happened to her in 1994? A. I do. She was killed during the 1994 genocide by people whom -- who I was able to recognise. Yesterday, you described the -- at the officers' mess when you overheard Bizimana telling Nizeyimana that he'd killed Gicanda; do you remember that, telling Gahizi made no reference to Gakwerere's presence. Witness Gahizi was not asked if anyone accompanied Bizimana. He did not testify that Gakwerere was not present. Indeed, his evidence reflects that Bizimana was among others when Bizimana arrived in the officers' mess.¹³⁴⁰ The Chamber considers Witness Gahizi's failure to refer to Second Lieutenant Gakwerere's presence does not raise doubts about his or Witness AZD's otherwise consistent and credible testimonies.

509. Likewise, Witness Gahizi discussed Nizeyimana demonstrating his satisfaction with the report of Gicanda's death by buying beers for persons in the officers' mess.¹³⁴¹ Witness AZD was not questioned about Nizeyimana's reaction and did not volunteer evidence corroborating this aspect of Witness Gahizi's account. The Chamber also considers this difference immaterial.

510. Offering further circumstantial support of these accounts is Witness AJP's testimony that Nizeyimana informed him and others that Bizimana had killed Gicanda. The witness's evidence was remarkably brief. He did not provide a date upon which this discussion took place, specify a location or explain who was with him when Nizeyimana told "us" about the killing. Nonetheless, Witness AJP's close relationship with Nizeyimana is not disputed and his continuous presence at Nizeyimana's home around the time Gicanda was killed is corroborated by Defence evidence.¹³⁴² When viewed in light of the testimonies of Witnesses BDE, AZD and Gahizi, the Chamber considers Witness AJP's evidence compelling.

511. Indeed, that the Second Lieutenant would report this event to Nizeyimana appears highly plausible given Nizeyimana's tenure in the S2/S3 office, where he was charged with intelligence and operations, and when viewed in the context of other missions carried out by Bizimana. Of particular significance, Bizimana and ESO cadets implicated in Gicanda's killing by Defence Witness ZML07 – Emanuel Manilakiza, Ignace Bwenge and Mukomeza – were also among those that led members of the Ruhutinyanya family to their deaths.¹³⁴³ Moreover, the Chamber has determined that Bizimana's actions in relation to the Ruhutinyanya family – days before Gicanda's killing – were done in part on Nizeyimana's orders.¹³⁴⁴ There is general evidence that Nizeyimana and Bizimana were close,¹³⁴⁵ further bolstering the first-hand accounts that Bizimana reported this event to Nizeyimana and that the two were acting in coordination at this time.

us that yesterday? A. I remember that. It was Second Lieutenant Bizimana, and Second Lieutenant Gakwerere who were saying this to Captain Nizeyimana. That I do remember.”) ¹³⁴⁰ Witness Gahizi, T. 7 February 2011, p. 30 (“Q. Mr. Gahizi, how do you know that Second Lieutenant Bizimana was involved in the death of Rosalie Gicanda? A. You see, it's difficult for me to be brief when answering that question. Those people were coming back in the evenings from killings. ... Q. And who did Second Lieutenant Bizimana say “mission accomplished, we have killed Gicanda” to? Who was he speaking to when he said that? A. Okay. Let me be clear. There were several people in the officers' mess. Each evening when people returned from carrying out killings they would give an account of what had happened on that specific day. ...”) (emphasis added).

¹³⁴² See II.6.1.

¹³⁴³ Witness ZML07, T. 18 May 2011, pp. 32-33; Exhibit D37 (Names of Soldiers). Consistent with Witness ZML07's testimony, Witness ZY also identified members of the third batch as being involved in the killing of Gicanda. Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, p. 69.

¹³⁴⁴ See II.4.1.

¹³⁴⁵ See Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 7-8; Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, p. 6; Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, pp. 28-29; Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 10.

512. Indeed, other evidence tends to reflect that Gicanda's killing was not conducted by a rogue element within the ESO, but a coordinated effort with persons who were not necessarily present. Specifically, Prosecution Witness ZAP heard the soldiers communicating via radio saying "Jaguar, Jaguar".¹³⁴⁶ While it is not clear that Nizeyimana is the "Jaguar", the line of communication via radio suggests that this was a coordinated endeavour, during which the perpetrators kept others, who were not present, abreast of the situation at Gicanda's house.¹³⁴⁷ Witness ZAP further noted that they made a stop at the ESO before continuing to the location where they were finally shot.¹³⁴⁸

513. Finally, the Chamber considers that the evidence of Defence Witness BUV02 offers further circumstantial support for Bizimana's participation in Gicanda's killing, which was sanctioned by the ESO's command. Witness BUV02 also heard Bizimana boast about having killed Gicanda between 2.00 and 3.00 p.m. while at a bar. According to the witness, the murder had happened that same day just hours before Bizimana came to the bar to celebrate.¹³⁴⁹ In the Chamber's view, the fact that Bizimana was sharing this news openly lends further credence to other evidence that the mission was condoned by Bizimana's hierarchical superiors, including Nizeyimana.¹³⁵⁰

514. The Chamber considers that these circumstances compellingly corroborate the first-hand accounts of Witnesses AZD and Gahizi that Bizimana reported the killing to Nizeyimana, Witness BDE's second-hand evidence that Nizeyimana ordered Bizimana and Gakwerere to take action with respect to Gicanda, and Witness AJP's evidence that Nizeyimana informed him that Bizimana had killed Gicanda.

515. Indeed, Defence evidence that this killing was unsanctioned is far from dispositive, particularly as it relates to Nizeyimana. For example, Defence Witness Habyarimana heard from Muvunyi on the night of 21 April 1994 that an investigation into the killing would be conducted.¹³⁵¹ Likewise, Defence Witness OUV03 testified that he heard that Bizimana was ultimately arrested, but was later released before he could be handed over to the proper authorities.¹³⁵² There is no evidence that Nizeyimana reported this incident, despite his legal obligation to do so.¹³⁵³

516. The Chamber has no general credibility reservations as it relates to Witness Habyarimana. Notwithstanding, he was at the ESO Camp that evening for the purposes of relocating his family in order to protect them.¹³⁵⁴ He testified to having expressed considerable grief as it related to Gicanda's death, because she was someone from his native

¹³⁴⁶ Exhibit P40D(E) (Witness ZAP's Pro Justitia Statement), p. 3. It is not apparent from Witness ZAP's evidence who the soldier was communicating with. Witness OUV03 admitted that he did not have a radio and could therefore not verify what code signals or names were used. T. 31 May 2011, p. 57.

¹³⁵⁰ The Chamber notes that Witness BUV02's evidence of Bizimana being in a bar that afternoon is not inconsistent with the testimonies of Witnesses AZD and Gahizi that they saw Bizimana report the event later in the evening or, as Witness AZD specified, between 7.00 and 8.00 p.m. Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, p. 79.

area who grew up with his mother and had been almost a mother to him.¹³⁵⁵ Moreover, Witness Habyarimana had a substantial history and high rank within the Rwandan army at that time.¹³⁵⁶ Considering these factors, the Chamber considers that Muvunyi would have had felt compelled to assure Witness Habyarimana that the situation at the ESO and in Butare town was under control and that the shocking killing of the former Queen of Rwanda would be investigated.

517. Indeed, Defence Witness OUV03's evidence that Bizimana was arrested fails to establish his basis for knowledge that it occurred.¹³⁵⁷ It is inconsistent with Defence Witness RWV11's evidence that Bizimana was not punished,¹³⁵⁸ as well as with the Prosecution evidence discussed above. The Chamber considers that this aspect of Witness OUV03's evidence lacks reliability and credibility.

518. Notwithstanding, the Defence argues that Gicanda was killed when Nizeyimana was away at the Mata tea factory conducting a reconnaissance mission. Consequently, the Chamber shall assess the evidence as it relates to the timing of the event and determine if this raises doubt with respect to the Prosecution evidence considered above.

(ii) Timing of Rosalie Gicanda's Killing

519. The Defence argues that the evidence establishes that Gicanda was killed on 21 April 1994, when Nizeyimana was away from Butare town. It relies on the testimonies of Defence Witnesses OUV03, Habyarimana, RWV11, Mushimiyimana and Nyiranzabonimana for this proposition.

520. Defence Witnesses OUV03 and Habyarimana learned of the murder on the evening of 21 April 1994, whereas Defence Witnesses RWV11 and Mushimiyimana heard about the incident on 22 April. Witness OUV03 noted that Bizimana had already killed Gicanda by the time he heard the information and stated that, at times, he would receive information "belatedly" because he never left his post.¹³⁵⁹ It is therefore not evident, based on his testimony, when Gicanda was killed and if this in fact occurred on 21 April, when he received the news. Witness Habyarimana saw Colonel Muvunyi around 10.00 p.m. on 21 April and heard from him that Gicanda was killed. However, his evidence fails to indicate that the murder necessarily occurred on that date.¹³⁶⁰

¹³⁵⁵ Witness Habyarimana, T. 25 May 2011, p. 44. Further circumstantial evidence that Witness Habyarimana was opposed to the genocide might be reflected by the fact that he was fully re-integrated into the RPF government's army, rising to the rank of Brigadier General before he left Rwanda in 2003. T. 25 May 2011, pp. 3, 5.

¹³⁵⁶ Witness Habyarimana, T. 25 May 2011, pp. 3-6. Witness Habyarimana enrolled in the ESM in 1974 and was ultimately appointed Minister of Defence in 2000.

¹³⁵⁷ Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, p. 47.

¹³⁵⁸ Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 34-35.

¹³⁵⁹ Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, p. 44.

¹³⁶⁰ Witness Habyarimana, T. 25 May 2011, pp. 43-44 ("Q. Did you have any other discussions with Lieutenant Colonel Muvunyi? A. Mr. President, there was nothing particular about the discussions. As usual I stopped at the officers' mess. That was after 10 p.m., after my family had settled down. And Lieutenant Colonel Muvunyi was there. I was surprised to see he was talking about the death of Queen Gicanda.").

521. Similarly, Witness RWV11 heard upon his return from Mata on 22 April 1994 that the former Queen had been killed.¹³⁶¹ He did not specify when the killing occurred, other than indicating that it happened while he was not in Butare.¹³⁶² Presumably, his evidence suggests that it occurred on 21 or 22 April, when he testified that he was on a reconnaissance mission to Mata.¹³⁶³ Notably, the Chamber has expressed reservations about this evidence.

522. Witness Mushimiyimana heard about Gicanda's death on the morning of 22 April 1994, but he did not know the date of her murder.¹³⁶⁴ Witness Nyiranzabonimana heard about Gicanda's murder and testified that it occurred "during the same period Matabaro and other people were murdered".¹³⁶⁵ This statement is ambiguous as to timing. Specifically, in addition to testifying about the killing of the Matabaro family on the evening of 21 April,¹³⁶⁶ she also provided evidence that Maniraho and Ngarambe were killed the night of 20 to 21 April.¹³⁶⁷ Consequently, her evidence is not necessarily inconsistent with evidence placing Gicanda's killing around 20 April 1994. Ultimately, her testimony reflects that she was unsure about the date.¹³⁶⁸

523. Other Prosecution and Defence evidence places the murder earlier. Specifically, Prosecution Witness ZAP, who was abducted and shot along with Gicanda, stated that the incident took place around noon on 20 April 1994.¹³⁶⁹ Similarly, Defence Witness BUV02 recalled speaking to Bizimana about the incident just hours after the queen was killed.¹³⁷⁰ He could not recall the exact date, and, indeed, could not confirm that it occurred on 20 April. However, he agreed that it occurred "shortly after the speech of President Sindikubwabo".¹³⁷¹ Prosecution Witness ZY testified that she heard about the killings of Gicanda when killings had not yet commenced in Butare.¹³⁷² She believed it happened "prior to the president's speech".¹³⁷³

524. Consistent with this evidence, Prosecution Witness AZD testified that he heard Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gakwerere inform Nizeyimana that they had killed Gicanda between 20 and 25 April 1994.¹³⁷⁴ The Chamber observes that Witness AZD frequently struggled to recall the dates of events, including this one, noting the considerable passage of time between them and his testimony.¹³⁷⁵ The Chamber does not consider that this raises doubt with respect to his first-hand account.

525. Witness Gahizi did not testify about the date he heard Bizimana report Gicanda's killing to Nizeyimana. Nonetheless, he noted that his prior statement to Tribunal investigators incorrectly reflected that this occurred in May rather than April 1994.¹³⁷⁶ The Defence cross-examined him on the basis that he had not yet returned to Butare by 20 April.

526. Specifically, Witness Gahizi testified that he returned to the ESO from Kigali around "the second week after the President's plane crashed".¹³⁷⁷ On cross-examination, Witness Gahizi was confronted with a prior statement that states that he was assigned to guard the MECATR military school in Kimihura on 6 April 1994 and remained at this position "for about two weeks", whereas during his testimony the witness denied having spent the full two weeks at this position.¹³⁷⁸

527. The witness repeated that while he could not provide the exact date, he was certain that he left for Butare during the second week of April 1994 and, in any event, arrived in Butare before 20 April.¹³⁷⁹ Witness ZT, who was also questioned about when she saw Witness Gahizi in Butare. Although initially reluctant to answer questions, she ultimately could only confirm that she saw him in Butare "during the war".¹³⁸⁰ The Chamber accepts that Witness Gahizi may not have been in a position to provide specific dates, given the passage of time. The Chamber is satisfied that his prior statement does not raise doubts that he returned to the ESO sometime before 20 April and would have been in a position to observe the conversation between Bizimana and Nizeyimana.

528. Finally, the Chamber considers the evidence of Witnesses ZAP, ZY and BUV02, which tends to reflect that the killing of Gicanda took place during the initial phases of the genocide in Butare town, on or around 20 April 1994, compelling when viewed in context. Indeed, Defence Witness BUV02's evidence suggests that Queen Gicanda was killed before the violence in Butare erupted in order to set the tone for the killings that were to commence shortly after Sindikubwabo's speech. This is also reflected in Witness ZY's evidence, which indicates Gicanda's murder was one of the first prominent killings in Butare town. It is further supported by Witness AZD's evidence that he could have heard soldiers report the killing to Nizeyimana as early as 20 April (or as late as 25 April).

529. The Chamber is satisfied that the record demonstrates that Rosalie Gicanda, an "old lady" who clearly posed no military threat, was intended to set the tone for future killings of Tutsis in Butare.¹³⁸¹ Given Gicanda's prominence and when viewed in the context of targeted killings of Tutsis that followed, it is clear that her murder intended to make a striking example that Tutsis, as well as Hutus perceived as sympathetic to the plight of the Tutsis, were the enemy. In light of the above, even if the Chamber were to accept as reasonably possibly true Nizeyimana's alibi for 21 or 22 April 1994, it would not raise doubt about his involvement in this crime and that Bizimana reported it to him.

(iii) Conclusion

530. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber finds that Second Lieutenant Bizimana led a group of ESO soldiers in the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her household on or around 20 April 1994.¹³⁸² The evidence further reflects that Bizimana reported this killing to Nizeyimana. Under the circumstances, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana authorised this particular killing, which was intended to make a striking example that Tutsis as well as Hutus perceived as sympathetic to the plight of the Tutsis were the enemy. The Chamber considers that Nizeyimana continued to offer moral support and encouragement to the attackers, and Second Lieutenant Bizimana in particular, upon learning of the killing. The Chamber shall discuss the implications of these conclusions in its Legal Findings (III).

¹³⁸² The Chamber considers any variation between the date provided in the Indictment (“on or about 21 April 1994”) and the Chamber’s finding immaterial. See, e.g., Rutaganda Appeal Judgement, para. 302; Kunarac et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 217. The pleading reflects an approximation and pre-trial filings give notice that this formulation could include 20 April 1994. See Pre-Trial Brief, Annex para. 4 (p. 40). Moreover, given the prominence of one the victims of the attack – Rosalie Gicanda, the former Queen of Rwanda – as well as the Indictment’s specificity regarding the nature of the attack and the identity of the attackers, the information provided to Nizeyimana was sufficient to allow him to prepare his Defence as it related to this event, occurring “on” or “about” 21 April. See Muvunyi II Appeal Judgement, para. 29.

6.3 Rape at Rosalie Gicanda's Home

Introduction

531. The Indictment alleges that upon order or instigation of Nizeyimana, approximately one dozen FAR soldiers were present at the residence of Gicanda's house in April 1994, during the rape of a female Tutsi of about 18 to 20 years old. The soldiers were from the ESO and Ngoma Camps and included Sergeant Nginshuti. The Prosecution relies on Witness BUR.¹³⁸³ The Defence challenges the credibility of Witness BUR.¹³⁸⁴

Prosecution Witness BUR

532. In April 1994, Witness BUR, a Hutu, testified that he was a sergeant at the ESO in Butare.¹³⁸⁵ Following an assembly on 7 April, Nizeyimana instructed Witness BUR to go to Rosalie Gicanda's house.¹³⁸⁶ Gicanda's house was located downhill from the Ngoma commune building.¹³⁸⁷ Around mid-April, Nizeyimana assigned the witness to go to Gicanda's house again, because a lot of refugees had arrived in Butare town and he was supposed to see whether there were Inkotanyi among them at her residence.¹³⁸⁸ Witness BUR went to her house but Gicanda was not there.¹³⁸⁹ Instead, when he reached the door in search of Inkotanyi, he saw soldiers from the Ngoma Camp and heard a girl inside the house shout.¹³⁹⁰ The section commander, Sergeant Nginshuti, was standing at the door.¹³⁹¹

533. When Witness BUR went past him to see who was shouting, he saw a soldier on top of a young girl, who was about 18 to 20 years old, lying on a mattress, while other soldiers were watching.¹³⁹² The girl looked like she was a Tutsi.¹³⁹³ Witness BUR went outside and when he asked Nginshuti what was happening, the latter responded that Witness BUR ought to know that part of the instructions they received was to rape girls.¹³⁹⁴ Witness BUR replied that he was aware of the instructions and moved on to continue his search for Inkotanyi.¹³⁹⁵ There was nothing Witness BUR could do for this girl who was being raped, because in assisting her, he would be disobeying orders that were already given.¹³⁹⁶ He did not find any Inkotanyi in Gicanda's house that day.¹³⁹⁷

534. Prosecution Witness BUR is the sole witness to provide evidence of the rape of a young girl, aged 18 to 20 years, at Gicanda's residence, by more than a dozen soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma Camps in April 1994. At the outset, the Chamber has elsewhere considered in detail the context in which Witness BUR testified. It concluded that his evidence is unreliable.¹³⁹⁸

535. The same reasoning applies in the context of this event. Specifically, the Chamber has considerable doubts that Witness BUR was in Butare during at the time of this purported rape and the events leading up to it. The Defence challenged that Witness BUR was assigned to the ESO in April 1994 or was even in Butare during that month, based on Rwandan Gacaca court records from February 2010. As summarised elsewhere, the relevant excerpt reflects that Witness BUR testified in a Gacaca proceeding and was asked if he was in Butare during the genocide. His recorded response was that he was a member of the Para Commando Battalion living in Kigali, that he went to Gitarama, left Gitarama for Gikongoro on 25 April, and left Gikongoro for Butare around 4 May. He went back to Gikongoro on 7 May.¹³⁹⁹

536. The Chamber found his explanation as it related to the inconsistencies unconvincing and that his evidence lacked basic credibility.¹⁴⁰⁰ The Chamber reiterates its doubts that Witness BUR was in Butare in April 1994 or that he was assigned to the ESO. Indeed, his description of this assault at Gicanda's residence is not corroborated by any other evidence in the record, and it is unclear whether the witness is describing the abduction of Gicanda and others found in her household.¹⁴⁰¹

537. Given the lack of basic credibility and the uncorroborated nature of Witness BUR's evidence, the Prosecution has not proved beyond reasonable doubt that a rape of the young girl at Gicanda's residence occurred around mid-April 1994. This allegation is dismissed.

¹⁴⁰⁰ See II.2.

¹⁴⁰¹ Specifically, a number of Prosecution and Defence witnesses testified about the abduction and murder of Rosalie Gicanda and others found in her household, but none mentioned the rape of a young girl at her house. Similarly, none of the witnesses testified about the presence of Ngoma soldiers generally, or Sergeant Ngirinshuti in particular. See II.6.2.

6.4 Killing of the Ngarambe and Maniraho Families

Introduction

538. The Indictment alleges that around 20 April 1994, soldiers and militiamen acting on the orders or instigation of Nizeyimana killed a Tutsi man known as Jérôme Ngarambe and members of his family near his home. On the same evening, soldiers, including Sub Lieutenant Ndayambaje, and militiamen killed Jean Marie Vianney Maniraho and his family on Nizeyimana's orders. Prosecution Witnesses AJP, AZM, YAP and ZBE provided relevant evidence.¹⁴⁰²

539. The Defence confirms that Maniraho and Ngarambe were killed on the evening of 20 to 21 April 1994. However, Witness AJP's evidence implicating Nizeyimana lacks credibility. Defence Witnesses MOL08, Aggripine Nyiranzabonimana, Irénée Hitayezu, Vincent Ntamagezo, BEJ01 and CKN20 provided relevant evidence.¹⁴⁰³

Prosecution Witness AJP

540. Witness AJP, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in 1994.¹⁴⁰⁴ He was a former ESO cadet with close ties to Nizeyimana.¹⁴⁰⁵ The witness estimated that on 24 or 25 April, Nizeyimana ordered him and six soldiers to go to Jérôme Ngarambe's home to kill the family and loot the residence.¹⁴⁰⁶ The group was comprised of ESO soldiers from Nizeyimana's house and Ngoma camp soldiers staying with Lieutenant Hategekimana.¹⁴⁰⁷ They were divided into a group responsible for killing the Ngarambe family and another tasked with looting the household.¹⁴⁰⁸ Nizeyimana placed Witness AJP in charge of the operation.¹⁴⁰⁹

541. Once at the Ngarambe house, they entered and found several persons inside.¹⁴¹⁰ Soldiers responsible for killing the occupants removed them from the house and departed.¹⁴¹¹ Witness AJP, who was in charge of the looters, continued to search for a television set and cupboard, but only found the former.¹⁴¹²

542. When returning to Nizeyimana's home, Witness AJP saw that another group of soldiers had been stopped near the EFOTEC school by Second Lieutenant Alphonse Ndayambaje and soldiers accompanying him.¹⁴¹³ Witness AJP spoke with Ndayambaje and told him that they had been sent by Nizeyimana.¹⁴¹⁴ Ndayambaje let them pass, and the soldiers transporting the persons taken from the Ngarambe home went towards a nearby wooded area, while Witness AJP and his group returned to Nizeyimana's home, dropping off the looted television.¹⁴¹⁵ Witness AJP later learned from the soldiers that they had killed the persons in the wooded area.¹⁴¹⁶

543. Later that evening, Nizeyimana sent Witness AJP and six or seven ESO and Ngoma camp soldiers to kill the Maniraho family.¹⁴¹⁷ They went to the Maniraho home, about 150 metres from Nizeyimana's house, and found over six bodies strewn throughout the living room.¹⁴¹⁸ Witness AJP and the soldiers left, but found civilians conducting night patrols, who said that soldiers in a military jeep killed those in the Maniraho household.¹⁴¹⁹ Witness AJP believed that the civilians were referring to Second Lieutenant Alphonse Ndayambaje and the soldiers accompanying him.¹⁴²⁰ Nizeyimana was informed that the members of the Maniraho family had been found already killed.¹⁴²¹

544. Witness AZM, a Hutu, lived in Butare town and worked at Karubanda prison in 1994.¹⁴²² From 21 April, Prefect Sylvain Nsabimana ordered the witness and prisoners to bury the corpses of people killed in Butare.¹⁴²³ On 21 April, he was asked to assist in the burial of bodies in the wooded area of Kabutare, situated below the psychiatric centre referred to as CAREAS, about 200 metres from the road leading through Butare town.¹⁴²⁴ When he arrived there around 10.30 a.m., soldiers in a Toyota Dyna with a "carrier" behind it shot at the witness and others.¹⁴²⁵ While fleeing towards town, they came across bodies and Witness AZM recognised one of them as Jérôme Ngarambe.¹⁴²⁶

545. Later, Witness AZM and others arrived in "Rutaba", where an elderly woman asked the group to return to the wooded area to find her daughter.¹⁴²⁷ They did, and Witness AZM saw a young woman, who had been shot in the knee and with her skirt pulled up, alive but in

Prosecution Witness ZBE’s Rule 92bis Statement

547. Witness ZBE stated that around 7.30 p.m. on 19 or 20 April 1994, he heard that Professor Jean Marie Maniraho and his entire family had been killed.¹⁴³⁴ On a meeting conducted on 17 April, Maniraho had asked why soldiers were deployed in the streets.¹⁴³⁵

Defence Witness MOL08

548. Witness MOL08, a Tutsi, lived in Butare town in 1994 and in the immediate proximity of the home of Jean Marie Vianney Maniraho, a Hutu married to a Tutsi.¹⁴³⁶ Around 8.00 p.m. on the evening of 20 to 21 April, Witness MOL08 heard gunshots.¹⁴³⁷ She did not see what happened, but her night watchman told her that the Maniraho family had been killed.¹⁴³⁸ Subsequent discussions, as well as persons in Witness MOL08’s neighbourhood, including her husband, revealed that people believed that ESO soldiers shot the Maniraho family.¹⁴³⁹

549. The following day, on 21 April 1994, Jérôme Ngarambe’s daughter and son came to Witness MOL08’s home before 7.00 a.m. and asked for assistance.¹⁴⁴⁰ The daughter and son had been shot, and the daughter explained that her entire family had been removed from the home and killed, including her father.¹⁴⁴¹ They wanted to be taken to the hospital and arrangements were made for them to be transported there.¹⁴⁴²

Defence Witness Aggripine Nyiranzabonimana

550. Witness Nyiranzabonimana, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in April 1994 approximately 100 metres from Nizeyimana's home.¹⁴⁴³ On the evening of 20 to 21 April, the witness heard gunshots.¹⁴⁴⁴ The following day, she learned that Maniraho, a university lecturer who lived nearby, was killed as was Jérôme Ngarambe.¹⁴⁴⁵ She could not recall who informed her of Maniraho's death, but persons had seen his corpse and it was common knowledge.¹⁴⁴⁶

Defence Witness Irénée Hitayezu

Deliberations

556. The Prosecution and Defence evidence confirms that Jérôme Ngarambe and members of his family, as well as Jean Marie Vianney Maniraho and members of his family, were killed on the same evening in April 1994. The Prosecution relies primarily on the first-hand account of Witness AJP as it relates to the murder of Ngarambe and his family, and his second-hand accounts about the killings of the Maniraho family. The Defence, while conceding that Maniraho and Ngarambe were killed, disputes Nizeyimana's involvement. The Chamber shall address the events in turn.

(i) Killing of Jérôme Ngarambe and His Family

557. Witness AJP testified that Nizeyimana placed him in charge of a mix of ESO and Ngoma camp soldiers and ordered the group to go to Jérôme Ngarambe's home to kill the family and loot the residence. According to Witness AJP, Ngarambe and his family were subsequently removed from their residence and taken to a wooded area by soldiers from his group. He later learned that they were killed.

558. At the outset, the Chamber has elsewhere considered in detail the context in which Witness AJP testified. It concluded that his evidence should be approached with the appropriate caution.¹⁴⁶⁷ The same concerns exist as it relates to these allegations.

559. Specifically, Witness AJP confessed in Rwanda to participating in the killing of the Ngarambe family.¹⁴⁶⁸ To the extent he has consistently implicated the Accused in this crime, either through his confession or while giving statements to Tribunal investigators, the possibility that such allegations were made with the aim of obtaining lenient treatment from Rwandan prison or judicial officials cannot be ignored.¹⁴⁶⁹

560. Similarly, Witness AJP's apparent status as a fugitive also raises concerns that his testimony before the Tribunal may also be motivated by a desire to positively impact his ongoing criminal proceedings and ability to reintegrate into Rwanda.¹⁴⁷⁰ Finally, the deterioration of his relationship with Nizeyimana while the two were in exile further suggests that his evidence implicating the Accused should be treated with caution.¹⁴⁷¹

561. Turning to the merits of Witness AJP's evidence, the Defence does not dispute – and the Chamber has no doubt – that he could identify Nizeyimana in April 1994.¹⁴⁷² Instead, the Defence has challenged Witness AJP's credibility, arguing that his testimony, which indicates that the killings occurred on 24 or 25 April, is incorrect.

562. While Witness AJP estimated that the killing of the Ngarambe and Maniraho families occurred around the evening of 24 or 25 April 1994, he conceded that he could not recall the precise date.¹⁴⁷³ It is reasonable that Witness AJP did not exactly recall the timing of these killings. However, a closer review of his evidence reveals that it is generally consistent with other evidence about when they occurred.

563. Specifically, when linking the slaughter of the Ngarambe family (as well as the Maniraho family) with other events in Butare, Witness AJP stated that they occurred around the time killings commenced generally in Butare town.¹⁴⁷⁴ It is undisputed and the record reflects that President Théodore Sindikubwabo's 19 April 1994 speech in Butare was a turning point, with violence occurring on a much larger scale from that moment forward.¹⁴⁷⁵

564. Thus, Witness AJP's description aligns with the consistent testimonies of Prosecution Witness AZM and Defence Witnesses MOL08, Nyiranzabonimana and CKN20, who suggested that the killings of the Ngarambe family (and the Maniraho family) occurred on the ¹⁴⁷³ Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 18 ("Q. ... When was it, approximately, in terms of date, that you were sent to his house? A. It was around the 24th or 25th of April that we went to Jérôme Ngarambe's house. I can't recall the precise date, but it was around those dates, because it was at ... the onset of the killings. As a matter of fact, the Matabaros were the first to be exterminated and two days later Jérôme Ngarambe's family was attacked."), 68 ("A. ... When the killings started in Butare, ... He sent us to go kill members of the Ngarambe family."), 73 ("Q. But you testified today that Maniraho, Ngarambe – was on the 24th. Is that not correct, sir? A. Maybe I jumbled up the date, but I confirm that both families were attacked on the same night. I, however, had to add that Matabaro's family was killed before the members of those other two families were killed.").

¹⁴⁷⁵ See, e.g., Defence Closing Brief, para. 10; T. 7 December 2011, pp. 37, 49, 62 (Defence Closing Arguments). See also II.6.2-II.7.3.

evening of 20 April 1994.¹⁴⁷⁶ Unlike Witness AJP, Witnesses AZM, MOL08 and Nyiranzabonimana gave compelling explanations as to how they could recall the date of these events.¹⁴⁷⁷ Witness CKN20 did not explain how he remembered the date, but he was certain that the killings occurred on 20 April.¹⁴⁷⁸

565. Ultimately, any ambiguity in Witness AJP's evidence about the timing of the killings is immaterial. The evidence unequivocally demonstrates that the killing of Ngarambe and members of his family (and the Manirahos) occurred on the evening of 20 to 21 April 1994.¹⁴⁷⁹

566. The critical questions are whether Nizeyimana ordered Witness AJP and soldiers to kill Ngarambe and his family, and whether the soldiers did in fact kill them. As noted above, the Chamber must carefully scrutinise Witness AJP's evidence, which lacks direct corroboration on these particular points.

567. Witness AJP's evidence about the nature of the killings finds strong circumstantial support. He only saw soldiers taking the Ngarambe family in the direction of a wooded area and heard about their killings. However, Witness AZM observed Jérôme Ngarambe's corpse on the morning of 21 April 1994 in that same wooded area. On the same day, Witness AZM found Ngarambe's daughter, who had been shot in the knee. Similarly, Defence Witness MOL08 also spoke with Ngarambe's daughter and son early on the morning of 21 April. They had been shot and explained that the family had been removed from their home and killed. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber concludes that Jérôme Ngarambe and certain members of his family were removed from their household and killed.

568. Witness AJP's evidence that Nizeyimana ordered him and soldiers to kill the Ngarambe family lacks direct corroboration. Defence Witness Hitayezu testified that he was ¹⁴⁷⁶ Furthermore, Witness AJP also linked this event as occurring while he resided at a certain location. Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, p. 68. Notably, his and other evidence suggests that he had stopped living at that location by 24 April 1994. See, e.g., Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, p. 4 (testified that he stopped residing at this particular location on 24 April 1994); Witness BEJ01, T. 9 June 2011, pp. 11-12, 32 (testified that Witness AJP had moved his residence from a particular location on 24 April 1994). Consequently, a close review of this evidence reveals that these events occurred prior to 24 April 1994.

¹⁴⁷⁷ Witness AZM recalled the date he saw Ngarambe's body and recovered his daughter with precision – 21 April 1994 – explaining that it was the third day “after” President Théodore Sindikubwabo's address in Butare on 19 April, an event he attended. See Prosecution Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 69, 77. Witness MOL08 explained that Ngarambe was a friend and the Manirahos were neighbours and that their killings were “touching” events for her. Defence Witness MOL08, T. 10 May 2011, pp. 9-10. Moreover, she recalled that the events occurred prior to her departure from Butare town on 21 April. T. 10 May 2011, pp. 11-12, 17-18, 25-26. Witness Nyiranzabonimana provided an exact date for the incident and linked it in time with President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech. Defence Witness Nyiranzabonimana, T. 10 June 2011, pp. 2-3, 23.

¹⁴⁷⁸ Witness CKN20, T. 15 June 2011, p. 8 (“A. I don't know under what circumstances, but I know that [Maniraho] was killed on the 20th of April. I do not know at what time and where he was killed, but I know that he was killed on that day.”). The Chamber has elsewhere expressed concerns about Witness CKN20's evidence as it relates to the Matabaro killings. See II.6.6.

¹⁴⁷⁹ The Chamber observes that Witness BEJ01 testified that this event occurred on 21 April 1994. The Chamber considers the probative value of his evidence on this point weak. His evidence about the killings was brief, and failed to reveal any direct knowledge of the events. Moreover, the date was suggested to him as part of a compound question that he merely confirmed. Defence Witness BEJ01, T. 9 June 2011, p. 32 (“Q. Mr. Witness, you heard about the massacre of the Maniraho family on the 22nd of April 1994; correct? A. If I remember well, yes.”). The Chamber has also considered the brief testimony of Witness BXF, who testified having learned about the killing of Maniraho. The questioning is not clear as to what date counsel or the witness are referring to. Prosecution Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 42-43.

posted at Nizeyimana's home starting on 20 April 1994 and that Nizeyimana was not there that evening. The Chamber views Hitayezu's evidence with considerable suspicion. As a soldier assigned to Nizeyimana's home – and the neighbourhood in which the killing took place – he is a potential accomplice in the crime described by Witness AJP. The Chamber has elsewhere discussed in detail many of its concerns relating to his evidence.¹⁴⁸⁰

569. Notwithstanding the frailties within the Defence evidence, there is no direct corroboration that ESO soldiers killed Ngarambe and members of his family.¹⁴⁸¹ In the Chamber's view, Witness AJP's evidence alone fails to demonstrate that Nizeyimana ordered, instigated or otherwise significantly or substantially contributed to these killings. Similarly, ambiguity as it relates to the identity of the perpetrators raises reasonable doubt that the perpetrators were Nizeyimana's subordinates over whom he exercised effective control.¹⁴⁸²

(ii) Killing of Jean-Marie Maniraho and His Family

570. It is undisputed that Jean-Marie Vianney Maniraho, a Hutu and university lecturer, as well as members of his family were killed. Furthermore, the Chamber has no doubt that they were slaughtered on the evening of 20 to 21 April 1994.

571. Witness AJP testified that Nizeyimana ordered him and soldiers to kill the Maniraho family after they had returned from the Ngarambe home. However, when they arrived at the Maniraho household, they found that the family members were already dead. The witness heard from civilians conducting night patrols that soldiers in a military jeep had killed the family. He concluded that the civilians were describing Second Lieutenant Alphonse Ndayambaje and the soldiers accompanying him based on the witness's prior interaction with them that evening.¹⁴⁸³ Witness AJP also testified that Nizeyimana was informed that the Maniraho family had already been killed.¹⁴⁸⁴

¹⁴⁸¹ Of the soldiers alleged to have participated in this particular attack, the Indictment only alleges the participation of ESO soldiers. Indictment, para. 20.

¹⁴⁸² The Defence objected to Witness AZM's testimony as it relates to evidence that Jérôme Ngarambe's daughter was raped. Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 49-51. Given the Chambers findings in regards to this allegation, it need not further address the notice objection.

¹⁴⁸³ Considering Witness AJP's evidence in its entirety, it is clear that the civilians identified the perpetrators of the Maniraho family killings as soldiers driving a military jeep – and not by name. Witness AJP's reference to "Ndayambaje" while testifying clearly reflects his own conclusion that Ndayambaje and the soldiers accompanying him were the perpetrators based on the description he received from the persons with whom he talked and the witness's prior interaction with Ndayambaje that evening. See Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 21 ("A. ... So we returned, and on our way we met people on night patrols. They were civilians. We asked them who had killed members of the Maniraho family. They told us that they had been killed by soldiers who had gone there in a military vehicle, namely, a group commanded by Ndayambaje."), 22 ("Q. And what did you see when you arrived at the Maniraho's house? A. As I've just told you, we went into Maniraho's house and we found that members of his family had just been killed and that the bodies were strewn in the living room. When we left the house we asked people on night patrol who had killed those people. And they told us that they had been killed by soldiers who were in a military jeep, which I told you about earlier on.").

¹⁴⁸⁴ Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 21-22 ("A. ... So we informed Nizeyimana that we found members of the Maniraho family ... had already been killed.").

572. At the outset, it is undisputed that Alphonse Ndayambaje was an ESO soldier.¹⁴⁸⁵ Moreover, Witness AJP's second-hand evidence that ESO soldiers killed the Maniraho family finds some circumstantial corroboration. Specifically, Defence Witness MOL08, an immediate neighbour of Maniraho, heard gunshots on the evening of 20 to 21 April 1994, was immediately informed that the Manirahos were killed, and later heard that ESO soldiers were the perpetrators.

573. However, Witness MOL08's evidence is of limited probative value. Witness MOL08 did not see the killings. While her watchman informed her of the Maniraho murders immediately after she heard gunshots, her evidence does not reflect him identifying the perpetrators.¹⁴⁸⁶ Instead, she later heard "neighbours" discuss that ESO soldiers were responsible. However, it is not clear how anyone identified the perpetrators as ESO soldiers.¹⁴⁸⁷

574. By contrast, Defence Witness Ntamagezo inferred that armed civilians or looters were responsible for the murder of Maniraho on 21 April 1994. The Chamber finds his account generally unreliable. Indeed, Witness Ntamagezo's testimony surrounding the circumstances of Maniraho's death is inconsistent with the evidence on the record. Notably, he is the only witness to suggest that Maniraho was killed outside of his household. According to Witness Ntamagezo, they were patrolling the neighbourhood, as part of their duties in the Military Police platoon, when they were eventually fired upon by armed looters, after which they killed two of the assailants.¹⁴⁸⁸ Despite the apparent shoot-out, with deadly consequences, Chief Warrant Officer Ntamuhanga only spoke to the looters and then let them go without arresting anyone or following up on the incident.¹⁴⁸⁹ This account does not ring true, particularly in light of the mandate of the Military Police platoon to provide security from the unrest and the looting.

575. By testifying to the presence of armed looters in the neighbourhood, the witness appears to shift the responsibility for the murder of the Maniraho family away from the soldiers and suggest instead that armed civilians had killed them. The Chamber has serious concerns about this evidence, which is unsupported by the record.¹⁴⁹⁰ These concerns are exasperated in light of evidence led by the Prosecution that Witness Ntamagezo had a close personal relationship with Nizeyimana, as they both had come from “the north”.¹⁴⁹¹

¹⁴⁹⁰ Indeed, there is Prosecution evidence that members of the unit Witness Ntamagezo was a part of was in fact participating in killings during the genocide. See Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, p. 10. Cf. Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, p. 56

576. Witness Ntamagezo then happened to see two corpses about 80 metres from where the shoot-out had taken place and was told by Ntamuhanga that one of the bodies was that of Maniraho. The witness did not know Maniraho prior to this incident and his identification of the body is based solely on hearsay and thus of limited probative value.¹⁴⁹²

577. The Chamber, having reviewed Witness Ntamagezo’s demeanour, did not find him credible. Furthermore, Witness Ntamagezo’s evidence about the date – 21 April 1994 – is not reliable. While he emphasised that it occurred on 21 April, he could not recall what day of the week that was, and his attempts to emphasise his basis for knowledge only grew more suspicious upon further examination.¹⁴⁹³ The Chamber observes that the witness admitted that did not keep a diary in which he took down notes at the time, and was therefore “not in a position to remember all the dates”.¹⁴⁹⁴ Indeed, Witness Ntamagezo was generally unable to provide specific dates for other incidents put to him, except dates critical to Nizeyimana’s defence.¹⁴⁹⁵ Given the totality of the circumstances, the Chamber finds that Witness Ntamagezo’s evidence lacks basic credibility.

578. Notwithstanding the unbelievability of Witness Ntamagezo’s evidence, other evidence in the record provides no further clarity as to who the perpetrators were. The mere proximity of Nizeyimana’s home to the crime scene fails to demonstrate his involvement in or control over the perpetrators. Indeed, another significant military commander, Ildéphonse Hategekimana, commander of the Ngoma Camp, lived just as close.¹⁴⁹⁶

579. Given the need to view Witness AJP’s evidence with caution, the second-hand nature of his account and the absence of sufficient corroboration, the Chamber is unable to determine who killed the Maniraho family beyond reasonable doubt. Consequently, the record also fails to demonstrate that Nizeyimana can be held criminally responsible for these crimes.¹⁴⁹⁷

6.5 Killing of Pierre Karenzi and Alphonsine Mukamusoni

Introduction

580. The Indictment alleges that around 21 April 1994, Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to kill Professor Pierre Claver Karenzi, a Tutsi, at the roadblock outside Hotel Faucon in Butare town, and that soldiers acting on his orders or authority did so. On the same day, FAR soldiers acting under the authority or orders of Nizeyimana, also went to Karenzi's home and killed his wife, Alphonsine Mukamusoni. Prosecution Witnesses ZBA, AZM, AZD, Laurien Ntezimana and ZBE provided relevant evidence.¹⁴⁹⁸

581. The Defence argues that the soldiers who killed Karenzi and Mukamusoni were members of the Presidential Guards posted at Séraphin Bararengana's house, rather than ESO soldiers. Moreover, Nizeyimana was not present in Butare during the relevant dates but was instead posted at the Mata training centre in Gikongoro. Lastly, the Defence challenges the credibility of Prosecution Witnesses AZM, AZD and ZBH. Defence Witnesses Rose Nyirasafari, BEJ01, Emmanuel Habyarimana and Aggripine Nyiranzabonimana provided relevant evidence.¹⁴⁹⁹

Prosecution Witness ZBA

582. Witness ZBA, a Tutsi staying at the Karenzi house in April 1994, testified that Professor Pierre Karenzi was a Tutsi lecturer at the National University of Rwanda.¹⁵⁰⁰ On 21 April, Karenzi received a telephone call warning him that people were coming to attack his house.¹⁵⁰¹ He told the children, including Witness ZBA, to hide in the ceiling, which they did.¹⁵⁰² The assailants arrived that day around 3.00 p.m. and took Karenzi with them.¹⁵⁰³ Before abducting Karenzi, Witness ZBA heard them ask Karenzi where his wife and children were.¹⁵⁰⁴ Karenzi called out to his wife who was present, but he responded that his children were not there.¹⁵⁰⁵ The assailants then left with Karenzi and Witness ZBA never saw him again after this incident.¹⁵⁰⁶

583. The attackers subsequently returned to the Karenzi house that day, where they asked Karenzi's wife, Alphonsine Mukamusoni, for money.¹⁵⁰⁷ From her hiding place in the ceiling,

Witness ZBA heard Mukamusoni respond that she had already given it all away.¹⁵⁰⁸ The assailants then entered the house and called their colleagues, who the witness was later told were guards of President Juvénal Habyarimana's brother, Bararengana, who lived nearby.¹⁵⁰⁹ The witness overheard the intruders express confusion over Mukamusoni's ethnicity, noting that her nose did not look like a Tutsi.¹⁵¹⁰ However, a neighbour named Vincent confirmed that she was a Tutsi.¹⁵¹¹ A few moments later, the witness heard two gunshots and the attackers discussing not having asked Mukamusoni for the whereabouts of the television before having killed her.¹⁵¹² The assailants left in their vehicles.¹⁵¹³ When she came out of her hiding place in the ceiling, Witness ZBA saw Mukamusoni dead on the floor.¹⁵¹⁴

Prosecution Witness AZM

584. Witness AZM, a Hutu, was a member of the prefecture security committee in Butare in April 1994.¹⁵¹⁵ He knew Karenzi was a Tutsi Professor at the National University of Rwanda and an MRND member.¹⁵¹⁶ On an unspecified date, the witness saw Karenzi standing with a soldier at the roadblock outside Hotel Faucon, as the soldier was checking Karenzi's "luggage and documents".¹⁵¹⁷ When the witness returned to the same roadblock 20 minutes later, he saw Karenzi's body by the roadblock and was told by a soldier that he had just killed Karenzi with two bullets.¹⁵¹⁸ The soldier explained that Karenzi was in the possession of documents that were critical of a "given" organisation.¹⁵¹⁹

585. Witness AZM believed that the soldier who killed Karenzi was from the ESO, as he was told by Tharcisse Muvunyi at a meeting at the Huye stadium on 14 April 1994 that the soldiers in charge of this roadblock were from the ESO.¹⁵²⁰ He further noted that the soldier who was manning this roadblock was "clearly" a soldier from the ESO, "[b]ased on the information that [he] had, and taking into account his [young] age".¹⁵²¹

Prosecution Witness AZD

586. In April 1994, Witness AZD, a Tutsi bearing a Hutu identity card, was a non-commissioned officer at the ESO.¹⁵²² He explained that Professor Karenzi was a well-known Tutsi professor who served on the central committee of the MRND party.¹⁵²³ Sometime after 19 April, Witness AZD saw Karenzi's body as he was passing through the roadblock in front of Hotel Faucon.¹⁵²⁴ The soldier manning this roadblock was a first sergeant from the ESO, whose name he no longer recalled.¹⁵²⁵ Civilians were also posted at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.¹⁵²⁶

Prosecution Witness Laurien Ntezimana

587. Witness Ntezimana, a Hutu, lived in Ngoma about three kilometres from the centre of Butare town and was in charge of the theological animation at the Catholic diocese in Butare in April 1994.¹⁵²⁷ Some time before 19 April, he received a phone call informing him that Professor Karenzi had been killed in front of Hotel Faucon.¹⁵²⁸ He did not witness the incident.¹⁵²⁹ Witness Ntezimana thought that the soldiers manning the roadblock at Hotel Faucon were from the ESO.¹⁵³⁰

588. Witness Ntezimana recounted how, on one occasion, a soldier manning the Hotel Faucon roadblock refused to let him pass, despite orders from Lieutenant Ildéphonse Hategekimana.¹⁵³¹ The soldier replied that he did not have to abide by Hategekimana's orders.¹⁵³² A warrant officer, who the witness believed was from the ESO, arrived and asked the soldier to let Witness Ntezimana pass.¹⁵³³ The soldier then allowed him through.¹⁵³⁴ The witness inferred from the soldier's responses that he was from the ESO rather than Ngoma Camp.¹⁵³⁵

Vincent Ntezimana and the witness tried to ensure the security in their neighbourhood and its surrounding streets.¹⁵³⁷ On a Wednesday, around 22 April, he placed a phone call to Karenzi, during which they both expressed that they were worried.¹⁵³⁸ They arranged to meet the following day, but Karenzi was killed in front of Hotel Faucon before the appointment took place.¹⁵³⁹

Defence Witness Rose Nyirasafari

590. Witness Nyirasafari, who has been married to Nizeyimana since 1995, was a student at the National University of Rwanda, living in Butare town in April 1994.¹⁵⁴⁰ She knew Professor Karenzi and had gone to primary school with his daughter, Solange.¹⁵⁴¹ One day, she saw more than five Presidential Guard soldiers escorting Karenzi in the direction of Hotel Faucon.¹⁵⁴² The witness recognised the faces of two of the soldiers as Presidential Guards who had guarded the home of her neighbour, Doctor Bararengana, the brother of President Juvénal Habyarimana.¹⁵⁴³ The following day, the witness told Solange, who came to see her, that she had seen her father escorted by soldiers the previous day.¹⁵⁴⁴ Solange confirmed that Karenzi had been killed near Hotel Faucon.¹⁵⁴⁵

Defence Witness BEJ01

591. Witness BEJ01, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in 1994.¹⁵⁴⁶ He heard on the evening of 21 April that Karenzi, a Tutsi whom the witness considered a friend, had been killed.¹⁵⁴⁷ He telephoned the Karenzi house, but there was no answer.¹⁵⁴⁸ The following day, on 22 April, he visited the Karenzi house and observed Karenzi's wife, Alphonsine Mukamuzoni's corpse on the floor.¹⁵⁴⁹

Witness BEJ01 was given a list by his colleagues at the university which contained the names of approximately 50 to 70 families, including Professor Karenzi's family, who wanted to flee Butare by bus.¹⁵⁵⁰ He summarised the list and gave it to the Vice-Rector of the Butare University, Jean Berchmans, around 12 April.¹⁵⁵¹ The majority of the families contained on that list survived, leading the witness to note that Karenzi and his family were killed for "other reasons".¹⁵⁵²

593. In April 1994, Witness Habyarimana, a Hutu, was an S2/S3 military officer, who was the director of studies at École Supérieure Militaire in Kigali and responsible for training officers for the war effort.¹⁵⁵³ On 21 April in the evening, the witness took his family and brought them to a house at the ESO Camp.¹⁵⁵⁴ The following morning on 22 April, he passed by Hotel Ibis and saw the bodies of people who had been killed there, including Professor Karenzi, who was the witness's former physics lecturer.¹⁵⁵⁵ A former classmate, named Gatwaza, and many others were among the dead.¹⁵⁵⁶ It was evident to him that the bodies had been shot and killed early that morning.¹⁵⁵⁷

594. While the witness was standing there, Lieutenant Colonel Nteziryayo passed by the Hotel and together they condemned the death of those people.¹⁵⁵⁸ The passersby did not know who killed the people, but informed Habyarimana that they had come early in the morning, killed the people, and had been dressed in banana leaves.¹⁵⁵⁹ From where the witness was standing at the Hotel Ibis, he could not see any soldiers or gendarmes in the immediate vicinity.¹⁵⁶⁰ He informed Muvunyi of the incident, who said he would "carry on with the matter".¹⁵⁶¹

595. In April 1994, Witness Nyiranzabonimana, a Hutu, was a school teacher living in Buye cellule, Butare town.¹⁵⁶² On 21 April, the witness heard that Professor Karenzi had been killed in front of Hotel Faucon.¹⁵⁶³

Deliberations

596. The Prosecution and Defence evidence confirms that Professor Pierre Claver Karenzi, a Tutsi civilian, was killed around 21 April 1994, and that his wife, Alphonsine Mukamusoni was killed the same day at their house. Assailants abducted Karenzi from his home in Butare and killed him. The record further establishes that Mukamusoni was killed on the same day.

597. In this context, the Chamber must determine whether ESO soldiers killed Karenzi and Mukamusoni, or if Nizeyimana can be held criminally responsible for the killings. The Chamber shall address these issues in turn.

(i) Killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi

598. The Prosecution argues that ESO soldiers abducted Karenzi from his house and killed him at a roadblock in front of Hotel Faucon on 21 April 1994. It points to evidence from Witness ZBA, who was at the house when Karenzi was taken and heard the assailants remove him from the residence. Witness AZM saw Karenzi standing with a soldier at the roadblock outside Hotel Faucon, as the soldier was checking Karenzi's "luggage and documents".¹⁵⁶⁴ When he returned to the same roadblock 20 minutes later, he saw Karenzi's corpse, and a soldier who checked him stated that he had just killed Karenzi with two bullets.¹⁵⁶⁵ Similarly, Witness AZD saw Karenzi's corpse at the Hotel Faucon roadblock around the date offered by Witness ZBA, which was manned by ESO soldiers. Finally, Witnesses ZBE and Ntezimana heard that Karenzi had been killed at the Hotel Faucon roadblock around the same time described by Witness ZBA, but were not present when this occurred and did not see his corpse there.

599. At the outset, the Chamber observes that there is no direct evidence regarding Nizeyimana having ordered or instigated this killing. The Prosecution refers to Witness BEJ01 to show that the Karenzi family was specifically targeted. The Chamber notes that it has elsewhere considered in detail the context in which Witness BEJ01 testified. It concluded that his evidence should be approached with the appropriate caution.¹⁵⁶⁶ The same concerns exist in relation to this allegation. Notably, Witness BEJ01 was convicted, and is currently serving his sentence for his involvement in the murder of Karenzi and may therefore seek to mitigate or present in a more favourable light the events surrounding the killing of the ¹⁵⁶³ Witness Nyiranzabonimana, T. 10 June 2011, pp. 3, 13. Witness Nyiranzabonimana did not know the Karenzi family; she had simply heard that Professor Karenzi had been killed in front of Hotel Faucon.

¹⁵⁶⁴ Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 74, 76. When asked to provide examples of roadblocks in Butare manned by soldiers, Witness AZM noted that the roadblock outside Hotel Faucon was one such an example. T. 20 January 2011, p. 73.

¹⁵⁶⁶ See II.6.1.

Karenzi family.¹⁵⁶⁷ Likewise, he had a close personal relationship with Nizeyimana, which is relevant to the assessment of his general credibility.¹⁵⁶⁸

600. The Chamber notes that Witness BEJ01's evidence is second-hand and does not reveal any knowledge on his part regarding the identity of the killers. Witness BEJ01 recounts how he compiled a list of people wishing to flee Butare, which included Karenzi's family. He presented this list to the Vice-Rector of the Butare University, Jean Berchmans Nshimiyumuremyi at a meeting around 12 April 1994.¹⁵⁶⁹ The Prosecution, however, presented no further evidence connecting the list to Nizeyimana's involvement in the killing of Karenzi or Mukamuzoni.¹⁵⁷⁰ This evidence is therefore far from dispositive.

601. Turning to evidence regarding Karenzi's abduction, Witness ZBA is the only Prosecution witness to testify directly to this issue. Notably, she was hiding in the ceiling of Karenzi's home when Karenzi was removed from it and could not visually identify the assailants. The Defence does not challenge Witness ZBA's evidence or general credibility.¹⁵⁷¹ Witness ZBA's family and the Karenzi's were friends, and she was also friends with Karenzi's daughter, Solange.¹⁵⁷² She had been staying at the Karenzi household since January 1994.¹⁵⁷³ It is evident that she knew the family and was close with them. Moreover, Witness ZBA fled with the Karenzi children to the Benebikira convent after the attack on the house, where she met Witness QCQ.¹⁵⁷⁴ The Chamber finds her evidence to be clear, unembellished and consistent with other testimonies.

602. Since she did not see the assailants, Witness ZBA's identification was limited to having heard them "call for their colleagues" when they returned to the house after abducting Karenzi.¹⁵⁷⁵ According to her testimony, the colleagues "were said to be Bararengana's guards".¹⁵⁷⁶ However, the witness did not describe the source or timing of this identifying information and no further questions were posed in this regard. Consequently, her evidence concerning the identification of the assailants is of limited probative value.

¹⁵⁶⁷ See Exhibit P52 (Judgement), pp. 30, 42. Witness BEJ01 was acquitted of the murder of Mukamuzoni. Witness BEJ01's conviction of the murder of Karenzi was on the basis of compiling "lists of individuals". The judgement does not provide any further details of the witness's exact involvement in the murder, other than noting that Witness BEJ01 committed intentional homicide on the person of Karenzi.

¹⁵⁶⁹ See Witness BEJ01, T. 9 June 2011, pp. 27-29; Exhibit P52 (Judgement, June 2001), pp. 43-44.

¹⁵⁷⁰ The Chamber notes that the Prosecution refers to the creation of lists of students, which were handed over to the Vice-Rector of the University, Jean-Berchmans Nshimiyumuremyi, at a meeting during which Nizeyimana was present. See Witness ZCB, T. 17 January 2011, pp. 32-34. However, it is not clear from the evidence whether this relates to the same list created by Witness BEJ01. In fact, Witness BEJ01's list was drawn up around 12 April 1994, whereas the meeting to which Witness ZCB referred took place "some days prior" to the attack on the university on 21 April. There is thus nothing in the record that shows that these lists were one and the same.

¹⁵⁷¹ The Defence elected not to cross-examine Witness ZBA, and it did not challenge her evidence in its Closing Brief or during Closing Arguments. See Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 20; Defence Closing Brief, paras. 274, 288, 290; T. 7 December 2011, p. 59 (Defence Closing Arguments).

¹⁵⁷⁴ Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, pp. 13, 17. See also II.11.

¹⁵⁷⁵ Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 9. Witness ZBA noted that she heard the attackers leave with Karenzi and stated "[t]hen the attackers came back and asked Karenzi's wife for money." The Chamber infers from this statement that she thought the attackers who returned were the same as those who had abducted Karenzi and left the house before.

¹⁵⁷⁶ Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 9.

603. The evidence of Defence Witness Nyirasafari tends to confirm Witness ZBA's second-hand evidence that Karenzi was taken by "Bararengana's guards". Specifically, Witness Nyirasafari testified that she saw Karenzi being taken away by Presidential Guards, who had been guarding Bararengana's house since 1992.¹⁵⁷⁷ However, as Nizeyimana's wife, the Chamber considers that Witness Nyirasafari had a clear incentive to testify in favour of her husband, and implicate soldiers who had no ostensible link to him. The Chamber therefore has concerns about the partiality of this witness. Furthermore, the Prosecution presented other evidence of Witness Nyirasafari's potential extremism and her close ties to former President Théodore Sindikubwabo.¹⁵⁷⁸ This raises further concerns about her general credibility.

604. Of greater significance, Witness Nyirasafari's evidence about observing soldiers was brief and non-descript. The absence of details explaining her point of reference is particularly concerning. Specifically, the witness did not identify the exact date and time of day when she saw Karenzi being escorted away by the soldiers. She simply noted that she was able to witness the event, as "[she] lived not far from the road, and [she] could see the road from [her] house".¹⁵⁷⁹ Her lack of detail in describing the event raises questions about the quality of her evidence. The ambiguities within her testimony, when viewed in light of the Chamber's concerns about her partiality, render it far from dispositive.

605. In light of the above, the record is ambiguous as to the identity of the assailants who came to the Karenzi household and removed him. The record could reasonably reflect that Presidential Guards were the perpetrators, although this is not certain. Moreover, reasonable doubts exist that soldiers from the ESO Camp removed Karenzi from his house. Nevertheless, the Chamber is satisfied that the evidence demonstrates that Karenzi was abducted and killed around 21 April 1994.¹⁵⁸⁰ The Chamber will next to turn to evaluate the circumstances of Karenzi's murder. In particular, the Chamber must determine where Karenzi was killed and by whom. These issues shall be addressed in turn.

606. Prosecution Witnesses AZM and AZD both testified that they passed through the roadblock in front of Hotel Faucon, where they saw Karenzi's body. At the outset, the Chamber is satisfied that both witnesses were in a position to accurately identify Karenzi in April 1994. Indeed, Witness AZM knew Karenzi and noted that he was a professor at the ¹⁵⁷⁹ Witness Nyirasafari, T. 16 June 2011, p. 38.

¹⁵⁸⁰ Witness AZM and AZD did not specify the exact date they saw Karenzi's corpse, though Witness AZD thought it was sometime "after the 19th of April". Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 77-78. Witness AZD later suggested it may have been after the beginning of May. Witness AZD's timing of the event appears highly compelling in light of other evidence in the record. Specifically, Witness ZBA, who was present in the house when Karenzi was abducted, noted that this occurred on 21 April. Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, pp. 8-9. Her recollection of the exact date and time of the event is compelling, in light of the highly personal nature of the abduction and subsequently killings around her. Furthermore, while Witness ZBE believed that he spoke to Karenzi on 22 April 1994, he recalled that the day was a Wednesday, which actually fell on 20 April. He too testified that Karenzi was dead by the following day, which would have been 21 April. Exhibit P40C (E) (Witness ZBE's Pro Justitia Statement), p. 5. Furthermore, Defence Witness Nyiranzabonimana heard that Karenzi had been killed during the day in front of Hotel Faucon on 21 April and Defence Witness BEJ01 heard that Karenzi was killed on 21 April 1994 and then went to their house the following day. Witness Nyiranzabonimana, T. 10 June 2011, pp. 3, 13; Witness BEJ01, T. 9 June 2011, pp. 30-32; see also II.6.4.

university and a member of the MRND.¹⁵⁸¹ Similarly, Witness AZD knew Karenzi well, as he had gotten to know some university professors and regularly met with them, including Karenzi.¹⁵⁸² Moreover, Karenzi was a well-known man in Butare due to his membership of the central committee of the MRND.¹⁵⁸³

607. Before assessing the evidence of Witnesses AZM and AZD in further detail, the Chamber shall consider general challenges to their credibility as well as alleged inconsistencies as it relates to this event. The Defence presented evidence that Witness AZM lied on orders of the Rwandan government to protect people and that he implicated others in crimes to obtain privileges while in prison as a member of the Ukuri committee.¹⁵⁸⁴ The Chamber shall address these allegations in turn.

608. Witness AZM was incarcerated at the time of his testimony and his status as an accomplice witness may warrant that his evidence be treated with appropriate caution. Notwithstanding, the Chamber does not consider that his position within the Ukuri committee necessarily reflects that his evidence is fabricated or unreliable. Notably, Witness AZM denied having to provide the names of “important” people in order for his guilty pleas to be accepted, and the Defence presented no further evidence in support of this allegation.¹⁵⁸⁵

609. Moreover, the Defence presented evidence that Witness AZM purposefully withheld the names “of people who were in positions of responsibility in the country” in order for his guilty pleas to be accepted.¹⁵⁸⁶ Specifically, when testifying about having drinks with officials on 6 April 1994 in court, Witness AZM admitted to having purposefully omitted the presence of Gatsinzi and Habyarabatura in a 2002 statement to Tribunal investigators, because he was “compelled not to mention the names of officials at the time [they] were making statements because the authorities had forbidden [them] from doing so”.¹⁵⁸⁷ His admitted willingness to misleadingly omit relevant information to Tribunal investigators, however reasonable his explanation, warrants that his evidence be treated with caution.

610. Turning to Witness AZD, the Chamber notes that it has elsewhere considered in detail the general context in which he testified.¹⁵⁸⁸ The same general credibility considerations apply with equal force as it relates to this allegation. The Chamber finds no ostensible reasons for viewing his evidence with caution.

611. The Chamber shall now turn to the merits of Witnesses AZM and AZD’s evidence in relation to Karenzi’s killing. Witness AZM testified that he saw Karenzi alive, standing next to a soldier at this roadblock when he passed through there one day.¹⁵⁸⁹ When he returned 20

¹⁵⁸³ Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, p. 77.

¹⁵⁸⁴ Defence Closing Brief, paras. 282-284. The Defence further suggests that Witness AZM, as a former member of the prefect security committee, had an interest in blaming “others” to avoid the wrath of the Rwandan government with regard to the committee. Defence Closing Brief, para. 279. It brought no clear evidence supporting this charge.

¹⁵⁸⁵ See Witness AZM, T. 24 January 2011, p. 37. The Chamber has assessed in greater detail implications of being a member of the Ukuri committee elsewhere and has considered it here. See II.6.1.

¹⁵⁸⁸ See II.4.1.

¹⁵⁸⁹ Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 74, 76. (“Q. Mr. Witness, when you first passed through that roadblock, what was Karenzi doing at that time? A. He wasn’t doing anything, he was just standing next to that soldier.”) (Emphasis added). The Chamber notes the use of “that” soldier, suggesting that the soldier who minutes later, the soldier who checked him told him that he had just shot Karenzi dead with two bullets.¹⁵⁹⁰ He told Witness AZM that Karenzi was carrying tracts, which the witness understood to be a document in a file Karenzi was carrying.¹⁵⁹¹ Witness AZM confirmed Karenzi's death, as he could see Karenzi's body.¹⁵⁹² Furthermore, Witness AZD also walked through the Hotel Faucon roadblock and saw Karenzi's body in its immediate vicinity.¹⁵⁹³ However, neither saw his murder occur.

612. The Chamber notes the circumstantial and second-hand nature of the evidence provided by both witnesses. While Witness AZM saw Karenzi's body at the Hotel Faucon roadblock, he did not see the actual killing and was only told the circumstances under which he was killed – namely shot with two bullets – by the soldier standing there. Similarly, Witness AZD only saw Karenzi's body at the roadblock as he was passing through, but did not specify the manner in which he was murdered or the timing thereof.

613. Notwithstanding, other evidence tends to support what is suggested by the testimonies of Witnesses AZM and AZD – namely, Karenzi was killed at or in the immediate vicinity of the Hotel Faucon roadblock. Specifically, Prosecution and Defence evidence confirms that Karenzi left his house alive.¹⁵⁹⁴ Furthermore, Prosecution Witnesses Ntezimana, ZBE and Defence Witnesses Nyirasafari and Nyiranzabonimana all heard that Karenzi had been killed at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.

614. One witness, Defence Witness Habyarimana, observed Karenzi's body elsewhere. Karenzi was his former lecturer of physics at the Butare University, so he knew him well and was in a position to recognise him.¹⁵⁹⁵ The witness – unlike every other witness who testified about this event – stated that he saw Karenzi's body from where he was standing in front of Hotel Ibis, rather than the Hotel Faucon.¹⁵⁹⁶ The Chamber notes that Hotel Ibis and Hotel Faucon are both situated on Butare's main road that runs through town.¹⁵⁹⁷ The close proximity of the hotels to each other would have possibly allowed the witness to see Karenzi's body from where he was standing at Hotel Ibis. The Chamber does not consider that his evidence reasonably amounts to a discrepancy with other evidence that Karenzi was killed near the Hotel Faucon.

615. Having considered the Defence evidence, the circumstantial and hearsay evidence of Witnesses AZM and AZD that Karenzi was killed at or in the immediate vicinity of the Hotel Faucon roadblock is compelling. Indeed, the record before the Chamber generally reflects that roadblocks were a locus for the killing operations against Tutsis, who were killed at the hands of soldiers and militia alike.¹⁵⁹⁸ Given Witness AZM's testimony that he saw Karenzi confessed to Witness AZM that he just killed Karenzi, was the same soldier whom Karenzi had been standing next to when passing by the roadblock the first time. However, Witness AZM was not asked to confirm whether this was indeed the same soldier he had seen standing with Karenzi the first time he passed through. The Chamber therefore cannot state with certainty that the soldier whom Witness AZM saw with Karenzi when he was alive and the soldier who told him he had shot Karenzi was one and the same.

alive at the Hotel Faucon roadblock, other evidence that Karenzi's body was seen near it, and further evidence that Karenzi was killed at it, the Chamber is satisfied, based on the totality of the evidence, that Karenzi was killed at or in the immediate vicinity of the Hotel Faucon roadblock. The Chamber shall now address the identity of those who killed Karenzi.

616. As noted above, Witness AZM identified the soldier who he saw detaining Karenzi and who later told the witness that he killed Karenzi as an ESO soldier. He relied on the fact that Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi told him at a meeting at Huye stadium on 14 April 1994 that the roadblock in front of Hotel Faucon was manned by ESO soldiers. Moreover, Witness AZM often walked through this roadblock and noted that the soldiers manning it were "clearly" ESO soldiers. When he spoke to the soldier who admitted to having killed Karenzi, Witness AZM knew at once that he was from ESO, based on "information available to him" and the young age of the soldier.¹⁵⁹⁹ The Chamber notes that the soldier who spoke to him was in the process of checking Witness AZM as he passed through the roadblock.¹⁶⁰⁰

617. While the witness did not mention the time of day when this occurred, his immediate proximity and unobstructed view of the soldier provide strong support for his ability to identify him.¹⁶⁰¹ Moreover, Witness AZM had walked by the Hotel Faucon roadblock twice within a short period of time, allowing him more time to identify the soldiers present. The Chamber further considers that Witness AZM's prominent role in law enforcement in Butare town prior to and during April 1994 strengthen his ability to distinguish among various soldiers in Butare at that time. Indeed, he also referred to his position on the prefecture security committee as further evidence of his involvement with military figures.¹⁶⁰² Based on the foregoing, the Chamber considers his identification of the soldier who admitted to killing Karenzi as an ESO soldier highly reliable.

618. Consistent with Witness AZM's testimony, there is considerable evidence that ESO soldiers manned this particular roadblock around this time. Notably, Witness AZD, himself an ESO soldier, saw other ESO soldiers, including a first sergeant whose name he no longer recalled, manning the roadblock when he saw Karenzi's body there.¹⁶⁰³ The Defence does not dispute, nor does the Chamber have any doubt, that Witness AZD, a non-commissioned ESO soldier in 1994, would have been in a position to identify ESO soldiers at the roadblock.¹⁶⁰⁴

619. Moreover, various other Prosecution witnesses identified ESO soldiers at the Hotel Faucon roadblock around this time period.¹⁶⁰⁵ While two Defence witnesses deny the presence of ESO soldiers at this roadblock, instead suggesting that only civilians manned this location,¹⁶⁰⁶ the Chamber finds that, read collectively, the record undoubtedly demonstrates that ESO soldiers were present at the Hotel Faucon roadblock when Karenzi was killed at or in the immediate vicinity of it around 21 April 1994.

620. Having determined that ESO soldiers manned the Hotel Faucon roadblock when Karenzi was killed at or in the immediate vicinity of it, the Chamber must now turn to the identity of the killers. As noted above, no witness provided a first-hand account of Karenzi's murder. Notably, Witness AZM saw Karenzi alive, being questioned by an ESO soldier who about 20 minutes later told the witness that he had shot and killed Karenzi with two bullets. Defence Witness Habyarimana mentioned seeing people he knew, including Karenzi, "who had been shot dead", offering circumstantial corroboration for Witness AZM's account of the manner in which Karenzi was killed.¹⁶⁰⁷

621. The Chamber views Witness AZM's testimony with appropriate caution and notes that his account that an ESO soldier killed Karenzi is both circumstantial and hearsay. However, considerable circumstantial support renders it highly credible, and the Chamber finds it believable beyond reasonable doubt.¹⁶⁰⁸ First, it is undisputed that ESO soldiers were present at the Hotel Faucon roadblock around 21 April 1994 when Karenzi was killed.

¹⁶⁰⁶ Defence Witness Ntamagezo, T. 8 June 2011, p. 61 (described a roadblock in front of Hotel Faucon around 21 April 1994, which was manned by civilians); Defence Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 9-10 (described passing through a roadblock in front of Hotel Faucon, manned by Interahamwe).

¹⁶⁰⁷ Witness Habyarimana, T. 25 May 2011, pp. 44-45. Witness AZM was not asked whether he saw the bullet wounds in Karenzi's body. He only testified that he in fact saw the body.

¹⁶⁰⁸ Mindful of the weaknesses in Witness AZM's evidence, the Chamber does not feel that Habyarimana's hearsay account that persons in banana leaves killed Karenzi raises further doubts. Habyarimana's evidence is significantly less probative than Witness AZM's. The source of Witness AZM's information was a soldier stationed at the roadblock who claimed to have observed the incident first-hand – indeed, stated that he killed the professor. By contrast, the basis of knowledge of the "passersby" who told Habyarimana, that persons in banana leaves killed Karenzi is unknown. See Witness Habyarimana, T. 25 May 2011, pp. 44 ("A. When we asked questions to passersby -- because this was in front of the Ibis and this is one of the major roads of the city -- they said that they didn't know who the killers were. They came early in the morning and they were dressed in -- in a certain type of clothing and then they killed people and they left."), 45 ("THE ENGLISH INTERPRETER: The witness said that the people who killed were dressed in banana leaves."). The possibility that their information is second-hand, or more attenuated, raises considerable doubts about its reliability.

Soldiers manning roadblocks were often armed, checking identities and, at times, participating in the killing of Tutsis.¹⁶⁰⁹

622. In the Chamber's view, the only reasonable conclusion is that Karenzi was shot and killed by an ESO soldier who was in charge of security at this roadblock. In so finding, the Chamber has considered that other evidence reflects that civilians acting on the orders of soldiers carried out killings at roadblocks. Given that Karenzi was shot, that Witness AZM saw the professor being detained by an ESO soldier (rather than civilians) and the fact that the ESO soldier admitted to killing Karenzi, the combination of the circumstantial and hearsay evidence eliminates the natural weaknesses that apply to each type of evidence when considered individually. Furthermore, the hearsay evidence is particularly strong given the directness of the source – i.e. the killer himself – the immediacy in which the information was shared with Witness AZM and the inculpatory nature of the information given by the soldier. This eliminates any reasonable doubts that the killer was anyone other than that ESO soldier.

623. The Chamber recalls that Witness BEJ01, a civilian, was convicted for the murder of Karenzi. The Chamber notes that the judgement does not elaborate on the manner in which Witness BEJ01 killed Karenzi or contributed to the killing of Karenzi.¹⁶¹⁰ In light of the evidence reflecting frequent collaboration between ESO soldiers and civilians in the murder of Tutsis, the Chamber does not consider that Witness BEJ01's conviction raises doubt that an ESO soldier positioned at the Hotel Faucon roadblock killed Karenzi. The Chamber shall discuss in its Legal Findings whether Nizeyimana may be held responsible for this killing.

(ii) Killing of Alphonsine Mukamusoni

624. There is no dispute that Alphonsine Mukamusoni was killed in her household around 21 April 1994. Witness ZBA saw her corpse on that day after hearing gunshots and the assailants leave. Similarly, Defence Witness BEJ01 called the house that day, and, having received no answer, went to the residence on 22 April and saw her dead.

625. The question remains as to who killed Alphonsine Mukamusoni. Notably, Witness ZBA was hiding in the ceiling when Mukamusoni was killed, and therefore was unable to visually identify the assailants. Likewise, she later heard from an unidentified source that the assailants were Presidential Guards, who were responsible for guarding Bararengana's house.¹⁶¹¹ As discussed above, Witness Nyirasafari testified – in relation to the Karenzi killing – that Presidential Guards escorted Karenzi from his house. In light of Witness ZBA's unexplained belief that those who abducted Karenzi returned and killed Mukamusoni, Witness Nyarisafari's account supports a reasonable inference that the same Presidential Guards returned to the home and killed Mukamusoni.

626. The Chamber has discussed the merits of this evidence above, noting its limited probative value. Nonetheless, the record fails to demonstrate that ESO soldiers ever went to Mukamusoni's house. It may be reasonable to conclude that Mukamusoni's killing was part of the same murder operation that led to Karenzi's death at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.

¹⁶⁰⁹ See II.7.1-II.7.3.

¹⁶¹⁰ See Exhibit P52 (Judgement), p. 42 (“by act or omission ... [c]omitted intentional homicide” on Karenzi).

¹⁶¹¹ Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 9. Witness ZBA's testimony indicates that she thought that Karenzi's abductors were the same people who came back to kill Mukamusoni. Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 9 (“We heard them leave and then tried to call for Karenzi's wife. When we called out for her, she told us to be quiet. Then the attackers came back and asked Karenzi's wife for money.”).

However, the killings occurred at two different locations. Furthermore, the involvement of ESO soldiers in Karenzi's death relies primarily on their fixed positions at the Hotel Faucon roadblock and the operations they carried out at that specific location. Consequently, the evidence reasonably allows for the possibility that the unidentified assailants – possibly Presidential Guards – returned to Mukamusoni's home and killed her without any knowing, significant or substantial contribution from ESO soldiers posted at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.

627. Moreover, the Prosecution evidence fails to directly implicate Nizeyimana in this murder. Accordingly, the Chamber is in no position to determine that Nizeyimana had a significant or substantial contribution to Mukamusoni's killing. The record fails to demonstrate that subordinates over whom Nizeyimana exercised effective control perpetrated this murder. This allegation is dismissed.

6.6 Killing of Matabaro, Nyirinkwaya and Others

Introduction

628. The Indictment alleges that, around 20 April 1994, Nizeyimana led ESO soldiers to the homes of Jean Baptiste Matabaro and Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya. Following the Accused's instructions, these soldiers forcibly removed and killed members of the Matabaro, Nyirinkwaya, Hitimana, Ntakirutinka and Nyandwi families, as well as others in a field near Jean Baptiste Matabaro's home. Prosecution Witnesses BZC, BXF, ZBJ, AJP, Rony Zachariah and AZM provided relevant evidence.¹⁶¹²

629. The Defence challenges the accuracy and consistency of the Prosecution evidence and points to alibi evidence suggesting that Nizeyimana was not in Butare town on the evening of the killings. Defence Witnesses MOL08, CKN20, Aggripine Nyiranzabonimana, RWV08, Irénée Hitayezu and KEN06 provided relevant evidence.¹⁶¹³

Prosecution Witness BZC

630. Starting around 6 April 1994, Witness BZC, a Tutsi, lived in the Matabaro compound, situated directly in front of Nizeyimana's home.¹⁶¹⁴ The witness was there with five members of his family as well as neighbours Ignace Nyandwi, his son Kevin and a babysitter, as well as other people he could not recall.¹⁶¹⁵ Around 6.00 p.m. on 22 April, about 10 ESO soldiers, wearing camouflage uniforms and black berets came to the house and told the approximately 20 people present, which did not include Matabaro, to leave.¹⁶¹⁶

631. As the witness exited, he saw Nizeyimana, from a metre away, wearing blue and white striped sports attire standing next to a soldier. The witness knew Nizeyimana, having regularly observed the captain in the neighbourhood during his current and prior visits to the Matabaro family.¹⁶¹⁷

Reference is made to the testimony of Witness Marie Paul Spielmann. See Defence Closing Brief, para. 215; Prosecution Closing Brief, paras. 411, 413. The Chamber observes that an excerpt from of a statement signed by Witness Spielmann and Witness Zachariah was read into the record. See Witness Spielmann, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 14-15. Given the reference to "myself and Marie Paule", it appears to have been written by Witness Zachariah. See T. 31 January 2011, p. 15. Witness Spielmann was asked to confirm only one aspect of the statement – whether the perpetrators were identified as the Presidential Guard and Interahamwe. T. 31 January 2011, p. 16. She testified that she kept records once arriving in Bujumbura. T. 31 January 2011, p. 16. The Chamber has elsewhere, at length, discussed the Tribunal's preference for live testimony and that the mere reading of a statement into a record does not transform it into live testimony. See II.3.4. The same logic applies here. The Chamber, consequently, considers the evidence of Witness Spielmann, but in light of the above, will not summarise it in the evidence section.

632. Once on the street, soldiers directed those leaving the Matabaro home to turn “right” and they entered the home of Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya.¹⁶¹⁸ However, five soldiers immediately ordered the group, and the 15 to 20 people at Nyirinkwaya’s home, to leave.¹⁶¹⁹

633. As the group continued to move through Butare town, two to three soldiers on every corner directed them to turn right, then left and followed by another left, until they reached a cul-de-sac.¹⁶²⁰ There, the witness saw four to five silhouettes wearing light-coloured clothing, standing approximately 150 to 200 metres away, who he believed were Jean Baptiste Matabaro, Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya, Ignace Nyandwi and Théodore Hitimana.¹⁶²¹ Immediately, the witness heard intermittent gunfire, then soldiers’ footsteps coming towards them. He heard someone shout “execute” followed by continuous gunshots aimed at the witness, as well as those who accompanied him, which included elderly women and toddlers. The attack lasted approximately 45 minutes.¹⁶²² About six to seven members of the group, including Witness BZC, escaped to a nearby bush where they remained throughout the night.¹⁶²³

634. Around 5.00 a.m. the following morning, 23 April 1994, the survivors returned to the Matabaro compound and from there they went to the Burundian neighbour’s house.¹⁶²⁴ Some of the injured were taken away by representatives of Médecins Sans Frontières, while the witness and the other remaining survivors escaped to Maraba commune.¹⁶²⁵

Prosecution Witness BXF

635. In April 1994, Witness BXF, who carried a Hutu identity card, was staying at the Matabaro household with about 30 other people in Buye cellule, Butare town.¹⁶²⁶ This home was in the immediate proximity of Nizeyimana’s residence.¹⁶²⁷ Witness BXF was unaware of the ethnicities of the other residents of Matabaro’s house.¹⁶²⁸

636. The witness believed that President Théodore Sindikubwabo met with government ministers and prefecture authorities on 20 April 1994, and he heard the President’s resulting speech. Consequently, the witness’s parents, feeling unsafe, planned to flee Butare with ¹⁶²³ Witness BZC, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 58-61. The survivors included: Mrs. Matabaro, who had been shot in the stomach; Nyirinkwaya’s son who had fallen badly in the gutter and said that he could not move; and a girl who had wounds to her chest and arm. Witness BZC’s father was killed in the attack. T. 22 February 2011, pp. 58-59, 61-62.

¹⁶²⁴ Witness BZC, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 59, 61. Witness BZC could not recall the name of the neighbour. T. 22 February 2011, p. 54.

¹⁶²⁵ Witness BZC, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 59, 61, 71-72, 74. Witness BZC testified that the injured boy and girl were taken away by the representatives of Médecins Sans Frontières and believes that his mother may have accompanied them to the hospital.

¹⁶²⁶ Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 4, 6, 8, 12, 16. Witness BXF did not disclose his ethnicity, explaining that he was never taught whether he was Hutu or Tutsi. T. 22 February 2011, pp. 9, 14, 24, 28, 50; see also Exhibit P33 (Witness BXF’s Personal Information Sheet).

Witness BXF.¹⁶²⁹ However, on the day after the speech, 21 April, a soldier, whom the witness recognised from Nizeyimana's backyard, entered Matabaro's home and ordered the persons present, which included the witness's mother, two brothers, three sisters, and the mothers and children of the Ntakirutinka and Hitimana families to stay there.¹⁶³⁰ The soldier left the house but stood nearby, guarding the premises.¹⁶³¹

637. Around 5.30 or 6.00 p.m. the following day, 22 April 1994, Nizeyimana arrived at the Matabaro house wearing blue "sports clothing" with white stripes.¹⁶³² Three or four soldiers in uniforms similar to those worn by soldiers the witness had previously seen posted at Nizeyimana's compound accompanied the captain.¹⁶³³ The soldiers ordered the witness, his mother, brothers, sisters, and the mother and children of the Ntakirutinka family to leave the house, stating they were searching for Inyenzis.¹⁶³⁴ Witness BXF then asked the soldiers whether they should show their identity cards, but the soldiers declined.¹⁶³⁵ As the soldiers were issuing orders, Witness BXF realised that his father and other male residents were missing, and he assumed that they had already been abducted.¹⁶³⁶

638. While the soldiers were searching the compound, the witness and the others with whom he had left the Matabaro home went to hide at the home of Sub Prefect "Zéphanie".¹⁶³⁷ Five minutes later, two soldiers arrived and directed the group along with Zéphanie's wife and children toward a soldier's house near bushes by the French cultural centre, where they were met by another group of soldiers.¹⁶³⁸ There, the soldiers opened fire, and the witness fell to the ground where he found his mother had been shot in the stomach.¹⁶³⁹ After about 10 minutes, the shooting stopped, and the witness heard a soldier say that they had to loot the victims' property and would return to "finish off" any survivors.¹⁶⁴⁰ Witness BXF left his mother behind and went to his neighbour's house for the night.¹⁶⁴¹

639. The following morning, at 5.00 a.m., the witness found his mother where he had left her in "critical condition". He also saw that his "brother" and "sisters" had been shot in their heads.¹⁶⁴² The witness went to get assistance from a doctor in the area, but while waiting on the road near a pit for an ambulance, soldiers in a truck arrived. They stated that they were looking for the "little Inyenzi", prompting the witness to flee.¹⁶⁴³

640. Next, Witness BXF sought help from Dr. Jotham, director of the Butare University Hospital. Dr. Jotham, resigned to the hopelessness of the situation, advised the witness that his mother was unlikely to survive.¹⁶⁴⁴ The witness stayed with the Jothams for the night, accepting that, in the interest of his own survival, he had to abandon his efforts to save his mother. His mother died from the shooting, along with his father, sister, and brothers.¹⁶⁴⁵

641. Dr. Jotham's wife arranged through General Marcel Gatsinzi's wife for the witness to stay with Gatsinzi's extended family who came from Kigali. The witness left after two weeks when a soldier wearing his father's watch threatened to take him out of the house.¹⁶⁴⁶ The witness went to stay with his aunt in Gikongoro, where he saw Nizeyimana several times. On each occasion, the captain was driving a red Volkswagen Jetta, which belonged to Matabaro in April 1994.¹⁶⁴⁷

Prosecution Witness ZBJ

642. In April 1994, Witness ZBJ, a Tutsi, lived with approximately 40 others in the Matabaro compound in Buye cellule, Butare town, which was in front of Nizeyimana's home.¹⁶⁴⁸ Between 5.30 and 6.00 p.m. on 22 April 1994, soldiers came to the Matabaro house and ordered everyone in it to leave. As the witness exited, she saw Nizeyimana about two to three steps away from her, standing in a blue "tracksuit".¹⁶⁴⁹ She knew Nizeyimana from having lived across the street from the captain for approximately two years.¹⁶⁵⁰ She also recognised some of the soldiers as guards from Nizeyimana's house.¹⁶⁵¹ There were about 10 soldiers in the compound.¹⁶⁵²

643. While it was still daylight, the witness and Matabaro's wife went to the neighbouring house of Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya. There she learned from Nyirinkwaya's wife that Matabaro, Nyirinkwaya and other men, who had been together on the balcony of the Matabaro compound, had been taken away by soldiers.¹⁶⁵³

644. More soldiers arrived stating, "[H]ow come those idiots came here? Get out. Get out immediately".¹⁶⁵⁴ The witness hid with her cousin under a bed in one of the children's rooms. Nyirinkwaya's wife briefly entered the room accompanied by soldiers, who the witness identified by reference to their military boots. After she left, the witness heard single gunshots followed by gunshots in “volleys”, lasting for about 45 minutes.¹⁶⁵⁵ She and her cousin remained under the bed throughout the night.¹⁶⁵⁶

645. On the morning of 23 April 1994, the witness and her cousin went to the neighbouring home of Ruzindaza, the President of the Court of First Instance.¹⁶⁵⁷ Although she knew the family well, Ruzindaza prohibited them from speaking to his wife, “Agrippine”.¹⁶⁵⁸ He told them to return to their compound and ordered them to leave immediately upon seeing one of her brothers.¹⁶⁵⁹ Outside, she found her brother accompanied by others, including one of her cousins, whose breast was exposed and had a wounded arm.¹⁶⁶⁰

646. They returned to the Matabaro compound. While there, Jean Marie Vianney Habyarabatuje, a friend of Matabaro’s, called the home and told the witness that he had heard that soldiers had attacked the compound and killed everyone.¹⁶⁶¹ He told her he would arrange to collect them with some soldiers from their neighbour’s house, a lecturer at the EAVK school.¹⁶⁶² When they arrived the lecturer panicked and left immediately.¹⁶⁶³ A short while later, Habyarabatuje arrived with unidentified “soldiers” in a “pickup truck”. The witness recognised one person among the soldiers as Nyiramasuhuko’s son, “Shalom”. Shalom asked whether they were Matabaro’s children, to which they responded no as they had all been killed.¹⁶⁶⁴ They then told the soldiers that they were maids after which they were escorted to the Maraba commune.¹⁶⁶⁵

647. Almost all the people living at the Matabaro home as well as the 10 to 15 persons living in the Nyirinkwaya compound were killed on 22 April 1994. The victims included the witness’s father, her mother, her younger brother and sister, her uncle, and many of her unidentified friends.¹⁶⁶⁶ The witness saw Nizeyimana again in Gikongoro in July in a red Volkswagen. The vehicle had belonged to Ignace Nyandwi, who was living at the Matabaro compound in April.¹⁶⁶⁷

Prosecution Witness AJP

648. Witness AJP, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in April 1994.¹⁶⁶⁸ He was a former ESO cadet with close ties to Nizeyimana, and noted that the captain’s home was directly behind the Matabaro compound and separated by only a fence.¹⁶⁶⁹ After 6 April, six ESO soldiers acted as Nizeyimana's personal escort and different ESO soldiers regularly came to property following 20 April.¹⁶⁷⁰

649. At an unspecified time, approximately two days prior to the attack on the Ngarambe family, which Witness AJP recalled took place on 24 or 25 April 1994, he was at Nizeyimana's home when he overheard Nizeyimana order soldiers to kill the Matabaro family.¹⁶⁷¹ The witness remained at Nizeyimana's house with Nizeyimana, while the soldiers left. The soldiers returned between 8.00 and 8.30 p.m. that evening and informed Nizeyimana that they had completed the task.¹⁶⁷²

650. Later, at an unspecified time, Nizeyimana ordered Witness AJP to go to the Matabaro compound and collect a Volkswagen Jetta vehicle.¹⁶⁷³ Witness AJP and Longin Rudasingwa took the vehicle to the Accused's house, and it was then transferred to the SORWAL premises by Rudasingwa, where it remained until Nizeyimana fled Butare.¹⁶⁷⁴ At that point, a SORWAL driver took the car to Cyangugu military camp, while the Accused followed in a military vehicle.¹⁶⁷⁵ While obtaining the vehicle from the Matabaro compound, the witness observed more than 10 corpses on the road leading to the EFOTEC near the Matabaro property.¹⁶⁷⁶

651. Witness Zachariah, a Luxembourg national, was a doctor for Médecins Sans Frontières working in Butare from on 20 February until 24 April 1994 and lived in the Buye area.¹⁶⁷⁷ On the morning of 22 April, Witness Zachariah drove to Sub Prefect Zéphanie's house to pick him up for a meeting.¹⁶⁷⁸ Coming from Buye cellule, the witness observed several bodies outside Zéphanie's house and got out to examine them.¹⁶⁷⁹ Then Zéphanie's sister-in-law ran to the witness, displaying a bullet wound in her chest.¹⁶⁸⁰ She said that the Interahamwe and a soldier of the Presidential Guard came to her home the previous night around 10.00 p.m., removed and killed her family members.¹⁶⁸¹ As Zéphanie's sister-in-law was explaining, Witness Zachariah heard Zéphanie's son groaning in nearby gutter.¹⁶⁸² Witness Zachariah found him with a bullet wound through his femur.¹⁶⁸³

652. Witness Zachariah directed Zéphanie's sister-in-law to get into his vehicle and put Zéphanie's son in the vehicle as well. Two young soldiers, wearing plain green uniforms and

Prosecution Witness AZM

653. Witness AZM, a Hutu, was a member of the prefecture security committee in Butare in April 1994.¹⁶⁸⁷ He knew Jean Baptiste Matabaro, as they both worked under the ministry of justice, and he knew of the Matabaro family.¹⁶⁸⁸ The witness heard from a source that Matabaro, along with about 12 others, was taken by surprise at Matabaro’s home and killed “before the actual genocide started in the Butare area”.¹⁶⁸⁹ Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya, the sub prefect in charge of social welfare, was among those murdered.¹⁶⁹⁰ Most of the residents of Butare heard gunshots during the night of the attack and were curious to know what had happened.¹⁶⁹¹

Defence Witness Aggripine Nyiranzabonimana

654. Witness Nyiranzabonimana, a Hutu, was a teacher in April 1994 and lived in Buye cellule, Butare town on the same street as Matabaro, Nizeyimana and Sub Prefect Zéphanie.¹⁶⁹² She was friends with the Matabaros and taught three of their children at Ngoma primary school. She had observed from their information forms that the children were Hutu.¹⁶⁹³ Though she did not know Sub Prefect Zéphanie well, she also believed that he was Hutu.¹⁶⁹⁴

655. On the evening of 21 April 1994, the witness and her husband, Jean Baptiste Ruzindaza, returned home early, having heard gunshots the previous evening and learning of the deaths of the Maniraho family.¹⁶⁹⁵ After 8.00 p.m., the witness and Ruzindaza heard people passing outside their house, followed by about five minutes of gunshots.¹⁶⁹⁶ While the witness remained in the bedroom, Ruzindaza went to living room and called Nizeyimana seeking an explanation. He was informed that Nizeyimana was not there that night.¹⁶⁹⁷

656. Around 5.00 a.m. the following morning, State Prosecutor Bushishi phoned and informed Ruzindaza that Matabaro and his family had been murdered.¹⁶⁹⁸ Ruzindaza then went outside, and saw bodies strewn along the road. Ruzindaza phoned Nizeyimana again, but Nizeyimana's wife told him that Nizeyimana was not home.¹⁶⁹⁹ Still searching for an explanation, Ruzindaza called prison management, who informed him that Sub Prefect Zéphanie had also been killed that night.¹⁷⁰⁰

657. A few days after the incident, Witness Nyiranzabonimana saw one of Matabaro's sons at Dr. Jotham's house on her way to and from the market.¹⁷⁰¹ Without explanation, she believed one of Matabaro's daughters also survived the shooting on 21 April 1994.¹⁷⁰² The witness was unsure as to whether any of Zéphanie's family members survived.¹⁷⁰³

Defence Witness Irénée Hitayezu

658. Witness Hitayezu, a Hutu, was an ESO cadet and returned from vacation to the ESO Camp on 20 April 1994.¹⁷⁰⁴ Upon arrival, the witness's unidentified superior assigned him to reinforce guards at Nizeyimana's residence.¹⁷⁰⁵ He held this post from 20 to 23 April, beginning at 6.00 p.m. each evening and continuing through the night.¹⁷⁰⁶ Nizeyimana's family was present during that time.¹⁷⁰⁷ However, Nizeyimana only stayed at his home on the night of 23 to 24 April.¹⁷⁰⁸

659. On the second night of his assignment at Nizeyimana's home, from 21 to 22 April 1994, the witness was with Privates Bushalire and Ndayizeye.¹⁷⁰⁹ That evening, he heard gunfire and screaming, including that of young children, from a nearby house.¹⁷¹⁰ They spoke with Nizeyimana's wife and the soldiers prepared to defend the residence.¹⁷¹¹ When the gunfire ceased, Private Ndayizeye peered through the gate and reported seeing civilians and people in military uniforms.¹⁷¹² He believed these to be the persons who had fired the shots at the nearby house.¹⁷¹³ The witness denied that either he or Nizeyimana were involved in the attack.¹⁷¹⁴

660. Witness MOL08, a Tutsi carrying a Hutu identity card, lived in Buye cellule, Butare town in 1994 and worked at the Butare University Hospital until 6 April.¹⁷¹⁵ She was friends with the Matabaros and lived 400 to 500 metres away from them.¹⁷¹⁶ She had never seen Nizeyimana.¹⁷¹⁷

661. On the evening of 20 April 1994, the witness heard gunshots.¹⁷¹⁸ She later learned that the Maniraho family had been killed.¹⁷¹⁹ The following morning, the witness and her neighbours, Jeanette and Antoine Ncunguyinka, decided to flee Butare the next day.¹⁷²⁰ The Ncunguyinkas went to the Matabaro home, while Witness MOL08 went to her parents' home in Muyaga commune.¹⁷²¹ Two to three weeks later, the witness's husband came to Muyaga and told her that he heard that the Ncunguyikas and the Matabaros had been killed on 21 April.¹⁷²²

662. Witness CKN20, a Hutu, worked for the Ngoma commune office in 1994.¹⁷²³ Witness CKN20 worked closely with Matabaro in his role as deputy prosecutor and considered him a close friend.¹⁷²⁴

663. Around 9:30 a.m. on 22 April 1994, a communal police officer told the witness that there had been a shooting in Buye cellule the previous night in which his friend, Matabaro, had been killed.¹⁷²⁵ The witness went directly to the "site of the incident", where he found bodies around the CFP training centre.¹⁷²⁶ Frightened, the witness did not inspect the bodies.¹⁷²⁷ He observed a deputy public prosecutor called "André", as well as a high ranking soldier, possibly a major or lieutenant colonel, at the scene.¹⁷²⁸

664. The witness did not see any of the Matabaro children around that time or at any time afterwards.¹⁷²⁹ Matabaro's family members and guests were also killed in the incident, along with Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya.¹⁷³⁰

Defence Witness KEN06

665. Witness KEN06, a Hutu, stayed at Nizeyimana's house from 18 April until 2 May 1994.¹⁷³¹ Due to illness, she seldom left her bedroom during this time and never once went outside the compound.¹⁷³² Donata Mutezimana, Nizeyimana's wife, her son and a house maid all stayed in the property. There were also guards posted outside the house.¹⁷³³

666. On the night 21 April 1994, Witness KEN06 heard many gunshots coming "from the road that passed behind" the Nizeyimana family compound.¹⁷³⁴ Around 9.00 p.m. she overheard Donata talk on the phone in her bedroom. Donata said she was frightened because she was alone in the house, as her husband had gone on a mission to Gikongoro.¹⁷³⁵

667. During the day of the 22 April 1994, Donata told the witness that their neighbours, Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya and Jean Baptise Matabaro, had been killed the previous night, along with their respective families.¹⁷³⁶ Later, around 6.30 p.m., a military vehicle driven by a "lieutenant" came to the property, carrying soldiers to guard the house. They were accompanied by members of the Mukimbiri family.¹⁷³⁷

668. Witness KEN06 saw Nizeyimana four times during her stay: once on the evening of the 18 April 1994, twice on 23 April (midday and evening) and once on the morning of 24 April, after which she did not see him again.¹⁷³⁸

669. The evidence reflects that, in the last third of April 1994, the Ntakirutinka (or Ncunguyinka), Hitamana families and others, had taken refuge with the Matabaro family in their compound in Buye cellule, Butare town.¹⁷³⁹ The Matabaro property bordered Nizeyimana's residence.¹⁷⁴⁰

670. On an evening, soon after President Sindikubwabo's speech in Butare, armed and uniformed soldiers came to the Matabaro house, ordering everyone to leave the property.¹⁷⁴¹ Several of these individuals fled to the nearby home of Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya. Soldiers followed them there, ordering the people who left the Matabaro home as well as the individuals who were already at the Nyirinkwaya residence to leave.¹⁷⁴²

671. The soldiers directed those outside to an area close by, where they opened fire on the group.¹⁷⁴³ Sustained gunfire was heard by others in the neighbourhood.¹⁷⁴⁴ Furthermore, Prosecution and Defence evidence demonstrates that, on the following day, bodies of the victims were discovered near to the Nyirinkwaya residence, where two survivors were recovered by Médecins Sans Frontières staff Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann.¹⁷⁴⁵

672. In this context, the Prosecution argues that Nizeyimana orchestrated the removal and subsequent killing of the Matabaro, Nyirinkwaya and other families on the evening of the 22 April 1994. Prosecution Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ all identified Nizeyimana at the Matabaro compound, standing among soldiers identified as having guarded the Nizeyimana compound and who conducted rounds in the neighbourhood.¹⁷⁴⁶ They were directed towards an area near the property where soldiers were waiting for them.¹⁷⁴⁷ Witnesses BXF and BZC were present once soldiers started firing on the group.¹⁷⁴⁸ Notably, Witness BZC and ZBJ described that male heads of households had been separated from the group and heard gunshots that sounded like a targeted execution followed by unabated shooting.¹⁷⁴⁹ Witness AJP was present at Nizeyimana's home and heard him order ESO soldiers to murder Matabaro and his family.¹⁷⁵⁰

673. The Prosecution seeks to further connect Nizeyimana to the Matabaro murders as he ordered Witness AJP to appropriate a red Volkswagen that was stationed at the

compound.¹⁷⁵¹ Witnesses ZBJ and BXF subsequently saw Nizeyimana driving this vehicle in Gikongoro.¹⁷⁵²

674. The Defence witnesses concur that the attack took place and members of these families and people housed at their residences were killed. However, their evidence reflects that it occurred on the evening of 21 April 1994, rather than 22 April. Specifically, Witnesses Hitayezu, Nyiranzabonimana and KEN06 all heard gunfire on the night of 21 April.¹⁷⁵³ The next day, 22 April, Witnesses CKN20 and Nyiranzabonimana's husband saw corpses lying near the CFP centre.¹⁷⁵⁴ In addition, Prosecution Witness Zachariah, who evacuated the sub prefect's son and sister-in-law, testified that this happened on the morning of 22 April.¹⁷⁵⁵ Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann learned from the victims that they had been attacked by Presidential Guards and Interahamwe.¹⁷⁵⁶

675. The Defence denies the possibility of Nizeyimana's involvement with the killings, arguing that he was absent from Butare on the evening of the 21 April 1994.¹⁷⁵⁷ In particular, Witnesses Hitayezu and KEN06 testified that Nizeyimana had been away from his home prior to 21 April and returned on 23 April. Moreover, Witness Nyiranzabonimana's husband called Nizeyimana's home on the evening of 21 April and the early morning the following day, only to be told that he was not at home.¹⁷⁵⁸ The Defence considers the eye-witness accounts of BXF, BZC and ZBJ, to be inconclusive in regard to the time and date of the incident, as well as the identification of the Accused at the scene.¹⁷⁵⁹ Finally, the Defence argues that Prosecution and Defence evidence reflects that the victims were Hutu, rather than Tutsi.¹⁷⁶⁰

676. In this context, the Chamber will first address the credibility challenges to the Prosecution Witnesses AJP, BXF, BZC and ZBJ. Furthermore, of central importance is the date of the attack. In addition, it must determine whether Nizeyimana was present at the attack, whether ESO soldiers participated, and finally whether Nizeyimana is liable for the deaths.

677. Turning first to the general credibility of the Prosecution witnesses, the Chamber has elsewhere discussed in detail its general concerns as it relates to Witness AJP and the need to approach his evidence with the appropriate caution.¹⁷⁶¹ Such concerns apply with equal force to his evidence regarding Nizeyimana ordering soldiers to kill the Matabaro family. Of particular significance, Witness AJP's evidence of being inside Nizeyimana's home and overhearing this command is uncorroborated. He is the only person to testify that the same soldiers returned between 8.00 and 8.30 p.m. and confirmed that the mission was complete.¹⁷⁶²

678. As discussed elsewhere, the Chamber has no doubt that Witness AJP had a close personal relationship with Nizeyimana.¹⁷⁶³ Defence evidence confirms that around the time of these killings, Witness AJP was regularly at Nizeyimana's home, providing strong support that he would have been able to observe Nizeyimana issue orders to soldiers from that particular location.¹⁷⁶⁴

679. Nonetheless, Witness AJP's evidence is remarkably brief. Moreover, it strays from that of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ in a material respect. Specifically, it tends to reflect that Nizeyimana did not accompany the soldiers while removing and killing members of the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya families.¹⁷⁶⁵ Given the general credibility concerns pertaining to Witness AJP, as well as the lack of corroboration, the apparent inconsistency of his account raises fundamental doubts about its reliability in this instance.

680. Turning to the general credibility of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ, each of these witnesses knowingly obtained passports that were not their own in order to travel internationally. Specifically, these passports allowed Witnesses BZC and ZBJ to enter Europe from Africa, and facilitated travel into Canada for all of the witnesses.¹⁷⁶⁶

681. That each witness knowingly used false immigration documents reflects a willingness to engage in fraudulent activities in contravention of the law. Such circumstances warrant cautious and careful scrutiny of their evidence in this proceeding.¹⁷⁶⁷ The Chamber considers, however, that their uses of false immigration documents appear to have been motivated by a desire to establish a better life in exile rather than their disregard for honesty.

¹⁷⁶⁵ See Witness AJP T. 15 February 2011, p. 72 (“Q. So you stayed with Nizeyimana till they came back and said, ‘We’ve finished.’ Correct? A. Correct, indeed.”). The Prosecution argues that the English version of the transcripts is inaccurate, while the French and Kinyarwanda convey nuances that do not reflect the continued physical presence of both men in Nizeyimana's home, but only Witness AJP's continued presence there. Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 418 citing Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, p. 76 (French) (“Q. Ainsi vous êtes resté avec Nizeyimana jusqu’à ce qu’il soit... vous êtes resté chez Nizeyimana jusqu’à ce qu’il soit rentré et qu’il vous ait dit que le travail était achevé; est-ce exact? R. C’est bien exact.”). It was the Prosecution's obligation to confront ambiguities in Witness AJP's evidence at the time of his testimony. Its current argument requests the Chamber to engage in speculation. This is not convincing.

¹⁷⁶⁶ Witness BXF testified that he travelled from Belgium to Canada on a Belgian passport, which he had purchased for 2000 USD. It had the name and photograph of another person on it. Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 29-30, 36. Witness ZBJ also acquired a Belgian passport that contained the name and photograph of another person, which she used in order to travel to Belgium and Canada. Witness ZBJ, T. 25 February 2011, pp. 19-20; Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, p. 36. Witnesses BXF and ZBJ both “tore up” their passports before passing through Canadian immigration. Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 30-31; Witness ZBJ, T. 25 February 2011, p. 21. Witness BZC obtained a false French passport in order to allow him to travel to Belgium, which cost him 1000 USD. Witness BZC, T. 22 February 2011, p. 66. He spent between one month and one month and a half in Brussels, obtaining another passport from a friend, which he used to travel to Canada. T. 22 February 2011, pp. 66-67. He sent the passport back to Belgium after his arrival. T. 22 February 2011, p. 67.

¹⁷⁶⁷ Cf. Nchamihigo Appeal Judgement, para. 77 (the Trial Chamber abused its discretion in failing to consider other evidence inconsistent with a witness's testimony, particularly given the fact that the witness had been convicted for forgery and that his evidence was uncorroborated).

682. Consequently, while this prior bad conduct is relevant to the evaluation of their testimonies, the Chamber is not persuaded that the circumstances in which they testified in this proceeding provided similar motivations or incentives to lie to the Chamber or implicate Nizeyimana. It is not clear that anything is to be gained by these witnesses by participating in this trial. For example, while each witness was denied refugee status in Canada, Witnesses BZC and ZBJ have been granted permanent resident status on humanitarian grounds.¹⁷⁶⁸ Consequently, the Chamber is not concerned that their evidence about the attack, for example, is motivated by a desire to bolster any immigration or residency applications in Canada.¹⁷⁶⁹

683. Furthermore, even if the Chamber had reasonable concerns that the witnesses' testimonies were motivated by a desire to bolster their residency status in Canada, there still remains no incentive to implicate Nizeyimana in that attack. Indeed, the evidence of Witnesses ZBJ and BXF reflects their belief that implicating Nizeyimana in the 22 April 1994 attack during their refugee application hearing led to adverse findings by the immigration judge.¹⁷⁷⁰ Consequently, the Chamber observes no subjectively held motivations by any of the witnesses to now implicate Nizeyimana in the attack and to do so in this context.

684. In fact, the circumstances suggest that the witnesses testified against Nizeyimana despite concerns that this might threaten their safety as well as that of their family members. These concerns justified the issuance of protective orders that allowed them to testify under a ¹⁷⁶⁹ Witness BXF testified about applying for permanent residency status on humanitarian grounds, but he did not indicate if that process had concluded. Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 38-39. Notably, he arrived in Canada with Witness ZBJ nearly a decade before testifying in this proceeding. T. 22 February 2011, p. 29. In light of Witness BXF's continued presence in Canada, as well as the fact that the attack on the Matabaro home in April 1994 was the basis for which Witness ZBJ applied for and obtained permanent residency status (Witness ZBJ, T. 25 February 2011, pp. 22-24), it would appear that Witness BXF's request would have been granted as well.

¹⁷⁷⁰ See Witness ZBJ, T. 25 February 2011, p. 22 ("A. ... And before the court, since the PIF was a summary, I remember Judge ... asked me a question. I said that there was a captain in the PIF there was no name of the captain, but during the hearing Judge ... asked me what was the name of the person. I gave the name of the person and he asked me who was that captain. I said the captain was Ildéphonse Nizeyimana. And before pronouncing that name, given the fact that it was not in the PIF, as soon as the judge asked me the question, we had prepared ourselves to the fact that we were going to narrate everything. So when I was asked that question, just like I do every day before mentioning his name, before thinking about what happened, I have to take in a deep breath just to have the courage to do it. So I took in a deep breath and told the judge it was Captain Ildéphonse Nizeyimana. That was not in the PIF. But I mentioned it at the hearing. Q. Was your claim for refugee status granted? A. It was denied, because the judge said that the person we talked about did not exist."); Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, p. 36 ("A. Yes. At one point the judge said that he was tired of hearing our accounts on the genocide. He said that there was no evidence to the effect that that person existed. If you have my immigration file, I think you will find that inside. Q. When you say 'there is no evidence that that person existed', who are you talking about? I just don't understand, sir. A. he judge was referring to Captain Nizeyimana, because when I was giving an explanation, I was talking about the genocide. And when the judge asked [Witness ZBJ] who had killed [the Matabaros, Witness ZBJ] answered Captain Nizeyimana had killed them. Upon hearing that, the judge asked [Witness ZBJ] to provide evidence that Captain Nizeyimana was someone who existed or who had existed. We didn't have an answer. It was only later that we had a report by the by Amnesty International which mentioned Captain Nizeyimana, but by that time our hearing had already been concluded.").

pseudonym.¹⁷⁷¹ Furthermore, Witnesses BXF and ZBJ refused to provide Defence counsel with their immigration records because of continued concerns.¹⁷⁷² These circumstances undermine the argument that the witnesses had any incentive to implicate Nizeyimana. Indeed, they reflect that the witnesses testified in this proceeding notwithstanding the negative consequences they feared such conduct might have on their personal lives.

685. The Chamber also observes that Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ lived in the same city in Canada at the time of their testimonies.¹⁷⁷³ The record reflects that they met socially and occasionally discussed the attack that they survived.¹⁷⁷⁴ Similarly, Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ met with Tribunal representatives in Canada the same day, although they spoke with them separately.¹⁷⁷⁵ Moreover, Witnesses BXF and BZC travelled to Arusha together and stayed in the same hotel.¹⁷⁷⁶

686. There exists considerable overlap of the personal lives of these witnesses as well as their participation in this proceeding. These circumstances alone, however, are not indicative that the witnesses agreed to untruthfully implicate Nizeyimana in this crime.¹⁷⁷⁷ Indeed, while the observations of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ reflect compelling consistencies, their accounts, as summarised above, are different and demonstrate unique vantage points throughout the attack. Moreover, their evidence was not embellished or exaggerated, particularly as it related to Nizeyimana's role in the incident.

See also Renzaho Appeal Judgement, paras. 264-265 (affirming the Trial Chamber's reliance on accomplice witness evidence where the Chamber evaluated it with appropriate caution and acknowledged that their joint detention at the time of their testimonies could have allowed for collusion).

687. Of particular significance, the Defence evidence confirms that this attack occurred. With respect to at least two of the witnesses, it also confirms that they survived it.¹⁷⁷⁸ The Chamber has no doubts that Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ were present during the removal of persons from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya homes and that Witnesses BXF and BZC were present among many that were killed in the ensuing attack. In this regard, the Chamber remarks that each member of this Bench considered the witnesses' evidence about this attack, individually and collectively, compelling.¹⁷⁷⁹

688. The Chamber now turns to particular challenges raised by the Defence in light of prior statements given by Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ. With respect to Witness BXF, the Defence challenged him with several discrepancies between his prior statement to Tribunal representatives and his testimony as it related primarily to events after the attack on those taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya households.¹⁷⁸⁰ In many cases, the witness acknowledged that there were errors in the statement, and provided explanations for them.¹⁷⁸¹

689. The witness confirmed that the statement had been read back to him and that he signed it. However, this occurred very quickly and the witness did not have time to review the statement in detail.¹⁷⁸² The Chamber considers that the witness's explanations are reasonable and compelling. The discrepancies are immaterial, particularly in relation to whether or not Nizeyimana was involved in this attack. The do not impugn his credibility generally.

¹⁷⁷⁹ The law of this Tribunal affirmatively establishes that the first-hand observations of viva voce evidence by Judges are particularly important to the assessment of evidence. See Niyitegeka v. The Prosecutor, Case No. ICTR-96-14-A, Confidential Decision on Appellant's Extremely Urgent Motion for the Adjournment of Delivery of Judgement and for the Admission of Additional Evidence (AC), 5 July 2004, para. 15 (distinguishing between a Trial Chamber's observation of a witness giving viva voce testimony versus an immigration court judge's review of a recorded statement, and that the latter's adverse credibility assessment of the same witness could not have impacted the Trial Chamber's verdict).

¹⁷⁸⁰ See Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 43 (challenging the witness on whether he or Dr. Jotham's wife called Gatsinzi's wife on the witness's behalf), 46-47 (challenging the witness on whether Gatsinzi's wife threatened ESO soldiers that if they took the witness they would die), 48 (questioning the witness as to whether he saw Nizeyimana driving the red Jetta while staying at the Gatsinzi home), 49 (asking whether Nizeyimana ever came to the Gatsinzi house and threatened the witness), 50 (asking why he had indicated to investigators that he was a Tutsi).

¹⁷⁸¹ Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 43, 47 (explaining that Dr. Jotham's wife, not the witness, called Gatsinzi's wife and that the witness stayed in the house of Gatsinzi's extended family), 46-47 (when questioned whether Gatsinzi's wife threatened ESO soldiers, the witness explained that ESO soldiers from Nizeyimana's house came there, but with respect to what Gatsinzi's wife did or said, the witness tacitly acknowledged that the statement to Tribunal investigators was incorrect, suggesting that he might not have expressed himself "clearly" and noting that the interview was done in a "hurry"), 47-48 (explaining that he only saw Nizeyimana after the attack in Gikongoro and did not see him driving a Jetta while at the Gatsinzi home; suggesting that he was not understood well during the interview, reiterating that it was done in a hurry; he received the document in English, in which he had no formal education), 49 (denying that Nizeyimana came to the Gatsinzi home where the witness was hiding, and that instructions for the witness to leave were not given directly to him by Gatsinzi's wife), 50 (denying that he told the interviewers that he was Tutsi, but thought that they believed he was). See also Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 49-50 (explaining that he saw errors in his statement when he arrived in Arusha and thought it was too late to change them, but that he might explain the errors to the Trial Chamber).

690. Turning to Witness BZC, the Defence challenged him with several aspects from his application for refugee status in Canada, which it argued were inconsistent with his testimony before the Tribunal. Of particular significance, the application recounts the 22 April 1994 attack, but includes no mention of the involvement of Nizeyimana, who was in civilian attire, and instead only refers to “people in military uniforms”.¹⁷⁸³ The witness explained that Canadian immigration authorities had expressed their disinterest in events related to the genocide and, consequently, the witness’s report did not provide all the relevant details.¹⁷⁸⁴

691. Similarly, Witness ZBJ testified that she did not initially identify Nizeyimana as participating in the attack on her initial statement to Canadian authorities, which she filled out upon arriving in Canada.¹⁷⁸⁵ Only upon questioning from the hearing judge did she understand that she and the others would have to “narrate everything” related to the event.¹⁷⁸⁶

692. The Chamber considers the explanations of Witnesses BZC and ZBJ about their initial omission of Nizeyimana’s involvement in the attack reasonable and compelling. Indeed, Witness BXF, when asked if he recounted “in detail” the killing of particular family members when he filled in his initial statement to Canadian authorities, explained that he mentioned them “very briefly”, knowing that he would have the “opportunity of appearing before a court”.¹⁷⁸⁷

693. Finally, Witness BZC’s explanation about the disinterest of Canadian authorities in genocide related activities finds circumstantial support from the evidence of Witnesses BXF. He also testified that Canadian authorities seemed disinterested in events related to the genocide when considering his application.¹⁷⁸⁸

694. The Defence raised several other challenges related to inconsistencies with Witness BZC’s evidence before the Tribunal as well as his immigration application.¹⁷⁸⁹ Again, the witness explained that he streamlined the discussion relating to the 22 April 1994 attack given the absence of interest in genocide related issues. He added that the inaccuracies reflect his own attempts at an abbreviated narration of the event rather than mischaracterisations.¹⁷⁹⁰ The Chamber considers that the explanations are compelling. Moreover, much of the inconsistencies raised by the Defence are immaterial to the allegation at hand, particularly in light of its own concession that the attack happened and the absence of any evidence raising reasonable doubt that Witness BZC was present during it.

At one point the judge said that he was tired of hearing our accounts on the genocide. He said that there was no evidence to the effect that that person existed. If you have my immigration file, I think you will find that inside.”).

¹⁷⁸⁹ For example, Witness BZC’s immigration application stated that 1) he lost consciousness during the attack; 2) he had not seen his mother since the attack; and 3) he did not know whether his three sisters had survived until three years after the attack. Witness BZC, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 80-82. The Defence also confronted Witness BZC with an aspect of the application that indicates that soldiers “separated five men ... and killed them one after the other.” T. 22 February 2011, pp. 80-81. As explained by the witness, this summary, although abbreviated, is not inconsistent with his testimony. T. 22 February 2011, pp. 80-81. See also Witness BZC, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 58-61.

695. The Chamber recalls that the Defence sought to recall Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ based on discrepancies between their evidence before the Tribunal and information they provided to Canadian immigration authorities. The Defence also sought to recall Witnesses BXF and ZBJ on the basis of adverse findings by the Canadian Immigration and Refugee Board. The Chamber denied the motion.¹⁷⁹¹ The Defence did not otherwise seek to introduce into evidence the documents upon which they sought further cross-examination of these witnesses.

696. Turning to the merits of the testimonies of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ, the Chamber has no doubt that each witness was capable of identifying Nizeyimana at the time of this event.¹⁷⁹² In so finding, the Chamber is mindful of the ages of the witnesses when the attack occurred.¹⁷⁹³ It considers that their respective ages bolster their identification of Nizeyimana, and that his presence would have left a particularly strong impression on each of them. Mindful of the limited probative value of in-court identifications, and the fact that Witness ZBJ's identification of Nizeyimana was determined to have no value,¹⁷⁹⁴ the Chamber observes that Witnesses BZC and BXF positively identified Nizeyimana.¹⁷⁹⁵

697. Furthermore, all of the witnesses provided compelling and consistent descriptions of viewing Nizeyimana in civilian clothing and that he was positioned in the vicinity of the Matabaro home's veranda as they were led out of the house.¹⁷⁹⁶ The identifications were made from a short distance and while there was still daylight.¹⁷⁹⁷ While the evidence varies as to how many soldiers were around him, the Chamber considers such differences immaterial.¹⁷⁹⁸

698. In assessing the identification evidence of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ, the Chamber is mindful of the interpretive nature of memory and notes that nearly 17 years have elapsed since the event and their testimonies before the Tribunal. Notably, the witnesses discussed the attack with each other. As noted previously, the Chamber has no concern that these circumstances reasonably demonstrate that the witnesses agreed to untruthfully implicate Nizeyimana in this crime. Moreover, the varying detail of the identification evidence and the demeanour of the witnesses during their testimonies eliminate any reasonable concerns that their evidence has been altered due to the aforementioned circumstances.

699. The Chamber next turns to the identification of the soldiers accompanying Nizeyimana and ultimately shepherding the people from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya homes to the place of attack. Witness BZC expressly identified them as ESO soldiers, “considering the fact that Nizeyimana was with them” and came from that camp.¹⁷⁹⁹ Notably, Witness ZBJ provided a compelling account as to how she could identify soldiers assigned to guard Nizeyimana’s home.¹⁸⁰⁰ She expressly identified one soldier who participated in this event as having been previously posted at Nizeyimana’s home.¹⁸⁰¹ She highlighted that the soldiers were also remarkably young – in their early 20s.¹⁸⁰² She provided the same description for soldiers that guarded Nizeyimana’s home.¹⁸⁰³ Witness BXF initially identified the soldiers as Nizeyimana’s “bodyguards”.¹⁸⁰⁴ However, he later stated that he was only able to recognise one soldier among the group, who was Nizeyimana.¹⁸⁰⁵

700. When viewing the evidence of Witness BZC, BXF and ZBJ in isolation, the only reasonable conclusion is that the soldiers at the Matabaro home were ESO soldiers.¹⁸⁰⁶ Nonetheless, this evidence must be considered in the context of the remainder of the record. The Defence evidence regarding the perpetrators of the attack is general or second-hand, and of relatively low probative value. None observed the removal or subsequent shooting. Furthermore, Defence Witness Hitayezu only heard from a fellow soldier that uniformed soldiers were seen around the time gunshots were heard. Even if deemed credible, his evidence is far from dispositive. Moreover, as a soldier positioned at Nizeyimana’s home, he has a clear interest in distancing himself, and by implication Nizeyimana and ESO soldiers, from the attack that occurred a short distance away.

701. The Chamber also considers the evidence of Prosecution Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann, who were told by two victims that the attack had been carried out by Presidential Guards and Interahamwe. At the outset, it must be recalled that the arrival of the Presidential Guards in Butare sparked ethnically driven violence within the Butare University Hospital, where Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann worked until 24 April 1994.¹⁸⁰⁷ Consequently, the identification of Presidential Guards as the culprits in this instance would have had considerable personal resonance with these witnesses.

¹⁸⁰⁴ Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, p. 14.

¹⁸⁰⁵ Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, p. 18 (“Q. Did you recognise any of the soldiers? A. The truth is that I was scared and I was unable to look at their faces, so I could not look at them closely. I simply saw the presence of one of them who was in civilian clothes and I was able to recognise him because he was a neighbour.”)

¹⁸⁰⁶ Again, the Chamber has no concern that the evidence of Witnesses BXF, BZC or ZBJ as it relates to uniformed soldiers has been impacted through their discussions, particularly in light of the differences in their evidence on this point.

¹⁸⁰⁷ See II.8.1.

702. However, the second-hand evidence of Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann is not dispositive nor is it necessarily inconsistent with the evidence implicating ESO soldiers. Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann did not speak with Prosecution Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ about the identity of the perpetrators. Varying vantage points of the survivors and varying abilities to identify particular soldiers explains the differences among the identifications.

703. Moreover, Witness Zachariah's evidence of "young" and quite "jittery" soldiers trying to prevent the removal of survivors of the attack on the following morning is striking.¹⁸⁰⁸ The inexperience and youth of the soldiers offers strong circumstantial support that they came from the ESO Camp.¹⁸⁰⁹ The fact that they tried to prevent medical officials from removing and treating severely wounded survivors among the dead, at a minimum, reflects tacit cooperation with the obviously targeted attack that preceded Witness Zachariah's arrival. Consequently, the Chamber does not consider that the evidence of Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann raises reasonable doubt in the otherwise compelling evidence implicating the ESO Camp soldiers in the attack the day before.

704. Having considered all the relevant evidence and evaluated the demeanour of each of the witnesses, the Chamber finds that the testimonies of Witnesses BZC and ZBJ, in particular, and to a lesser extent the testimony of Witness BXF, demonstrate that ESO soldiers carried out this operation. Their compelling and consistent evidence, which also reflects varying certainty about the identity of the soldiers, as well as evidence of Nizeyimana's presence, offers considerable circumstantial support for this conclusion. The Chamber has no doubt that ESO soldiers directly participated in the removal and ensuing shooting of the persons taken from both households.

705. The Chamber now turns to evidence pertaining to the date of the attack. As noted above, the Defence argues that this issue is of central importance and that the killing occurred on the evening of 21 April 1994 when Nizeyimana was at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture.¹⁸¹⁰

706. Prosecution Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ expressly testified that the attack took place in the early evening on 22 April 1994.¹⁸¹¹ At the outset, the Chamber notes that Witness ZBJ stated that the survivors discussed the particular date upon which the attack occurred and Indeed, the nouvelle formule model allowed cadets to enter the ESO after finishing primary school. “insisted” that it was 22 April.¹⁸¹² The Chamber does not consider that this evidence reasonably reflects collusion among Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ to falsely implicate Nizeyimana. However, the Chamber cannot exclude the possibility that one, two or all of the witnesses’ evidence about the date may have been altered through their talks. The Chamber shall bear this in mind when assessing the quality of this evidence.

707. Turning to Witness ZBJ, her account about the date appears clear and compelling. She recalled that the environment in Butare changed after 19 April 1994 when that “ad interim” President gave his speech.¹⁸¹³ Although questioned extensively about the date, the witness was firm that the attack occurred on 22 April.¹⁸¹⁴ The Bench considers that her demeanour as it related to this evidence was highly convincing.

708. Similarly, even after exhaustive cross-examination on the issue, Witness BZC remained certain that the attack happened on 22 April 1994.¹⁸¹⁵ Of particular significance, he also recalled that the attack occurred on a Friday.¹⁸¹⁶ Notably, 22 April fell on a Friday. The witness’s inability to recall precise details of what he did on 19, 20 or 21 April are reasonable given their relative insignificance when compared to the day upon which the attack occurred.¹⁸¹⁷

709. Turning to Witness BXF, he also, after extensive cross-examination on the issue, was firm that the date of the attack was 22 April 1994.¹⁸¹⁸ He explained that he could recall the date because when he subsequently arrived in Gikongoro, a mass was held “in remembrance of the victims who fell on the 22nd”.¹⁸¹⁹ In the Chamber’s view, such immediate recognition of the date of the attack offers compelling contextual support for the witness’s evidence of when it occurred.

710. Having reviewed the testimonies of Witnesses ZBJ, BZC and BXF, the Chamber considers that each gave a distinct basis for identifying the date of the attack. These differences eliminate concerns that their evidence may have been altered through discussions with each other in the intervening 17 years or that they colluded.

711. The Chamber turns to other evidence that tends to reflect that this attack happened on the evening of 21 April 1994 (rather than 22 April). At the outset, it must be noted that none ¹⁸¹² Witness ZBJ, T. 25 February 2011, p. 26 (“A. I am not mistaken about that date. I maintain that it was the 22nd. After we reunited with the other survivors we insisted on that date. It was, indeed, on the same date; 22nd April 1994.”).

¹⁸¹⁷ See Witness BZC, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 71-72.

¹⁸¹⁸ Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 39-40, 42. The Chamber observes that Witness BXF noted that Antoine Ntakirutinka arrived at the Matabaro household having fled the Maniraho killings the day before. T. 22 February 2011, p. 43. See also II.6.4. Notwithstanding, Witness BXF’s evidence in relation to the Maniraho killings is indirect and vague. Indeed, while he admitted that Maniraho was killed the day before, he provided no basis for his knowledge and noted that he was not there when it occurred. T. 22 February 2011, p. 43. Accordingly, the Chamber does not consider his evidence in regards to Ntakirutinka’s arrival at the Matabaro residence dispositive. The Chamber also observes that he “believe[d]” that the President held a meeting with ministers and prefecture authorities on 20 April 1994. While he initially did not describe the date he heard the President’s speech, he appears to accept that the speech was made on 20 April and that the attack occurred two days later. See Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 5, 13.

¹⁸¹⁹ Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, p. 42.

of these witnesses observed the attack. The evidence varies between individuals who observed the victims the following morning, heard gunshots in the evening or generally learned about the killings. The Chamber shall review this evidence in turn.

712. Prosecution Witness Zachariah testified that he saw corpses and retrieved Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya's sister-in-law and son on the morning of 22 April 1994. Witness Zachariah confirmed that he had no doubt about this date,¹⁸²⁰ and was informed by Nyirinkwaya's sister-in-law that she and others had been attacked the preceding evening.¹⁸²¹ Elsewhere, Witness Zachariah explained with specificity how he could recall the dates of particular events, and in particular Nizeyimana's presence at security meetings. At the same time, however, he conceded that it was difficult to recollect exact dates in conflict settings.¹⁸²²

713. While the Chamber considers Witness Zachariah generally credible, it also notes that he was quickly surrounded by killings occurring in several different locations over the course of a few days. It is not as clear where the impact of this killing registered among others he experienced – including that of his colleagues. Moreover, the Chamber is of the view that the impact of this event on Witness Zachariah would not have been as significant as it was on the primary Prosecution witnesses who survived the killing and lost several persons close to them.

714. Witness CKN20 testified that he learned of the killing of Matabaro on the morning of 22 April 1994, and, similar to Witness Zachariah, he went and saw “bodies” around the CFP centre.¹⁸²³ He testified that around midday, he decided to flee with his family to his parent's home “towards Mount Huye”.¹⁸²⁴ However, on cross-examination, he stated that he fled with his family on 9 April (rather than 22 April).¹⁸²⁵ In light of this shift, the witness's evidence related to the date of Matabaro killings, lacks context showing how he knew that he learned of Matabaro's killing and observed bodies on 22 April.

715. Of greater significance, the Chamber has considerable reservations about the credibility of this witness's evidence that he was in Butare town and went to see the corpses of this particular attack on 22 April 1994. Specifically, the witness acknowledged that the killings occurred a short distance from his home at the Sovu convent on 21 and 22 April. He identified retired Rwandan army Chief Warrant Officer Rekeraho as the attack's ¹⁸²¹ Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 19.

¹⁸²² See, e.g., Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 7. The Chamber places little reliance on Witness Spielmann's evidence as it relates to the date. Notably, her testimony about this event was limited to her confirming a portion of the statement signed by her and Witness Zachariah as to whether assailants identified to them were Presidential Guards and Interahamwe. Specifically, after introducing the statement (T. 31 January 2011, pp. 14-15) and reading the statement into the record (T. 31 January 2011, p. 15), Defence counsel only asked: “And the perpetrators that you mentioned probably were the soldiers of the Presidential Guard and the Interahamwe. Is that accurate, ma'am” (T. 31 January 2011, p. 16). Witness Spielmann replied: “This is accurate, yes” (T. 31 January 2011, p. 16). No question was asked about the accuracy of the date.

organiser.¹⁸²⁶ In direct and cross-examination, he denied having participated in these attacks, noting that he was not there.¹⁸²⁷

716. The Prosecution, without objection from the Defence, confronted Witness CKN20 with the assertion that he had been charged, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment in Rwanda for his participation in the Sovu attacks. The witness denied knowing this and pleaded his innocence.¹⁸²⁸ At the time of his testimony, the witness lived in exile, stating that he planned to return to Rwanda when his security was “assured”.¹⁸²⁹

717. Under the circumstances, the Chamber is concerned that Witness CKN20 used his testimony in this proceeding, asserting that he was in Butare town on 22 April 1994, as a means of exonerating him of any involvement in the Sovu attack.¹⁸³⁰ Having assessed the witness’s demeanour, the Chamber considers that his evidence about having observed the corpses of those taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya homes lacks credibility.

718. The Chamber now turns to the evidence of Defence Witnesses Nyiranzabonimana, Hitayezu, KEN06 and MOL08. As discussed above, none witnessed the killings of those taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences. Moreover, none of these witnesses saw the bodies of the dead.

719. Witness Nyiranzabonimana was unequivocal that the Matabaro family was killed on 21 April 1994, highlighting the strong impression it had on her given how close she was with the family.¹⁸³¹ Although she did not see the attack, she heard gunshots on the evening of 21 April. Her husband saw “corpses” the next morning and learned from two different sources that Matabaro and Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya had been killed.¹⁸³²

720. Her evidence reflects that she heard gunshots the evening after the Maniraho killings on the night of 20 April 1994.¹⁸³³ Furthermore, she explained that she could determine the dates because she heard President Théodore Sindikubwabo’s 19 April speech broadcast on Radio Rwanda.¹⁸³⁴ The Chamber has elsewhere considered her testimony about the date of the Maniraho killings, when viewed among all the relevant evidence, credible.¹⁸³⁵ Nonetheless, her observations that the attack on the Matabaros occurred later in the evening is at odds with the testimonies of the primary Prosecution witnesses.¹⁸³⁶ This and the relative indirectness of her evidence raise some concerns about its reliability in this instance.

721. Defence Witness Hitayezu testified that he was posted at Nizeyimana’s home starting every evening from 20 April 1994 until 23 April and that Nizeyimana was not home on the first three nights. He further testified that on the second evening, from 21 to 22 April, he heard gunshots at a neighbour's home. A fellow soldier, also guarding Nizeyimana's home, saw uniformed soldiers and civilians.

722. The Chamber views Witness Hitayezu's evidence on this point with considerable suspicion. Credible and consistent evidence in the record reflects that, although of low rank, he had a relatively close relationship with Nizeyimana around this time.¹⁸³⁷ As a soldier assigned to Nizeyimana's home – and the neighbourhood in which the killings took place – he is a potential accomplice to these particular attacks. Indeed, there is evidence of Witness Hitayezu's extremism before the Chamber.¹⁸³⁸ Based on the Chamber's evaluations of the witness's demeanour, it was left with the impression that his testimony was tailored in order to exculpate the Accused.¹⁸³⁹

723. Turning to Witness KEN06, her evidence reflects that she heard gunshots coming "from the road that passed behind" Nizeyimana's home the night of 21 to 22 April 1994.¹⁸⁴⁰ She also overheard Nizeyimana's wife on the phone in an adjoining room, mentioning that her husband had "gone on mission to Gikongoro".¹⁸⁴¹ The next day, Nizeyimana's wife told the witness that the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya families had been killed.¹⁸⁴²

724. With respect to the quality of her evidence as it relates to the timing of when she heard the gunshots, she correctly noted that President Théodore Sindikubwabo delivered a speech in Butare on 19 April 1994. She provided other details of events that occurred on specific days around that time.¹⁸⁴³ She explained that she could recall specific dates by ¹⁸³⁷ Indeed, Prosecution evidence tends to confirm that Witness Hitayezu was close with Nizeyimana and lived at his home. See Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 9-11, 21; Witness BDE T. 31 January 2011, p. 27; Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 53-54, 70-71, T. 27 January 2011, p. 16.

¹⁸³⁸ See Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, p. 71 ("A. I know that [Irénée Hitayezu] was often with members of Nizeyimana's bodyguards. I remember Charles Bertin Hakizimana who had called me and asked me whether I knew the song which we were singing at that time. And the song said something to the effect that everything belonged to Hutus. And Irénée reacted by saying that, 'These people are like snakes. I mean, we've been killing them for quite some time, but we have not yet managed to finish them off. It's just like serpents, you know, you can kill snakes, kill them, but they will still keep popping up because they are always being born.' Q. Do you know where Irénée was from? A. He hailed from Gisenyi or maybe Kinigi. He was either from Gisenyi or from Kinigi."). The Chamber found Hitayezu's denial of this less than credible. Witness Hitayezu, T. 9 June 2011, p. 65.

¹⁸³⁹ The Chamber observes that unsigned will-say statements have no probative value except to the extent that the witness confirms their content. See Kalimanzira Appeal Judgement, para. 180. In this regard, the Chamber observes that Witness Hitayezu denied the accuracy of the contents of much of his will-say when cross-examined by the Prosecution. See Witness Hitayezu, T. 9 June 2011, pp. 52, 55-59. Notwithstanding, the notice of Alibi given by the Defence for 21 to 22 April 1994, based in part on information from Witness Hitayezu, and Witness Hitayezu's later testimony that Nizeyimana did not return to his home from 20 until 23 April 1994, which covers several pleaded charges in the Indictment, raises additional concerns that he tailored his evidence in order to rebut those charges. See Kalimanzira Appeal Judgement, para. 25 (the manner in which alibi is presented may impact its credibility). While relevant to an assessment of Witness Hitayezu's credibility, it is only a subsidiary concern as it relates to the Chamber's overall assessment of his evidence.

¹⁸⁴² Witness KEN06, T. 20 September 2011, p. 10.

¹⁸⁴³ For example, Witness KEN06 repeatedly testified that she arrived at Nizeyimana's home on 18 April 1994 (T. 20 September 2011, pp. 6, 13-14, 16), was treated by a doctor at Nizeyimana's home on 19 April (T. 20 September 2011, pp. 7, 17, 19, 31) and heard gunshots in the distance on the night of 20 to 21 April (T. 20 September 2011, pp. 7-8).

“counting from the day when the head of state came to Butare” and in light of the fact that the events were “important” and happened in immediate succession.¹⁸⁴⁴

725. Notably, her evidence about learning about the President’s speech was very general, overhearing unidentified persons talk about it.¹⁸⁴⁵ Moreover, the witness testified that she was “seriously ill”.¹⁸⁴⁶ She rarely left the room in which she stayed.¹⁸⁴⁷ Such circumstances raise some questions about how she ascertained and retained dates of events.

726. Of greater significance, the Chamber has considerable doubts about the credibility of Witness KEN06. It considers with suspicion the witness’s justifications for being in Butare and staying at Nizeyimana’s home at that time. Specifically, she testified that she left her family and a top rate Rwandan medical facility in the middle of the war (18 April 1994) in order to be treated in Butare.¹⁸⁴⁸ Only once she arrived in Butare did travel become too dangerous, causing her instead to go to Nizeyimana’s home and forego the immediate treatment that brought her there.¹⁸⁴⁹ Her evidence about her stomach illness was general, described only in widely varying degrees of seriousness.¹⁸⁵⁰ Although rejecting any friendship with Nizeyimana, her evidence reflects that she was close with his family.¹⁸⁵¹

727. Indeed, the Prosecution confronted the witness with the assertion that she did not stay at Nizeyimana’s home around this time.¹⁸⁵² Prosecution Witness Bizimenyera denied that Witness KEN06 was living at Nizeyimana’s home when she arrived there in April 1994.¹⁸⁵³ Notably, her presence there is not reflected in the evidence of Prosecution Witness AJP or Defence Witness BEJ01, who by all accounts, spent time at Nizeyimana’s residence around this period.¹⁸⁵⁴

728. Only Defence Witness Hitayezu’s testimony offers circumstantial corroboration for her presence.¹⁸⁵⁵ As described above, the Chamber views his evidence with considerable suspicion as well. Having viewed her demeanour in court, the Chamber has concerns that Witness KEN06’s testimony was tailored to provide evidence favourable to the Accused. It has fundamental doubts about her evidence as it relates to the date she purportedly heard gunshots from Nizeyimana's home killing as well as overhearing that Nizeyimana had gone to Gikongoro.

729. The Chamber turns to the evidence of Defence Witness MOL08. She fled Butare town on 21 April 1994 and learned from her husband weeks later that the Matabaros and others had been killed on 21 April.¹⁸⁵⁶ The witness's evidence is second-hand, and her husband's basis for knowledge unknown.¹⁸⁵⁷ Accordingly, this is of low probative value. The same analysis applies to the evidence of Witness AZM who could only provide a general estimate of the timing of this attack.

730. Ultimately, the Chamber considers that the evidence of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ that the attack occurred on 22 April 1994 is compelling beyond reasonable doubt.¹⁸⁵⁸ While there is Prosecution and Defence evidence indicating it happened the previous evening, the Chamber is ultimately persuaded by the first-hand testimonies of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ and the compelling nature in which they testified. For the reasons expressed above, and mindful that the conflicting evidence about the date of the attack was largely circumstantial, second-hand or lacking credibility, it fails to raise reasonable doubt when considered with the compelling accounts of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ.

731. Indeed, when faced with competing versions of events, it is the prerogative of the trier of fact to determine which is more credible.¹⁸⁵⁹ In reaching this conclusion, the Trial Chamber is reminded of its central role in assessing witness demeanour and credibility.¹⁸⁶⁰ Mindful of the unanimous impressions of the members of this Bench, the testimonies of ¹⁸⁵⁷ Witness MOL08, T. 10 May 2011, pp. 12, 21-22.

¹⁸⁵⁸ The Chamber considers any variation between the date provided in the Indictment ("on or about 20 April 1994") and the Chamber's finding immaterial. See, e.g., Rutaganda Appeal Judgement, para. 302; Kunarac et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 217. The pleading reflects an approximation and pre-trial filings give notice that this formulation could include 22 April 1994. See Pre-Trial Brief, Annex paras. 14 (p. 12), 17 (p. 14), 42 (p. 33). Moreover, given the prominence of two the victims of the attack – Jean Baptiste Matabaro, who was Butare's deputy prosecutor, and Zephania Nyirinkwaya, who was a sub-prefect in Butare – as well as the Indictment's specificity regarding the nature of the attack and the category of assailants, the information provided to Nizeyimana was sufficient to allow him to prepare his Defence as it related to this event, occurring "on" or "about" 20 April. See Muvunyi II Appeal Judgement, para. 29.

Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ have eliminated any reasonable doubt as it relates to their first-hand observations of this event, Nizeyimana's presence during it and the timing of its occurrence.

732. Having determined that this attack occurred on the evening of 22 April 1994, the Chamber is also mindful of alibi evidence that Nizeyimana returned from Mata tea factory and arrived in Butare town around 5.00 and 6.00 p.m. At the outset, this evidence is not necessarily inconsistent with the testimonies of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ as it relates to the timing of the attack. Even so, the compelling Prosecution evidence eliminates any reasonable doubt that Nizeyimana was not present during this attack. Indeed, the Chamber has elsewhere considered that this alibi, when viewed in the context of the entire record, has not established the reasonable possibility of Nizeyimana's absence from Butare town from the morning of 21 through early evening of 22 April.¹⁸⁶¹

733. Having determined that Nizeyimana was present at the Matabaro home with ESO soldiers, the Chamber notes that there is no direct evidence of Nizeyimana ordering, instigating or authorising the subsequent killings of those taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences. There is no express evidence that ESO soldiers who participated in the removal actually shot and killed any of the individuals.

734. Nonetheless, this attack must be viewed in the context in which it occurred. The murders at issue here are consistent with a distinct pattern of violence that followed President Théodore Sindikubwabo's 19 April 1994 speech in Butare town. The record establishes that starting from 20 April, a number of prominent figures in Butare town – including Hutus – as well as their families, were hunted in their homes, and killed there or elsewhere in Butare town. Notably, the evidence firmly reflects that ESO soldiers led by Second Lieutenant Bizimana killed Rosalie Gicanda, the former Tutsi queen around 20 April.¹⁸⁶² In a similarly targeted attack, members of the families of Jean Marie Vianney Maniraho and Jérôme Ngarambe were killed in the evening of 20 April.¹⁸⁶³ Similarly, around 21 April, there was an attack on the home of the Tutsi lecturer, Pierre Claver Karenzi, and killing of his wife Alphonsine Mukamusoni. Karenzi was removed from his home and killed in the vicinity of a roadblock manned by ESO soldiers, while Mukamusoni was killed inside their residence.¹⁸⁶⁴

735. While Nizeyimana's involvement in all of these killings is not established beyond reasonable doubt, the temporal proximity and consistent pattern they share with this attack undermines any assertion that it was not intentional. The evidence reflects that the assailants' priorities were to eliminate the male heads of households first, including in particular Butare's deputy prosecutor (Jean Baptiste Matabaro) and a sub prefect (Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya), and, at a minimum, the remainder of the persons taken from the two residences.¹⁸⁶⁵ Indeed, the methodical approach, as well as the immediate proximity in time and space of the removal of the persons from the two residences with the ensuing executions, eliminates any reasonable suspicion that some other cause triggered this attack.

¹⁸⁶² See II.6.2.

¹⁸⁶³ See II.6.4.

¹⁸⁶⁴ See II.6.5.

¹⁸⁶⁵ The Chamber considers that the evidence pertaining to the persons taken from the Nyirinkwaya residence (other than Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya) tends to reflect that soldiers might have removed them not because they were being specifically targeted, but in order to ensure that all who had gone there from the Matabaro home were removed from this residence as well.

736. In this context, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana's presence contributed significantly and substantially to the killings. His position as a high ranking officer within the ESO's hierarchy and his experience in the S2/S3 office charged with intelligence and training / operations are essential to understanding his role. These factors, along with his intimate knowledge of the neighborhood demonstrate that he held a supervisory role in this operation and was present to ensure its satisfactory completion. In this regard, his presence necessarily amounted to significant and substantial tacit approval to the removal and subsequent murder operation. Moreover, the only reasonable conclusion is that the killings occurred based on Nizeyimana's instructions and were committed with his express approval.

737. Finally, the Chamber has no doubt that the involvement of ESO soldiers directly participated in the removal and ensuing shootings of Jean Baptiste Matabaro, Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya, members of their families and other persons lodged at their residences. The record firmly establishes that Jean Baptiste Matabaro, his wife and a number of their children were killed. Similarly, Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya and unidentified members of his family and persons staying at his home were killed. Théodore Hitimana and a son of his were killed. There is also general evidence that Antoine Ntakirutinka (or Ncunguyinka) and members of his family were victims of the attack. The evidence reflects that many corpses were found where the attack occurred.

738. However, the evidence concerning the ethnicity of the victims is equivocal. Jean Baptiste Matabaro, at least outwardly, was perceived to be a Hutu, as were his children.¹⁸⁶⁶ The only evidence relating to the ethnicity of Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya is that he was a Hutu.¹⁸⁶⁷ The Chamber also considers the evidence about Hitimana's ethnicity ambiguous.¹⁸⁶⁸ While committed in the context of ethnically driven attacks, the ambiguity regarding the ethnicities of the victims allows for the reasonable possibility that these killings were motivated by something other than genocidal intent.

Introduction

739. The Indictment alleges that around 21 April 1994, Nizeyimana, who was physically present, ordered unknown FAR soldiers near a roadblock a short distance past the Gikongoro and Kigali roads junction to kill two Tutsi civilians, Remy Rwekaza and Witness ZAV. As a result thereof, Rwekaza was killed and Witness ZAV was wounded. The Prosecution relies on the testimony of Witness ZAV. The Prosecution further submits that Witness ZAV's evidence, when compared with Witness ZAK's account of the murder of Beata Uwambaye at a roadblock, corroborate one another and establish "a series of linked facts and a pattern of conduct".¹⁸⁶⁹

740. The Defence submits that Nizeyimana was on a reconnaissance mission to Mata tea factory in Gikongoro on 21 April 1994. It further challenges the credibility of Witness ZAV's uncorroborated testimony.¹⁸⁷⁰

Prosecution Witness ZAV

741. In early April 1994, Witness ZAV, a Tutsi, was a student at the Butare University.¹⁸⁷¹ When President Juvénal Habyarimana's plane was shot down, he was on vacation in Kigali.¹⁸⁷² Towards the end of April, in an attempt to flee Rwanda for Burundi or the Congo, Witness ZAV and Remy Rwekaza, another Tutsi civilian, left Kigali and traveled south.¹⁸⁷³ They arrived in Butare prefecture on 19 April, and reached the outskirts of Butare town on 21 April around 4.00 or 5.00 p.m., by way of the Kigali-Butare road.¹⁸⁷⁴ They had gotten a ride until the bridge before the hill to town, because the driver did not want to risk bringing people in through checkpoints.¹⁸⁷⁵ From that point they walked into town, unarmed and dressed in civilian clothing, until they reached a roadblock located at the junction of the roads to Gikongoro / Cyangugu, on the one hand, and into Buye and Butare town on the other.¹⁸⁷⁶ Witness ZAV identified those manning the roadblock as students from the ESO.¹⁸⁷⁷ He was able to describe the ESO cadets, because he would see them every day.¹⁸⁷⁸ They were young and in uniform, so he knew they were students.¹⁸⁷⁹

742. He explained to them that he was a student in Butare, and claimed to be visiting Captain Twagiramungu, an instructor at the ESO.¹⁸⁸⁰ The ESO students recognised the reference to the captain and allowed the two men to pass through and continue on the road towards Butare town.¹⁸⁸¹ As they continued on their way, a vehicle with UN markings approached them and stopped.¹⁸⁸² Witness ZAV recognised Nizeyimana, who was in full combat uniform, as the driver of the car.¹⁸⁸³ Witness ZAV knew Nizeyimana by name and saw him around Butare from time to time.¹⁸⁸⁴ Next to him sat a woman he did not recognise, also in military attire.¹⁸⁸⁵ Nizeyimana asked them who they were and where they were going.¹⁸⁸⁶ Upon being informed of their purported visit to Captain Twagiramungu, Nizeyimana stated that Twagiramungu was an “Inkotanyi” and that the two men had to return to the roadblock.¹⁸⁸⁷

743. At the roadblock, Nizeyimana ordered the ESO students to kill Witness ZAV and Rwekaza.¹⁸⁸⁸ Nizeyimana remained in the vehicle the entire time.¹⁸⁸⁹ Four soldiers brought the two men to a forested area near the road to Cyangugu.¹⁸⁹⁰ In response to Rwekaza’s offer of money in return for his life, the soldiers indicated that Nizeyimana would kill them unless they complied with his order.¹⁸⁹¹ They shot Witness ZAV in the left arm, stomach and in one of his fingers, causing him to lose consciousness.¹⁸⁹² When he awoke, he called Rwekaza’s name and realised he was dead.¹⁸⁹³ He got up and walked towards the prison, but before he got there he saw a bus, where he spent the night.¹⁸⁹⁴

744. The following day people entered the bus and accused him of being an “RPF guy”.¹⁸⁹⁵ Witness ZAV tried to convince them he was not an Inkotanyi and that he was a student at the Butare University.¹⁸⁹⁶ He told them he knew a person who could verify who he was, after which the people went to find him.¹⁸⁹⁷ A person by the name of Cyprien arrived and hesitated to verify who Witness ZAV was and asked what the witness wanted from him.¹⁸⁹⁸ Cyprien left and was told by his wife that she knew Witness ZAV and to take to him to the hospital.¹⁸⁹⁹ Witness ZAV made his way to the hospital and eventually left Rwanda.¹⁹⁰⁰

745. Prosecution Witness ZAV provided first-hand evidence that Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to kill Rwekaza and the witness on 21 April 1994 at the Kigali and Gikongoro / Cyangugu roads junction roadblock. Rwekaza and Witness ZAV were led by soldiers down to a wooded area where they were shot. Rwekaza died as a result and Witness ZAV suffered serious bodily and mental harm.

746. The Defence disputes the presence of Nizeyimana at the roadblock on 21 April 1994. It further challenges the credibility of Witness ZAV, pointing to his refusal to provide information about his immigration status, inconsistencies within his testimony and contradictions between his testimony and witness notes taken by the Prosecution. The Chamber will assess the issues in turn.

747. The Defence questioned Witness ZAV at length on his immigration status.¹⁹⁰¹ Specifically, it questioned the reasons for which Witness ZAV sought refugee status in the United States, the process followed in obtaining this status and whether he informed the immigration officials of the incident at the roadblock.¹⁹⁰² The Chamber observes that Witness ZAV was reluctant to provide details, refusing in large part to answer any questions posed by the Defence in this regard, without his attorney present.¹⁹⁰³

748. When asked to provide the name of his attorney, Witness ZAV could no longer recall, because it “ha[d] been a while”.¹⁹⁰⁴ Nevertheless, the Chamber considers that Witness ZAV’s ongoing fear expressed towards Nizeyimana affected his demeanour and candour during cross-examination, contributing to his refusal to turn over personal immigration information.

749. Furthermore, Witness ZAV subsequently admitted that while he informed the immigration officials of the incident involving Remy Rwekaza, including the injuries he sustained during the shooting, he did not mention Nizeyimana in his application.¹⁹⁰⁵ Indeed, the witness indicated that his refugee application had been commenced on the basis of “security purposes”, because people “like Nizeyimana”, the old army, ESO people and Interahamwe were still threatening him in Rwanda in 1997.¹⁹⁰⁶ Given the incident during which his friend was killed and the witness nearly died, the Chamber finds Witness ZAV’s reluctance to implicate such a high ranking military officer during his immigration proceedings a reasonable and compelling explanation.

750. The Defence raised the fact that Witness ZAV refused to comment on interview notes compiled by the Prosecution, which, it argued, differed substantially from his testimony in court.¹⁹⁰⁷ The Chamber recalls that the documents known as “interview notes” are a compilation by the Prosecution that was never acknowledged by the witness or signed by him

¹⁹⁰⁵ Witness ZAV, T. 23 February 2011, pp. 49, 59-60. Witness ZAV explained that he it was a different story before the Tribunal, as he was not applying for refugee status here. He was coming to testify to the murder of a friend, but insisted that he did not provide a different story to the immigration officials. T. 23 February 2011, p. 60. Similarly, it is unclear from answers given by Witness ZAV whether he applied for refugee status under his own name. T. 23 February 2011, pp. 57-59.

prior to his testimony.¹⁹⁰⁸ The witness largely affirmed his testimony in examination-in-chief and refused to comment on alleged inconsistencies with the interview notes.¹⁹⁰⁹ The Chamber does not consider that his answers in regards to the “interview notes” revealed any major discrepancies with his testimony. Specifically, Witness ZAV confirmed that Nizeyimana had not exited his vehicle during the entire incident, that he did not know the woman who sat next to him in the car, and that he discussed getting to Nyanza with a Hutu driver.¹⁹¹⁰

751. The Defence raised Witness ZAV’s contradiction in describing his relationship to Rwekaza.¹⁹¹¹ The Chamber finds that Witness ZAV’s different characterisation of Rwekaza can be explained by his unease of disseminating information which may have identified him to the public.¹⁹¹² The Chamber does not consider this discrepancy material to the allegation at hand.

752. The Defence submits that Witness ZAV’s account of his survival “does not ring true” in light of the prevailing situation in Butare at the time.¹⁹¹³ Specifically, the Defence argues that the witness’s encounter with people who thought he was an “RPF guy”, while he was hiding in the bus, the search for the person, who turned out not to know him, to verify that he was not an Inkotanyi, and this person’s subsequent conversation with his wife to confirm Witness ZAV’s identity, does not comport with the outbreak of violence in Butare following President Sindikubwabo’s speech on 19 April 1994.¹⁹¹⁴ The Chamber agrees that the sequence described by Witness ZAV in respect to his survival following the shooting appears confusing at best. Notwithstanding, the Chamber has no reason to doubt Witness ZAV’s testimony in this regard and the Defence does not point to any evidence suggesting the falsity thereof.

753. Turning to the merits of Witness ZAV’s evidence, the Chamber observes that he identified Nizeyimana as having issued orders to ESO soldiers at the Gikongoro / Cyanguu and Kigali roads junction roadblock on 21 April 1994 to kill him and his companion, Remy Rwekaza. Witness ZAV’s basis for identifying Nizeyimana is general. Specifically, he pointed to “hang[ing] out” at common social venues in Butare town and everyone knowing each other.¹⁹¹⁵ Witness ZAV noted that people in Butare would often converge at the same spots, such as Hotel Ibis and Hotel Faucon, on the main road in Butare.¹⁹¹⁶ The evidence before the Chamber reflects that Butare town was a relatively small place, and that figures holding high office, including Nizeyimana, were known by people who might not have had any personal or professional connection to him.¹⁹¹⁷ Notably, Witness ZAV was a student

As he was the local officer, he could be recognised by people who did not necessarily know him. They could see him in town in Butare. I used to see him during sports encounters which had his school playing against other institutions in the area, but I can’t tell whether he knew me or whether he knows me, but those are the circumstances under which I got to know him. There was no physical or personal contact between him and I.”); T. 19 May 2011, pp. 2-3 (“Q. Now, you also told us yesterday, going back to the events of 1994, about Nizeyimana. And you said that he there from 1991, which provided him with considerable time to learn about Nizeyimana. The Chamber also observes that Witness ZAV identified Nizeyimana in court, although little independent value is placed on this.¹⁹¹⁸ Despite the relatively general basis for identification, the Chamber is satisfied that Witness ZAV's presence in Butare during those years and Nizeyimana's prominent position in Butare would have allowed him to recognize the Accused in 1994.¹⁹¹⁹

754. Witness ZAV also recognised those manning the roadblock as students from the ESO. Knowing that the students were from the ESO, he mentioned that he was going to see Captain Twagiramungu, after which the soldiers let them pass through the barrier. As noted above, Witness ZAV was a student in Butare for a considerable period of time, in a relatively small town. He knew where the ESO was located and was able to identify the cadets based on their young age and their uniforms.¹⁹²⁰ While the witness did not provide further specifics in regards to the type of uniform or colour of their beret, the Chamber is satisfied that he would have been able to identify ESO soldiers in April 1994. Indeed, by Witness ZAV's own account, they were able to pass through the roadblock initially, by mentioning Captain Twagiramungu's name.¹⁹²¹ This reflects that he possessed at least some knowledge of the officers working at the ESO, bolstering his identification.¹⁹²²

755. Furthermore, the particular circumstances surrounding the event also bolster his identification of Nizeyimana and the ESO soldiers. Undeniably stressful, the incident occurred during the day, between 4.00 and 5.00 p.m. (rather than at night) and Nizeyimana spent some time in the company of Witness ZAV, between the time that he was stopped by him in the vehicle and accompanied back to the roadblock. Likewise, Witness ZAV was in the immediate proximity of Nizeyimana, having approached them by vehicle, talked to the witness and called him an "Inkotanyi". His view of Nizeyimana and the soldiers does not appear to have been obstructed at all.

756. Indeed, while Witness ZAV is the only witness to testify about this particular event, his evidence is compelling. At the outset, the Chamber observes that he revealed to the Chamber scars from the bullet wounds he sustained at the roadblock.¹⁹²³ His in-court was the local officer, he could be recognised by people who didn't necessarily know him, but they could see him around Butare. So is it correct, Mr. Witness, that whilst you didn't know him personally, you knew who he was; is that right? MR. PRESIDENT: Madam Gray, meaning the position he occupied? THE WITNESS: Yes, indeed. ... Q. So you could identify him if you saw him as being Nizeyimana, correct? A. Yes, I could. But I must add that we did not have any personal contact. MR. PRESIDENT: Yes. Mr. Witness, what is being sought of you is in – in that time – at that time, if you saw a person passing and that person happened to be Nizeyimana, you would be able to say, That is Nizeyimana. Although you never – he doesn't necessarily know you and you have never talked – THE WITNESS: Yes, indeed.”)

demeanour was compelling as it related to the description of this event. Of greater significance, his testimony about the events finds considerable circumstantial corroboration. For example, Witness ZAV provided a detailed account about the roadblock's location.¹⁹²⁴ It is consistent with other evidence about the roadblock's existence, and that ESO soldiers manned it.¹⁹²⁵

757. Furthermore, his evidence about how he and Rwekaza, two Tutsis, were attacked – stopped, removed to a more isolated area a short distance from the roadblock and assaulted – finds considerable circumstantial support when taking a broad view of the record.¹⁹²⁶ Finally, there is no dispute that the ESO Camp had access to UNAMIR vehicles that were left at the camp and that Nizeyimana, in particular, used one in April and May 1994.¹⁹²⁷ Under the circumstances, the Chamber finds Witness ZAV's identification of Nizeyimana and ESO soldiers at the roadblock on or about 21 April 1994 compelling.

758. Indeed, the Defence does not challenge Witness ZAV on the date upon which the incident occurred, namely 21 April 1994, but instead submits that Nizeyimana was on a reconnaissance mission to Mata tea factory on this date.¹⁹²⁸ The Chamber observes that the Prosecution did not question Witness ZAV on the basis for his knowledge of the date upon which they found themselves at the roadblock. Indeed, the witness recalled that he left Kigali and arrived in Butare “towards the end of April”.¹⁹²⁹ He got to Butare prefecture “around 19 April” and subsequently to Butare town “April 21st”.¹⁹³⁰ Witness ZAV confirmed on cross-examination that his friend had died on 21 April and that he relayed the same information to the immigration authorities.¹⁹³¹

759. The Chamber observes that Witness ZAV's evidence is in direct conflict with Nizeyimana's alibi evidence as it relates to 21 April 1994. However, the Chamber, having reviewed the merits of the alibi evidence found it lacking credibility and that the Prosecution evidence has eliminated the reasonable possibility of its truthfulness.¹⁹³² The Chamber is satisfied that Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to kill Remy Rwekaza and Witness ZAV, both Tutsis, at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali road junction roadblock, on or about 21 April. The record affirms that Rwekaza was killed as a direct result of this order. Witness

After we passed the museum, there was – at the junction to the road to Gikongoro-Cyangugu, and there the road goes to Buye. There is a deserted area, and the road goes straight to the town. There was a checkpoint. So – and then we were arrested there.”).

¹⁹²⁶ For example, Witness ZBH, who admitted to killing Tutsis at this barrier, described how the soldiers would hand the victim off to the civilians, after which they would take them to be killed at a location away from the roadblock. Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 58-59, 64-65. Witness ZAK also described how ESO soldiers took his companion, Beata Uwambaye, from the roadblock to a wooded area below the road, where they killed her. See Witness ZAK, T. 24 January 2011, pp. 58-59. Furthermore, Witness Ntezimana saw Interahamwe beat what appeared to be a human being in a wooded area below the roadblock. 7.2 Killing of Beata Uwambaye

Introduction

760. The Indictment alleges that around 5 May 1994, Nizeyimana, who was physically present, ordered soldiers at the Gikongoro road junction roadblock to kill a Tutsi woman named Beata Uwambaye. Prosecution Witness ZAK provided relevant evidence.¹⁹³³

761. The Defence challenges the reliability of Witness ZAK's uncorroborated testimony, which is directly and circumstantially contradicted by Defence evidence. Moreover, Nizeyimana had already been assigned to the training centre at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro by 5 May 1994, and could thus not have been present at the roadblock. Defence Witnesses Aloys Ntabakuze, Valens Hahirwa, OUV03 and RWV11 provided relevant evidence.¹⁹³⁴

Evidence

Prosecution Witness ZAK

762. Witness ZAK, a Hutu soldier, was stationed in Kigali in May 1994.¹⁹³⁵ Around 3 to 5 May, Witness ZAK and Beata Uwambaye, a 21 year-old civilian Tutsi woman, drove from Kigali towards Cyangugu, to flee the killings in the capital.¹⁹³⁶ Upon arriving at the outskirts of Butare town between 10.00 and 11.00 a.m., they reached a military roadblock at the junction of the Kigali-Butare and Butare-Cyangugu roads.¹⁹³⁷ At the barrier, Witness ZAK recognised Nizeyimana. Nizeyimana had been the ESO's S2/S3 officer when the witness was a cadet there from late 1990 to early 1991, graduating among the 29th Promotion.¹⁹³⁸ Approximately six to 10 young soldiers, some wearing camouflage uniforms and black berets, who the witness believed were cadets at the ESO, were also at the roadblock.¹⁹³⁹

763. While stopped at the roadblock, Nizeyimana approached the vehicle, asking Witness ZAK where he was taking this "Inyenzi".¹⁹⁴⁰ The witness explained where he and Uwambaye were traveling to and presented Nizeyimana with a laissez-passer that had been issued by his superiors.¹⁹⁴¹ Nizeyimana ordered a corporal to confiscate the witness's weapon and, after being disarmed, Nizeyimana took the witness's keys.¹⁹⁴² From a distance of about six metres, the witness heard Nizeyimana order the soldiers to "go and execute this Inkotanyi /

Inyenzi”.¹⁹⁴³ The soldiers replied to Nizeyimana’s instructions by saying, “Yes, sir, Captain.”¹⁹⁴⁴ At this point, Nizeyimana left in a dark green, camouflage military jeep with his driver or escort towards Butare’s city centre.¹⁹⁴⁵ Nizeyimana had been in the witness’s presence between 20 and 25 minutes.¹⁹⁴⁶

764. Several of the soldiers then violently led Uwambaye, who was unarmed and dressed in civilian clothes, to a wooded area below the road.¹⁹⁴⁷ While he could not see what happened, Witness ZAK heard three gunshots and Uwambaye yell.¹⁹⁴⁸ About 20 minutes later, the soldiers returned, as one wiped blood off of his bayonet.¹⁹⁴⁹ Thereafter, Witness ZAK was forced to board a bus back to Kigali alone, without the car keys and his rifle.¹⁹⁵⁰ Although he did not see Uwambaye’s corpse, Witness ZAK never saw her again and believed that these soldiers had killed her.¹⁹⁵¹

Defence Witness Aloys Ntabakuze

765. Witness Ntabakuze, a Hutu, held the rank of Major and was the commander of the Para Commando Battalion from June 1988 to 1994.¹⁹⁵² Six companies were under his order, of which four were maneuver companies.¹⁹⁵³

766. Every three months, Witness Ntabakuze would submit to the Rwandan army’s Staff Headquarters and the Ministry of Defence lists of each soldier’s contribution to the social security fund. A separate list would be generated for each company within the Para Commando Battalion. The accuracy of the list, and in particular, whether it reflected each soldier within a particular company, was cross checked by the officer in charge of administration, secretaries, accountants, Witness Ntabakuze’s own secretariat, as well as Witness Ntabakuze himself.¹⁹⁵⁴ Witness Ntabakuze was presented with a document, which he verified was the social security fund form for the second company of the Para Commando Battalion for the months of April, May and June 1993 and which he signed on 10 July 1993.¹⁹⁵⁵

The Defence objected to the evidence of the car driven by Nizeyimana arguing it received insufficient notice that this evidence would be led. Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 68-70. The Chamber recalls that the Prosecution is required to state the charges and the material facts underpinning those charges in the Indictment. See Ntagerura et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 21; Nahimana et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 347; Blaškić Appeal Judgement, para. 219. Witness ZAK’s evidence about the vehicle, while relevant to the identification of Nizeyimana, is evidence in support of allegations rather than material facts that must be set forth in the Indictment. Accordingly, the Chamber dismisses this objection.

Defence Witness Valens Hahirwa

767. Witness Hahirwa was a Defence investigator for Nizeyimana at the time of his testimony.¹⁹⁵⁶ Witness Hahirwa testified that he searched the marriage register for the Nyarugunga sector, which was found in the former Kanombe commune building and contained records from that administration.¹⁹⁵⁷ Guided by a precise date that had been provided by a Prosecution witness, Witness Hahirwa searched the marriage registers for 1993 and 1994.¹⁹⁵⁸ Witness Hahirwa received an attestation from an official at Nyarugunga sector that a marriage certificate bearing Witness ZAK's name for 17 October 1993 was not contained in the civil marriage registry.¹⁹⁵⁹

Defence Witnesses OUV03 and RWV11

768. Witnesses OUV03 and RWV11, Hutus, were instructors at the ESO in April 1994.¹⁹⁶⁰ Witness OUV03 began working at the ESO in the early 1980s and Witness RWV11 became an instructor in 1990.¹⁹⁶¹ According to Witness OUV03, the 29th Batch of the ESO was one of four that underwent accelerated training when the war commenced in 1990.¹⁹⁶² He believed that the 29th Batch started in June and ended in October 1992.¹⁹⁶³ Witness RWV11 generally testified that the 29th intake started in 1992.¹⁹⁶⁴

Deliberations

769. Prosecution Witness ZAK provided first-hand evidence that Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to kill Beata Uwambaye, identified as an Inyenzi, around 3 to 5 May 1994. The incident occurred at the Kigali and Gikongoro / Cyangugu roads junction roadblock near Butare town. The witness saw soldiers lead Uwambaye into a wooded area, heard gunshots and a yell, and saw the soldiers return, wiping blood off their bayonets. On this basis, he concluded that Uwambaye had been killed.

770. The Defence disputes the Prosecution case, raising several collateral challenges to Witness ZAK's credibility. It rejects that the witness knew Nizeyimana based on his prior enrollment within the ESO, and that his evidence about his personal history, as well as military service, are unbelievable. According to the Defence, Witness ZAK fabricated the story about Uwambaye's killing in order to allow him – a Hutu who served in the former Rwandan army – to reintegrate into the Rwandan army.¹⁹⁶⁵ It further argues that Nizeyimana was no longer in Butare, but posted full time in Gikongoro prefecture at the Mata tea factory.¹⁹⁶⁶

771. The Defence challenges Witness ZAK's evidence that he trained at the ESO in the early 1990s, thereby undermining his ability to identify Nizeyimana in 1994. In particular, Witness ZAK testified that he was an ESO cadet from late 1990 to early 1991, graduating among the 29th Promotion, and that Nizeyimana had been the ESO's S2/S3 officer at the time.¹⁹⁶⁷ However, Defence Witness OUV03, a chief warrant officer and instructor, who had been at the ESO since the early 1980s, testified that the 29th "Batch" existed from June to October 1992.¹⁹⁶⁸ Likewise, Witness RWV11, who joined the ESO in the late 1980s, testified that this intake was in 1992.¹⁹⁶⁹

772. With respect to the timing of the 29th Promotion, the Chamber observes that Witness OUV03 was equivocal when offering the date.¹⁹⁷⁰ Notably, Witness OUV03 was not a member of that specific promotion, making the timing of it less significant than it would have been to Witness ZAK. The Chamber considers that the same analysis applies to the testimony of Witness RWV11, whose evidence on the subject was remarkably brief. Furthermore, although present when Witness ZAK stated he attended the ESO, Witnesses OUV03 and RWV11 were not questioned as to whether they knew Witness ZAK as an ESO cadet. The Chamber has elsewhere questioned the credibility of Witnesses OUV03 and RWV11.¹⁹⁷¹ The Chamber concludes that the evidence of Witnesses OUV03 and RWV11 fails to raise doubt in Witness ZAK's otherwise clear and compelling account that he was an ESO student in the early 1990s and that he could identify Nizeyimana.

773. Indeed, aspects of Witness OUV03's testimony offer circumstantial corroboration to Witness ZAK's description of his time at the ESO. For example, Witness OUV03 corroborated Witness ZAK's evidence that the 29th Promotion (or "Batch") was part of an accelerated training program in light of ongoing hostilities.¹⁹⁷² Of greater significance, Witness OUV03 testified that Nizeyimana was at the ESO by January or February 1990, further confirming Witness ZAK's evidence that Nizeyimana was at the ESO when he trained there.¹⁹⁷³

See also Defence Witness MAL01, T. 16 May 2011, pp. 62, 70-71, 79-80 (Witness MAL01, a nurse moved to Butare in 1990 and was introduced to Nizeyimana by her husband when she arrived; Nizeyimana was a captain at the ESO at that point); Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, pp. 9-10 (the witness joined the ESO in November 1990 and believed that Nizeyimana was already there, acting as the S3 officer); Defence Witness Bunani, T. 10 June 2011, pp. 46-47, T. 13 June 2011, pp. 21 (joined the ESO in 1988 as a member of the 24th batch and knew Nizeyimana, who was his instructor, before he started courting Nizeyimana's sister in 1989); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 8, 71 (Nizeyimana was a second lieutenant and trained the witness when he arrived at the ESO; the witness arrived at the ESO in 1988). The Defence provided conflicting submissions as to when Nizeyimana arrived at the ESO Camp. Notably, it argues in relation to Witness ZAK's evidence that Nizeyimana was not posted at the ESO Camp when Witness ZAK trained there in the late 1990 and early 1991. Defence Closing Brief, para. 267.

774. The Defence also seeks to undermine Witness ZAK's credibility by disputing that he was in the Para Commando Battalion. Witness ZAK testified that he joined the Para Commando Battalion in 1991, after finishing his studies at the ESO.¹⁹⁷⁴ He was initially posted in the third company during a period of heightened combat.¹⁹⁷⁵ He was then transferred to the second company, where he "spent most [of his] time".¹⁹⁷⁶ He was transferred to the Cyangugu Battalion shortly before RPF soldiers were allowed to occupy the CND in Kigali in 1993.¹⁹⁷⁷

775. Through the testimony of Witness Ntabakuze, the Commander of the Para Commando Battalion during the relevant period, the Defence challenges that Witness ZAK held a post in the Para Commando Battalion. Specifically, it presented Witness Ntabakuze with a social security fund sheet for the second company of the Para Commando Battalion for the second quarter of 1993 (or April, May and June 1993). Witness Ntabakuze testified that all second company soldiers would be listed on this sheet, which underwent an extensive verification process. Notably, Witness ZAK is not listed on this document.¹⁹⁷⁸

776. At the outset, the Chamber observes that this document is not a comprehensive list of all the 700 to 800 soldiers who formed the Para Commando Battalion soldiers in the second quarter of 1993.¹⁹⁷⁹ Notably, it is not clear from Witness ZAK's evidence that he was a member of the second company during the second quarter of 1993. Moreover, the Chamber has some reservations, notwithstanding Witness Ntabakuze's testimony otherwise, that such paperwork was necessarily error free.

777. Furthermore, Witness Ntabakuze's testimony does not demonstrate that every soldier who worked in the second company during the second quarter of 1993 would necessarily be listed on this sheet. For example, it is not clear that someone who transferred into the second company in the midst of the second quarter of 1993 would be accounted for in the second company's social security fund sheet.¹⁹⁸⁰ Indeed, it appears just as likely that such an individual would be listed within the equivalent document of the company from which the soldier transferred.¹⁹⁸¹

Elsewhere, however, the Defence submits that Nizeyimana was appointed to the ESO in January or February 1990 and worked as an instructor for a few years. Defence Closing Brief, para. 569.

¹⁹⁷⁸ Compare Exhibit P7 (Witness ZAK's Personal Information Sheet), with Exhibit D57 (Social Security Sheet, Second Quarter of 1993).

¹⁹⁷⁹ See Witness Ntabakuze, T. 7 June 2011, pp. 5-6 (six companies in the Para Commando Battalion), 7 (about 125 soldiers per company), 15 (between 700 to 800 Para Commandos), 15-16 (Exhibit D57 only lists members of the second company, and only for the months of April, May and June 1993).

¹⁹⁸⁰ See Witness Ntabakuze, T. 7 June 2011, pp. 8-9 (explaining the verification process, which ensured that no soldier in a company was left off the social security fund list for the relevant quarter).

¹⁹⁸¹ A review of Exhibit D57 reveals that all the officers listed began service before the commencement of the second quarter of 1993. There is no indication that any transferred into the company while there are examples of individual's service terminating within the quarter. Exhibit D57, pp. 2, 4. While this could mean that no officers transferred into the second company, it could equally mean that the social security fund reporting followed the company in which a soldier commenced service and would not include persons who transferred into that company during that reporting period.

778. In this context, the incompleteness of Witness Ntabakuze's testimony and the Defence's documentary submissions substantially mitigate the probative value of this evidence as it relates to whether or not Witness ZAK was within the Para Commando Battalion. Notably, Witness ZAK provided detailed testimony regarding who his superiors in the Para Commando Battalion were, as well as his five digit matricule number.¹⁹⁸² None of this evidence was challenged through Witness Ntabakuze or other documentary evidence.¹⁹⁸³ The Chamber finds Witness ZAK's denial, under oath, that he fabricated this testimony convincing.¹⁹⁸⁴

779. The Defence also challenges Witness ZAK's evidence that he participated in a formal event in the Kanombe commune office on 17 October 1993 – an event critical to understanding his relationship with Uwambaye and her family.¹⁹⁸⁵ In particular, Defence Investigator Valens Hahirwa reviewed relevant registries based on this information and found no documentation of this event. Likewise, the relevant Rwandan authority provided an attestation confirming that Witness ZAK's name was not found in the registry for 17 October.¹⁹⁸⁶

780. This search was conducted nearly 18 years after the event and after administrative functions had changed in Rwanda.¹⁹⁸⁷ Witness Hahirwa confirmed that the registry was voluminous.¹⁹⁸⁸ In the Chamber's view, the inability to retrieve written confirmation of Witness ZAK's participation in this event in October 1993 does not undermine his evidence concerning the nature of his relationship with Uwambaye. Indeed, Witness ZAK was able to provide considerable details about Uwambaye that would corroborate his testimony about his relationship with her and explain why the two were travelling through Butare around 5 May 1994.¹⁹⁸⁹

¹⁹⁸² See Witness ZAK, T. 24 January 2011, p. 73 and T. 25 January 2011, pp. 7-9 (First Sergeant Habimana, Second Lieutenant Maniragaba and Major Ntabakuze were his superiors within the Para Commando Battalion); Witness ZAK, T. 24 January 2011, pp. 73-74 and T. 25 January 2011, p. 15 (Second Lieutenant Nangakanzayo and Captain Hakizimana, the latter having also served as a member of the Para Commando Battalion with Witness ZAK, were his superiors within the Cyangugu Battalion); T. 25 January 2011, p. 8 (provided his five digit "matricule number"). Similarly, the Chamber considers Witness ZAK's explanation in relation to his inability to recall the names of the commanders of the Para Commando Battalion's third company due to constant turn over and the use of interim commanders reasonable and convincing. See Witness ZAK, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 9-10.

¹⁹⁸³ Witness Ntabakuze was not asked if he knew whether Witness ZAK was a member of the Para Commando Battalion. Given the breadth of Witness Ntabakuze's responsibilities at the time, as well as the number of soldiers within the Para Commando Battalion, it would be reasonable for him not to know that Witness ZAK was a soldier under his command even if he had been.

¹⁹⁸⁴ See Witness ZAK, T. 25 January 2011, p. 22. The Defence argues that Witness ZAK's failure to report this incident between 1995 and 2009 is further indication that he fabricated this event. See Defence Closing Brief, para. 269. The Chamber considers Witness ZAK's explanation of how he reported this event and why there was no Gacaca record reasonable and compelling. See Witness ZAK, T. 24 January 2011, pp. 64-69; T. 25 January 2011, pp. 21-22.

¹⁹⁸⁵ See Witness ZAK, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 13-14.

781. Ultimately, the Chamber considers that these challenges to Witness ZAK's evidence, even if sustained, are immaterial to an assessment of his credibility as it relates to the crime he testified to having observed. In the context of that particular evidence the Chamber found the witness to be forthright and his demeanour convincing. A holistic review of his evidence reflected cooperation and clarity as it related to the material aspects of his testimony. His evidence appeared unembellished, and he was forthcoming when it related to gaps in his memory or observations. The Chamber found the witness entirely credible.

782. The Chamber now turns to the merits of Witness ZAK's evidence about Uwambaye's killing, starting with the witness's identification of Nizeyimana. As discussed above, the Chamber accepts Witness ZAK's testimony that he was a student at the ESO in the early 1990s and that Nizeyimana was posted there at this time. Having trained at the ESO for about four months less than four years prior to May 1994, the Chamber considers that these circumstances provide a compelling basis upon which Witness ZAK could identify Nizeyimana.¹⁹⁹⁰

783. Furthermore, the particular circumstances surrounding the event also bolster his identification. The incident occurred during the day, between 10.00 and 11.00 a.m. (rather than at night) and Nizeyimana was in the witness's presence for approximately 20 to 25 minutes. Likewise, Nizeyimana was in the immediate proximity of the witness, having approached his vehicle, talked with the witness, and taken his keys. Similarly, the witness stood only about six metres away from the Accused when he issued orders to kill Uwambaye.

784. In addition, the witness testified that soldiers referred to the Accused as "captain", offering further circumstantial corroboration of the witness's identification.¹⁹⁹¹ Indeed, while the event was undoubtedly stressful for Witness ZAK, he was a fellow soldier travelling with a laissez-passer and was able to passively observe Nizeyimana's purported instructions to kill Uwambaye without interference. These circumstances further support his identification.¹⁹⁹²

785. Indeed, while Witness ZAK is the only person to testify about this particular event, his evidence about the roadblock finds considerable circumstantial support. Witness ZAK

¹⁹⁹⁰ Notably, Witness ZAK specified that based on his training he could recall Nizeyimana's face. See T. 24 January 2011, p. 60.

¹⁹⁹¹ The Chamber also observes that Witness ZAK identified Nizeyimana in court. See Witness ZAK, T. 24 January 2011, pp. 63-64. However, it places little independent evidentiary value in this identification.

¹⁹⁹² The Defence also challenges Witness ZAK's identification, arguing that Nizeyimana was driving a white UNAMIR vehicle at the time rather than a military jeep. See Defence Closing Brief, para. 263. Prosecution and Defence evidence generally reflects that Nizeyimana drove a white UNAMIR jeep in April and May 1994. See, e.g., Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 18-19; Prosecution Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 71-72 (after 26 April 1994, saw Nizeyimana driving a UNAMIR vehicle). See also II.13.2. However, the evidence also reflects that the ESO had vehicles that fit the description of that provided by Witness ZAK and that Nizeyimana used them. See Prosecution Witness BXF, T. 22 February 2011, pp. 8-11 (lived in the immediate vicinity of Nizeyimana and testified that he had an olive green Mercedes-Benz jeep); Prosecution Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 71 (an ESO soldier, testified that before 13 or 14 April 1994, he observed Nizeyimana driving a Mercedes-Benz jeep, called a tólée with a military number plate); Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, p. 19; Defence Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, pp. 28, 41-42. In any event, the ESO had a number of vehicles at Nizeyimana's disposal. See, e.g., Defence Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 19-20 (observing Nizeyimana arrive in a UNAMIR jeep and leave in a Mitsubishi pickup after 25 or 26 April 1994; Mata training centre had a UNAMIR vehicle as well as a Toyota Stout pickup allocated to it); Defence Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 7-8 (testified that prior to the reconnaissance mission to Mata, Nizeyimana would move around in a Mercedes-Benz jeep).

provided a detailed account about the roadblock's location.¹⁹⁹³ Prosecution and Defence witnesses confirmed the description of the location and the existence of a roadblock there.¹⁹⁹⁴ The Chamber has determined, in light of this evidence as well as the entire record, that ESO soldiers undoubtedly manned this roadblock.¹⁹⁹⁵

786. Under the circumstances, the Chamber finds Witness ZAK's identification of Nizeyimana and ESO soldiers at the roadblock around 5 May 1994 compelling. Furthermore, the witness's testimony about Uwambaye, an unarmed Tutsi civilian being attacked, finds considerable circumstantial support based on a broad view of the record.¹⁹⁹⁶

787. In so finding, the Chamber has considered Nizeyimana's alibi for this period.¹⁹⁹⁷ While the evidence reasonably establishes that Nizeyimana was deployed to Mata during this period, it fails to raise the reasonable possibility that this evidence is inconsistent with Nizeyimana, at times, being in Butare town. The alibi does not raise reasonable doubt in Witness ZAK's compelling testimony regarding this event.

788. Having found Witness ZAK's evidence credible and compelling, the Chamber must now determine whether it establishes that Beata Uwambaye was killed based on Nizeyimana's orders to execute her. Notably, Witness ZAK only observed soldiers walk Uwambaye into a wooded area, heard three gun shots and her yell, and the soldiers return, wiping blood off their bayonets.¹⁹⁹⁸ The witness did not see Uwambaye's corpse, but also indicated that he never saw her again.¹⁹⁹⁹

789. The Chamber considers that the only reasonable conclusion, based on an entire review of the record, is that Uwambaye was killed. The Chamber is mindful that the Prosecution has presented evidence of events unfolding at this roadblock, in much the same manner, which did not result in the death of the person that Nizeyimana ordered soldiers to kill – namely Witness ZAV. He survived gunshots, suffering serious bodily and mental harm.²⁰⁰⁰

790. Notwithstanding, the circumstances of Uwambaye's killing are different. She was the only target at that particular moment. Likewise, the evidence demonstrates that the only reasonable conclusion is that she was shot, as well as attacked with a bayonet. Moreover, the

Was that junction before or after the national museum? A. If you were coming from Kigali, then you will get to the junction after passing the national museum. Q. Very briefly, in a few sentences, are you able to describe what that junction looked like at the time and what was there? A. At the junction of the two roads there was a military roadblock. Q. Chamber also considers that the absence of any subsequent contact between Witness ZAK and Uwambaye supports the conclusion that she did not survive this attack. On this basis, the only reasonable inference is that, around 5 May 1994, Beata Uwambaye, a Tutsi, was killed by the ESO soldiers who led her away from the barrier. Her death was a direct result of Nizeyimana's orders for the ESO soldiers to murder her. The Chamber shall consider the implications of these conclusions in its Legal Findings (III).

7.3 Roadblocks Generally

Introduction

791. The Indictment alleges that from 7 April to mid July 1994, Nizeyimana ordered and instigated soldiers from the ESO, Ngoma Camp and Butare Gendarmerie Camp, including Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gatsinzi, who acted in concert with Sergeant Ezechier Rwaza, militias affiliated with the MRND, MDR, PL, CDR and PSD parties, local citizens and demobilised soldiers, to construct and man roadblocks throughout Butare prefect used for the purpose of identifying and killing Tutsi civilians. In particular, they were ordered to construct and man roadblocks at locations in Butare, including Tumba, Rwabuye, Rwasave, in the Arab Quarter (aka Cyarubu), the junction leading to the Group Scolaire, outside Hotel Faucon in Butare town, near the entrance to the Butare University and the main roads leading to Butare town from both Kigali and Gikongoro. The Prosecution relies on the testimonies of Witnesses Laurien Ntezimana, AZD, BDE, ZY, ZBH, ZAK, Rony Zachariah, Marie Paule Spielmann, TQ, YAA, Jules Kayibanda, FAX, ZT, ZAW and ZBL.²⁰⁰¹

792. The Defence does not dispute the existence and creation of roadblocks, but denies any involvement of Nizeyimana. In particular, Nizeyimana did not have the authority to issue orders in relation to the creation and manning of roadblocks in Butare and he did not do so. Roadblocks established by civilians were beyond the control of the military. Moreover, Nizeyimana was absent from Butare from 21 to 22 April 1994 and from 26 April onwards and he could therefore not have exercised control over, or have knowledge of, the alleged crimes committed at the roadblocks.²⁰⁰²

7.3.1 Preliminary Findings

793. The evidence almost uniformly indicates that while a small number of roadblocks or checkpoints may have existed prior to the President Juvénal Habyarimana's plane crash, roadblocks were established, reinforced and gradually increased after 7 April 1994 and then again after 19 April in Butare.²⁰⁰³ There is only scant, although credible, anecdotal evidence that in the days prior to President Théodore Sindikubwabo's 19 April speech in Butare that

As discussed elsewhere, the Chamber considers Witness BUR's evidence related to his attendance at a meeting at the ESO Camp on 7 April 1994 lacking any probative value. II.2. The same determinations apply with equal force here and the Chamber disregards his evidence related to Nizeyimana's involvement in the establishment of roadblocks or evidence about roadblocks in general.

The Chamber notes that Defence Witness Jean Ghiste is the sole witness to deny having seen any roadblock in the city of Butare when he drove through on 17 and 18 April 1994. Defence Witness Ghiste, T. 10 May 2011, p. 39. In the face of overwhelming evidence to the contrary, the Chamber considers Witness Ghiste's evidence lacking any credibility.

roadblocks were used to attack Tutsis.²⁰⁰⁴ For the most part, prior to 19 April, the evidence tends to reflect that roadblocks were established to ensure everyone's security.²⁰⁰⁵ However, in the following days, Prosecution and Defence evidence almost uniformly reflects that roadblocks became locations used to target Tutsis, persons with Tutsi physical features as well as Hutus who appeared sympathetic to Tutsis.²⁰⁰⁶

794. The Chamber observes that there is evidence tending to reflect that civilian authorities played a role in establishing roadblocks.²⁰⁰⁷ However, consistent and credible evidence shows that the commanders of the ESO and Ngoma camps were invested with the authority, and in fact exercised this authority, to control passage through barriers in and around Butare town. Specifically, for persons other than soldiers to travel around the city, one had to carry a laissez-passer. Without a laissez-passer, it was difficult to traverse the city or obtain fuel, particularly after 16 April 1994.²⁰⁰⁸ The record reflects that Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi or Lieutenant Ildéphonse Hategekimana were the soldiers issuing them.²⁰⁰⁹

795. For example, Prosecution Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann, who remained in Butare until 24 April 1994, obtained their laissez-passers from Colonel Muvunyi to travel around Butare town.²⁰¹⁰ Witness Ntezimana obtained two from Lieutenant Hategekimana, which were valid for a day. He also testified that Muvunyi could issue laissez-passers that lasted a month, although he did not obtain one.²⁰¹¹ Consistent with Witnesses Zachariah, Spielmann and Ntezimana, Witness AZM, a member of the prefecture security committee, testified that Colonel Muvunyi was in charge of issuing the laissez-passers.²⁰¹² Moreover, in the context of discussing roadblocks during a meeting on 14 April, Muvunyi directed persons seeking assistance to go to Ngoma Camp Commander Ildéphonse Hategekimana if Muvunyi was not available.²⁰¹³

796. Unless a person was known to those manning the roadblocks, considerable evidence reflects that such an individual would be forced to show his or her identity card.²⁰¹⁴ For example, Prosecution Witnesses Ntezimana and ZAW, as well as Defence Witnesses CKN20 and CKN10 were generally able to pass through without difficulties, because the people manning the roadblocks knew them.²⁰¹⁵

797. That the power of movement through roadblocks was vested in military authorities, and in particular officials at the ESO, is further demonstrated by the overwhelming evidence that ESO soldiers, as discussed below, were in fact positioned throughout the city at various roadblocks. In this context the Chamber shall now set forth the relevant evidence and its analysis as it relates to the roadblocks that Nizeyimana is alleged to have ordered and instigated soldiers from the ESO, Ngoma and Butare Gendarmerie camps, militias, local citizens and demobilised soldiers, to construct for the purposes of killing Tutsis. It shall consider the purpose of these roadblocks and, in particular, whether they were used for identifying and killing Tutsi civilians.

7.3.2 Rwabuye Roadblock

798. The Prosecution and Defence evidence demonstrates that a roadblock at a location known as Rwabuye existed in April 1994.²⁰¹⁶ Prosecution Witnesses AZD and YAA both ²⁰¹⁵ Prosecution Witness Ntezimana, T. 14 February 2011, pp. 72-73 (normally not stopped in Butare town or Gisagara where he was well known; was detained in Save for nearly a day, however, because those manning the roadblock did not know him); Prosecution Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 8-9; Defence Witness CKN20, T. 15 June 2011, p. 4; Defence Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 8-9. The Chamber shall conduct a more detailed analysis of the individual roadblocks and the identity of those manning it in specific sections hereafter.

²⁰¹⁶ Prosecution Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, p. 75 (saw a roadblock after Rwabuye bridge); Prosecution Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 64 (crossed a roadblock on main road leading to Kigali in Rwabuye valley); Prosecution Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, p. 55 (helped soldiers man the Rwabuye roadblock); Prosecution Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 27 (noted the presence of a roadlock at the entrance to Butare on the road coming from Kigali, just after the bridge); Defence Witness Ntamagezo, T. 8 June 2011, p. 61 (when carrying out patrols in Butare town as part of the Military Police platoon between 21 and 23 April, he saw a roadblock next to the wetlands in Rwabuye). But see Prosecution Witness ZAV, T. 23 February 2011, pp. 26-27 (on 21 April, did not see any roadblocks in between the bridge before town and the national museum). Given the geographical landmarks, combined with the general description by Witness YAA, the Chamber is satisfied that the witnesses refer to the same roadblock in Rwabuye, which was located right after the bridge on identified ESO soldiers at the Rwabuye roadblock.²⁰¹⁷ By contrast, Defence Witness Ntamagezo saw civilians manning this barrier.²⁰¹⁸ The Chamber notes that the record reflects that civilians and soldiers worked in concert at roadblocks around Butare town. Indeed, this cooperation finds corroboration by Prosecution Witness ZBH, a civilian, who manned this roadblock together with soldiers.²⁰¹⁹ In light of the frequent collaboration between soldiers and civilians at roadblocks, the Chamber does not consider Witness Ntamagezo's evidence inconsistent with the finding that ESO soldiers were present and administering the Rwabuye roadblock after 7 April.

799. The Prosecution presented no specific evidence of the use of the Rwabuye roadblock for purposes of identifying and targeting Tutsis, nor is there any evidence of Nizeyimana having been present at this roadblock during the relevant time period.²⁰²⁰ This allegation is not proved.

7.3.3 Rwasave Roadblock

800. The evidence uniformly demonstrates that a roadblock was established in Rwasave in April 1994.²⁰²¹ Notwithstanding, Prosecution and Defence evidence diverges with regard to who manned and administered the roadblock. Prosecution Witness BDE heard from her colleagues that ESO soldiers had been deployed to this barrier following an assembly on 7

the road coming from Kigali. Indeed, the evidence by three Prosecution witnesses, corroborated by a Defence witness, suggests that a roadblock existed in Rwabuye during the genocide. The Chamber therefore does not consider that Witness ZAV's evidence that he did not see this roadblock to be dispositive, particularly if nothing happened and when considering the considerable amount of time that has since elapsed.

²⁰¹⁷ Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 64, 66 (noted that this roadblock was manned by a section of 12 ESO soldiers); Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 75-76 (recognised ESO soldiers manning the barrier). The Chamber has no doubt, and the Defence does not dispute, that Witnesses YAA and AZD, as ESO soldiers, would have been in a position to identify ESO soldiers. See Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 62; Exhibit P16 (Witness YAA's Personal Information Sheet); Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, p. 64; Exhibit P15 (Witness AZD's Personal Information Sheet).

²⁰¹⁹ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 55-56.

²⁰²⁰ Witness ZBH generally stated when talking about three roadblocks, including the Rwabuye roadblock, that he assisted soldiers in searching vehicles for weapons and checking identity cards. Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 55-56. When the Prosecution directed the witness to focus on the roadblock at the Hotel Faucon, Witness ZBH elaborated on the general procedures for killing Tutsis at roadblocks. T. 8 February 2011, p. 56. Witness ZBH did not, however, specifically identify what occurred at the Rwabuye roadblock. His evidence is therefore of limited probative value.

²⁰²¹ Prosecution Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 28-29 (saw a roadblock at "Majerwa" on the road leading to Save in April 1994); Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 19 (knew that ESO soldiers were deployed to a roadblock following an assembly at the ESO on 7 April, called "Magerwa", which was near a fuel depot); Defence Witness Ntamagezo, T. 8 June 2011, p. 58 (encountered gendarmes manning a roadblock in Rwasave known as "Majerwa" on the road to Kigali from Butare on 7 April 1994 and then again on 20 April); Defence Witness Hitayezu, T. 9 June 2011, pp. 57-59, 65-66 (on 20 April, the witness traveled from Gitarama to the ESO Camp and crossed a roadblock in Rwasave near the Butare museum). The Chamber observes the difference in spelling of the roadblock identified by Witnesses XAG, BDE and Ntamagezo, namely "Majerwa" and "Magerwa". A review of the French transcripts reveals the location to have consistently been transcribed therein as "Magerwa". See Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, pp. 30-31 (French); Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 21, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 38, 59 (French); Witness Hitayezu, T. 8 July 2011, pp. 59, 61 (French). The Chamber is satisfied that the locations described in the English transcript as "Magerwa" and "Majerwa" are in fact one and the same. Given the first-hand account by Witnesses XAG and Witness Ntamagezo, corroborated by Witnesses BDE and Hitayezu's circumstantial evidence, the Chamber is satisfied that a roadblock by the name of "Magerwa" existed in Rwasave.

April.²⁰²² Witness XAG was not able to identify the soldiers manning this roadblock.²⁰²³ By contrast, Defence Witness Ntamagezo provided first-hand evidence of civilians manning this roadblock around 20 April.²⁰²⁴ Notably, Witness BDE's second-hand and circumstantial evidence relates to the identity of those manning the barrier on or around 7 April, as opposed to the more relevant time-period starting from 19 April.

801. While the record reflects that civilians and soldiers worked in concert at roadblocks around Butare town, Witness BDE's evidence alone is insufficient to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that ESO soldiers manned the roadblock at Rwasave during the relevant time-period. Witness XAG's testimony that unidentified soldiers manned this roadblock does not sufficiently advance Witness BDE's evidence to establish it beyond reasonable doubt. Finally, the Prosecution presented no evidence of any crimes occurring at this roadblock. This allegation is not proved.

7.3.4 Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali Roads Junction Roadblock

802. Prosecution Witnesses Ntezimana, ZBH, AZD, AZM, ZAV, ZAK, ZAW and YAA, as well as Defence Witnesses Ntamagezo, CKN10 and CKN20 all saw a roadblock in the vicinity of the junction where the main road from Butare town leads to Kigali and is intersected by the main road to Gikongoro.²⁰²⁵ Similarly, Witness Ruzindana also saw a barrier in this area, although he appears to place it further away from the junction.²⁰²⁶

²⁰²² Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 19. See also II.3.1. Prosecution Witness XAG only identified "soldiers" as having been present without specifying what camp they came from. Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, p. 29.

²⁰²³ Witness XAG, T. 25 January 2011, p. 29.

²⁰²⁴ Witness Ntamagezo, T. 8 June 2011, p. 61. Notably, when Witness Ntamagezo passed this roadblock on 7 April 1994, he saw gendarmes manning the roadblock. T. 8 June 2011, p. 58.

²⁰²⁵ See Prosecution Witness Ntezimana, T. 14 February 2011, pp. 62, 66-68 (described the "Karubanda roadblock" as situated at "at the entrance to town" near the junction with the main tarmac road to Gikongoro and, in 1994, with a wooded area below it and near the national museum); Prosecution Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 55-57, 59, 64-65 (describing a roadblock at the "Butare and Gikongoro roads junction" and testifying that ESO soldiers were responsible for it, gave rotation schedules to civilians assisting; those identified at the barrier as Tutsis or suspected of being Tutsi were handed over to the civilian population and killed); Prosecution Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 75-76 (described a roadblock on the road to Kigali "at the junction of the road leading to Gikongoro" manned by soldiers and civilians; distinguished between soldiers at this barrier from the Ngoma Camp soldiers who manned the Ngoma Camp roadblock because, he could recognise ESO soldiers as well as, as well as civilians); Prosecution Witness AZM, T. 24 January 2011, pp. 14-15 (after 19 April 1994, witness passed a roadblock before reaching the junction that led towards Gikongoro or into Butare; it was manned by soldiers); Prosecution Witness ZAV T. 23 February 2011, p. 27 (described a checkpoint past the "museum" on the way into Butare town "at the junction to the road to Gikongoro Cyangugu" and the road to into town towards Buye); Prosecution Witness ZAK, T. 24 January 2011, p. 57 (describing a military roadblock at the junction of the roads to Cyangugu and Kigali, which was just past the national museum if a person were coming from Kigali); Prosecution Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 7-8 (during the genocide passed a roadblock in Rwabuye at the "cross-roads of the Kigali-Butare and Kigali-Gikongoro road" manned by ESO soldiers); Prosecution Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 64-65 (described a roadblock outside at "the road leading to Gikongoro prefecture" that was to the "left with respect to the main road" but that vehicles going either to Gikongoro or Kigali had to pass through it; it was manned by Interahamwe wearing military shirts with civilian trousers and armed with clubs, spears and machetes); Defence Witness Ntamagezo, T. 8 June 2011, p. 61 (describing a roadblock manned by civilians on "the road leading to Gikongoro"); Defence Witness CKN20, T. 15 June 2011, p. 4 (on 10 April 1994, the witness passed a roadblock at the cross-roads of the Cyangugu-Gikongoro road and the road leading to Gitarama; it was manned by civilians and gendarmes wearing red berets); Defence Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 9-10 (the

803. Notably, Prosecution Witness Kayibanda, who travelled on the road from Kigali to Butare on 20 April 1994, did not testify about this roadblock, but instead first noticed a roadblock in Butare town at Hotel Faucon.²⁰²⁷ Likewise, Prosecution Witness Gahizi testified to only remembering passing the roadblock at Hotel Faucon when he returned to Butare from Kanombe in late April.²⁰²⁸ Given the overwhelming evidence of this barrier's existence, as well as the considerable passage of time, these omissions are far from dispositive. Indeed, Witness Gahizi conceded that he might have passed other barriers before arriving at the Hotel Faucon, clarifying that it was a difficult situation and that it was "not easy to notice everything".²⁰²⁹

804. The Chamber turns to the purpose of this roadblock. Of particular significance, Witness Ntezimana passed this roadblock sometime after 19 April 1994.²⁰³⁰ While there, he saw two or three Interahamwe hitting something on the ground in a wooded area below the roadblock.²⁰³¹ When he asked one of the two soldiers at the roadblock what those people were hitting, the soldier replied "Oh, those guys are in the process of killing a snake, a serpent."²⁰³² When the witness was allowed to pass through the roadblock, he looked and saw that it was a human being they were hitting, though he was not sure whether it was a man or a woman.²⁰³³ In Witness Ntezimana's view, the reference to a "serpent" was clearly understood to mean a Tutsi.²⁰³⁴

805. Witness Ntezimana was stopped again at this roadblock between 19 and 30 April 1994, while in the process of relocating Tutsis gathered at the Matyazo health centre. Approximately four or five Ngoma Camp soldiers provided by Lieutenant Hategekimana accompanied his group. One soldier was a sergeant, who Witness Ntezimana believed had formerly been an instructor at the ESO, but who was affiliated with the Ngoma Camp in April.²⁰³⁵ Those administering the roadblock included soldiers the witness believed were from the ESO Camp.²⁰³⁶ Witness Ntezimana stated that they were almost "massacred" by the crowd there, but for the fact that the sergeant stepped in to talk to the people manning the witness passed through a roadblock at the Kigali-Gikongoro junction and generally testified that roadblocks were only manned by Interahamwe rather than soldiers or gendarmes). Cf. roadblock.²⁰³⁷ The soldiers recognised the sergeant as having been a former instructor and reluctantly let them go.²⁰³⁸

806. As set forth in detail elsewhere, on 21 April 1994, Witness ZAV, a Tutsi student at the Butare University, and Remy Rwekaza were stopped by soldiers at this roadblock between 4.00 or 5.00 p.m.²⁰³⁹ The witness identified the soldiers as ESO soldiers, based on their young age and their uniforms. Notably, they initially let him pass based on his assertion that he was going to see ESO instructor Captain Twagiramungu. The witness and Rwekaza were subsequently stopped by Nizeyimana and returned to the roadblock. There, Nizeyimana ordered the ESO soldiers to kill Rwekaza and the witness. The soldiers led the two a short distance away and shot them both, as a result of which Rwekaza died. Remarkably, Witness ZAV survived, and showed the Chamber the scars from the bullet wounds.²⁰⁴⁰

807. Notably, Witness ZAK described a very similar incident at a roadblock in the same location, occurring around 5 May 1994. A soldier, he was travelling with a Tutsi woman, Beata Uwambaye. He observed about six to 10 young soldiers, some wearing camouflage uniforms and black berets, who the witness believed were nouvelle formule cadets from the ESO, at the roadblock. Furthermore, Nizeyimana ordered the soldiers to kill Uwambaye, who he referred to as an “Inkotanyi / Inyenzi”. Uwambaye was led to a wooded area below the barrier. The witness heard three gunshots and saw the soldiers return later with one wiping blood off of his bayonet. He never saw Uwambaye again and believed she was dead.²⁰⁴¹

808. Notably, Witness ZBH, a Hutu Interahamwe who had been a “helper” at the ESO in 1991,²⁰⁴² testified that the roadblock at the “Butare-Gikongoro” junction was manned by ESO soldiers as well as civilians.²⁰⁴³ On an unspecified date, Nizeyimana spoke to the soldiers and civilians at this roadblock, including Witness ZBH, and convinced them that the Tutsis were the country’s enemy and that no Tutsi should survive.²⁰⁴⁴ He told them that anyone with Tutsi features should be killed.²⁰⁴⁵ Witness ZBH assisted in the killing of Tutsis at this roadblock.²⁰⁴⁶

809. At the outset, the Chamber has no doubt that Witnesses Ntezimana and ZAV encountered this roadblock in late April 1994 and Witness ZAK passed it in early May. The Chamber notes that the Defence does not generally challenge Witness Ntezimana’s credibility.²⁰⁴⁷ The Chamber, having considered his evidence in its entirety, which appeared direct and unembellished, as well as his demeanour, finds Witness Ntezimana highly credible.

810. Likewise, the Chamber has elsewhere considered the general credibility challenges to Witnesses ZAV and ZAK, as well as their evidence on these specific events.²⁰⁴⁸ Again, having viewed their evidence in its entirety as well as the demeanour of the witnesses, the Chamber has no doubt that they were present at this roadblock and that Witness ZAV was a victim of an attack there, while Witness ZAK observed ESO soldiers take Beata Uwambaye away and overheard them kill her.

811. While the Chamber has elsewhere expressed its need to view Witness ZBH's evidence with appropriate caution,²⁰⁴⁹ it has no doubt that he manned this roadblock during the genocide. Indeed, he confessed to genocide related crimes in Rwanda that stemmed from his involvement in roadblocks.²⁰⁵⁰ Furthermore, when questioned about this particular roadblock, the witness discussed how Tutsis were targeted and that they were led a short distance away to kill them "in the woods around the roadblocks".²⁰⁵¹

812. Such a description is consistent with the compelling testimonies of Witnesses Ntezimana, ZAV and ZAK, who witnessed, or, in one case, experienced attacks that were carried out in a very similar manner. Of particular significance, Witness ZBH's evidence tracks Witness Ntezimana's testimony that, at least at times, soldiers worked in conjunction with Interahamwe to target Tutsis at this barrier.²⁰⁵² These factors provide strong circumstantial support and render his account highly credible.

813. Furthermore, the Chamber considers the separate identification of ESO soldiers at this roadblock individually and collectively compelling. Witness Ntezimana identified the soldiers at this roadblock as coming from the ESO Camp when he came upon it during his later trip while accompanied with displaced Tutsis and five soldiers from the Ngoma Camp.²⁰⁵³ As noted above, those at the roadblock were resistant to letting the group pass – alleging that "enemies were hiding among them" – until a particular Ngoma Camp sergeant spoke with the soldiers. The soldiers recognised him as their former instructor, and reluctantly let them through.²⁰⁵⁴

814. The Chamber considers that Witnesses ZAK and ZAV might have identified the soldiers they saw at the roadblock as ESO soldiers, in part, based on the fact that Nizeyimana was issuing instructions to them. However, they also provided separate and compelling bases for the identification of these soldiers as ESO soldiers, which relied, in part, on their youth.²⁰⁵⁵ Similarly, the Chamber has elsewhere considered that Witness ZBH's ability to identify soldiers was relatively strong.²⁰⁵⁶ His position as a civilian worker at the ESO in 1991 adds further support to the proposition that he could generally distinguish ESO soldiers from other military personnel.

815. Furthermore, a review of the record reflects general support for the proposition that ESO soldiers were assigned to and manned this particular roadblock. Specifically, Witness ZAW, an ESO cadet since 1991, testified that while travelling from Butare town on his way to Gitarama in late May 1994, he saw ESO soldiers manning this roadblock.²⁰⁵⁷ Likewise, Witness AZD, a non-commissioned officer at the ESO in 1994,²⁰⁵⁸ testified that he saw this roadblock, which was manned by soldiers and civilians.²⁰⁵⁹ His evidence reflects that the soldiers there were from the ESO Camp.²⁰⁶⁰ Furthermore, Witness BDE, an ESO cadet in 1994,²⁰⁶¹ also learned from an unidentified fellow soldier that ESO soldiers had been deployed to the roundabout "at the road leading to Gikongoro" and the road leading into Butare town.²⁰⁶² Witness AZM, a member of the Butare prefecture security council,²⁰⁶³ passed this roadblock daily and only saw unidentified soldiers manning it after 19 April.²⁰⁶⁴

816. In this context, the Chamber observes that other evidence reflects that soldiers were not present at this roadblock. Of particular significance, Defence Witness Ntamagezo, an ESO cadet in 1994,²⁰⁶⁵ testified that he passed this roadblock on 21 April and that he saw civilians manning it.²⁰⁶⁶ Prosecution Witness YAA, an officer at the ESO in April,²⁰⁶⁷ passed

²⁰⁵⁶ See II.11. The Chamber observes that it determined that Witness ZBH's identification of ESO soldiers during the attack on Benebikira convent was insufficient to establish their presence beyond reasonable doubt. It considers that the circumstances of Witness ZBH's identification of ESO soldiers at this particular roadblock are materially different. Notably, during the attack at the Benebikira convent, ZBH's evidence reflects that he arrived in the midst of it, and that there were many soldiers moving about. This was an event of high intensity and limited duration. To the contrary, Witness ZBH's evidence about being positioned at the roadblock and that civilians followed rotations there, tends to suggest that his duties there included periods of static placement among soldiers, which would have allowed for repeated and close range observations.

A. To distinguish between them was not a difficult thing to do, because the soldiers from the ESO, in addition to distinctive signs and symbols, they had other insignia depending on their badges. So other soldiers who were not cadets of the ESO had their normal grades ranks, so there were no other distinctive signs. Now, I could recognise the students from the ESO because I had seen them at the camp, at Camp ESO, but I could also recognise them based on those insignia which distinguished the two categories of soldiers.").

It is not clear that she passed the barrier at the junction of the roads leading to Kigali and Gikongoro.

this roadblock on 12 or 13 April and testified that it was manned by Interahamwe.²⁰⁶⁸ Similarly, Witness CKN10 testified about passing this roadblock on 10 April and that it was manned by gendarmes wearing red berets and persons in civilian clothing.²⁰⁶⁹

817. Having thoroughly considered all the relevant evidence, the testimonies of Witnesses Ntamagezo, YAA and CKN10 fail to raise reasonable doubts in the otherwise consistent and compelling first-hand accounts of Witnesses Ntezimana, ZAV, ZAK, ZBH, ZAW and AZD that ESO soldiers manned this roadblock. Notably, Witness Ntamagezo also testified that the only roadblock manned by ESO soldiers was the one located in the Arab quarter.²⁰⁷⁰ His evidence is contrary to a wealth of consistent and compelling testimonies that ESO soldiers also manned the Hotel Faucon and Chez Bihira barriers.²⁰⁷¹ The Chamber has elsewhere questioned the credibility of his evidence.²⁰⁷² Having considered his demeanour in court, the Chamber views his evidence with considerable suspicion.

818. Furthermore, the Chamber notes that the observations of Witnesses CKN10 and YAA, made between 10 and 13 April 1994, are temporally distant from those made by Witnesses Ntezimana, ZAV and ZAK. The latter three witnesses recounted incidents that occurred in the last third of April or early May. The testimonies of Witnesses CKN10 and YAA, even if credited, are far from dispositive as it relates to the later conduct of ESO soldiers at this roadblock, including those working in conjunction with civilian militia.

819. The Chamber now turns to evidence directly implicating Nizeyimana in the activities at this roadblock. It has previously considered the testimonies of Witnesses ZAV and ZAK as it relates to the killings of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye. The Chamber has concluded that in both instances, Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to kill Rwekaza and Witness ZAV, as well as Beata Uwambaye.

820. The Chamber now evaluates the testimony of Witness ZBH. The Chamber has elsewhere determined that his evidence must be viewed with appropriate caution.²⁰⁷³ As noted in relation to the killings at the Benebikira convent, Witness ZBH generally deflected any responsibility on his part for crimes committed and instead insisted he was “forced” or tricked by soldiers to participate in killings.²⁰⁷⁴ Notably, Witness ZBH’s evidence reflects that he was following the instructions of ESO soldiers at this roadblock and, in particular, Nizeyimana’s instructions to target Tutsis.

821. The Chamber has some concerns that Witness ZBH’s evidence in this proceeding may have been used as an opportunity to deflect responsibility for his crimes. It might also have been motivated by a desire to obtain lenient treatment from Rwandan judicial authorities, as the witness remained incarcerated at the time of his testimony.²⁰⁷⁵ Consequently, his testimony shall be viewed with the appropriate caution, particularly as it relates to implicating Nizeyimana.²⁰⁷⁶

822. Witness ZBH's evidence about observing Nizeyimana at this roadblock was brief and non-descript. Specifically, the witness did not identify the exact date and time of day when he saw Nizeyimana issuing orders. Nevertheless, Witness ZBH's testimony is largely consistent with his 2003 confession to the extent that he implicates Nizeyimana in the establishment and supervision of roadblocks, set up on the road to Cyangugu, for the purpose of targeting Tutsi civilians.²⁰⁷⁷

823. The Chamber observes that prior consistent statements do not bolster a witness's credibility.²⁰⁷⁸ However, these circumstances reflect that the witness has maintained Nizeyimana's involvement in the criminal administration of roadblocks for an extended period of time. Such circumstances are appropriate to consider when evaluating a witness's testimony.²⁰⁷⁹ Whatever ulterior motives Witness ZBH has to provide testimony inculpatory of Nizeyimana, this Chamber has no reasonable concerns it has been tainted by his incarceration.²⁰⁸⁰

824. Moreover, the Chamber considers that in subsequent pro justitia statements to Rwandan authorities, Witness ZBH referred to roadblocks, but provided no reference of Nizeyimana ordering those manning them to kill Tutsis.²⁰⁸¹ However, these statements related primarily to the conduct of Cyriaque Habyarabatuma, the Tumba gendarmerie commander in 1994. While they referenced the same roadblocks mentioned in Witness ZBH's 2003 confession, the fact that they contain no reference to Nizeyimana is insignificant. Given the compelling circumstantial support offered by the other direct evidence of Nizeyimana's involvement in crimes perpetrated at this roadblock, the Chamber considers that Witness ZBH's evidence of Nizeyimana giving orders at this roadblock convincing beyond reasonable doubt.

²⁰⁷⁶ See II.11.

²⁰⁷⁷ Exhibit D15B (Witness ZBH's Prior Confession), pp. 14-15, 32-33 (indicating that three roadblocks were set up on the Cyangugu road – one at Gahenerezo, one at “CONFIGI” and one at “Gako”; people were killed at these roadblocks on the orders of Hategekimana, Rekeraho and Nizeyimana).

²⁰⁷⁹ Cf. Bagosora and Nsengiyumva Appeal Judgement, paras. 245, 264-265 (the Trial Chamber did not err when considering consistencies between an accomplice witness's testimony before the Trial Chamber and the testimony to a Rwandan court).

²⁰⁸⁰ In so finding, the Chamber has considered Defence arguments that Witness ZBH, who kept a copy of his confession, had modified the one that he gave to the Prosecution in 2010, adding Nizeyimana's name in several places after the fact. Defence Closing Brief, paras. 170-179. However, the Defence does not make these submissions with respect to this particular aspect of Witness ZBH's confession. A review of the original confession reveals that the circumstances which, in the Defence's view, show ex post facto alterations, are not present. Namely, the reference to Nizeyimana's involvement appears squarely within the original narrative rather than having been added in areas outside the narration section or added into open spaces among the original text. See Exhibit D15A(K) (Original Copy of Witness ZBH's Confession), p. 8 and Exhibit D15B (Translation of Witness ZBH's Confession), pp. 14-15, 32-33. The Chamber does not consider that other incidents of purported modifications reasonably undermines Witness ZBH's credibility so that none of his evidence can be relied upon.

²⁰⁸¹ See Exhibit D16(E) (Pro Justitia Statement, 25 June 2005), p. 1 (describing having manned an unidentified roadblock with several persons, including ex-Rwandan army officers and a “Corporal Gatwaza”); Exhibit D17 (Pro Justitia Statement, 17 June 2009), p. 8 (describing four barriers).

825. Given the totality of the evidence, the Chamber is satisfied that, as early as 21 April 1994, the roadblock at the junction of the roads leading to Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali was being used for the purpose of identifying and killing Tutsi civilians. Furthermore, the Chamber is satisfied that ESO soldiers positioned at this roadblock substantially and significantly contributed to killings committed at it. To the extent such soldiers were not the assailants directly participating in the killing of those identified as Tutsis at this roadblock, the Chamber has no doubt that they shared the assailants' intent. Furthermore, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana's instructions at this roadblock, namely to kill Tutsis, directly, significantly and substantially contributed to the killings that he was present for as well as for others that occurred outside his presence.

Notice

826. The Chamber observes that the Indictment does not give particularised notice as it relates to the killings described by Witness Ntezimana at this barrier nor Nizeyimana's instructions to kill Tutsis as described by Witness ZBH. Notwithstanding, the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, and, in particular, the annexed witness summaries for Witnesses Ntezimana and ZBH indicate that they would be testifying in support of Indictment paragraph 6. Moreover, the witness summaries provide information generally consistent with the evidence given at trial.²⁰⁸²

827. The Defence did not raise any objections as it relates to the evidence of Witness Ntezimana or ZBH about this roadblock. Moreover, under some circumstances, the information provided in the Pre-Trial Brief's witness summaries could cure defects in the operative Indictment paragraph.²⁰⁸³ However, the Prosecution has taken the position that similar evidence related to killing at roadblocks, whose notice is provided only through the Pre-Trial Brief or annexed witness summaries, is not being used as a basis for conviction.²⁰⁸⁴ Under the circumstances, the Chamber considers that this evidence cannot be used for that purpose either.

828. Notwithstanding, it remains highly relevant and probative of other allegations pleaded in the indictment.²⁰⁸⁵ Given the notice provided in the Pre-Trial Brief, the Chamber considers that Nizeyimana was provided sufficient information to prepare his defence in relation to this evidence. The Chamber is convinced that no prejudice was suffered. Consequently the Chamber shall consider this evidence in relation to allegations pleaded in the Indictment.

7.3.5 Hotel Faucon Roadblock

829. The Prosecution and Defence evidence uniformly demonstrates that a roadblock was established in April 1994, outside Hotel Faucon in Butare town.²⁰⁸⁶ Based on the first-hand accounts of Prosecution Witnesses ZBH, Vincent Ntezimana, AZM, AZD, YAA, ZAW and Justin Gahizi, the Chamber finds that the evidence reflects that ESO soldiers were manning the Hotel Faucon roadblock in April.²⁰⁸⁷

830. Specifically, the Defence does not dispute, and the Chamber has no doubt that Witnesses YAA, AZD, ZAW and Gahizi, who were all soldiers at the ESO, would have been in a position to identify and distinguish ESO soldiers from other camps. Moreover, the Chamber has considered elsewhere that Witness ZBH's history with ESO as a worker as well as collaboration with soldiers at roadblocks and elsewhere would have allowed him to identify the soldiers operating around Butare.²⁰⁸⁸ Lastly, the Chamber has considered elsewhere that Witness AZM's prominent role in law enforcement in Butare at the time, and his involvement with military people through his membership with the prefecture security committee, contributed to his ability to distinguish ESO soldiers from others.²⁰⁸⁹ Notably, Defence Witnesses Thomas Ruzindana, CKN10, Jean Népomuscène Bunani and Irénée Hitayezu all testified about passing this roadblock. None, however, were questioned as to who manned this barrier.²⁰⁹⁰

He further noted that the soldier who was manning this roadblock was "clearly" a soldier from the ESO, "[b]ased on the information that [he] had, and taking into account his [young] age"); Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 75-76, 78 (Witness AZD recognised a first sergeant at this roadblock when he passed through around 21 April 1994); Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 65 (roadblock was manned by approximately 12 ESO cadets, who were wearing military fatigues and carrying rifles); Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 5, 7-9, 33, 41 (Witness ZAW, an ESO soldier, spoke to some of his ESO colleagues when he passed by this roadblock in late May 1994 while travelling through Butare town towards Gitarama); Witness Gahizi, T. 7 February 2011, pp. 34-36 (noticed the Hotel Faucon roadblock when he first returned to Butare in late April; it was manned by nouvelle formule cadets; he learned from Nizeyimana's bodyguard, Ndayizeye, that two persons were arrested and killed at that roadblock).

831. While Defence Witness Ntamagezo saw civilians at this barrier, the Chamber has noted elsewhere that the presence of civilians does not raise doubts that it was, at times, manned and controlled by ESO soldiers.²⁰⁹¹ Indeed, Witness ZBH, a civilian, testified that he manned this roadblock and generally discussed that soldiers frequently used civilians to murder Tutsis or check the identification of people passing through it.²⁰⁹² Other evidence in the record also reflects that soldiers cooperated with the Interahamwe at roadblocks in and around Butare town.²⁰⁹³

832. Likewise, evidence in the record reflects soldiers and civilians acting together in targeted killings after 19 April 1994.²⁰⁹⁴ The Chamber therefore does not consider Witness Ntamagezo's account of civilians manning this roadblock to be inconsistent with the overall conclusion that ESO soldiers were manning and administering the Hotel Faucon roadblock.

833. Turning to the purpose for which the roadblock was used, the Chamber has elsewhere found that Professor Pierre Claver Karenzi, a Tutsi, was killed in the vicinity of this barrier on 21 April 1994.²⁰⁹⁵ Witness ZBH further identified this as one of the roadblocks at which he killed Tutsis.²⁰⁹⁶ Although second-hand, Prosecution Witness Gahizi was told by Ndayizeye, one of Nizeyimana's bodyguards, that he had killed people at the Hotel Faucon roadblock. Witness Gahizi inferred from the fact that it was "an open secret" that Tutsis were being targeted, that the people Ndayizeye was referring to were Tutsis.²⁰⁹⁷ Furthermore, Prosecution Witnesses ZBH, YAA, AZM, and ZAW all recounted how persons were stopped at this roadblock before being allowed through.²⁰⁹⁸

834. Given the totality of the evidence, the Chamber is satisfied that, at least by 21 April 1994, the roadblock outside Hotel Faucon was used for the purpose of identifying and killing Tutsi civilians.²⁰⁹⁹ Furthermore, the Chamber is satisfied that ESO soldiers positioned at this ²⁰⁹⁷ Witness Gahizi, T. 7 February 2011, pp. 34-35.

²⁰⁹⁸ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, p. 55 (Witness ZBH checked identity cards at roadblocks, including the one in front of Hotel Faucon); Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 65 (when people went through this roadblock they were checked, with particular attention paid to their ethnicity); Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 74, 76 (Witness AZM was checked by a soldier when he went through the Hotel Faucon roadblock and noticed that Professor Karenzi was checked as well); Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 9 (everyone who went through this roadblock had to show their identity card).

²⁰⁹⁹ See Prosecution Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 77-78 (sometime after 19 April 1994, Witness AZD saw Professor Karenzi's body as he was passing through this roadblock); Prosecution Witness Nteyimana, T. 14 February 2011, pp. 69-70 (sometime before 19 April 1994, Witness Nteyimana heard that Professor Karenzi, a Tutsi, was killed at this roadblock); Prosecution Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 55-56, 64 (Witness ZBH recounted how Tutsis were killed once identified as such, or when a person was considered to have Tutsi roadblock substantially and significantly contributed to killings committed at it. To the extent such soldiers were not the assailants directly participating in the killing of those identified as Tutsis at this roadblock, the Chamber has no doubt that they shared the assailants' intent.

835. Indeed, the Chamber has no doubt that the Hotel Faucon roadblock was among a network of other roadblocks manned by ESO soldiers – including those at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction and at Chez Bihira – that were turned towards the task of identifying and eliminating Tutsis, at least by the last third of April 1994. Of particular significance is the immediate proximity of this roadblock to the barrier at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction. The Chamber is satisfied that instructions issued at one were necessarily transmitted and consistent with those issued to the other.

836. Witness ZBH is the only witness to provide evidence of Nizeyimana's presence at this roadblock, implicating him directly in the criminal administration of it.²¹⁰⁰ The Chamber has elsewhere determined that his evidence must be viewed with appropriate caution.²¹⁰¹ As noted in relation to the killings at the Benebikira convent, Witness ZBH generally deflected any responsibility on his part for crimes committed and instead insisted he was "forced" or tricked by soldiers to participate in killings.²¹⁰² Notably, Witness ZBH's evidence reflects that he was following the instructions of ESO soldiers at this roadblock, and, in particular, Nizeyimana's instructions to target Tutsis.

837. The Chamber has some concerns that Witness ZBH's evidence in this proceeding may have been used as an opportunity to deflect responsibility for crimes. It might also have been motivated by a desire to obtain lenient treatment from Rwandan judicial authorities, as the features; he took Tutsis away at this roadblock and killed them); Prosecution Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 65 (while Witness YAA suggested that the soldiers were checking vehicles for ammunition and suspected RPF infiltrates, he noted that particular attention was paid to the ethnicity of people as they passed through); Prosecution Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, pp. 74, 76 (on an unspecified date, Witness AZM saw the body of Professor Karenzi, a Tutsi, at this roadblock and the soldier checking him told the witness he had just shot and killed Karenzi with two bullets); Prosecution Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 8-9 (identified this as one of several roadblocks he passed in late May 1994 and stated that everyone stopped at roadblocks manned by ESO soldiers "had to show identity cards"). Witness BDE, who heard that the soldiers were deployed around the city to ensure security, corroborates the dual purpose identified by Witness YAA of this roadblock. Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, pp. 14-15, 19-20. Indeed, the Chamber is satisfied based on the finding that Professor Karenzi, a Tutsi, was killed after having been brought to the Hotel Faucon roadblock, combined with Witness ZBH's first-hand testimony of killings perpetrated by him at this roadblock, and the circumstantial and second-hand evidence by Witnesses YAA and Gahizi, that Tutsi civilians were identified and killed at this roadblock. The Chamber observes that Defence Witness Bunani was the only witness who expressly stated that he did not see any signs of violence or dead bodies at roadblocks in Butare town. Defence Witness Bunani, 13 June 2011, p. 42 ("Q. Did you see any dead bodies at any of the roadblocks? A. I did not see any. Q. Did you see any dead bodies within Butare town? A. No. I did not see any. MR. PRESIDENT: Did you see any dead bodies anywhere during the genocide, the period running from April the 6th to July? THE WITNESS: No, I never saw any."). However, as Nizeyimana's brother-in-law, the Chamber considers that Bunani has incentive to deflect any form of responsibility away from the Accused. The Chamber therefore has concerns about the partiality of this witness. Moreover, the Chamber considers this evidence, generally denying any form of violence at roadblocks in Butare, lacking any probative value in light of the otherwise direct evidence to the contrary.

²¹⁰⁰ Nizeyimana spoke to the soldiers and civilians at this roadblock on an unspecified date, and convinced them that the Tutsis were the country's enemy and that no Tutsi should survive. Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 58-59.

²¹⁰¹ See II.3.4.

witness remained incarcerated at the time of his testimony.²¹⁰³ Consequently, his testimony shall be viewed with the appropriate caution, particularly as it relates to implicating Nizeyimana.²¹⁰⁴

838. Witness ZBH's evidence about observing Nizeyimana at this roadblock was brief and non-descript. Specifically, the witness did not identify the exact date and time of day when he saw Nizeyimana issuing orders at the Hotel Faucon roadblock or provide any further details. Moreover, his testimony regarding Nizeyimana's presence at the Hotel Faucon roadblock is at odds with his 2003 confession, the latter of which does not contain any reference to Nizeyimana issuing orders to kill Tutsis at this specific roadblock.²¹⁰⁵ The absence of sufficient details raises questions about the quality of this evidence. The ambiguities within his testimony, when viewed in light of prior omissions, render his evidence directly implicating Nizeyimana as far from dispositive.

839. Notwithstanding, given that ESO soldiers manned this roadblock, along with evidence of killings occurring there as well as Witness ZBH's admission that he participated in killings at it, doubts about Nizeyimana's physical presence at the roadblock and issuing instructions are not dispositive. Indeed, Witness ZBH's evidence compellingly demonstrates the fluid and interrelated operations of this roadblock and, for example, the one situated just down the road at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock. As concluded above, his evidence of participating in killings at both is a direct reflection that instructions issued at one barrier were necessarily consistent and transmitted to other. This conclusion is further bolstered when considered in light of the fact that ESO soldiers manned both roadblocks, the fact ESO soldiers targeted and killed Tutsis at both, and that such conduct was occurring at the same time.

Notice

840. With the exception of the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi, the Indictment does not give express notice of the killings described by Witnesses Gahizi or ZBH. Notwithstanding, the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, and, in particular, the annexed witness summaries for Witnesses Gahizi and ZBH indicate that they would be testifying in support of Indictment paragraph 6. The witness summary of Witness ZBH provides some information that is generally consistent with his evidence at trial, although Witness Gahizi's is silent as it relates to this roadblock.²¹⁰⁶

841. Although the Defence did not raise any objections as it relates to the evidence of Witnesses Gahizi or ZBH about this roadblock, the Chamber is doubtful whether sufficient notice was given. It shall only consider it as background to charges clearly pleaded in the Indictment.

²¹⁰⁶ See Pre-Trial Brief, Annex, paras. 6 (providing the anticipated testimony of Witness Gahizi, formerly "Witness KAL"), 41 ("He will testify that people were killed at the roadblocks that were erected under the orders of Nizeyimana ...").

7.3.6 Roadblock at the Junction Leading to the Groupe Scolaire (Chez Bihira)

842. The Prosecution and Defence evidence uniformly demonstrates that a roadblock was established in April 1994, near the junction of the main road and the road to the Groupe Scolaire, also referred to as the Chez Bihira roadblock.²¹⁰⁷ Similarly, the evidence reflects that soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma camps manned this barrier.

843. Specifically Prosecution Witness ZAW, an ESO soldier testified that this was one of several roadblocks that he passed in May 1994 and that it was manned by ESO soldiers.²¹⁰⁸ Prosecution Witness AZM heard Muvunyi announce during a meeting on 14 April that soldiers from the Ngoma Camp manned this barrier.²¹⁰⁹ Notably, Defence Witness Ngezahayo saw a roadblock on the Bihira road that was manned by soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma camps. Given his position as a launderer at the ESO,²¹¹⁰ the Chamber has no concerns about his ability to identify ESO soldiers.²¹¹¹ Furthermore, Prosecution Witness BDE heard from her colleagues that ESO soldiers were deployed to this location following an assembly on 7 April.²¹¹²

844. Notably, this particular roadblock was only a short distance from the ESO, providing circumstantial support that it would have been manned by soldiers from this camp. Furthermore, it was also geographically proximate to the Hotel Faucon and the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction barriers, which were also manned by ESO soldiers. These factors lend strong circumstantial support to the direct evidence that ESO soldiers were positioned at this barrier. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber has no doubt that, at times, ESO soldiers manned this particular roadblock.

²¹⁰⁷ Prosecution Witness AZM, T. 20 January 2011, p. 73 (saw a roadblock on the road towards Groupe Scolaire); Prosecution Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 8 (saw a roadblock at the junction of the main road and the road leading to Groupe Scolaire); Prosecution Witness TQ, T. 27 January 2011, p. 24 (Chez Bihira roadblock was located about 30 metres from the cross-section of the Groupe Scolaire road and the tarmac road); Prosecution Witness Zachariah, T. 14 January, p. 9 (observed a roadblock on the junction between the road to Kigali and the road to Groupe Scolaire); Prosecution Witness Ntezimana, T. 14 January 2011, p. 62 (roadblock between the tarmac road and the road leading to Groupe Scolaire); Prosecution Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 20 (heard of a roadblock that was established at “Kwabihira”); Defence Witness Ngezahayo, T. 24 May 2011, p. 47 (saw a roadblock on the Bihira road). See also Exhibit D18 (Witness Zachariah’s Sketch). The Chamber notes that Witness BDE refers to a roadblock with a phonetically similar name and an identical meaning in Kinyarwanda when they told her that ESO soldiers were being deployed to positions. The Chamber is satisfied that the locations described as Chez Bihira and “Kwabihira” are in fact one in the same. The Chamber observes that the record reflects the existence of more than one roadblock in the vicinity of the Groupe Scolaire. Specifically, Witnesses TQ identified two roadblocks on the road, one at the entrance of the Groupe Scolaire and the other near the junction of the main road from Groupe Scolaire. Prosecution Witness TQ, T. 27 January 2011, pp. 23-24. Similarly, Witness ZBK observed a roadblock at the entrance to the Groupe Scolaire. Prosecution Witness ZBK, T. 19 January 2011, pp. 25-26, 35. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution has not put forth any evidence identifying those manning the barrier immediately at the Groupe Scolaire entrance or any evidence suggesting that this roadblock was used for purposes of identifying and killing Tutsis or who manned this roadblock. Accordingly, the Chamber declines to address this roadblock.

²¹¹² Witness BDE, T. 19 January 2011, pp. 19-20.

845. Prosecution Witness TQ is the sole witness to provide evidence of Nizeyimana's presence at this roadblock around 20 April 1994.²¹¹³ Specifically, Witness TQ, who was stopped at this barrier, stated that he saw Nizeyimana standing next to Innocent Rwagashayija's corpse and heard Nizeyimana admit that he killed Rwagashayija.²¹¹⁴

846. Witness TQ lived in Butare as a secondary school student in 1981, but lived in Kacyiru from 1992 to 1994.²¹¹⁵ He returned to Butare on 12 April 1994 to seek refuge with orphans at the Groupe Scolaire, but it is unclear whether he resided in Butare town immediately prior to 1992, when Nizeyimana was present as well.²¹¹⁶ The uncertainty regarding Witness TQ's residency before 1992 raises questions about his ability to identify Nizeyimana when he saw him a week after the witness's arrival in Butare in April 1994. Indeed, the Chamber has elsewhere questioned Witness TQ's ability to identify Nizeyimana in 1994.²¹¹⁷ In light of the uncorroborated nature of his evidence the Chamber considers Witness TQ's identification of Nizeyimana at the Chez Bihira roadblock lacking sufficient reliability to establish facts beyond reasonable doubt.²¹¹⁸

847. Various Prosecution witnesses provided evidence of civilians being identified and assaulted at the Groupe Scolaire roadblock in April 1994. Witness Zachariah saw a man being beaten until he fell lifelessly to the ground around 17 April.²¹¹⁹ Of particular significance, Witness Zachariah also observed these same soldiers allow Interahamwe armed with machetes to pass unmolested moments later.²¹²⁰ Similarly, sometime before 19 April, Witness Ntezimana saw two soldiers use their rifle butts to beat a group of young people in civilian attire whom others stated were Tutsis.²¹²¹

848. Witness TQ saw several corpses at the Chez Bihira roadblock, including that of Innocent Rwagashayija, whom the witness knew to be a Tutsi.²¹²² Witness ZAW confirmed that no one could pass through barriers manned by ESO soldiers, including this one, without showing their identity card.²¹²³ Given the evidence by Witnesses ZAW and Zachariah regarding the verification of identification cards, the instances of violence observed by Witnesses Zachariah and Ntezimana and the dead observed by Witness TQ, the Chamber is satisfied that the Chez Bihira roadblock was used for the purpose of identifying and killing Tutsi civilians during the genocide.

849. Furthermore, based on the evidence generally placing ESO soldiers at this barrier, as well as other evidence implicating them in crimes at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock, as well as the barrier in front of the Hotel Faucon, the Chamber has no doubt that ESO soldiers significantly and substantially contributed to killings at this location. To the extent such soldiers were not the assailants physically participating in the killing of those identified as Tutsis at this roadblock, the Chamber has no doubt that they shared the assailants' intent.

850. Indeed, the Chamber has no doubt that the Chez Bihira roadblock was among a network of other roadblocks manned, at least on one occasion, by ESO soldiers – including those at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction and at the Hotel Faucon – that was eventually turned towards the task of identifying and eliminating Tutsis.

Notice

851. The Defence objected to Witness TQ's evidence, arguing that it did not receive notice that the witness would testify in relation to the Chez Bihira roadblock and Nizeyimana's involvement in the murder of Innocent Rwagashayija.²¹²⁴ The Prosecution concedes that Nizeyimana is not charged with the individual murder of Rwagashayija, but instead relies on Witness TQ's evidence for purposes of demonstrating Nizeyimana's involvement in establishing the roadblocks, used to identify and kill Tutsi civilians.²¹²⁵ Evidence in support of material facts not pleaded in an indictment may not form the basis for a conviction, but may be admitted to the extent that it is relevant to the proof of other allegations pleaded in the Indictment.²¹²⁶ The Chamber considers Witness TQ's evidence of the nature of his observations at this particular roadblock highly relevant and probative, and shall consider it in relation to the charges pleaded in the Indictment.

852. The Chamber observes that the Indictment does not give particularised notice as it relates to the killings at this roadblock described by Witnesses Zachariah and Ntezimana. Notwithstanding, the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, and, in particular, the annexed witness summaries for Witnesses Zachariah and Ntezimana indicate that they would be testifying in support of Indictment paragraph 6. Moreover, the witness summaries provide information generally consistent with the evidence given at trial.²¹²⁷

²¹²³ Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 9 (“Q. And as you stopped at these various roadblocks, did you have an opportunity to observe what was happening at them? A. The four youths were then carried off in a vehicle in the direction of the ESO”), 4 (p.5) (“On or about 17 April 1994

853. The Defence did not raise any objections as it relates to the evidence of Witnesses Zachariah or Ntezimana about this roadblock. Moreover, under some circumstances, the further information provided in the Pre-Trial Brief's witness summaries could cure defects in the operative Indictment paragraph.²¹²⁸ However, the Prosecution has taken the position that similar evidence related to killing at roadblocks, whose notice is provided only through the Pre-Trial Brief or annexed witness summaries, is not being used as a basis for conviction.²¹²⁹ The Chamber considers that this evidence cannot be used for that purpose either.

854. Evidence in support of material facts not pleaded in an indictment may not form the basis for a conviction, but may be admitted to the extent that it is relevant to the proof of other allegations pleaded in the Indictment.²¹³⁰ The Chamber considers the evidence of Witnesses Zachariah and Ntezimana about their observations at this particular roadblock highly relevant and probative. Given the notice provided in the Pre-Trial Brief, the Chamber considers that Nizeyimana was provided sufficient information to prepare his defence in relation to this evidence. The Chamber is convinced that no prejudice was suffered. Consequently the Chamber shall consider this evidence in relation to allegations pleaded in the Indictment.

7.3.7 Arab Quartier Roadblock (Cyarubu)

855. Prosecution and Defence evidence unequivocally demonstrates that a roadblock was constructed in the Arab Quarter, not far from the ESO entrance, which was manned by ESO soldiers.²¹³¹ Moreover, Witness YAA noted that this roadblock was established following

... Zachariah was near the Hotel Faucon ... where he was in view of a roadblock manned by armed soldiers ... witnessed the driver being ... beaten to death by soldiers. He was informed the driver was a Tutsi ...").

orders by unidentified ESO authorities.²¹³² No evidence was presented of Nizeyimana's presence at this roadblock at any time during the relevant time-frame or that this barrier was used for purposes of identifying and killing Tutsis.²¹³³ This allegation is not proved.

7.3.8 Butare University Roadblock

856. Prosecution Witnesses AZD, FAX, Kayibanda, ZBH, ZT, ZAW and AZM as well as Defence Witnesses Ntamagezo and Basesayabo appear to have seen a roadblock near the Butare University. However, the evidence diverges as to who manned it. For example, Witnesses FAX, ZBH and ZAW identified ESO soldiers as manning the roadblock. Specifically, Witness FAX, a Tutsi, worked at the Butare University Hospital and went there daily from 6 April until 20 April 1994.²¹³⁴ Walking from the Tumba sector to work, she would pass several roadblocks, including one that was located "at the entrance of the university" on the main road. It was manned by young soldiers, who the witness believed came from the ESO.²¹³⁵ Specifically, she would come across them in the mornings or the evenings as they were walking from the ESO to relieve the soldiers at the roadblock.²¹³⁶

857. Likewise, Witness ZBH provided evidence of a subsequent attack at the Butare University on 22 April 1994.²¹³⁷ He testified that before this assault, Nizeyimana had ordered ESO soldiers manning a barrier at the university's entrance to allow civilians into the campus.²¹³⁸ Furthermore, Prosecution Witness ZAW, an ESO cadet since 1991,²¹³⁹ testified to having seen this barrier in May 1994. Specifically, he observed a barrier "in front of Abufar, at the entrance to the university" manned by ESO soldiers while traveling through Butare town en route to Gitarama at the end of May. He generally testified that when stopped at a roadblock manned by his colleagues, everyone passing through it had to show identity cards.²¹⁴⁰

858. The Chamber considers this evidence of mixed reliability. The Chamber has elsewhere addressed general credibility concerns that members of ABASA, including Witness FAX, colluded with each other.²¹⁴¹ Nothing in the record supports this contention. The Chamber has no general credibility concerns as they relate to her. Nonetheless, her identification of ESO soldiers is general.

859. Turning to Witness ZBH, the Chamber has found that his evidence relating to the attack at the Butare University Hospital on 22 April 1994 lacking sufficient reliability to establish facts beyond reasonable doubt. The Chamber has elsewhere discussed the need to view his evidence with appropriate caution.²¹⁴²

²¹³² Witness YAA, T. 2 February 2011, p. 33.

²¹³³ Indeed, the only evidence provided by Prosecution Witness YAA in regards to the potential purpose of the roadblock suggests that the roadblock was established to monitor the movement of people and vehicles entering and exiting the ESO Camp. Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 64.

²¹⁴¹ See II.9.2.

²¹⁴² See II.3.4; II.11.

860. With respect to Witness ZAW, the Defence does not dispute, nor does the Chamber doubt that he, as an ESO cadet, could identify ESO soldiers in 1994. The Chamber has no general credibility concerns as it relates to his testimony. His evidence about ESO soldiers at this roadblock – stemming from observations in late May – are temporally remote from those of Witness FAX and ZBH, which occurred within between 6 and 22 April.

861. Other evidence that tends to implicate ESO soldiers in the administration of this roadblock is that concerning Innocent Sibomana, a student at the Butare University and a soldier. In particular, Prosecution Witness AZD generally testified that at an unspecified time after 7 April 1994, he saw a roadblock “along the road leading to” or “a little before” the Butare University”.²¹⁴³ It was manned by “Sergeant Major” Sibomana, a student at the university and a soldier.²¹⁴⁴ The Chamber has discussed general credibility challenges with respect to Witness AZD elsewhere, but has no concerns.²¹⁴⁵

862. Similarly, Prosecution Witness Kayibanda testified about the use of barriers near the Butare University after the 21 April 1994 attack on it.²¹⁴⁶ Specifically, soldiers established one “at the main entrance” to intercept persons attempting to flee campus.²¹⁴⁷ After two to three days, a new batch of soldiers, described as “very young boys”, started to man this and other roadblocks around the university. He generally stated that the soldiers took orders from a university student named Sibomana, who was also referred to as “Sergeant”, and they “killed and looted”.²¹⁴⁸

863. The Chamber views Kayibanda’s evidence with the appropriate caution given his prior incarceration, and his status as a possible accomplice.²¹⁴⁹ The Chamber has elsewhere considered in detail his account that Mylène Dimitri, counsel for Désiré Munyaneza who faces genocide related charges in Canada, approached him and indicated that she worked for the Tribunal’s Office of the Prosecutor. This assertion has been effectively refuted by Witness Dimitri and through emails Witness Kayibanda exchanged with her.²¹⁵⁰

864. Prosecution Witness ZT testified that in May 1994, she saw Innocent Sibomana and Interahamwe armed with machetes and planks forcing Tutsis into a Daihatsu vehicle at a

The correction is reflected later in the transcripts. See T. 31 January 2011, p. 76 (referring to “Sergeant Major Sibomana”).

²¹⁴⁵ See II.4.1.

²¹⁴⁶ The Chamber has elsewhere assessed evidence related to violence at the Butare University. II.5.1. Specifically, Witness Kayibanda, who assisted soldiers during the attack, also stated persons identified as Tutsis were brought with their identity cards to a “sorting centre”. Once the soldier determined that the particular person had to pass by the roadblock to get to the other side, the victim would not return. Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, p. 52.

²¹⁴⁷ Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, p. 54. Witness Kayibanda also referred to barriers that were established and manned by the same soldiers, which were “below the buildings of the faculty of applied sciences” in the “area that led to Tumba” as well as near the stadium on the road leading to the arboretum”. T. 2 February 2011, pp. 54-55.

²¹⁴⁸ Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, pp. 50, 54-55.

²¹⁴⁹ Witness Kayibanda was detained in Rwanda for eight years for genocide related crimes. He was released in 2003 as part of a Presidential pardon. Witness Kayibanda admitted to have been incarcerated for having been part of a “criminal association”, for the possession of illegal weapons and for looting. Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, p. 63; T. 3 February 2011, pp. 20, 36.

roadblock on the tarmac road “very close to the entrance of the university”.²¹⁵¹ Unidentified persons said that the Tutsis would be taken to the “IRST roadblock”.²¹⁵² She believed that Sibomana was “about to kill” these Tutsis.²¹⁵³

865. Witness ZT generally stated that Nizeyimana “had deployed” Sibomana, a university student, and that the latter started killing Tutsis with the onset of the war.²¹⁵⁴ In cross-examination, she also generally stated that Nizeyimana had set up roadblocks throughout Butare town and posted ESO soldiers at them.²¹⁵⁵ Nonetheless, Witness ZT’s general testimony that Nizeyimana had deployed Sibomana lacks contextual information to demonstrate that she observed this occur or that her information came from a reliable source. It alone cannot support findings beyond reasonable doubt.

866. Defence evidence tends to rebut Prosecution evidence that ESO soldiers were positioned at this roadblock. Notably, Defence Witness Ntamagezo testified to this effect in the context of conducting patrols around 21 April 1994. He said that there were many roadblocks, including one “at the entrance of the national university”, which were manned by civilians.²¹⁵⁶

867. Likewise, Defence Witness Basesayabo passed a roadblock “near the university” or “in front of the campus”, which was established after the violence at the university by students to control movement into and out of it.²¹⁵⁷ This account is supported by that of Defence Witness Mukeshimana, who testified that a roadblock was established after President Théodore Sindikubwabo’s speech on 19 April 1994 at the Butare University entrance leading to the main road going to Burundi.²¹⁵⁸ Although he was never positioned there, it was manned by Hutu and Tutsi students, who checked student identity cards of those who sought to enter.²¹⁵⁹ This was done to ensure that people with bad intentions would not enter the campus.²¹⁶⁰

868. Read in its entirety, the Chamber is satisfied that the anecdotal accounts of ESO soldiers manning this roadblock is sufficient to demonstrate that they were, at times, posted there and exercised control over it. Furthermore, given the undisputed attack on the Butare University around 21 April 1994, the Chamber has no doubt that this barrier, like many others, was established to target Tutsi civilians for elimination. Nonetheless, there is no direct evidence of killings at this roadblock. While it can be inferred from Witness ZT’s account of Sibomana and armed Interahamwe loading Tutsis into a vehicle to be transported to another roadblock, the record is ultimately ambiguous. This allegation is not proved.

7.3.9 Tumba Roadblock

869. Prosecution and Defence evidence demonstrates that in April 1994, a roadblock was established on the main road leading to Tumba sector in the direction of Burundi from Butare town. Specifically, Prosecution Witnesses FAX and Ntezimana described a roadblock they called “Mukoni”, which was located at the intersection of the main Bujumbura highway and the road going to Tumba sector.²¹⁶¹ Similarly, Defence Witness Ngezayaho also referred to “Mukoni” roadblock.²¹⁶² Likewise, Witness BUV02, who did not mention “Mukoni”, spoke of a roadblock that he manned in Tumba sector, at the intersection of the road to Burundi, near the Mukura river.²¹⁶³

870. Notwithstanding, Prosecution and Defence evidence diverges significantly with regard to who manned and administered the roadblock, as well as its purpose. For example, Prosecution Witness FAX went through this roadblock on 19 April 1994.²¹⁶⁴ She identified the persons manning the roadblock as ESO soldiers. In particular, as an employee of the Butare University Hospital, she noted that some of the soldiers “used to pass along the road passing in front of the faculty of medicine and [she] noticed that those soldiers were from ESO”.²¹⁶⁵

871. The soldiers were checking identity cards to find “Inyenzis”.²¹⁶⁶ Although initially allowed through, Bourgmestre Kanyabashi made Witness FAX return. He asked the people manning the roadblock why they let her through without searching her, stating that all Tutsis were hiding or carrying bullets.²¹⁶⁷ She was allowed through again, although they told her to come back later so they could properly check her identification card, since the hospital was employing Inyenzis.²¹⁶⁸ The witness observed “Tutsis” crammed into a trench, nicknamed the “bus” or “autobus”.²¹⁶⁹ She did not know what happened to these people.²¹⁷⁰ She generally testified that while Tutsis were beaten at roadblocks at this time, the killings started later.²¹⁷¹

²¹⁶¹ Witness FAX, T. 17 February 2011, pp. 20-21; Witness Ntezimana, T. 14 February 2011, p. 62.

²¹⁶² Defence Witness Ngezahayo, T. 24 May 2011, p. 46. Witness Ngezahayo did not provide any crossroads that would position the Mukoni roadblock at the intersection of Bujumbura highway and the road leading to Tumba. Instead, he placed the Mukoni roadblock at the entrance to the Butare University. T. 24 May 2011, p. 46. Given the university’s close proximity to the relevant intersection, the Chamber does not find Witness Ngezahayo’s description of the Mukoni roadblock location inconsistent with Prosecution Witnesses FAX and Ntezimana’s depiction of the barrier. Consistent with Ngezahayo’s account, Prosecution Witness Kayibanda and Defence Witness Mukeshimana, who were both students at the University, suggested that a roadblock was erected near campus on the road leading towards Tumba or Tumba Hill in the latter part of April. See Prosecution Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, p. 54 (“[T]he soldiers also set up a ... roadblock below the buildings of the faculty of applied sciences. And this was the area that led out towards Tumba.”); Defence Witness Mukeshimana, T. 23 May 2011, p. 33 (“Q. Around or after what date, were there any roadblocks at the university? A. Yes. After the President’s speech two roadblocks were set up at the two main entrances to the campus. First, the entrance leading to the main road going to Burundi – that’s the main entrance. The second entrance was behind on the road – behind the campus on the road leave – leading to – towards Tumba Hill.”).

²¹⁶⁶ Witness FAX, T. 17 February 2011, p. 22.

²¹⁶⁷ Witness FAX, T. 17 February 2011, pp. 22-23, 39. While Witness FAX initially appears to attribute the “Ibizungerezi (or “beautiful girl”) had to be carrying bullets” remarks to the soldiers at the roadblock, an entire reading of her evidence clearly reflects that this was a statement made by Kanyabashi.

²¹⁶⁸ Witness FAX, T. 17 February 2011, pp. 22-23. Bourgmestre Kanyabashi said that all Tutsis were hiding or carrying bullets on them. T. 17 February 2011, p. 23.

²¹⁶⁹ Witness FAX, T. 17 February 2011, pp. 22-23.

872. Furthermore, Prosecution Witness Kayibanda, a Hutu student at the Butare University,²¹⁷² testified that, around 21 April 1994, this roadblock was established and manned by ESO soldiers, who he described as “young”. They were under the command of a student named Sibomana, who told the witness he was from the ESO.²¹⁷³ The Chamber views Witness Kayibanda’s evidence with the appropriate caution given his prior incarceration, and status as a possible accomplice.²¹⁷⁴

873. Nonetheless, there is no dispute that Witness Kayibanda was a student at the Butare University and would have been well placed to observe roadblocks in the vicinity of it. Furthermore, the record gives considerable circumstantial support to the proposition that ESO soldiers could be distinguished among those from other camps based on their relative youth.²¹⁷⁵ Moreover, Witness Kayibanda’s evidence regarding Sibomana’s identity and presence at roadblocks in the vicinity of the Butare University finds broad circumstantial corroboration through other Prosecution evidence.²¹⁷⁶ Of particular significance, Defence evidence confirms that soldiers from other camps studying at the Butare University reported to the ESO command.²¹⁷⁷

874. Defence Witnesses Mukeshimana and BUV02, however, testified that this roadblock was manned exclusively by civilians. Specifically, Witness Mukeshimana testified that this was one of two roadblocks established after President Théodore Sindikubwabo’s 19 April 1994 speech. It was manned by Hutu and Tutsi students in order to prevent persons with “bad intentions” from entering the campus.²¹⁷⁸ Only students were allowed in and student identity cards were checked at it.²¹⁷⁹ Witness Mukeshimana never manned a roadblock himself.²¹⁸⁰ The Chamber considers Defence Witness Ngezahayo's observations of gendarmes manning this barrier of minimal probative value as it relates to the Prosecution evidence, since he made such observations between 7 and 10 April (rather than later in the month).²¹⁸¹

875. Witness BUV02, who manned this particular roadblock from 21 April to 1 July 1994, testified that it was initially set up around 7 April by orders of the Tutsi prefect. Its initial purpose was to ensure the safety of all persons and it was manned by Hutus and Tutsis. However, after President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech, the purpose changed. Tutsis did not return to the roadblock as they were being killed. By 21 April, the witness started to man the roadblock and identity cards were being checked in order to target Tutsis. However, no Tutsis ever passed this location.²¹⁸²

876. In the Chamber's view, Witness BUV02's evidence tends to undermine that of Witness Mukeshimana as to who manned the roadblock and its purpose. Indeed, it borders on the inconceivable that Tutsis would man roadblocks after 19 April 1994 given other evidence in the record that Tutsis were being singled out and targeted, particularly at the Butare University.²¹⁸³ The record is unequivocal that in the days following the President's speech in Butare, ethnic violence towards Tutsis and political moderates ensued.

877. Turning to Witness BUV02's evidence that only civilians manned this roadblock, the Chamber observes that he confessed and was convicted for genocide related crimes.²¹⁸⁴ After his release, the Prosecution put to the witness that he was convicted in absentia for additional genocide related crimes.²¹⁸⁵ The documents that formed the basis of this cross-examination, however, were not admitted due to lack of sufficient reliability.²¹⁸⁶

878. The Chamber also observes that Witness BUV02 was formerly employed by a soldier who lived next to Nizeyimana.²¹⁸⁷ His evidence tends to demonstrate that he had good social relations with ranking officers at the ESO and discussed their criminal conduct with them during the genocide.²¹⁸⁸ The witness lived in exile at the time of his testimony based on fears he held towards living in Rwanda.²¹⁸⁹

879. The Chamber considers that Witness BUV02's evidence fails to raise doubt in the otherwise clear and consistent evidence that ESO soldiers, at least at times, were involved in the administration of it. As discussed above, there is other compelling evidence in the record that soldiers and civilians worked in coordination at roadblocks. The Chamber further considers that Witness FAX's first-hand account of Tutsis being separated at this barrier around 19 April 1994 and Witness BUV02's evidence that the roadblock's purpose shifted from protecting the population generally to targeting Tutsis around 21 April compelling. This is consistent with the broader trend of what was occurring at roadblocks elsewhere in Butare town around this time.

880. While the Chamber views with considerable suspicion Witness BUV02's self-serving evidence that no Tutsis ever passed this roadblock once its purpose shifted to targeting them, there is no evidence of crimes, and, in particular, killings occurring at this barrier. Indeed, Witness FAX's testimony does not reflect that she saw that killings occurred after she observed persons being separated at this barrier.²¹⁹⁰ This allegation is not proved.

7.3.10 Unpleaded Roadblocks

881. The Chamber observes that evidence was elicited about roadblocks not expressly pleaded in the indictment, including barriers in front of the houses of Bwanacyeye and President Théodore Sindikubwabo.²¹⁹¹ Similarly, evidence was provided of a roadblock by the stadium on a road leading to the arboretum woods.²¹⁹²

882. None of the evidence establishes that crimes were perpetrated by persons enumerated in the Indictment at these roadblocks. The Chamber considers that it is unnecessary to make particularised findings as it relates to this evidence.

883. Prosecution Witness ZBL testified about killings at the roadblock in front of Pauline Nyiramasuhuko's home. This particular roadblock is not specified in the Indictment. Nonetheless, Indictment paragraph 6 provides a non-exhaustive list of roadblocks in Butare prefecture. This event is described in Witness ZBL's annexed witness summary, and is clearly linked with paragraph 6 of the Indictment.²¹⁹³

884. Prosecution Witness ZBL recounted how her brother, his child and the driver were forcibly removed from the car and killed by soldiers at the roadblock in front of Pauline Nyiramasuhuko's house approximately one week after 7 April 1994.²¹⁹⁴

885. Notwithstanding, the witness does not provide any basis for the identification of the perpetrators, other than the fact that "one could have thought" that they were ESO soldiers, based on the proximity of the roadblock to the ESO.²¹⁹⁵ Her evidence, when viewed among the record implicating ESO soldiers in killings at roadblocks bolsters its credibility. However, the Chamber is not satisfied that this more remote evidence about ESO soldiers committing crimes at other roadblocks is sufficient to establish hers beyond reasonable doubt. This allegation is not proved.

886. Prosecution Witness FAX talked about being raped and a young girl being killed at the Butare University Laboratory roadblock.²¹⁹⁶ This particular roadblock is not specified in the Indictment, although the Chamber observes that Indictment paragraph 6 provides a non-exhaustive list of roadblocks in Butare prefecture. The Prosecution gave notice of the rape of Witness FAX and the killing of the young woman in its Pre-Trial Brief and the annexed witness summary.²¹⁹⁷ The Chamber has previously determined that paragraphs in the body of the Pre-Trial Brief referring to Witness FAX's evidence brought further clarity with respect to paragraph 6 of the Indictment and fell within it.²¹⁹⁸

887. Nonetheless, the Pre-Trial Brief indicates that this happened at the roadblock "near Butare University", which would lead a reasonable reader to assume that this meant the roadblock pleaded in the Indictment – namely, "near the entrance to Butare University". However, the annexed witness summary refers to the "University Laboratory roadblock", which does not correspond to the Indictment. There is some ambiguity as to the notice given.

888. Moreover, the Prosecution has taken the position that similar evidence related to killing at roadblocks, whose notice is provided only through the Pre-Trial Brief or annexed witness summaries, is not being used as a basis for conviction.²¹⁹⁹ The Chamber considers that this evidence cannot be used for that purpose either. It shall only be considered for context.

8. BUTARE UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL – KILLINGS, LATE APRIL TO JUNE 1994

8.1 Killing of Patients and Médecins Sans Frontières Staff

Introduction

889. The Indictment alleges that around the evening of 22 April 1994, soldiers from the FAR, ESO, Ngoma and Butare Gendarmerie camps, Interahamwe and armed civilians who were members of the joint criminal enterprise removed and killed 40 bed-ridden patients identified as Tutsis behind the hospital wards. Furthermore, around 23 April, the same security personnel, with the use of a list, selected medical workers and bed-ridden patients and killed them, including three Médecins Sans Frontières nurses, Nadine Iradukuze, Rose and Sabine. Finally, around 24 April, two additional Médecins Sans Frontières hospital workers, named Alexis Nkundwanimana and Jean Marie Vianney, were killed. During this period, Nizeyimana performed as the military liaison officer and was informed of the violence. Prosecution Witnesses Rony Zachariah and Marie-Paule Spielmann provided relevant evidence.²²⁰⁰

890. The Defence acknowledges that killings took place at the Butare University Hospital, but argues that Presidential Guards and their security detail committed them. There is no evidence regarding Nizeyimana's involvement or that of ESO soldiers. Defence Witnesses Déogratias Basesayabo, Vincent Nsabimana and MAL01 provided relevant evidence.²²⁰¹

891. Witness Zachariah, a Luxembourg national, was a doctor for Médecins Sans Frontières working in Butare around 24 February until 24 April 1994 and lived in the Buye area.²²⁰² On 20 April, Butare University Hospital Director, Doctor Jotham, informed Witness Zachariah that the hospital had been designated as a military aid site.²²⁰³ That evening, a Chinook helicopter, carrying between 30 to 40 Presidential Guard soldiers arrived.²²⁰⁴ Soldiers continued to arrive in the following days, reaching approximately 140 by 23 April.²²⁰⁵

The Prosecution also points to the evidence of Witness ZBH. The Chamber, as discussed at the conclusion of this section, has found insufficient notice with respect to this evidence and has decided not to consider it.

²²⁰⁵ Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, pp. 12-13. On 21 April 1994, Witness Zachariah learned that 40 children from the pediatric ward had been removed to the prefecture office. The hospital director informed him that the hospital crisis committee decided that patients with minor wounds had to leave for reasons of hygiene. Witness Zachariah went to the prefecture office that day and only observed six or seven children, wearing bandages used by Médecins Sans Frontières, there. Unidentified persons and hospital staff informed him that

892. Around 8.00 a.m. on 23 April 1994, Witness Zachariah arrived at the hospital and observed prisoners in pink uniforms, loading corpses onto two or three trucks.²²⁰⁶ He immediately called a meeting and the night staff informed him that about 40 Tutsi patients were taken behind the hospital and beaten or hacked to death by soldiers and Interahamwe.²²⁰⁷

893. Witness Zachariah rushed to discuss the issue with Doctor Jotham. He told Witness Zachariah that the only responsible authority was a Presidential Guard captain and stated that he would arrange a meeting with him.²²⁰⁸ About an hour and a half later, Witness Zachariah met with the Presidential Guard captain. Witness Zachariah emphasised the serious ethical and human rights implications of these activities and stated that his organisation could only remain if it could treat everyone – soldiers, Hutus and Tutsis. Without saying much, the captain responded, “[W]ell, we will do what we can”.²²⁰⁹

894. Witness Zachariah then went to the hospital’s triage area. That day, Witness Zachariah saw soldiers accompanied by persons in civilian dress carrying machetes remove three nurses from Butare University Hospital.²²¹⁰ Specifically, two Tutsi nurses, Nadine and Rose, were removed over Witness Zachariah’s objections.²²¹¹ Furthermore, a Hutu nurse called Sabine was also identified for removal. When Witness Zachariah informed the assailants that she was a Hutu, a soldier produced a list. He replied that her husband was Tutsi, and that Sabine, who was seven months pregnant, would have a Tutsi child.²²¹²

895. At this point, Witness Zachariah had staff arrange a meeting with Nizeyimana, who Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi had previously appointed as the military liaison officer for security and aid related meetings.²²¹³ They met at the town auditorium and Nizeyimana appeared surprised when Witness Zachariah informed him what had happened.²²¹⁴ Nizeyimana responded that he would conduct an investigation and promised to do what he could to improve security.²²¹⁵ He told Witness Zachariah to meet him at 8.00 a.m. the next day.²²¹⁶ the children had been taken away and killed. T. 14 February 2011, pp. 12, 29; Exhibit D18 (Witness Zachariah’s Sketch). On 22 April, Witness Zachariah learned that 150 adult Tutsi patients were similarly removed the previous evening and taken to the prefecture office. He returned to the prefecture office and found no patients there. T. 14 February 2011, p. 12. In both instances, Witness Zachariah testified that the Butare University Hospital had the facilities to receive incoming soldiers and retain these patients. T. 14 February 2011, p. 12.

²²⁰⁶ Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 12. Witness Zachariah did not specify if he arrived at the Butare University Hospital 8.00 a.m. or p.m. However, a review of his narration of the events that day clearly indicates that he arrived there in the morning. See T. 14 February 2011, pp. 15-16 (discussing returning to the hospital between 4.00 and 4.30), 16 (discussing the decision not to leave Rwanda that day as the Rwanda and Burundi border closed between 6.00 and 6.30).

896. Witness Zachariah returned to the hospital between 4.00 and 4.30 p.m.²²¹⁷ He learned that Alexis and Jean-Marie were taken away.²²¹⁸ He also heard that Nadine and Rose had been beaten to death behind the hospital and that Sabine was killed.²²¹⁹ He heard screams in the hospital as patients continued to be removed in ones and twos.²²²⁰ Given the untenable working conditions, Witness Zachariah and the Médecins Sans Frontières staff decided to leave the hospital.²²²¹

897. The following morning, on 24 April 1994, Witness Zachariah returned to the auditorium, met Nizeyimana and informed him that his medical team was being evacuated.²²²² Nizeyimana's investigation confirmed that patients and Médecins Sans Frontières staff had been killed.²²²³ Nizeyimana further stated that the situation was out of control and that he could not guarantee the security of hospital staff or patients.²²²⁴ Witness Zachariah returned to meet his staff, and they crossed the border into Burundi.²²²⁵

Prosecution Witness Marie-Paule Spielmann

898. Witness Spielmann, a Luxembourg national, lived in Buye cellule, Butare town and was working for Médecins Sans Frontières in April 1994.²²²⁶ About one week after 6 April, as more wounded started to arrive, Witness Spielmann and other Médecins Sans Frontières staff started concentrating their efforts at Butare University Hospital, visiting between four and five times a day.²²²⁷

899. On 20 April 1994, a helicopter landed with about 40 wounded soldiers, who the hospital director stated were members of the Presidential Guard.²²²⁸ They wore uniforms distinct from those worn by ESO soldiers.²²²⁹ Presidential Guards continued to arrive daily until there were about 140 being cared for at the hospital by 24 April.²²³⁰ By this time, Witness Spielmann had seen soldiers with the same uniform all over Butare.²²³¹

900. Local Médecins Sans Frontières staff informed Witness Spielmann on the morning of 23 April 1994 that around 40 patients had been taken behind the Butare University Hospital and killed.²²³² That day, Witness Zachariah told Witness Spielmann that Tutsi Médecins Sans Frontières staff named Rose and Nadine had been removed.²²³³ A Hutu Médecins Sans

Frontières nurse called Sabine, who was married to a Tutsi and was seven months pregnant, had also been taken away.²²³⁴

901. Witness Spielmann rushed to a tent where a French nurse stated that soldiers had presented a list and violently removed the women.²²³⁵ Witness Spielmann testified that soldiers, previously identified to her as Presidential Guards, were responsible but noted that civilians carrying guns and machetes “were at those times on the hospital premises”.²²³⁶ At that time, Witness Spielmann did not know what happened to the women.²²³⁷ She later learned that other Médecins Sans Frontières workers, Alexis and Jean-Marie, were taken.²²³⁸

902. Later that day, Witnesses Spielmann and Zachariah as well as a Médecins Sans Frontières employee from Holland arranged for an emergency meeting with the prefect and Nizeyimana, who had previously been designated as a military liaison officer in charge of security for international organisations.²²³⁹ Nizeyimana was informed about the removal of patients and staff from the hospital.²²⁴⁰ He responded that he would look into the situation.²²⁴¹

903. That evening, the Médecins Sans Frontières staff decided to leave given the lack of security.²²⁴² The next morning, on 24 April 1994, they formed a convoy.²²⁴³ On the way out, the convoy stopped at the prefecture so that Witness Zachariah and the Dutch Médecins Sans Frontières employee could tell the prefect and Nizeyimana that they were leaving.²²⁴⁴ When Zachariah returned, he informed Witness Spielmann that the situation was out of control and that he had received confirmation that Médecins Sans Frontières staff had been killed.²²⁴⁵ She could not recall with whom Zachariah had spoken.²²⁴⁶ Witness Spielmann and the others left Butare that day.²²⁴⁷

Prosecution Witness ZBL

904. Witness ZBL, a Tutsi, lived in Huye commune, Butare prefecture in 1994.²²⁴⁸ She left her home and went to Butare University Hospital on an unspecified date in April.²²⁴⁹ She remained there into July and until the Inkotanyi captured Butare, tending to her wounded daughter.²²⁵⁰

905. Witness ZBL's daughter was initially kept in one of four or five tents, near the maternity ward, between the surgical ward and "another building for other hospital services" for about a week.²²⁵¹ Many people were kept in these tents. With the exception of about four or five persons, all who stayed there were killed.²²⁵²

Prosecution Witness ZT

906. Prosecution Witness ZT, a Tutsi, was a student at the ESO in 1994.²²⁵³ About two weeks after President Juvénal Habyarimana's death on 6 April, the witness was assigned by Lieutenant Bizimana to bring food to Presidential Guard soldiers at the Butare University Hospital.²²⁵⁴ Although the Presidential Guards refused to accept food from her because she was an Inyenzi, she continued to bring food to other patients until a date she could not recall in May.²²⁵⁵ During this period, the witness observed prisoners dressed in pink uniforms, who had been brought in to bury the Tutsis who had been killed behind the hospital by ESO soldier Fulgence Niyibizi.²²⁵⁶

Prosecution Witness ZW

907. On 6 April 1994, Witness ZW, a Tutsi, was a patient in the maternity ward of the Butare University Hospital, who had received a Hutu identity card from an ESO soldier named Félicien Kanimba.²²⁵⁷ Her room was above ground level and her window looked out behind the hospital.²²⁵⁸ She remained in the building continuously until early July.²²⁵⁹ Witness ZW testified that ESO soldiers came first, but wounded soldiers also arrived and carried out executions there. Unlike the ESO soldiers, the witness was unaware of the wounded soldiers carrying firearms.²²⁶⁰

Prosecution Witness YAP

908. Witness YAP, a Tutsi, worked at Butare University Hospital in 1994 and lived not far from it.²²⁶¹ Due to fear that he would be killed, the witness stopped going to the hospital around 19 April.²²⁶² Around this time, soldiers, who had been wounded at Mount Jali in Kigali were brought to the hospital and many were present there.²²⁶³

Defence Witness Déogratias Basesayabo

909. Witness Basesayabo, a Hutu, was a medical intern at Butare University Hospital in April 1994.²²⁶⁴ Around 15 April, the hospital received an influx of patients, primarily Tutsi civilians, suffering from various trauma injuries.²²⁶⁵ Shortly thereafter, soldiers from the front, many who had been shot, started to arrive.²²⁶⁶ Generally unaware of what camp the soldiers came from, Witness Basesayabo believed that most were Presidential Guards as the hospital had been requisitioned for them.²²⁶⁷ While the first of the wounded soldiers did not carry their weapons in the hospital, some soldiers in the later groups that arrived did.²²⁶⁸ Doctors from Médecins Sans Frontières treated many of the patients that came.²²⁶⁹

910. One morning, around 16 April 1994, Witness Basesayabo learned that a Tutsi nurse, who worked in the intensive care unit and had stayed overnight, had observed hospitalised soldiers remove about 10 Tutsi patients from the hospital and attack them.²²⁷⁰ The patients were subsequently found to have been shot and killed.²²⁷¹ This prompted Doctor Gatera, head of surgery, to speak to the “head of the soldiers”, whose name the witness did not know.²²⁷² The doctor told the soldier that steps would be taken to prevent the admission of soldiers if such violence continued.²²⁷³

911. In the next few days, but before 20 April 1994, Witness Basesayabo learned that the nurse, who had observed the first attack by soldiers, was killed.²²⁷⁴ Patients who witnessed the event stated that bandaged soldiers, who had been admitted into the hospital, attacked the nurse around 2.00 a.m.²²⁷⁵ Witness Basesayabo observed the nurse’s corpse in the mortuary.²²⁷⁶ He generally testified that “hospital authorities” confronted the soldiers and that unidentified “soldiers swore” that the perpetrators would be punished.²²⁷⁷ A curfew was put in place preventing soldiers from entering the hospital after 10.00 p.m.²²⁷⁸

912. Around 20 April 1994, the witness learned from an unidentified source that unidentified persons in the hospital saw militiamen kidnap a number of patients. Soldiers, who appeared to be working in coordination with the militia, remained outside the

²²⁶⁴ Witness Basesayabo, T. 9 May 2011, pp. 9, 17; Exhibit D23 (Witness Basesayabo’s Personal Information Sheet). Witness Basesayabo lived in Cyarwa Sumo sector, Ngoma commune, about 600 metres from the Butare University Hospital. He sometimes worked at the hospital from about 8.00 a.m. to 10.00 or 11.00 p.m. T. 9 May 2011, pp. 9, 14, 21. However, he often worked late into the night and would stay at a nearby hostel, only returning home about one night a week. T. 9 May 2011, pp. 14, 21-22, 48-49. hospital.²²⁷⁹ Some of the patients were found dead, outside the hospital's fence and in the neighborhood of the hospital.²²⁸⁰

913. The witness also learned that a Médecins Sans Frontières nurse was killed.²²⁸¹ Unaware of the specifics of her murder, he did not think she was killed at the Butare University Hospital.²²⁸² The generally deteriorating security situation, and, in particular, the murder of Sabine angered the Médecins Sans Frontières doctors and prompted them to leave for Bujumbura, Burundi.²²⁸³

914. Aside from what Witness Basesayabo described above, he did not see killings at the Butare University Hospital or Tutsi corpses.²²⁸⁴ While he heard that unidentified persons were killed behind the hospital, it was difficult to distinguish between patients who voluntarily left and those who were abducted and killed.²²⁸⁵ Likewise, he was unaware of soldiers checking patient identity cards inside the hospital, stating that Tutsi patients had been evacuated by Médecins Sans Frontières.²²⁸⁶ He was not present when prisoners were brought to the hospital to remove Tutsis who had been killed there.²²⁸⁷ There were a number of Tutsi doctors and nurses that remained at the hospital until shells started falling around it in July 1994.²²⁸⁸

Defence Witness Vincent Nsabimana

915. Witness Nsabimana, a Hutu, was a medical intern at the Butare University Hospital in April until late May or June 1994.²²⁸⁹ He generally worked during the days, Monday through Friday, and, although assigned to internal medicine, assisted in the surgery ward as well.²²⁹⁰ Doctors from Médecins Sans Frontières arrived at the hospital prior to 6 April 1994 in order to initially treat Burundian refugees.²²⁹¹

916. Massacres started in the second half of April 1994, and shortly after 20 April, primarily Tutsi victims of attacks started to arrive at the hospital.²²⁹² Around the same time, wounded soldiers and their "armed carers" were also being admitted at the Butare University Hospital.²²⁹³

the hospital but not on its premises.²²⁹⁴ Furthermore, in the second half of April, when the witness would return to the hospital in the morning, he observed that large numbers of patients – predominantly Tutsis – were missing. Hospital staff also informed him of “disappearances”, but he was unaware of the circumstances in which they occurred.²²⁹⁵

918. The witness was told that the head of his department was aware of the situation and reported it to the authorities.²²⁹⁶ Nonetheless, Médecins Sans Frontières staff left about one week after the “onset of massacres” that had started in the second half of April 1994.²²⁹⁷ The witness and other interns guessed that they left due to insecurity caused by the presence of soldiers in the hospital. They also thought that the Médecins Sans Frontières staff could have left because they were unable to treat wounded soldiers.²²⁹⁸

919. The disappearances diminished towards the end of April or early May 1994.²²⁹⁹ In May, Tutsi patients remained in the hospital and Tutsi employees continued to work there.²³⁰⁰ At no point did Witness Nsabimana see abductions at the hospital or anyone checking identity cards of patients or refugees there.²³⁰¹ Likewise, he did not see any violence against Tutsis at the hospital or corpses of murdered Tutsis.²³⁰² He did learn of a mass grave in the vicinity of the university laboratory, although he believed it was closer to the National Museum.²³⁰³

920. Witness MAL01, a Hutu, was a nurse who worked during the day at the Butare University Hospital in April and May 1994.²³⁰⁴ After 6 April, wounded civilians and soldiers began to arrive at the hospital.²³⁰⁵ The injured soldiers, who had come from the “battle front”, were accompanied by “carers”.²³⁰⁶ Médecins Sans Frontières staff also brought refugees to the hospital and established tents.²³⁰⁷

from the disappearance of a single woman to larger groups of persons.²³⁰⁹ She was unaware of any reaction by the hospital's administration to these events but stated that the abductions stopped after "very few days".²³¹⁰ Witness MAL01 was unaware of the killing of 40 patients behind the hospital on the night of 22 April 1994.²³¹¹

922. Tutsis remained at the Butare University Hospital after these events, including hospital employees Josepha, from ophthalmology, and Geneviève, of the paediatric unit.²³¹² Witness MAL01 did not know when Médecins Sans Frontières left.²³¹³

Deliberations

923. The Indictment alleges particular killings occurring at Butare University Hospital on 22, 23 and 24 April 1994. While the Prosecution points to considerable evidence of violence at the hospital, Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann provided the only evidence directly relevant to these attacks.

(i) Killing of 40 Bed-Ridden Patients, 22 April 1994

924. The Prosecution evidence as it relates to this allegation is supported by the second-hand accounts of Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann. The incidents alleged in the Indictment appear to have happened overnight and was not witnessed by either.

925. At the outset, there is no dispute that Médecins Sans Frontières established itself at the Butare University Hospital. The Defence does not dispute the presence of Prosecution Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann and the evidence convincingly establishes that they were at the Butare University Hospital up until 24 April 1994.

926. Nonetheless, the testimonies of Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann as it relates to these killings tend to implicate Presidential Guards, rather than ESO soldiers. Notably, there is no dispute that Presidential Guards were in fact at the hospital by this time.²³¹⁴ When Witness Zachariah found out about the killings by soldiers and Interahamwe on the morning of 22 April 1994, he was immediately directed to speak with the Presidential Guard captain, who was identified as the only responsible authority. Likewise, while Witness Spielmann did not observe the killings, her evidence tends to reflect that Presidential Guards were being identified as the culprits. The Prosecution disingenuously attempts to undermine the ability of either witness to distinguish ESO soldiers from Presidential Guards.²³¹⁵ The Chamber, which discusses at length other evidence of crimes purportedly committed by ESO soldiers, considers that it fails to demonstrate that the killings Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann learned about were committed by ESO soldiers.

927. Of particular significance, there is no direct evidence of Nizeyimana's involvement in this crime. The evidence fails to demonstrate that he made a significant or substantial contribution to it. The Prosecution's reliance on general evidence of ESO soldiers participating in violence at the hospital is insufficient to exclude the reasonable possibility that Presidential Guard soldiers (or possibly other soldiers) had committed the killings that are alleged in the Indictment.

928. In so finding, the Chamber considers the evidence of Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann concerning their 23 April 1994 meeting with Nizeyimana.²³¹⁶ Their evidence reflects that Nizeyimana was informed about the violence that had occurred. Notwithstanding, their evidence fails to expressly demonstrate that they informed Nizeyimana that ESO soldiers were involved in these crimes. Indeed, as their testimonies tend to implicate Presidential Guards as involved in abducting and killing patients, the reasonable possibility remains that he was not alerted to the purported involvement of ESO soldiers in killings or violence at Butare University Hospital.

929. Indeed, the record fails to reflect that Nizeyimana, even as the designated liaison officer and contact point for the Médecins Sans Frontières staff, exercised effective control over the perpetrators of these killings.²³¹⁷ Rather, their evidence reflects that he was appointed to deal with security issues raised by international organisations. It does not demonstrate responsibility for the hospital or effective control over every soldier or civilians within it. Indeed, by Witness Zachariah's own account, he had resolved to speak to Nizeyimana or "even meet Colonel Muvunyi if required", tending to reflect his belief that the ultimate responsibility for the hospital lay not with the Accused, but ultimately with Colonel Muvunyi.²³¹⁸ This allegation is dismissed.

(ii) Killing of Médecins sans Frontières Staff, 23 to 24 April 1994

930. Through Witness Zachariah, the Prosecution presented first-hand evidence of soldiers and civilians removing two Tutsi nurses – Nadine and Rose – and one Hutu nurse – Sabine – who was seven months pregnant with a child whose father was a Tutsi. Likewise, Witness ²³¹⁵ The Chamber considers the Prosecution submissions concerning the inability of Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann to "identify the specific FAR military unit" disingenuous and bordering on misleading. See Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 163. Witness Spielmann's testimony demonstrates that she was capable of distinguishing the uniforms of Presidential Guards from ESO soldiers. Witness Spielmann, T. 31 January 2011, p. 8. Possibly aware that their case was not unfolding as anticipated, the Prosecution at no point asked Witness Zachariah, who testified after Witness Spielmann, if he could distinguish between Presidential Guards and, for example, ESO soldiers. Notably, Witness Zachariah, when talking about an event unrelated to killings at Butare University Hospital, remarked that different soldiers wore different berets. Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 31. No follow-up was conducted.

²³¹⁶ The Defence accepts that this occurred. See Defence Closing Brief, para. 14.

²³¹⁷ Witness OUV03 generally testified to Nizeyimana's role as a liaison officer with NGOs. Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, pp. 12-13; T. 1 June 2011, p. 9.

²³¹⁸ See Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 14.

Spielmann learned from Witness Zachariah on 23 April 1994 that these three women had been removed from the hospital. Witness Spielmann then spoke with a French nurse who said that soldiers had presented a list and violently removed these women. According to Witness Spielmann, these soldiers had been previously identified as Presidential Guards.

931. Witness Zachariah later learned that Nadine and Rose were beaten to death behind the hospital and that Sabine was killed. Witness Spielmann testified that on 24 April 1994, Witness Zachariah had confirmed that Médecins Sans Frontières staff had been killed.

932. Once again, the Chamber has no doubts that Witnesses Spielmann and Zachariah were present at the Butare University Hospital on 23 April 1994. Furthermore, Witness Zachariah's observations of soldiers and armed civilians moving through the hospital, and removing persons identified as Tutsis – or in the case of Sabine, a Hutu pregnant with a Tutsi child – finds broad circumstantial corroboration.

933. The Chamber observes that neither witness testified to having observed the ultimate killing of the Médecins Sans Frontières nurses who were removed. Notwithstanding, Witness Zachariah's evidence reflects that he learned of their deaths later that day once back at the hospital. Given the immediacy in which the information was conveyed to him and the fact that at least two of the nurses were killed nearby and behind the hospital, the Chamber considers this second-hand evidence compelling. Indeed, it fits within a larger pattern of killings and violence perpetrated against Tutsis behind the Butare University Hospital. Finally, Defence Witness Basesayabo learned of the killing of a Médecins Sans Frontières nurse, although he was unaware of the details of her death and believed that it happened away from the hospital.

934. However, the evidence clearly does not implicate ESO soldiers in this attack. Once again, although Witness Zachariah testified to having observed soldiers removing Rose, Nadine and Sabine, the Prosecution at no point sought clarification from this witness about the identity of the soldiers. Notably, Witness Spielmann, who had testified before Witness Zachariah, implicated Presidential Guards as the culprits. The Prosecution's failure to rebut this reasonable identification through the direct evidence of Witness Zachariah is fatal to its case.

935. Similar to the preceding allegation, there is no evidence directly implicating Nizeyimana in these killings. The evidence fails to demonstrate that he made a significant or substantial contribution to them. The Prosecution's reliance on general evidence of ESO soldiers participating in violence at the hospital is insufficient to exclude the reasonable possibility that Presidential Guard soldiers were the perpetrators.

936. In so finding, the Chamber considers the evidence of Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann concerning their 23 April 1994 meeting with Nizeyimana. Their evidence reflects that Nizeyimana was informed about the violence that had occurred. Notwithstanding, their evidence fails to expressly demonstrate that they informed Nizeyimana that ESO soldiers were involved in these crimes. Indeed, Witness Spielmann's evidence clearly implicates Presidential Guards in the abduction and killing of Médecins Sans Frontières nurses, the reasonable possibility remains that he was not alerted to the purported involvement of ESO soldiers in killings or violence at Butare University Hospital.

937. Indeed, the record fails to reflect that Nizeyimana, even as the designated liaison officer and contact point for the Médecins Sans Frontières staff, exercised effective control over the perpetrators of these killings. Notably, Witness Zachariah's evidence reflects that a Presidential Guard captain was present at Butare University Hospital. The Prosecution has led no evidence demonstrating Nizeyimana's de jure or de facto authority over him or the troops for which he was responsible. Indeed, to the extent that civilians were acting in concert with Presidential Guards, the evidence reasonably reflects that the Presidential Guard exercised effective control over the civilian assailants and that Nizeyimana did not. Moreover, by Witness Zachariah's own account, he had resolved to speak to Nizeyimana or "even meet Colonel Muvunyi if required", tending to reflect his belief that the ultimate responsibility for the hospital lay not with the Accused, but with Colonel Muvunyi.²³¹⁹ This allegation is dismissed.

²³¹⁹ See Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 14.

8.2 Killing of an Elderly Man

Introduction

938. The Indictment alleges that from around 20 April 1994, Nizeyimana authorised, ordered or instigated soldiers from the FAR, ESO, Ngoma Camp and Butare Gendarmerie Camp, and Interahamwe to kill many civilians identified as Tutsi. In particular, Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi and a soldier called Mandela killed an elderly male civilian with sticks near a location called “post hospital”. The Prosecution relies on the evidence of Witness BDE.²³²⁰

939. The Defence argues that Witness BDE’s evidence lacks detail and is uncorroborated. Furthermore, her evidence that all Tutsis at Butare University Hospital were killed is contradicted by other evidence.²³²¹

Evidence

Prosecution Witness BDE

940. Witness BDE was a nouvelle formule cadet at the ESO Camp in April 1994, working in the supply unit from 7 April.²³²² She left in late June when the fall of Butare was imminent.²³²³ While visiting the Butare University Hospital around or after 25 April, Witness BDE saw ESO cadet Fulgence Niyibizi at its entrance, leading a man away.²³²⁴ Witness BDE saluted Niyibizi and asked what he was doing.²³²⁵ Niyibizi responded that he flushed out an Inyenzi, who the witness understood to be this man.²³²⁶ Witness BDE responded that the man was not an Inyenzi, to which Niyibizi brandished a knife and threatened to kill the witness.²³²⁷

941. The two parted, with the witness moving “further down”.²³²⁸ She then told Niyibizi that he should release the man, prompting Niyibizi to respond that he had already killed many people and was going to kill this individual.²³²⁹ Niyibizi then cut a branch from a tree and struck the man in the head, beating him to death.²³³⁰ This was done in the presence of two other soldiers, including one called “Mandela”.²³³¹ Niyibizi returned to the hospital.²³³²

²³²⁴ Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, pp. 30-31; T. 31 January 2011, pp. 39, 42. Witness BDE did not specify the date of this incident. However, she did not leave the ESO Camp until “towards the 25th of April”, when she took “some food to the sick people who were in the hospital”. T. 31 January 2011, p. 39. When testifying about the event with Fulgence Niyibizi, she stated her purpose for being at the hospital was to “visit some patients”. T. 28 January 2011, p. 31. Thus, it is not clear if she saw him on the occasion when she first left camp or later.

²³³¹ Witness BDE, T. 28 January 2011, p. 31.

942. Niyibizi did not frequently come to the ESO Camp.²³³³ He was a notorious killer, particularly at the university and the hospital.²³³⁴ He publicly boasted about his killings and announced that he would kill up to 100 Tutsis.²³³⁵ He informed the witness that he was working in coordination with Corporal Sekimonyo and that Sibomana led the Interahamwe.²³³⁶ Indeed, Niyibizi was among a group of soldiers that were notorious killers who would immediately implement the orders Nizeyimana gave to them.²³³⁷

Deliberations

943. As discussed elsewhere, the Prosecution has led other evidence about ESO Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi participating in violence at Butare University Hospital. However, with respect to Indictment paragraph 15(ii), Witness BDE appears to be the sole witness providing evidence in support of this allegation.

944. As a challenge to Witness BDE's general credibility, the Defence argues that she met "frequently" with others to discuss testifying against Nizeyimana. Notably, Witness BDE confirmed that she met with Prosecution Witness Gahizi, who had informed her that he would testify about Nizeyimana and that she confirmed that she would as well; however, she denied that she discussed her testimony with him.²³³⁸ Similarly, Witness BDE confirmed that she met with Pascasie Uwimana, but denied that she discussed the substance of her testimony with Uwimana.²³³⁹ There is nothing in the record disputing Witness BDE's assertions. The Chamber considers the Defence arguments unfounded.

945. Turning to Witness BDE's evidence, the Chamber has no doubt that she, as an ESO soldier, would have been in a position to identify ESO Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi in 1994. Moreover, as discussed previously, there is credible evidence that Fulgence Niyibizi was involved in violence at the Butare University Hospital. The Chamber considers that this circumstantial evidence bolsters Witness BDE's otherwise uncorroborated account.

946. In addition, Witness BDE's evidence as to why she was at Butare University Hospital also finds considerable circumstantial support. The testimonies of Prosecution Witnesses ZT and ZY, as well as Defence Witness Basesayabo reflect that female ESO soldiers were assigned to deliver food to soldiers there after the shooting down of the President's plane.²³⁴⁰ The Chamber considers the Defence evidence generally denying that violence occurred at the Butare University Hospital equivocal and lacking probative value as it relates to this particular incident.

947. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber is satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that around or after 25 April 1994, Witness BDE observed ESO Corporal Niyibizi remove an elderly man, whom Niyibizi identified as an Inyenzi, and kill him. Notwithstanding, the Chamber considers Witness BDE's general evidence that Niyibizi was one of several soldiers who would implement Nizeyimana's orders fails to establish that Nizeyimana ordered or instigated this killing. Witness BDE's assertion is remarkably devoid of context.²³⁴¹ She conceded that she was not present when Nizeyimana ordered or instigated Niyibizi to kill.²³⁴² It fails to provide the necessary details establishing the circumstances in which this can be inferred.

948. Likewise, Witness ZT's general testimony that Nizeyimana had deployed Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi to the hospital to kill Tutsis lacks the same contextual information to demonstrate that she observed this or that her information came from a reliable source.²³⁴³ Similarly, Witness ZAL testified that she learned from unidentified colleagues that Nizeyimana generally ordered killings. Nonetheless, she conceded that this was word of mouth and she could not identify the specific source of this information.²³⁴⁴

949. Of greater significance, Witness BDE's observations and conversation with Niyibizi tend to reflect that he was operating on his own. When Witness BDE confronted Niyibizi, he did not point to the authority of Nizeyimana or anyone else suggesting that his activities at Butare University Hospital were sanctioned by those in command at the ESO.²³⁴⁵ To the contrary, Witness BDE suggested that Niyibizi spent little time at the ESO Camp. Under the circumstances, the Chamber considers that the evidence also fails to demonstrate that Nizeyimana knew or should have known about this isolated incident. This allegation is dismissed.

950. Indeed, Nizeyimana has presented alibi evidence that raises the reasonable possibility that he was reassigned to lead a military training camp at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture around 26 April 1994.²³⁴⁶ Ambiguity as to whether this event occurred on or after 25 April raises the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana was not based in Butare when this crime occurred. While the Chamber is not persuaded that this evidence creates the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana only returned to Butare town once after this date, it does raise doubts that he significantly or substantially contributed to this crime. Furthermore, it raises doubts that he would have or should have known about isolated killings such as this one. This allegation is dismissed.

Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, p. 42.

8.3 General Killings by Fulgence Niyibizi and Others

Introduction

951. The Indictment alleges that from around 20 April 1994, Nizeyimana authorised, ordered or instigated soldiers from the FAR, ESO, Ngoma Camp and Butare Gendarmerie Camp, and Interahamwe to kill many civilians identified as Tutsi. In particular, following instructions from Nizeyimana, Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi and other ESO and FAR soldiers, including Theobard Hagenimana, Placide Mbarushimana, “Jean de Dieu”, “Mutimura”, “Edison”, “Said”, “Mandela” and “Bola Mungu” targeted civilian Tutsis or those without identity cards in order to kill them. The Prosecution appears to rely on the evidence of Witnesses ZAL, ZW, ZT, ZBL, MKA, DCO, YAP and Anaclet Dufitumukiza.²³⁴⁷

952. While the Defence concedes that there were abductions from and violence at the Butare University Hospital, it argues that this was done by soldiers not from the ESO and that it generally subsidised. The Prosecution lacks evidence and much of it is not covered in the Indictment.²³⁴⁸

Prosecution Witness ZAL

953. Witness ZAL, a Tutsi, lived in Butare in April 1994 and worked at the Butare University Hospital.²³⁴⁹ After the killing of President Juvénal Habyarimana, the witness first returned to the hospital on 22 April.²³⁵⁰ From that point until 4 June, the witness worked during the weekday morning hours and then hid, usually in the maternity ward, from around noon until the following morning.²³⁵¹ On the evening of 4 June, all Tutsis working at the hospital were killed. The following day, a female colleague of the witness hid her in a room, where she remained.²³⁵²

954. Witness ZAL, who had been working at the hospital for years, was able to identify certain ESO soldiers given that she would pass the military camp when returning from work.²³⁵³ A group of nine soldiers, including Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi, “Kimonyo”, “Mzungu” and “Rapide”, regularly reviewed the identity cards of persons within the hospital. Those identified as Tutsis were removed and killed.²³⁵⁴ The witness observed some abductions that occurred during the day.²³⁵⁵ However, once Médecins Sans Frontières announced over the radio that killings were occurring, the soldiers started reviewing identity cards during the day and abducting and killing those identified as Tutsis at night.²³⁵⁶ Witness ZAL learned about the night time killings from other workers.²³⁵⁷ Tutsis were killed on a daily basis until 4 June 1994.²³⁵⁸ Witness ZAL learned from unidentified colleagues that Nizeyimana had ordered ESO soldiers to remove those taken from the hospital.²³⁵⁹

955. On an unidentified evening, she saw Corporal Niyibizi remove a female university student named Éphiphanie. She was returned – severely wounded – to the hospital’s intensive care unit by a soldier who found her. However, she was no longer there the next day and the witness later learned she had died.²³⁶⁰ Others killed by soldiers included hospital workers “Venantie”, “Claire” and “De Gaulle”.²³⁶¹ A man from Gikongoro named Gasana was killed by soldiers as was another Gikongoro native and patient named Édouard.²³⁶² Other patients called Kabilia and Bosco were also abducted and killed by soldiers. The witness heard that a woman named “Triphine” was killed in June 1994.²³⁶³

956. On 6 April 1994, Witness ZW, a Tutsi, was a patient in the maternity ward of Butare University Hospital, who had received a Hutu identity card from an ESO soldier named Félicien Kanimba.²³⁶⁴ Her room was above ground level and her window looked out behind the hospital.²³⁶⁵ She remained in the building continuously until early July 1994.²³⁶⁶

957. Soldiers, wearing military uniforms and black berets, started to arrive at the hospital as early as 7 April 1994.²³⁶⁷ ESO soldiers started killing patients at the Butare University Hospital around 13 or 14 April.²³⁶⁸ Eventually, a pattern emerged where the soldiers entered rooms during the day and asked patients and care-takers for identification. Those identified as Tutsis (or without identification) were taken at night to the bushes behind maternity ward and killed.²³⁶⁹ Witness ZW was able to identify the soldiers as ESO officers through discussions with a non-ESO officer called Hagenimana, who said that the killers came from that camp and through conversations with ESO soldiers Edison, Placide Mbarushyimana.²³⁷⁰ Ill and wounded soldiers eventually arrived, and, although they generally did not come with weapons, they also committed killings.²³⁷¹

958. Witness ZW knew some persons who were killed during the night.²³⁷² On an evening in June 1994, she heard a scream.²³⁷³ She got up and looked out the window, where she saw a hospital worker who stayed near the witness and had a Tutsi identity card, Vénérande Mukanama, being led out of the hospital by two uniformed soldiers.²³⁷⁴ One was holding a piece of firewood.²³⁷⁵ They took her to the bushes. The witness heard a “knock” and determined that Mukanama had been hit by the wood.²³⁷⁶ A few minutes later, the soldiers returned to the hospital.²³⁷⁷ The next day, unidentified hospital attendants as well as an unidentified person who had been cared for by Mukanama informed her that Mukanama had been abducted by Fulgence Niyibizi.²³⁷⁸

959. One hospital attendant, named Venancie, pretended to be a patient without identification papers and sought refuge in the “ward”.²³⁷⁹ She did not carry an identity card and was abducted one evening on a date she could not recall.²³⁸⁰ Later, the witness saw Hagenimana, a soldier, who did not come from the ESO, wearing Venancie’s sandals and necklace.²³⁸¹ He informed the witness that he, in collaboration with Fulgence Niyibizi, had killed Venancie.²³⁸²

960. Fulgence Niyibizi was identified to Witness ZW by an ESO officer named Edison.²³⁸³ Specifically, Niyibizi had threatened to kill Witness ZW after she had released two Butare University students who had been locked inside a hospital room in May 1994.²³⁸⁴ At that point, Edison told her that this soldier was Niyibizi, a cadet at the ESO.²³⁸⁵ Witness ZW explained that Niyibizi had become a famous killer at Butare University Hospital, remaining there and asking people to show identification cards.²³⁸⁶

961. Witness ZT, a Tutsi, was a student at the ESO in April 1994.²³⁸⁷ About two weeks after President Juvénal Habyarimana’s death on 6 April, the witness was assigned by Lieutenant Bizimana, nicknamed Rwatsi, to bring food to Presidential Guard soldiers at the

Butare University Hospital.²³⁸⁸ Although the Presidential Guards refused to accept food from her – calling her an “Inyenzi” – she continued to bring food to other patients until a date she could not recall in May.²³⁸⁹

962. Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi, whose “bosses” were Nizeyimana and “Rwatsi”, was assigned to the hospital to kill Tutsis.²³⁹⁰ In the month of May 1994, a Sergeant Lazare, whose “bosses” also included Nizeyimana and “Rwatsi”, was similarly at the hospital and appeared to act as reinforcement for Niyibizi in killing Tutsis.²³⁹¹ On unidentified occasions, the witness observed Niyibizi take patients on stretchers to a transformer behind the hospital and kill them.²³⁹² Each morning, she observed about 50 Tutsi corpses.²³⁹³ Prisoners, wearing pink uniforms, came to the hospital to bury the dead.²³⁹⁴ “According to reports”, Nizeyimana had organised the prisoners to be brought to the hospital for this purpose.²³⁹⁵

963. On unidentified occasions, Nizeyimana would come to the hospital in his jeep with a soldier called Ndayizeye.²³⁹⁶ He would ask the soldiers how they were and how they were doing.²³⁹⁷

Prosecution Witness ZBL

964. Witness ZBL, a Tutsi, lived in Huye commune, Butare prefecture in 1994.²³⁹⁸ She left her home and went to Butare University Hospital on an unspecified date in April 1994.²³⁹⁹ Witness ZBL generally testified that soldiers and Interahamwe selected Tutsis from the Butare University Hospital.²⁴⁰⁰ The assailants would ask people to present identity cards.²⁴⁰¹ The witness suspected that the persons selected were killed because they did not return to the hospital.²⁴⁰² The soldiers carried guns but the witness testified that “they” used clubs and small axes and that “they said that they did not want to waste their bullets”.²⁴⁰³ Witness ZBL believed that the soldiers were from the ESO because it was a military camp not far from the hospital.²⁴⁰⁴

965. Venantie, a Tutsi, was Witness ZBL’s sister-in-law.²⁴⁰⁵ Witness ZBL’s sister-in-law stayed in the hospital maternity ward and worked at the hospital.²⁴⁰⁶ She had informed the witness that she had been raped on four occasions.²⁴⁰⁷ Sometime in May or June 1994, Witness ZBL saw her sister-in-law for the last time.²⁴⁰⁸ She had been paying soldiers off and stated she had ran out of money.²⁴⁰⁹ In a pitiful state, the witness's sister-in-law could not put her legs together.²⁴¹⁰ That day at an unidentified time, Witness ZBL saw three uniformed soldiers remove her sister-in-law.²⁴¹¹ The witness generally testified that she was killed.²⁴¹²

Prosecution Witness MKA

966. Witness MKA, a Tutsi, arrived at the Butare University Hospital around 18 April 1994, when she was nine months pregnant.²⁴¹³ There, she observed many displaced Tutsis, who were not allowed inside the hospital, gathered in the compound's courtyard opposite the "paediatrics department".²⁴¹⁴ There were many soldiers at the hospital, some who had surrounded the hospital and some inside.²⁴¹⁵ Witness MKA identified them as ESO soldiers given that the ESO was close to the hospital could see that they came from the ESO Camp.²⁴¹⁶

967. About three days after Witness MKA arrived – approximately 21 or 22 April 1994 – a military vehicle or vehicles arrived.²⁴¹⁷ Soldiers told the refugees in front of the paediatrics department to gather together so that they could be taken to a safe place. The witness also heard a comment that if you want to "weed out the weed, you need to put the grass together".²⁴¹⁸ The witness believed that the vehicle took several tours.²⁴¹⁹ One day before 20, 21 or 22 April, the refugees outside the paediatrics department were removed.²⁴²⁰ Witness MKA's two junior sisters were taken away on the second day.²⁴²¹ At this point, the witness moved to the hospital's maternity ward.²⁴²² She was unaware of the arrival of wounded soldiers at Butare University Hospital around 20 or 21 April.²⁴²³

Prosecution Witness DCO

968. Witness DCO, a Tutsi, stayed in the paediatric ward with her sick child at the Butare University Hospital from 29 February until some point in July 1994.²⁴²⁴ She generally testified that soldiers settled close to the hospital.²⁴²⁵ They seized identity cards bearing Tutsi identification on it.²⁴²⁶ Persons were abducted and taken to the lower side of the maternity wing.²⁴²⁷ Others were taken to the ESO.²⁴²⁸

969. In April 1994, the week following the crash of President Juvénal Habyarimana's plane, two vehicles containing corpses of university students arrived around 11.00 a.m.²⁴²⁹ There were about 10 soldiers in the vehicle and they invited persons to identify their relatives.²⁴³⁰ Around 3.00 p.m. the witness observed soldiers and Interahamwe kill those people with bladed weapons.²⁴³¹

970. On an unspecified date around 2.00 p.m., soldiers came and asked a pastor and other people for their identity cards, which they took away.²⁴³² The pastor and his family, who were Tutsis and included his wife and two children, were from Nyakizu commune. They remained at the paediatrics ward with Witness DCO.²⁴³³ Three soldiers returned that evening and asked for identity cards. When they could not produce them, the pastor and his family were removed by the soldiers.²⁴³⁴ Later, some unidentified victims returned and said that these persons had been killed.²⁴³⁵

971. The first soldiers who committed killings at the Butare University Hospital were from the ESO. She knew they came from the ESO, because that camp was next to the hospital.²⁴³⁶ One soldier she saw frequently had a fair complexion and possibly suffered from eczema. Another was "darker" and one was of "medium height".²⁴³⁷ She did not know them individually, because this was her first time at this hospital, since as she had previously gone to Matyazo for treatment.²⁴³⁸ Wounded soldiers arrived later and confirmed that they were from the Ngoma Camp and Presidential Guards.²⁴³⁹

972. Witness YAP, a Tutsi, worked at the Butare University Hospital in 1994 and lived not far from it.²⁴⁴⁰ Between President Juvénal Habyarimana's death and succeeding President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech on 19 April 1994, the witness went to the hospital on a daily basis.²⁴⁴¹ However, after Sindikubwabo's speech, he went there on four occasions, the last being around 22 June, fearing that he might be killed.²⁴⁴²

973. Specifically, soldiers, Interahamwe, members of the CDR party and PSD power party invaded and occupied the hospital for the purpose of killing Tutsis. Among the soldiers were Second Lieutenant Rwanyonga (who was also a student at the faculty of medicine), ESO Second Lieutenant Bizimana, ESO nouvelle formule cadets Mberabagabo and Niyonzima and ESO soldier Sekimonyo.²⁴⁴³ The ESO soldiers lived at that camp, wore black berets and the witness testified that he could recognise them easily.²⁴⁴⁴ Attackers would remove persons and take them towards the transformer to be killed. The transformer was located on the hospital grounds but behind and downhill from it beyond a brook.²⁴⁴⁵ Witness YAP never saw Nizeyimana at the hospital after the killings started.²⁴⁴⁶

974. In April 1994, Witness Dufitumukiza, a Tutsi, was a gendarme corporal at the Tumba Gendarmerie Camp in Butare town.²⁴⁴⁷ In the months of May and June, Second Lieutenant Gakwerere of the ESO Camp was entrusted with flushing out Tutsis so that they could be killed.²⁴⁴⁸ He searched for Tutsis in various parts of Butare, and the witness saw him in the town's city centre, at the Butare University Hospital and the gendarmerie brigade.²⁴⁴⁹ Every Tutsi Gakwerere arrested was taken to the gendarme brigade and subsequently killed.²⁴⁵⁰

975. Witness Dufitumukiza went to the Butare University Hospital on three or four unspecified occasions to assist Catherine Mukarubahiza.²⁴⁵¹ On one or more the occasions, he saw Second Lieutenant Gakwerere at the hospital, accompanied by between five to 11 soldiers.²⁴⁵² The witness believed that Gakwerere was there to identify Tutsis in order for them to be killed.²⁴⁵³

(i) ESO Soldiers Generally Perpetrating Crimes at Butare University Hospital

976. The Prosecution has led a considerable amount of general evidence of soldiers committing crimes at the Butare University Hospital. It has not, however, coherently linked this evidence into a cohesive narrative and has done less to show how the evidence fits within the particularised allegations in Indictment paragraphs 15(i)-(ii). Nonetheless, the Chamber considers it instructive to review this evidence, as it remains highly relevant to particularised events that are expressly pleaded in the Indictment.

977. As a general matter, the evidence clearly reflects that Tutsi patients at the Butare University Hospital were targeted and killed. The evidence also reflects that Tutsi women were frequently subjected to sexual violence.²⁴⁵⁴

978. Nonetheless, the general evidence about the participation of soldiers, and ESO soldiers in particular, is just that – general. In many instances, the Prosecution led evidence that implicated particular ESO soldiers in crimes, but failed to elicit details necessary to sustain its exacting burden of proof.

979. For example, Witnesses ZAL, YAP, Dufitumukiza and ZBL expressly identified ESO soldiers who they believed were generally involved in killing Tutsis at the Butare University Hospital. For example, Witness ZAL listed a number of ESO soldiers, including Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi, “Kimonyo”, “Mzungu”, “Saïdi” and “Rapide”, who regularly reviewed the identity cards of persons within the hospital. Those identified as Tutsis were removed and killed. The witness generally testified that she witnessed some abductions, and noted that they initially occurred during the day but later occurred at night. There is general corroboration for this. However, with the exception of particular instances (which are discussed below), her evidence about their actions is quite vague. Patterns are reported, but the extent and the nature of the abductions and killings are unclear. Her general assertions (which are only in a few instances qualified by detailed explanations) cannot support findings beyond a reasonable doubt.

980. Witness YAP testified that Second Lieutenant Rwanyonga (who was also a student at the faculty of medicine), ESO Second Lieutenant Bizimana, ESO nouvelle formule cadets Mberabagabo and Niyonzima and ESO soldier Sekimonyo were among those who occupied the hospital for the purpose of killing Tutsis. However, Witness YAP’s evidence is particularly vague. Having visited the hospital on only four occasions after 19 April 1994, there are serious questions about how he knew this. He did not provide a specific time frame for the violence. The fact that he lived in the vicinity of Butare University Hospital and spoke to a soldier (evidence that only came out in re-examination) fails sufficiently support his assertions about the victims. It also fails to establish how he knew that these soldiers participated in crimes. It too fails to establish facts at the exacting burden carried by the Prosecution.

981. Next, Witness Dufitumukiza testified that particularly in the months of May and June 1994, Second Lieutenant Gakwerere of the ESO Camp was entrusted with flushing out Tutsis so that they could be killed. However, this evidence is also ambiguous. While he testified to having seen Gakwerere in various locations, his evidence does not clearly demonstrate that he saw the second lieutenant detaining Tutsis, or having observed the soldier kill them. Indeed, his testimony about Gakwerere’s activities at the Butare University Hospital is not only vague, it reflects the witness’s own uncertainty as to whether he was there to search for and kill Tutsis.²⁴⁵⁵ While Witness Dufitumukiza’s impressions of ²⁴⁵⁴ See II.9.

Gakwerere's activities are relevant and probative, they do not establish facts beyond reasonable doubt.²⁴⁵⁶

982. The same holds true for Witness ZBL's general evidence of ESO soldiers removing and killing Tutsis. Of particular significance, the Defence has raised considerable doubts about Witness ZBL's identification of ESO soldiers based on her prior testimony in the Rwamakuba trial before the Tribunal.²⁴⁵⁷ This evidence also fails to establish findings beyond reasonable doubt.

983. In other instances, the Prosecution led evidence about rather particular crimes, but the identification of the soldiers as ESO soldiers remains highly questionable. For example, Witness MKA generally testified that around 21 or 22 April 1994, soldiers removed Tutsis that were outside the hospital opposite the paediatrics ward. Notably, the removal of a large numbers of patients around this time is generally corroborated by the second-hand evidence of Prosecution Witness Zachariah.²⁴⁵⁸

984. Notwithstanding, while Witness MKA generally identified ESO soldiers as present at the hospital, her evidence fails to expressly identify them as involved in this incident. Moreover, her identification was based on the fact that the ESO was close to the hospital and that she could see soldiers coming from it. However, her evidence fails to reflect that her vantage point, at any time, would have allowed her to see ESO soldiers coming from that particular camp. The Chamber has elsewhere considered that notwithstanding the relative close proximity between the ESO and the Butare University Hospital, the latter occupies expansive grounds that tend to move away from the ESO. The camp cannot be seen from all parts of the hospital. This allegation is dismissed.

985. Witness DCO described several events and generally implicated ESO soldiers as those who were the first to kill persons at the hospital. At the outset, Witness DCO's description of soldiers bringing lorries in April 1994 and asking for civilians to identify relatives and then slaughtering these people, is uncorroborated. This is somewhat surprising given the seemingly significant scale of the operation and the fact that it happened in the Gakwerere, he was looking for Tutsis, but I cannot say with exactitude what he was doing. Whenever I saw him going around I had the impression that I was implementing his mission or executing his mission [to hunt down Tutsis and have them killed].”)

²⁴⁵⁶ The Defence objected to Witness Dufitumukiza's evidence in regards to Gakwerere's involvement in the killing of Tutsis at the Butare University Hospital on the basis that they did not receive notice. Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, paras. 45-47. Given the Chambers findings in regards to his evidence, it need not address this challenge.

²⁴⁵⁸ On 21 April 1994, Witness Zachariah learned that 40 children from the pediatric ward had been removed to the prefecture office. The hospital director informed him that the hospital crisis committee decided that patients with minor wounds had to leave for reasons of hygiene. Witness Zachariah went to the prefecture office that day and only observed six or seven children, wearing bandages used by Médecins Sans Frontières, there. Unidentified persons and hospital staff informed him that the children had been taken away and killed. Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, pp. 12, 29; Exhibit D18 (Witness Zachariah's Sketch). On 22 April, Witness Zachariah learned that 150 adult Tutsi patients were similarly removed the previous evening and taken to the prefecture office. He returned to the prefecture office and found no patients there. Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 12. In both instances, Witness Zachariah testified that the Butare University Hospital had the facilities to receive incoming soldiers and retain these patients. Witness Zachariah, T. 14 February 2011, p. 12. Cf. Witness Spielmann, T. 31 January 2011, p. 11 (Witness Spielmann learned from local Médecins Sans Frontières staff that around 170 Tutsi patients had been killed at the Butare University Hospital or removed).

middle of the day. The absence of more direct corroboration by any of the several witnesses at Butare University Hospital undermines this allegation.

986. Furthermore, Witness DCO's evidence that ESO soldiers were the initial perpetrators of killings or that persons were taken to the ESO is general and insufficiently descript to support findings beyond reasonable doubt. At the outset, the Chamber has considerable reservations that Witness DCO could observe persons being brought to the ESO from a position in the paediatrics ward or from below the maternity wing.²⁴⁵⁹ Moreover, Witness DCO conceded that she did not know the soldiers – noting that she normally went to Matyazo for treatment – and that Presidential Guards and Ngoma Camp soldiers were around.²⁴⁶⁰ Her ability to identify ESO soldiers in particular is less than clear.²⁴⁶¹ Her insistence that the ESO Camp was situated on the side of the hospital below the maternity ward raises further questions as to the soldiers' source.²⁴⁶² In this regard, the remainder of her specific allegations about soldiers killing persons at the Butare University Hospital fails to sufficiently implicate ESO soldiers.

987. The Chamber observes that Indictment paragraph 15(i) is particularly broad and not necessarily limited to killings committed by ESO soldiers alone. Notwithstanding, the evidence assessed above fails to demonstrate that Nizeyimana significantly or substantially contributed to any proven criminal conduct. Likewise, ambiguity as to the identities of the perpetrators raises doubts that Nizeyimana exercised effective control over them. These allegations are dismissed.

(ii) Killings by ESO Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi

988. Through Witnesses ZAL, ZW and ZT, the Prosecution led evidence related to the participation of ESO Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi in the killing of Tutsis at the ESO. With the exception of one killing, the evidence of Witnesses ZAL, ZW and ZT do not expressly reflect that they observed or learned of Niyibizi's criminal participation in the same killing or event. The Chamber shall address the evidence in turn.

(iii) Killing of Venancie or Venantie by Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi

989. Witness ZW, a patient in the maternity ward, testified that on an unidentified date, she learned from a soldier called Hagenimana that he and Niyibizi had killed a hospital attendant ²⁴⁶⁰ Witness DCO, T. 10 February 2011, pp. 59, 72.

²⁴⁶¹ Witness DCO, T. 10 February 2011, p. 72 (“Q. Do you remember when these soldiers came, that last group? A. I no longer recall the date. But when they arrived some of them took us to one of the wards for a prayer session and those who came from ESO beat us and told us that they ought to let them fight themselves and others asked us to say our last prayers. But in some the soldiers from ESO did not leave us alone in peace.”).

²⁴⁶² Compare Prosecution Witness DCO, T. 10 February 2011, pp. 72 (“Q. ... I would like to put something to you. When you were in the maternity when you would go behind the maternity, sorry, and then downhill from the kitchen, then you were just right by ESO and that's why you could see people going in or people being taken there. Is that what you said earlier? ... A. That location was on the ESO side.”), 74 (“A. I'm telling you that when we were standing in front of the tuberculosis ward, you would pass in front of the maternity wing and pass, as I said, by the TB ward. And when you reach below the kitchen, you could see ESO. There was a path passing there”), with Defence Witness Hahirwa, T. 14 June 2011, pp. 12-15 and Exhibit D67A (Aerial Photograph of the Butare University Hospital). Witness Hahirwa authenticated a photograph taken by Canadian security forces, and through identifying the buildings in it, showed that the maternity ward and the canteen area are in the opposite direction of the ESO, with a significant distance and buildings between the two.

named Venancie. Notably Witness ZW stated that Venancie had sought refuge in the “ward” by pretending to be a patient. She did not have an identity card.

990. Witness ZAL, a hospital employee, also testified generally that a woman named “Venantie” was killed. She too specified that Venantie was a hospital attendant but that she was admitted into the maternity ward because she was ill. Witness ZBL also testified that she saw her Tutsi sister-in-law, called Venantie, who worked at the hospital and who had been admitted to its maternity ward being led away by three soldiers in May 1994. She did not see her again.

991. The Chamber has no doubt that these three witnesses were present at the Butare University Hospital. In particular, Witness ZAL confirmed Witness ZW’s presence in the maternity ward.²⁴⁶³ Moreover, given the parallel descriptions of the victim, notwithstanding the slightly different spellings of her name, the Chamber is also satisfied that all three are referring to the same woman.²⁴⁶⁴

992. With respect to the participation of Niyibizi and Hagenimana, the Chamber considers other direct evidence of Niyibizi’s participation in killings at the Butare University Hospital offers compelling circumstantial support to Witness ZW’s hearsay identification of his involvement in Venancie’s death. Furthermore, the inculpatory admission of Hagenimana, who befriended the witness in the hospital, makes this hearsay evidence particularly compelling.²⁴⁶⁵ Again, Witness ZBL’s identification of three uniformed soldiers removing Venantie offers some circumstantial support.

993. Notwithstanding, there is no direct evidence of Nizeyimana’s contribution, significant or substantial to this killing. The Chamber observes that Witness ZAL testified that she learned from unidentified colleagues that Nizeyimana generally ordered killings. Nonetheless, she conceded that this was word of mouth and she could not identify the specific source of this information.²⁴⁶⁶ This evidence is too tenuous to support findings beyond reasonable doubt.

994. Likewise, while the evidence firmly establishes that Niyibizi, an ESO corporal, was of a lower rank than the Accused and below him within the ESO’s general command structure, it fails to reflect that Nizeyimana knew or should have known about this particular killing. In so finding, the Chamber has considered the fact that the Prosecution evidence convincingly reflects that Nizeyimana was informed about killings at the Butare University Hospital by soldiers around 23 April 1994.²⁴⁶⁷ Notwithstanding, it is not clear that he was informed that ESO soldiers were the perpetrators. Indeed, Nizeyimana was informed about killings at the Butare University Hospital after a considerable influx of Presidential Guards there. Moreover, the evidence of Prosecution witnesses who spoke to Nizeyimana about these ²⁴⁶⁴ The Chamber notes that Witness ZAL testified that she and Witness ZW discussed that Fulgence Niyibizi was dangerous. Witness ZAL, T. 14 February 2011, p. 54.

²⁴⁶⁷ See II.8.1.

crimes – Witnesses Zachariah and Spielmann – tends to reflect that they believed the soldiers killing patients and medical staff to be Presidential Guards.²⁴⁶⁸

995. Furthermore, only Witness ZBL provided a date for this event – sometime in May or June 1994 – raising further doubt about whether Nizeyimana would have or should have known about this killing. Notably, he has presented alibi evidence that raises the reasonable possibility that he was reassigned to lead a military training camp at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture towards the end of April and that he left for the front in Nyanza towards the end of May.²⁴⁶⁹ While the Chamber is not persuaded that this evidence creates the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana only returned to Butare town once after that date, it does raise doubts that he would have or should have known about isolated killings such as this or Niyibizi’s repeated perpetration of crimes at the Butare University Hospital during this period. The absence of any date as it relates to this event allows for the reasonable possibility that it occurred then. This allegation is dismissed.²⁴⁷⁰

(iv) Killing of Épiphanie Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi

996. Witness ZAL, a hospital employee, testified that on an unidentified evening, she saw Niyibizi remove a female university student named Épiphanie, who returned severely wounded. The witness learned the next day that she had died.

997. At the outset, the Chamber has no doubt about Witness ZAL’s ability to identify ESO soldiers given that she had worked at the nearby Butare University Hospital for years and frequently passed the ESO Camp. Furthermore, she correctly identified Niyibizi as a corporal from the ESO.²⁴⁷¹ Nonetheless, given the brevity of her account as well as her evidence that she was in hiding in the night, the Chamber is not satisfied that her evidence demonstrates that she saw Niyibizi remove Épiphanie. This allegation is dismissed.

(v) Killing of Vénérande Mukanama Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi

998. Witness ZW, a Tutsi patient at the hospital, testified generally that she knew some victims that had been killed during the night. Specifically, she recalled observing hospital attendant, Vénérande Mukanama, being led out of the hospital by two uniformed soldiers in June 1994. She heard a knock and a scream. The next day she learned from a patient and hospital attendants that Fulgence Niyibizi had abducted Mukanama.

999. At the outset, the Chamber has no doubt that Witness ZW, from her position in the maternity ward, would have been able to view someone being led out of the hospital. Defence evidence confirms that the room in which she was kept had a window that looked out behind the maternity ward.²⁴⁷²

²⁴⁶⁸ See II.8.1.

²⁴⁶⁹ See II.13.3.

²⁴⁷⁰ In light of this finding, the Chamber need not consider Defence Challenges to Witness ZAL’s evidence about “Venantie”. Defence Closing Brief, para. 426.

²⁴⁷¹ Witness ZAL, T. 14 February 2011, p. 36.

²⁴⁷² See Defence Witness Hahirwa, T. 14 June 2011, pp. 18-19; Exhibit D67B (Photograph of Maternity Ward and Room); Exhibit D67A (Aerial Photograph of Butare University Hospital). See also Prosecution Witness ZAL, T. 14 February 2011, p. 53 (identifying the room in which Witness ZW was in the maternity ward).

1000. The Chamber observes that Witness ZW did not testify to seeing the corpse of Mukanama. Nonetheless, having observed two uniformed soldiers take Mukanama away, one carrying a piece of firewood, and hearing the knock and the scream, the evidence firmly establishes that this woman, who had a Tutsi identity card, was singled out to be killed. Indeed, Witness ZW's evidence fits within a broader pattern of soldiers and civilian militia killing Tutsis behind the hospital.

1001. Her identification of Niyibizi appears to rely primarily on information she later learned from a patient and hospital attendants,²⁴⁷³ and having learned Niyibizi's identity through an unrelated incident from an ESO soldier named Edison.²⁴⁷⁴ It does not appear to rely on a visual identification of the two soldiers. Notwithstanding, other compelling evidence of Niyibizi's participations in killings, the identification of him in this instance is tenuous. It is not clear that the individuals who informed Witness ZW that Niyibizi killed Mukanama actually saw his involvement in this assault. Likewise, the fact that the witness identified the soldiers as wearing uniforms is insufficient to establish that they were ESO soldiers.

1002. There is no direct evidence of Nizeyimana's involvement, having significantly or substantially contributed to this killing. Likewise, ambiguity as to the identity of the soldiers raises questions about whether these were subordinates over whom Nizeyimana exercised effective control. Indeed, this killing happened in June 1994. Notably, Nizeyimana has presented alibi evidence that raises the reasonable possibility that he was reassigned to lead a military training camp at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro towards the end of April 1994. Moreover, the Chamber has determined that the evidence reasonably reflects that Nizeyimana was transferred to the front towards the end of May.²⁴⁷⁵ Nizeyimana's transfer raises considerable doubt that he would have or should have known about these crimes, which were committed in June. This allegation is dismissed.

(vi) Killings Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi Observed by Witness ZT

1003. Witness ZT was an ESO cadet assigned to bring food to soldiers at the hospital from 6 April until sometime in May 1994. She testified that, on unidentified occasions, she observed Niyibizi take patients on stretchers to a transformer behind the hospital and kill them. Each morning, she observed about 50 Tutsi corpses.

1004. At the outset, the Chamber has no doubt that Witness ZT, an ESO soldier, could have easily identified Corporal Fulgence Niyibizi in 1994. Furthermore, her evidence that she ²⁴⁷³ Witness ZW, T. 9 February 2011, pp. 70-71 (“Q. And you have said that they were soldiers, do you know who they actually were? A. At the time of the abduction I noticed that they were soldiers. The next day the patients who had been with the victims also identified the perpetrators of the abduction. So during the night it was not possible for me to identify the soldiers who were in uniform because I was not very close to them. Q. Who did you hear say that it was who that had abducted her? A. A soldier came into the ward and his name is Fulgence Niyibizi, and then he went to link up with his colleague who was outside the ward and then they took the victim to the bushes. ... Q. So who was it that told you that it was Fulgence Niyibizi who was responsible for killing that woman? A. It is those who were attending to other patients in that ward who told me. The person who was attending to or, rather, the person who was being attended to by Vénérand also told me.”).

²⁴⁷⁵ See II.13.3.

brought food to soldiers starting in April finds circumstantial support from other witnesses who testified that female ESO soldiers were assigned to this task.²⁴⁷⁶

1005. While Witness ZT's evidence implicating Niyibizi in killings finds circumstantial corroboration through other evidence regarding his participation in crimes at Butare University Hospital, the Prosecution utterly failed to elicit any particular details about the particular crimes Witness ZT testified to have witnessed. The absence of dates, particular circumstances of observation, as well as identification of victims, leaves the Chamber to decipher possibly, but not necessarily linked parts of Witness ZT's testimony to come to any conclusion in this regard. In a criminal trial, where the burden of proof is beyond reasonable doubt, this practice does not meet the required threshold. This allegation is dismissed.

Notice

1006. In support of the allegation that Nizeyimana is responsible for killings at Butare University Hospital, the Prosecution points to the evidence of Witness ZBH. He testified that, on a Sunday around 24 April 1994, Nizeyimana issued orders in the hospital's parking lot to the witness and other Interahamwe to kill Tutsi patients at the hospital that day.²⁴⁷⁷ Although this evidence fits broadly within the general contours of paragraph 15 of the Indictment, the Chamber is not satisfied that the Defence had timely, clear, and consistent notice that the Prosecution would rely on this part of Witness ZBH's evidence in support of this allegation.

1007. Specifically, the Pre-Trial Brief's submissions as they relate to violence at Butare University Hospital fail to indicate the Prosecution's intent to lead evidence through Witness ZBH in support of the relevant charges.²⁴⁷⁸ Likewise, the annexed summary of Witness ZBH's anticipated testimony does not indicate that he would provide evidence in support of paragraph 15.²⁴⁷⁹ Rather, the "Primary Paragraphs in the Indictment" that Witness ZBH was intended to support were 6, 7, 9, 10, 14, 17, 18, 23, 26, 27.

1008. Notably, the annexed summary reads that "Witness ZBH attended a meeting presided over by Muvunyi, Nizeyimana, Doctor Gatsinzi and Doctor Munyemana. Muvunyi ordered Witness ZBH and others to chase Tutsi who had sought refuge at the Butare University Hospital, but not to kill them within the boundary of the hospital. They killed the Tutsis in the forest below". This description is fundamentally different from Witness ZBH's testimony that Nizeyimana issued such orders. Furthermore, in light of the Indictment and the paragraphs the witness summary identifies Witness ZBH as supporting, this summary appears to be relevant to Indictment paragraph 10(iv) and not paragraph 15.²⁴⁸⁰

1009. The Prosecution is expected to know its case before proceeding to trial and cannot mould it against the accused in the course of proceedings depending on how the evidence unfolds.²⁴⁸¹ While arguments can be made that Witness ZBH's evidence could fall within the broad language of paragraph 15, his evidence amounts to material facts that should have been

9. BUTARE UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL – SEXUAL VIOLENCE, LATE APRIL TO JULY 1994

9.1 Rapes of Witness MKA and Others

Introduction

1010. The Indictment alleges that, from 6 April to 17 July 1994, FAR, ESO, Ngoma Camp soldiers and others, acting on the orders or at the instigation of Nizeyimana, raped Tutsi women at the Butare University Hospital and elsewhere. In particular, from late April to mid-May, Witness MKA and others were raped by five FAR soldiers in the hospital's maternity ward. About three days later, a FAR soldier raped her and sometime in mid-May, after the witness had given birth, an unknown male raped her in the presence of four other women who were also being raped.²⁴⁸²

1011. The Defence challenges Witness MKA's credibility, citing discrepancies and incoherence within her testimony and argues that it fails to establish Nizeyimana's involvement. The Defence also warns that she may have colluded with other Prosecution witnesses. Witnesses Déogratias Basesayabo, MAL01 and Vincent Nsabimana provided relevant evidence.²⁴⁸³

Prosecution Witness MKA

1012. Witness MKA, a Tutsi, arrived at the Butare University Hospital around 18 April 1994.²⁴⁸⁴ About two or three days later, the witness, who was nine months pregnant, moved into the hospital's maternity ward, where she was one of about five Tutsi women.²⁴⁸⁵ Sometime in late April or early May, prior to giving birth, soldiers in camouflage uniforms and long rain coats arrived in the maternity ward at night.²⁴⁸⁶ Using torches, they turned off the lights and moved around the room asking the women for their identification.²⁴⁸⁷ They did not have any.²⁴⁸⁸ The women were removed one after the other to separate rooms of the hospital.²⁴⁸⁹ A soldier, who was not carrying a weapon, removed Witness MKA to another room and raped her in private.²⁴⁹⁰ At an unidentified period later, each of the women discussed having been raped by the soldiers.²⁴⁹¹

1013. One evening, about a day after Witness MKA was first raped, she went to the surgical ward to visit a Tutsi woman and that woman's Tutsi daughter.²⁴⁹² Along the way, she met a young soldier – around 26 or 27 years old – in a non-camouflage, green military uniform and a raincoat, carrying a “long sword”.²⁴⁹³ He asked for her identification, and she responded that she did not have any.²⁴⁹⁴ He dragged her to “a little room” and raped her.²⁴⁹⁵

1014. On a following night – a few days after the witness had her baby in late April or early May 1994 – soldiers returned to the maternity ward where the five Tutsi women had remained.²⁴⁹⁶ The soldiers returned in a group of five, switched off the lights, covered each of the women in blankets and raped them.²⁴⁹⁷ Witness MKA was raped by the soldier who had raped her on the first occasion.²⁴⁹⁸ The witness remained at the Butare University Hospital until July.²⁴⁹⁹

1017. The Prosecution relies on the testimony of Witness MKA to establish the rapes as alleged in Indictment paragraph 31(iii). The Defence raises several challenges to her credibility as well as argues that her evidence fails to implicate Nizeyimana. The Chamber shall address these issues in turn.

1018. The Defence suggests that Witness MKA's evidence cannot be trusted, because she travelled to the Tribunal with other Prosecution witnesses in this case who also testified about rape. The witness conceded that she knew Witness FAX and had travelled to Arusha with her and Witness BUQ.²⁵⁰⁵ Nonetheless, she expressly denied that they discussed their testimonies with each other or that their lodging circumstances would have allowed it.²⁵⁰⁶ Notably, nothing in the testimonies of Witnesses BUQ and FAX suggest otherwise.²⁵⁰⁷ These Defence allegations are unfounded.

1019. The Defence disputes the quality of Witness MKA's evidence. For example, it argues that it is inconceivable that she could recall certain dates, but did not know, for example, the day her baby was born.²⁵⁰⁸ The Chamber observes that Witness MKA's evidence appeared to shift with regard to when she first arrived at the hospital.²⁵⁰⁹ She could not recall specific dates of rapes. Rather, the descriptions of their timing were oriented around events that occurred to her while at the hospital.²⁵¹⁰ Furthermore, while she testified that she gave birth to her baby around the end of April, she later conceded that it could have been later when presented with her August 2010 statement to Tribunal investigators, wherein she stated that it occurred "around 10 May 1994".²⁵¹¹

We didn't have that form of conversation. When we travelled we all knew that we were going to appear before this Tribunal, but we each had had our own information to provide but we did not discuss it. Q. But at night after the others were in court they said they told you a bit how it happened, did they not? A. Everyone (sic) someone appeared before the Chamber, the person no longer came and lived with us. That person was taken somewhere else, such that we were not in touch with anybody who was testifying or who had completed their testimony.").

²⁵⁰⁷ The Chamber observes that Witness MKA was not a member of ABASA. Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, p. 15.

²⁵⁰⁸ Defence Closing Brief, para. 449.

²⁵⁰⁹ Compare Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, p. 3 (testifying that she left her house on 14 April 1994, went to a hill and "the next day" went to the Butare University Hospital), with Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, pp. 26-27 (testifying that she believed that she arrived at the Butare University Hospital "around" or "on" 18 April 1994).

²⁵¹⁰ See, e.g., Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, pp. 6 (explaining that she could "no longer remember the dates", but clarifying that her first rape happened before she gave birth), 8 (noting that a day separated the occasion of her second and first rape at the hospital), 9 (was raped three days after she had had her baby).

²⁵¹¹ See Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, pp. 6 (estimating that she delivered her baby around "late April", but could not be sure), 33 (confirming that she had earlier testified that she recalled giving birth at the "end of

1020. The Chamber considers ambiguities in her evidence as it relates to timing both reasonable and immaterial. Witness MKA survived traumatic circumstances in a relatively foreign location. The fact that she could not recall the date her baby was born while hiding in the hospital and already having been raped twice in no way impacts the believability of her accounts. Indeed, this baby died once it was about a week old, depriving the mother of parental events that would require that she know (or try to discover) the date of birth.²⁵¹²

1021. Furthermore, the Chamber finds Witness MKA's evidence of soldiers raping her in late April and early May 1994 compelling when viewed among other evidence of such conduct occurring at the Butare University Hospital during the genocide. The pattern of soldiers scouring the hospital, asking for identification and raping women who were or were perceived to be Tutsis is supported by other accounts.²⁵¹³ The Chamber is satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that Witness MKA was repeatedly raped and suffered severe mental and bodily harm as a result.²⁵¹⁴

1022. Turning to Witness MKA's identification of the perpetrators, the Chamber observes that she did not directly implicate Nizeyimana as being involved in the attacks. Indeed, while she implicated ESO soldiers in the removal of Tutsi refugees from the Butare University Hospital on 21 and 22 April 1994,²⁵¹⁵ she expressed reservations about her ability to distinguish among different soldiers, including those that raped her and others.²⁵¹⁶ Her descriptions of what the soldiers who raped her were wearing do not necessarily demonstrate that they came from the ESO Camp.²⁵¹⁷

1023. Likewise, while she referred to the soldier as young, she estimated his age to be around 26 or 27. The Chamber considers the relative youth of ESO soldiers a credible basis for distinguishing them from military personnel originating from other camps. However, "youth" in the context of this trial record means shortly after the completion primary education.²⁵¹⁸ A soldier in his late 20s is not necessarily consistent with this description.

April"), 33 (once confronted with her statement that she had given birth around 10 May 1994, she explained that she had estimated the date of the birth and could only really recall that it occurred during a morning).

²⁵¹² Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, pp. 9-10.

²⁵¹³ See II.9.2-II.9.3.

²⁵¹⁵ Prosecution Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, pp. 3-4. Notably, Witnesses Basesayabo and Nsabimana testified that one could not see the ESO from the maternity ward. See Defence Witness Basesayabo, T. 9 May 2011, p. 17; Defence Witness Nsabimana, T. 18 May 2011, pp. 69-70.

²⁵¹⁶ In the context of being questioned about the soldiers who raped her on the first occasion: Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, p. 7 ("I was unable to distinguish the various military uniforms. As far as ... I was concerned, all soldiers wore the same type of uniform."). Regarding the second rape: Witness MKA, T. 21 February 2011, pp. 8 (identifying the soldier by approximate age, military uniform and accoutrements), 9 (stating that she had never seen this soldier before).

²⁵¹⁷ For a review of uniforms worn by soldiers in Butare in 1994, see II.1.

²⁵¹⁸ See, e.g., Defence Witness KEN06, T. 20 September 2011, pp. 4, 29 (joined ESO's nouvelle formule as a 13-year-old in 1989); Prosecution Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 76-77 (testifying that ESO soldiers could be distinguished from Ngoma Camp soldiers based on age, and that oldest cadets from the first batch were ages 15 to 17); Defence Witness Nsabimana, T. 18 May 2011, p. 70 (ESO soldiers could be "recognised from the fact that they were young"). Indeed, the nouvelle formule model allowed cadets to enter the ESO after finishing primary school. See, e.g., Prosecution Witness ZAK, T. 24 January 2011, p. 62; Prosecution Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, p. 4; Prosecution Witness AZD, T. 31 January 2011, p. 69; Prosecution Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 64; Defence Witness Basesayabo, T. 9 May 2011, p. 24; cf. Defence Witness

1024. Indeed, as it relates to the third occasion, Witness MKA testified that the soldier who raped her was the same soldier who had raped her on the first occasion.²⁵¹⁹ However, in her August 2010 statement to Tribunal investigators, she stated her belief that the persons who raped her and the other women on the third occasion were the “same soldiers” but that she could not “see them to confirm that they were soldiers”.²⁵²⁰ The witness suggested that this had been a misstatement and that she was sure she observed the leader, who was a soldier, and that he was in the company of his colleagues, who were also soldiers.²⁵²¹

1025. The Chamber considers that Witness MKA’s evidence reflects ambiguity regarding the identity of the perpetrators of the rapes about which she testified. She did not have a military background and was not from the area, raising further questions about her ability to identify ESO soldiers. Furthermore, the circumstances in which the sexual violence occurred – lights being turned off (in two instances) and the women being covered by blankets (in another) – understandably has resulted in difficulties in obtaining reliable identifications.

1026. The Chamber is mindful of evidence that ESO soldiers, for instance, learned that other soldiers were involved in rapes in Butare town.²⁵²² Notably, this evidence is second-hand and fails to implicate ESO soldiers in rapes at the Butare University Hospital. The Chamber has also considered that violence against Tutsis was perpetrated by ESO soldiers at the Butare University Hospital.²⁵²³ However, the evidence also reflects that Presidential Guards, who arrived around the last third of April 1994 had an equal hand in targeting Tutsis at the hospital.²⁵²⁴

1027. Without reliable identification evidence, more than one reasonable conclusion can be reached with respect to the identity of the perpetrators who raped Witness MKA. Under the circumstances, the Chamber is in no position to determine whether Nizeyimana made any significant or substantial contributions to the crimes. Ambiguity as to the identity of the soldiers creates doubt as to whether Nizeyimana exercised effective control over them.²⁵²⁵ It creates doubt that he knew or should have known about these crimes as well. These allegations are dismissed.

9.2 Rapes of Witness ZBL

Introduction

1028. The Indictment alleges that, from 6 April to 17 July 1994, FAR, ESO, Ngoma Camp soldiers and others, acting on the orders or at the instigation of Nizeyimana raped Tutsi women at the Butare University Hospital and elsewhere. Specifically, towards the end of May, Witness ZBL was raped by two soldiers in a room in the hospital, where she was kept for three days, and subsequently raped behind it by Interahamwe. The Interahamwe did this in the presence of another woman, who was also raped and killed. Witness ZBL provided relevant evidence.²⁵²⁶ The Defence challenges the credibility of Witness ZBL, citing the possibility of collusion and prior inconsistent testimony before the Tribunal.²⁵²⁷

Prosecution Witness ZBL

1029. Witness ZBL, a Tutsi, lived in Huye commune, Butare prefecture in 1994.²⁵²⁸ She left her home and went to the Butare University Hospital on an unspecified date in April.²⁵²⁹ She remained there into July, when the Inkotanyi captured Butare, tending to her wounded daughter.²⁵³⁰

1030. One evening in May or June 1994, two ESO soldiers removed Witness ZBL from the surgical ward.²⁵³¹ One soldier referred to the other as “pilot”.²⁵³² The witness, clearly identifiable as a Tutsi, was taken to a structure used as a shelter for guards and a stable for livestock on the “lower side of the [hospital’s] clinic”.²⁵³³ Upon arrival, one soldier left while the other raped the witness.²⁵³⁴ She remained there through the night and the following day the other soldier returned and raped her that evening.²⁵³⁵ The next day, in a state of “hanging between death and life”, the soldiers told the witness that they knew where to find her and returned her to her daughter the surgical ward.²⁵³⁶

1031. The Prosecution relies on the testimony of Witness ZBL in support of Indictment paragraph 31(iv). The Defence raises several challenges to her evidence, which will be discussed in turn.

²⁵³⁵ Witness ZBL, T. 10 February 2011, pp. 42-43.

²⁵³⁶ Witness ZBL, T. 10 February 2011, p. 43.

1032. The Defence submits, without offering any evidence of witness coaching, that Witness ZBL, a former member of the ABASA, may have colluded with other Prosecution witnesses who were also members.²⁵³⁷ Witness ZBL was a member of ABASA but was subsequently expelled.²⁵³⁸ She testified that she knew Witness DCO had been a member, but was also expelled.²⁵³⁹ She also identified Witnesses ZW and FAX as members of the association.²⁵⁴⁰

1033. Evidence before the Chamber reflects that ABASA members share their experiences with each other, which was confirmed by Witness ZBL.²⁵⁴¹ The Chamber observes that Witness DCO, who also testified about rapes at the Butare University Hospital, was also a member.²⁵⁴² However, a review of their evidence does not reflect overlaps that reasonably indicate collusion between them or reflect fabrications in order to implicate Nizeyimana. Neither offered any specific evidence that directly (and, more importantly, on questionable grounds) supported the testimony of the other. Rather, their accounts of Tutsis being identified by soldiers and being raped finds broad circumstantial support from witnesses, including Witness MKA, who was not a member of ABASA.²⁵⁴³ The Chamber does not consider that Witness ZBL's prior membership in ABASA renders her evidence tainted or her accounts unreliable or partial.

1034. Indeed, the Chamber finds Witness ZBL's testimony of soldiers removing her and raping her in May or June 1994, compelling when viewed among other evidence of such conduct occurring at the Butare University Hospital at that time.²⁵⁴⁴ It has no doubt that soldiers selected the witness based on her Tutsi ethnicity and raped her over the course of two to three days. Witness ZBL's testimony demonstrates that she suffered severe mental and bodily harm as a result of these rapes. In this regard, the Chamber finds the witness's inability to recall the precise date does not raise concerns that soldiers raped her during the genocide.

1035. Turning to the identity of the assailants Witness ZBL identified her assailants as ESO soldiers and noted that one of the two was referred to as "Pilot".²⁵⁴⁵ She determined that they had come from the ESO solely because that camp was "not located far away from the hospital".²⁵⁴⁶ Notably, the Defence confronted the witness with the assertion that, while testifying in the Rwamakuba case before the Tribunal, she had stated that Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko would send Presidential Guards to remove patients from the hospital.²⁵⁴⁷ The witness conceded that she might have testified to that effect because in her assessment "all the soldiers came from the same camp” and that “Nyiramasuhuko and ESO soldiers were part of the same plan”.²⁵⁴⁸

1036. The Chamber has reservations about the witness’s identification of the assailants who raped her as ESO soldiers. Nothing in her testimony provides any distinctive characteristics that signify they came from the ESO and the alleged inconsistencies with her prior testimony in Rwamakuba also raise concerns.²⁵⁴⁹ Indeed, the Chamber observes that Witness ZBL was from Huye commune (rather than Butare town). The fact that she was not from the area, coupled with the absence of affirmative evidence explaining why she could distinguish ESO soldiers, on the one hand, from Presidential Guards, Ngoma Camp soldiers or even gendarmes, on the other, raises further questions about identification of the assailants.

1037. The Chamber has previously considered that evidence from ESO soldiers that their colleagues had committed rapes elsewhere in Butare town was insufficient to establish that soldiers who committed rapes at the Butare University Hospital were from the ESO.²⁵⁵⁰ While the first-hand evidence of rapes by soldiers at the Butare University Hospital and the second-hand evidence of ESO soldiers committing rapes generally in Butare town raises the reasonable possibility that ESO soldiers raped Tutsis at the Butare University Hospital, it is not the only reasonable conclusion. Indeed, there is reasonably reliable evidence that Presidential Guards played a similar role in violence directed towards Tutsis at the Butare University Hospital starting in April 1994.²⁵⁵¹ Under the circumstances, the record simply is not clear as to which soldiers raped Witness ZBL.

1038. Furthermore, while the witness’s inability to recall precisely when she was raped does not raise doubts that she was in fact raped, it creates further questions about Nizeyimana’s involvement. There is no direct evidence demonstrating that Nizeyimana ordered or instigated these rapes. Notably, he has presented alibi evidence that raises the reasonable possibility that he was reassigned to lead a military training camp at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture towards the end of April 1994.²⁵⁵² While the Chamber is not persuaded that this evidence creates the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana only returned to Butare town on one occasion after this date, there is no evidence that he significantly or substantially contributed to these crimes. Ambiguity as to the identity of the soldiers creates doubt as to whether Nizeyimana exercised effective control over them.²⁵⁵³ It creates doubt that he knew or should have known about these crimes as well. Based on the foregoing, Nizeyimana cannot be held liable for them.

²⁵⁴⁸ Witness ZBL, T. 10 February 2011, p. 52.

²⁵⁴⁹ The transcripts of Witness ZBL’s testimony from the Rwamakuba trial were not admitted, but the Prosecution raised no objection to the Defence’s characterisation of them.

9.3 Rapes of Witness DCO

Introduction

1039. The Indictment alleges that, between May and July 1994, soldiers from the FAR, ESO and Ngoma Camp, who were under the operational region, command and influence of Nizeyimana, raped Witness DCO and other Tutsi women at the Butare University Hospital. In particular, a soldier raped Witness DCO near the hospital close to a mass grave in May. She and three women were also raped by four soldiers behind the maternity unit in June. Finally, Witness DCO was raped by a FAR soldier in July. Witness DCO provided relevant evidence.²⁵⁵⁴

1040. The Defence challenges Witness DCO's credibility, pointing to internal inconsistencies and contradictions with other evidence. It further questions her ability to identify ESO soldiers and warns that she may have colluded with other Prosecution witnesses.²⁵⁵⁵

Prosecution Witness DCO

1041. Witness DCO, a Tutsi, stayed in the paediatric ward with her sick child at the Butare University Hospital from 29 February until some point in July 1994.²⁵⁵⁶ She testified that sometime in May, after many Tutsis had already been taken from the hospital, three soldiers came to the paediatric ward and ordered her to show her identity card.²⁵⁵⁷ The witness did not produce one and was removed by them.²⁵⁵⁸ Called an Inyenzi and struck with their rifle butts, the soldiers took Witness DCO behind the hospital to an area containing shrubs and bushes between the hospital's kitchen and the ESO.²⁵⁵⁹ She was raped there.²⁵⁶⁰

1042. Witness DCO was raped on a second occasion around 20 June 1994.²⁵⁶¹ Specifically, she went to a small house in a wooded area downhill from the maternity ward.²⁵⁶² There, she found a woman from Nyaruguru who had been stabbed.²⁵⁶³ While she was washing her clothes, soldiers arrived.²⁵⁶⁴ One soldier, carrying a rifle, "took" the witness, while the other woman was led to the ESO.²⁵⁶⁵ The witness has not seen the woman since.²⁵⁶⁶

²⁵⁶⁶ Witness DCO, T. 10 February 2011, p. 63.

1043. In July 1994, “after the country was taken by the Inkotanyi”, the witness and others fled the hospital.²⁵⁶⁷ However, Interahamwe, “obeying the orders” and acting “under the supervision” of soldiers, raped the witness and others.²⁵⁶⁸ The Interahamwe had been undergoing training from soldiers since May 1994 in a field downhill from the hospital’s kitchen.²⁵⁶⁹

Deliberations

1044. The Prosecution relies on the evidence of Witness DCO to support Indictment paragraphs 35, 35(ii), 35(iii) and 35(iv). The Defence challenges Witness DCO’s credibility based on her association with ABASA, a support group for surviving rape victims. It notes that other Prosecution witnesses belong to this organisation, raising concerns about evidence fabrication.²⁵⁷⁰

1045. Evidence before the Chamber reflects that ABASA members share their experiences with each other and counselling experts.²⁵⁷¹ Witness DCO also belonged to the group and identified Witnesses ZW, BUQ and FAX as members.²⁵⁷²

1046. However, nothing in Witness DCO’s evidence suggests that her testimony was fabricated or that she received any coaching from any ABASA member. There is no other evidence raising reasonable concern that Witness DCO engaged in this behaviour. Indeed, while Witness ZBL was also a member of ABASA, testified about rapes at the Butare University Hospital, and stated that she knew Witness DCO, there is nothing to indicate that they colluded or fabricated evidence. In the Chamber’s view, Witness DCO’s prior ABASA membership alone does not reasonably render her testimony unreliable or partial against the Accused.²⁵⁷³

1047. Turning to the merits of Witness DCO’s evidence, there is considerable circumstantial evidence supporting Witness DCO’s testimony that soldiers reviewed identity cards within the Butare University Hospital and that Tutsi women were removed from it and raped.²⁵⁷⁴ There is also evidence of certain ESO soldiers perpetrating violence against Tutsis at the Butare University Hospital.²⁵⁷⁵

1048. However, Witness DCO’s descriptions of the allegations pleaded in the Indictment are brief and relatively non-descript. Her evidence does not reflect Nizeyimana’s direct involvement in the attacks. Her description of soldiers having raped her fails to establish with the necessary certainty that the perpetrators were ESO soldiers, particularly in light of her own evidence regarding the presence of Ngoma Camp soldiers and Presidential Guards in

Butare.²⁵⁷⁶ Furthermore, Witness DCO testified that during the second occasion, when she and a woman were accosted downhill from the maternity ward, the other woman was taken to the ESO. However, contrary to her evidence, it is not clear that one could see the ESO Camp from this location.²⁵⁷⁷

1049. Furthermore, while she generally testified that Interahamwe who raped her were “obeying the orders” and acting “under the supervision” of soldiers, her evidence fails to demonstrate that she witnessed soldiers issue orders to rape her or that soldiers were necessarily present during the event.²⁵⁷⁸ She did not testify as to whether the soldiers were from the ESO, although this may be inferred based on her description that the training occurred next to the military school.

1050. The Chamber considers that the ambiguities in Witness DCO’s account do not necessarily reflect poorly on her credibility. These events were traumatic and happened many years in the past. Notwithstanding, her evidence fails to demonstrate beyond reasonable doubt that Nizeyimana was in any way involved in these crimes.

1051. As discussed above, Nizeyimana presented alibi evidence that raises the reasonable possibility that he was reassigned to lead a military training camp at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture towards the end of April 1994.²⁵⁷⁹ While the Chamber is not persuaded that this evidence creates the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana only returned to Butare town on one occasion, there has not been any testimony of his involvement in the acts detailed by Witness DCO. It raises doubts that he contributed substantially or significantly to these crimes. Ambiguity as to the identity of the soldiers (or militia) creates doubt as to whether Nizeyimana exercised effective control over them.²⁵⁸⁰ It creates doubt that or that he knew or should have known about these crimes as well. Based on the foregoing, Nizeyimana cannot be held liable for them.

²⁵⁷⁶ Witness DCO, T. 10 February 2011, p. 72. The Chamber observes that Witness DCO elsewhere described that the initial the perpetrators of killings were ESO soldiers. T. 10 February 2011, p. 59.

²⁵⁷⁷ Witnesses Basesayabo and Nsabimana testified that one could not see the ESO from the maternity ward or from the kitchen. See Witness Basesayabo, T. 9 May 2011, p. 17; Witness Nsabimana, T. 18 May 2011, pp. 69-70. See also Witness Hahirwa, T. 14 June 2011, pp. 12-15 and Exhibit D67A (Aerial Photograph of the Butare University Hospital). Witness Hahirwa authenticated a photograph taken by Canadian security forces, and through identifying the buildings in it, showed that the maternity ward and canteen area are in the opposite direction of the ESO, with a significant distance and buildings between the two). Given that the wooded area below the maternity ward is even further from the military camp, Witness DCO’s evidence that she could see the woman being taken to the ESO lacks reliability.

10. KILLINGS AT GROUPE SCOLAIRE, LATE APRIL 1994

Introduction

1052. The Indictment alleges that around 21 April 1994, Nizeyimana authorised, ordered or instigated soldiers from the FAR, ESO, Ngoma and the Butare Gendarmerie camps and Interahamwe, to identify and kill Tutsi civilians who sought refuge at the Groupe Scolaire. As a result, soldiers and Interahamwe forcibly removed approximately 14 civilians identified as Tutsi to kill them. However, after extorting money in exchange for the lives of the 14 victims, all were returned alive but one, a child known as Jean Luc. The Prosecution relies on Witnesses TQ, ZBH, AJP, BDE and BUR.²⁵⁸¹

1053. The Indictment further alleges that on or about 29 April 1994, Nizeyimana, authorised, ordered or instigated soldiers from the FAR, ESO, Ngoma and the Butare Gendarmerie camps, and Interahamwe to kill Tutsi civilians who had sought refuge at the Groupe Scolaire. As a result, soldiers, Interahamwe and armed civilians, forcibly extracted from the Groupe Scolaire premises approximately 100 or more civilians identified as Tutsi and killed them at the nearby Rwasave valley. The Prosecution relies on Witnesses TQ, ZBH, BUR and AJP.²⁵⁸²

1054. The Defence submits that the Prosecution did not provide any evidence that links Nizeyimana to the first attack that took place on 21 April 1994 and that Nizeyimana had already been transferred to Mata during the second attack, which took place on 29 April. The Defence relies on the evidence of Witnesses BNN07 and OUV03.²⁵⁸³

Prosecution Witness TQ

1055. Witness TQ, a Hutu, was a Red Cross volunteer at the Kacyiru orphanage in April 1994.²⁵⁸⁴ He fled Kigali and sought refuge at the Groupe Scolaire on 12 April together with a group of about 400 to 300 people, including 25 orphans and staff members of the Red Cross.²⁵⁸⁵ He remained at the Groupe Scolaire from 12 April until 5 or 6 June when the Red Cross evacuated the last remaining refugees at the Groupe Scolaire to Burundi.²⁵⁸⁶ On his arrival at the Groupe Scolaire, the witness found about 1500 people who had also sought refuge there.²⁵⁸⁷

1056. In addition to the refugees, there were also wounded soldiers staying at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁵⁸⁸ They started arriving shortly before President Sindikubwabo's speech and stayed in a building that was separate from the one which was attacked.²⁵⁸⁹ The first convoy of seriously injured soldiers arrived on 16 April 1994, accompanied by a team of healthcare workers who were living with them.²⁵⁹⁰ They were accommodated with the refugees, forcing the refugees to move to another building.²⁵⁹¹ After May, another group of wounded soldiers, who were in somewhat better condition, arrived at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁵⁹²

1057. There were two attacks on the Groupe Scolaire, one on 21 April and one on 29 April 1994.²⁵⁹³ On 21 April, around 8.00 a.m., about six armed soldiers in uniform, including Lieutenant Mazimpaka, in collaboration with armed civilians or militias arrived at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁵⁹⁴ Following their arrival, the soldiers and armed civilians assembled all the refugees and tried to separate out the Tutsis based on their physical appearance and people who denounced them.²⁵⁹⁵ Indeed, the people who were targeted that morning were Tutsis.²⁵⁹⁶

1058. The soldiers then asked those identified as Tutsi to give them money in exchange for their lives, which some refugees complied with if they had the money.²⁵⁹⁷ There was an intermediary with the soldiers and the militia, who was called Jean Marie Vianney Ngabonziza.²⁵⁹⁸ Despite receiving money, the soldiers attempted to leave the Groupe Scolaire with approximately 13 or 14 orphans who were in the care of the Red Cross in addition to another 50 refugees.²⁵⁹⁹ Witness TQ followed the soldiers and tried to negotiate and plead with them not to kill the orphans.²⁶⁰⁰ He gave them some of the money that he had received from Reverend Brother Célestin Ngendahimana, after which the soldiers released all the Red Cross children to him.²⁶⁰¹ When he returned in the evening, the children told Witness TQ that one of the orphans named Jean Luc was missing.²⁶⁰² He later heard that Jean Luc was killed by soldiers in a forest near the university along with other abducted persons on 21 April 1994.²⁶⁰³ Jean-Luc's body was never recovered.²⁶⁰⁴

1059. The second attack on the Groupe Scolaire, which occurred on 29 April 1994 and started around 6.30 a.m., was the most significant due to the means, organisation, and the extensive period of the attack.²⁶⁰⁵ A group of over 50 soldiers led by military officers in collaboration with a number of militiamen as well as some members of the Red Cross who had been sensitised to join in the killings, participated in the attack.²⁶⁰⁶ Witness TQ identified some of the militiamen, including Twagirayezu, Faustin Nonzima, a certain Innocent and André Bandura.²⁶⁰⁷ Members of the Red Cross who took part in this attack were Kanyarukiga and Kanyamafente.²⁶⁰⁸

1060. Witness TQ was having breakfast, when a child called out and said that a large number of soldiers had entered their house.²⁶⁰⁹ Witness TQ exited the dormitory and saw a significant number of soldiers and heard gunfire.²⁶¹⁰ The soldiers had already begun to assemble the people on the playground, which was large.²⁶¹¹

1061. Witness TQ saw a number of soldiers gathered around Captain Nizeyimana and Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi at an elevated area near a container opposite the office of Brother Bernard, the director.²⁶¹² Nizeyimana was about 20 to 30 metres from Witness TQ.²⁶¹³ Nizeyimana made a gesture to the soldiers, which the witness construed to be a signal for the soldiers to start attacking and killing the Tutsi civilians at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶¹⁴ Following Nizeyimana's gesture, Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi and other soldiers began to actively assemble the refugees on the playground.²⁶¹⁵ Nizeyimana remained at the same position where he earlier held the "mini-meeting" with two or three other soldiers.²⁶¹⁶

1063. The selected Tutsi refugees were taken by soldiers to the veranda in front of a classroom, located near the entrance of the Groupe Scolaire and forced them to lie on their faces before being beaten to death.²⁶²² The first lorry then carried Tutsi individuals to Rwasave where they were killed.²⁶²³ A large number of people were killed on that day.²⁶²⁴ He estimated that about 140 people, including 20 children who were in the care of the Red Cross as well as 10 teachers, went missing after the attack by the soldiers.²⁶²⁵

1064. They later searched for the bodies of the refugees but could not locate them.²⁶²⁶ They only found a boy who hailed from Bychungu and was still alive when they found him, but was severely injured.²⁶²⁷ They took him to the hospital, but he later died.²⁶²⁸

1065. In April 1994, Witness ZBH, a Hutu, was a civilian who had previously worked as a “helper” at the ESO in 1991, who, among other things, washed clothing and polished shoes.²⁶²⁹ Around 29 April, in the evening, Witness ZBH, some soldiers, and a group of inhabitants of the Kabutare and Save areas, surrounded the location and spent the night.²⁶³⁰ The next day, around 6.00 a.m., Nizeyimana arrived at the Groupe Scolaire in the company of the commander of Ngoma Camp, Lieutenant Ildéphonse Hategekimana, and other soldiers.²⁶³¹

1066. The group who had spent the night went to the Groupe Scolaire, where there were some 18 orphans and Red Cross staff.²⁶³² Modeste Gatsinzi “obviously” had a search warrant, which allowed him to search the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶³³ Father Célestin was in charge of the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶³⁴ Other brothers there included Nsabimana, Théogène, Twagirayezu, Faustin Niyonzima and Sylver Bariyanga.²⁶³⁵ Despite being in the presence of Nizeyimana and Lieutenant Hategekimana, the clergy at the Groupe Scolaire, did not allow them to conduct a search.²⁶³⁶ It required the arrival of Colonel Muvunyi, after which Father Célestin was forced to open all the doors.²⁶³⁷ Nizeyimana and Hategekimana were present and leading Witness ZBH and his group during the search.²⁶³⁸

1067. Witness ZBH and his group brought out all the refugees, including adults and orphans from Kigali, and killed them inside the compound of the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶³⁹ Those who were not killed on the spot were transported to Rwasave and killed there.²⁶⁴⁰

Prosecution Witness AJP

1068. Witness AJP, a Hutu, lived in Butare town in 1994.²⁶⁴¹ He was a former ESO cadet with close ties to Nizeyimana.²⁶⁴² On an unspecified date, Nizeyimana informed him that he had sent Second Lieutenants Bizimana, Gatsinzi and Ndayambaje to kill civilians at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁴³

Prosecution Witness BDE

1069. Witness BDE, a Hutu, was a nouvelle formule cadet at the ESO in April 1994.²⁶⁴⁴ On an unspecified date, Witness BDE heard from two cadets, Kamujigi and Jérôme, that soldiers based at the ESO had carried out a search at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁴⁵ Jérôme told her that the soldiers had found Inyenzis and secret documents at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁴⁶ The “people” who had carried out the search had killed the Inyenzis.²⁶⁴⁷ He had a dictionary and mathematics book, which he got when he went to the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁴⁸

Prosecution Witness BUR

1070. In April 1994, Witness BUR, a Hutu, testified that he was a sergeant at the ESO in Butare.²⁶⁴⁹ Sometime around 25 or 26 April, while in the Taba area on patrol, Witness BUR heard sustained gunfire coming from the direction of the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁵⁰ He entered the premises of the Groupe Scolaire “out of curiosity” and saw corpses next to “the classes” and others on the playground of the school.²⁶⁵¹ He saw Nizeyimana there, who was acting as the operations commander of the approximately 30 soldiers present, and Hategekimana.²⁶⁵² There were soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma camps, as well as a number of Interahamwe.²⁶⁵³ Also present were Sergeant Major Iyamuremye, Chief Warrant Officers Kayinamura and Ntamuhanga, Hategekimana’s bodyguard, Kazungu, and many other soldiers whose names he could not recall.²⁶⁵⁴

Defence Witness BNN07

1071. Witness BNN07, a Hutu, was a military student at the university in April 1994.²⁶⁵⁵ Witness BNN07 went to the ESO on the evening of 28 April to see if Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi could assist him to get a vehicle to transport his fiancée and her two close acquaintances, who were at the University of Butare, to a safer place.²⁶⁵⁶ They agreed to meet the following day.²⁶⁵⁷

1072. On 29 April 1994 in the morning, the witness returned to the ESO to follow up on Gatsinzi's promise to find him a vehicle.²⁶⁵⁸ He met with Gatsinzi, who informed him that he had been instructed by Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi to go to the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁵⁹ Witness BNN07 saw Gatsinzi holding a search warrant, issued by Muvunyi, authorizing him to carry out a search operation at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁶⁰ Neither Nizeyimana nor Hategekimana took part in the events at the Groupe Scolaire on 29 April.²⁶⁶¹

1073. Gatsinzi was instructed to go to the Groupe Scolaire to assess whether there were enemies who had infiltrated the city and get a sense of the prevailing situation there.²⁶⁶² The witness accompanied Gatsinzi and his platoon of about 30 armed soldiers to the Groupe Scolaire, where they arrived between 9.00 and 9.30 a.m.²⁶⁶³ Once there, they found a large number of Interahamwe, peasants and other persons in military uniforms screaming that there were Inkotanyi and Tutsis in their midst.²⁶⁶⁴ They were screaming that they should help them get rid of those Inyenzi.²⁶⁶⁵ Gatsinzi cautioned those people not to scream and went to the Bursar to tell him what the purpose of his mission was.²⁶⁶⁶

1074. After having spoken to the Bursar, Gatsinzi went to the classrooms to see who had taken refuge there and ordered them out so he could identify them.²⁶⁶⁷ Witness BNN07 estimated there to have been close to a thousand "or even more" people who had to be identified.²⁶⁶⁸ Gatsinzi called on his soldiers to line the people up in the yard and asked them to produce their identity cards.²⁶⁶⁹ Anyone who did not have an identity card had to go to "a certain place" and were kept on the verandas of the classrooms.²⁶⁷⁰ Those who had an identity card, whether they were Hutu or Tutsi, went back to the place where they had come from.²⁶⁷¹

While the soldiers did not prevent people from leaving the Groupe Scolaire premises, no one dared to leave.²⁶⁷²

1075. The soldiers asked the refugees questions about where they hailed from and tested their knowledge of Rwanda, since it was believed that some of the people at the Groupe Scolaire were Inkotanyi.²⁶⁷³ The responses to these questions would determine whether one was an Inkotanyi or not.²⁶⁷⁴ Witness BNN07 did not think that the soldiers posed these questions to ascertain their ethnicity.²⁶⁷⁵ He did not see the soldiers beat or assaulting the civilians.²⁶⁷⁶ He did not participate in the identification process, but was an “ordinary observer” waiting for his problem to be resolved and to get the vehicle Gatsinzi had promised him.²⁶⁷⁷

1076. Members of the Interahamwe, who were present at the Groupe Scolaire, wanted to get involved in the identification process, threatened some of the soldiers and accused them of being accomplices.²⁶⁷⁸ At the suggestion of Gatsinzi, some of the people who were at the scene gave the militia money in order to calm them down.²⁶⁷⁹ Gatsinzi’s purpose was to “save those people”.²⁶⁸⁰

1077. The identification process lasted from the morning until about 5.00 p.m.²⁶⁸¹ A large number of people were sent back to where they had been before at the school, but approximately 40 to 50 people, who did not have identification cards, remained behind.²⁶⁸² They included unarmed men and women, but no children.²⁶⁸³ They were asked to wait on the verandas of the classroom.²⁶⁸⁴ The majority of these refugees were Tutsi, but a few of them were Hutu.²⁶⁸⁵ These refugees were not separated from other refugees based on suspicions that they were Inkotanyi.²⁶⁸⁶

1078. After the “noise died down”, Gatsinzi approached the clergy to tell them that they had to do something about the people who had remained outside, because the Interahamwe “were fully aware that those people were still at the Groupe Scolaire”.²⁶⁸⁷ He spoke to the clergy, because he could not ensure the safety of these people.²⁶⁸⁸ Gatsinzi asked the 40 to 50 people without an identity card what he could do for them, to which they responded that they wanted to be taken to a place where they would be safe.²⁶⁸⁹

1079. Thereafter, Gatsinzi and members of the clergy decided to transport those refugees to Butare where they were locked in the rooms of the members of the clergy.²⁶⁹⁰ They were transported by civilian drivers using two pickup trucks that belonged to the Belgian Red Cross, which had earlier been used to transport orphans from an orphanage in Kacyiru to the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁹¹ Witness BNN07 did not know whether the soldiers accompanied those refugees when they were transported out of the Groupe Scolaire.²⁶⁹² The pickup trucks left after Witness BNN07 had left.²⁶⁹³ None of the civilians were either killed or assaulted by the soldiers at the Groupe Scolaire on 29 April 1994.²⁶⁹⁴

1080. That evening, Witness BNN07 went to the officers' mess at the ESO for a drink.²⁶⁹⁵ While there, he heard people say that the 40 or 50 people who had been taken from the Groupe Scolaire were intercepted by members of the Interahamwe and were taken to a valley in Rwasave where they were killed.²⁶⁹⁶

1082. As a preliminary matter, the Chamber notes that apart from mere reference to the evidence of Prosecution Witness BDE and Defence Witness OUV03 in its closing brief, the Prosecution did not explain whether it relies on their evidence in relation to one or both of the attacks at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁷⁰⁰ Nevertheless, the Chamber has considered their evidence and finds that there is very little in their testimonies that lend support to the allegation that Nizeyimana ordered, authorised or instigated his subordinates to kill Tutsi civilians at the Groupe Scolaire on either 21 or 29 of April 1994.

1083. Specifically, Prosecution Witness BDE heard from students in her class, Kamugi and Jérôme, that ESO soldiers had carried out a search at the Groupe Scolaire and killed Inyenzi there.²⁷⁰¹ However, the witness did not specify the date upon which this incident occurred, who specifically was involved or how many people were killed.²⁷⁰² Moreover, it is not apparent from her evidence that her sources, Kamugi and Jérôme, were present during the search or what the basis for their knowledge was. Given the vague and general nature of her hearsay evidence, the Chamber finds her testimony of limited probative value in this regard.

1084. Similarly, Defence Witness OUV03 testified that Nizeyimana would notify him when he left the ESO, including to the Groupe Scolaire.²⁷⁰³ However, the witness did not know when Nizeyimana went there and specified that he had only used this as an example to demonstrate that Nizeyimana would keep him abreast of his whereabouts during the day.²⁷⁰⁴ It is not apparent from his testimony what the purpose of Nizeyimana's visit was, when he went there or if it in any way related to the attacks on the school on 21 and 29 April 1994. Accordingly, the Chamber does not find his evidence dispositive.

(i) 21 April 1994 Attack

1085. At the outset, the Chamber notes that the only criminal allegation contained within paragraph 16 of the Indictment involves the killing of a Red Cross orphan by the name of Jean Luc. Prosecution Witness TQ is the sole witness who provided testimony in regards to his murder. Specifically, Witness TQ noted that a group of six armed soldiers, including Lieutenant Mazimpaka, attacked the Groupe Scolaire on 21 April 1994 and tried to abduct 13 or 14 Red Cross orphans. The witness was able to secure the release of the children after having paid the soldiers money in exchange for their lives. It was not until later that evening that he was informed that one orphan, Jean Luc, had in fact been killed by the soldiers in a forest along with other refugees.²⁷⁰⁵ Jean Luc's body was never recovered.²⁷⁰⁶

1086. Notably, the witness testified that the 13 to 14 orphaned children had been returned to him that day, but he did not notice Jean Luc missing. It was only later in the evening that "the children" informed him of the absence of the child. Witness TQ did not provide any information on the efforts, if at all, to find the missing boy. Similarly, it is not clear from his evidence who later told him that Jean Luc had been murdered and what that person's source of information was. Indeed, Jean Luc's body was never recovered, and it is therefore uncertain whether he was even killed, and if so, by whom and where. Given the general and ambiguous nature of Witness TQ's uncorroborated hearsay evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from the circumstances is that Jean Luc was abducted from the Groupe Scolaire and killed by ESO soldiers in a forest on 21 April 1994. Accordingly, this allegation is dismissed.

(ii) 29 April 1994 Attack

1087. The Prosecution relies on Witnesses TQ, ZBH, AJP and BUR to establish that ESO soldiers, including Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi, and Interahamwe, led by Nizeyimana and Lieutenant Hategekimana, separated, abducted approximately 100 Tutsis at the Groupe Scolaire on 29 April 1994 and killed them in the Rwasave valley.²⁷⁰⁷

²⁷⁰⁵ Witness TQ, T. 27 January 2011, pp. 29-31.

²⁷⁰⁶ Witness TQ, T. 27 January 2011, p. 47.

²⁷⁰⁷ The Chamber has elsewhere considered in detail the general context in which Witness BUR testified and determined that his evidence lacks basic credibility. Specifically, Rwandan Gacaca documents raise doubt that

1088. At the outset, Prosecution Witnesses TQ and ZBH and Defence Witness BNN07 all provided first-hand evidence of soldiers and Interahamwe entering the Groupe Scolaire premises in the morning of 29 April 1994.²⁷⁰⁸ Moreover, Prosecution Witnesses TQ and ZBH, as well as Defence Witness BNN07 identified Second Lieutenant Modest Gatsinzi from the ESO, accompanied by other armed soldiers, at the premises.²⁷⁰⁹

1089. Specifically, Witness TQ saw Gatsinzi assemble refugees at the Groupe Scolaire together with “other soldiers”. The Chamber observes that Witness TQ admitted that he had never seen Gatsinzi before the incident at the Groupe Scolaire. It was not until they met at a “grouped trial” in 2000-2003 that the witness recognised him and realised Gatsinzi had been at the Groupe Scolaire during the attack.²⁷¹⁰ Moreover, the Defence confronted the witness with excerpts of his testimony during the Muvunyi trial, during which he testified that he did not know the identity of the soldiers who participated in that attack against Tutsi civilians at the Groupe Scolaire on 29 April 1994.²⁷¹¹ The Chamber has serious concerns about the quality of his identification.

1090. Notwithstanding, his evidence is corroborated by Witness ZBH, who admitted to, and was convicted for, his participation in the attack on the Groupe Scolaire that day.²⁷¹² The Chamber has elsewhere determined that Witness ZBH, given his frequent collaboration with soldiers during the genocide, would have been able to identify ESO soldiers, particularly higher ranking soldiers.²⁷¹³ Similarly, Defence Witness BNN07 admitted to having joined Gatsinzi “and his platoon of about 30 armed soldiers” on a mission Gatsinzi was to undertake at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁷¹⁴ The Chamber further observes that there is evidence in the record that Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi was convicted for his involvement in the attack against the refugees at the Groupe Scolaire on 29 April 1994.²⁷¹⁵

1091. The evidence diverges on the purpose for which the soldiers were present at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁷¹⁶ Prosecution Witnesses TQ and ZBH both provided evidence about soldiers and Interahamwe separating and abducting refugees, after which a number of them were killed in Rwasave. Witness TQ provided detailed evidence about the process followed by the soldiers once they had assembled the refugees on the playground of the school.

the witness was in Butare during April 1994. See II.2. Consequently, the Chamber has the same concerns about his evidence as it relates to this allegation, and disregards his testimony.

Specifically, the soldiers identified and separated Tutsi civilians based on “their particulars [and] their physical looks”.²⁷¹⁷ The Tutsi refugees were made to lie face down in front of the veranda, before being beaten to death.

1092. Witness TQ then described how the remaining victims were taken by lorry to the Rwasave valley and killed. Witness TQ did not specify his basis for knowledge of the killings in Rwasave. He estimated that a large number of people went “missing” that day, namely about 140 people in total.²⁷¹⁸ It is not apparent from his evidence how he arrived at this number of missing people.

1093. Notably, Witness ZBH was not posed any questions in regards to the manner in which the refugees were identified, whether they were selected on the basis of their ethnicity and how many people were in fact killed.²⁷¹⁹ Indeed, Witness ZBH simply stated that they took the orphans and adults out of the school and killed them at Rwasave.²⁷²⁰ Nevertheless, his evidence broadly corroborates Witness TQ’s account of soldiers and Interahamwe entering the school’s premises in the morning and abducting refugees from the compound, after which they were killed at Rwasave. Moreover, Witness ZBH noted the presence of people who had sought refuge, “including people who had come from Kigali”, offering further corroboration for the presence of Witness TQ and the Red Cross orphans.²⁷²¹

1094. The Defence submits that Witnesses TQ and ZBH’s accounts are fundamentally different.²⁷²² Specifically, Witness ZBH testified that he and other civilians from the Kabutare and Save areas, together with some soldiers, surrounded the Groupe Scolaire the night before the attack.²⁷²³ Moreover, he testified that Colonel Muvunyi had to come to the premises on the morning of the attack, because the clergy refused to let them enter the Groupe Scolaire.²⁷²⁴ The Chamber considers it reasonable that Witness TQ would not have known what transpired outside the premises of the Groupe Scolaire. Indeed, it is apparent from his evidence that he was only alerted to the presence of soldiers and Interahamwe on the morning of the attack, when a child let him know.²⁷²⁵ The Chamber does not consider the different narratives contradictory.

1095. Contrary to Prosecution Witnesses TQ and ZBH, Defence Witness BNN07, stated that Gatsinzi had been sent to the Groupe Scolaire to ascertain whether “the enemy” had infiltrated the school and to get a sense of the prevailing situation.²⁷²⁶ Witness BNN07 stated that the refugees present were checked for identification, but that this was done on the basis of identification cards only, rather than ethnicity.²⁷²⁷ Indeed, those who had an identity card, whether Hutu or Tutsi, were allowed to go back to where they had been before. The witness stated that Gatsinzi in fact tried to save the remaining 40 or 50 people by transporting them to the premises of the clergy. He later heard that Interahamwe had intercepted the vehicles and killed the refugees at a valley in Rwasave.²⁷²⁸

Witness ZBH’s testimony is generally consistent with his prior statement, in which he details his involvement in the Groupe Scolaire attack on 29 April 1994. Exhibit D15B (Translation of Witness ZBH’s Confession), pp. 23-24, 33-34. Witness ZBH’s prior statement states that they searched for Inyenzi during an operation which lasted six hours and assembled them on the playground. Exhibit D15B, p. 34.

1096. Witness BNN07 joined Gatsinzi on his mission to the Groupe Scolaire, because he wanted to lend a vehicle from Gatsinzi to transport his fiancée from the university to safety. Once at the Groupe Scolaire, Witness BNN07 simply stayed there as an observer, waiting for Gatsinzi to assist him in obtaining a car.²⁷²⁹ The Chamber finds the explanation for Witness BNN07's presence incredulous. Indeed, the Chamber does not accept that Witness BNN07 sat around the Groupe Scolaire for over six hours, waiting to get a car to drive to the university. This raises serious questions about the reliability of his evidence.

1097. Moreover, the Chamber does not accept Witness BNN07's testimony that Gatsinzi simply came to identify people and subsequently tried to save those who did not carry their identity card, contrary to the prevailing situation at the time and the practice of soldiers and militia throughout Butare. Indeed, the violence in Butare had already been underway for at least a week by that time, during which Tutsis were systematically identified, separated and killed. Witness BNN07's evidence that the soldiers were not specifically targeting Tutsis and that he did not witness anyone being beaten or killed does not ring true.²⁷³⁰ The Chamber therefore considers his evidence to lack credibility in this regard.

1098. Prosecution and Defence evidence reflects that the refugees abducted from the Groupe Scolaire were killed at the Rwasave valley on 29 April 1994.²⁷³¹ Specifically, Witness TQ estimated there to have been 140 people missing from the Groupe Scolaire following the attack, whereas Witness BNN07 estimated that between 40 and 50 people were driven away from the school. Witness TQ spoke of a lorry, which came to pick the selected people up from the Groupe Scolaire to kill them in Rwasave and noted that they never found the bodies of these refugees.²⁷³² Witness BNN07 corroborates this account, noting that two pickup trucks transported 40 to 50 people away from the school. He later heard that the vehicle was intercepted and the persons were killed by Interahamwe in the Rwasave valley.²⁷³³ Based on Witnesses TQ and BNN07's evidence, the Chamber finds that between 50 and 140 Tutsi civilians were transported away from the Groupe Scolaire on 29 April.

1099. Witnesses TQ and BNN07 were not present when the refugees were killed in Rwasave valley. Notwithstanding, Witness ZBH corroborated their accounts, testifying that the victims who were not killed on the spot were taken in vehicles to Rwasave and killed there.²⁷³⁴ It is not clear if he was present when the refugees were killed at Rwasave and he did not testify to the number of persons murdered there.

²⁷³² Witness TQ, T. 27 January 2011, pp. 32, 35, 53.

1100. The Chamber notes that the record reflects that a large number of Tutsi refugees were housed at the Groupe Scolaire at the time of the attack.²⁷³⁵ Moreover, the size and complexity of the operation, which took six hours to complete, further suggests that numerous persons were at the school and being separated on the basis of their ethnicity.²⁷³⁶ Additionally, Witness TQ recounted how Tutsi refugees were asked to lie face-down after having been identified and separated, and Witnesses TQ and ZBH testified that the victims were subsequently killed at the school.²⁷³⁷ The Chamber considers that the murder of the refugees at the Groupe Scolaire offers strong circumstantial support for the inference that the Tutsi civilians who were abducted from the premises were subsequently killed at the Rwasave valley.

1101. The Chamber notes the general context in which Tutsis were systematically targeted and killed throughout Butare by the time of the attack at the Groupe Scolaire and accepts the evidence that Tutsi refugees were being killed on the school's grounds. Furthermore, in light of the testimonies of Prosecution Witnesses TQ and ZBH and Defence Witness BNN07 that the remaining refugees transported away from the school were subsequently murdered, the only reasonable conclusion, contrary to Witness BNN07's evidence, is that Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi and his platoon, consisting of 30 ESO soldiers, abducted 50 to 140 refugees and subsequently killed them together with Interahamwe at the Rwasave valley on 29 April 1994.²⁷³⁸

1102. The crucial question for the Chamber to determine is the role that Nizeyimana played, if any, in the killing of the Groupe Scolaire refugees. Prosecution Witnesses TQ, ZBH and AJP provided evidence in regards to Nizeyimana's presence and involvement in the attack on the Groupe Scolaire. Specifically, Witness TQ identified Nizeyimana as having been present at the Groupe Scolaire during the attack, directing other soldiers, including Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi.²⁷³⁹ Similarly, Witness ZBH noted that Nizeyimana arrived in the morning and led the attack against the school, together with Lieutenant Hategekimana.²⁷⁴⁰ Witness AJP testified that Nizeyimana told him that he had sent Second Lieutenants Bizimana and Gatsinzi and Ndayambaje to kill people at the Groupe Scolaire.²⁷⁴¹ Before turning to the merits of their evidence, the Chamber shall first conduct an analysis of their credibility as it relates to this allegation.

1103. The Defence submits that Witness TQ's testimony that he saw Nizeyimana at the Groupe Scolaire during the attack is contradicted by the evidence he provided during the Muvunyi trial. Specifically, during the Muvunyi trial, Witness TQ testified that he did not know the identity of the soldiers at the school and only learned of it when he stood trial for the Groupe Scolaire attack together with Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi.²⁷⁴²

1104. Witness TQ suggested that he was testifying during the trial against Gatsinzi and that he “avoided” telling the Rwandan court about Nizeyimana, because that would have caused him problems “given [his] situation at that time in Rwanda”.²⁷⁴³ Specifically, after his testimony in 2005, he found out while he was living in Uganda that people knew that he had testified against military figures at the Tribunal.²⁷⁴⁴ He knew that Nizeyimana was alive and that he was in the region “moving about”, and that some witnesses had received threats following their testimonies.²⁷⁴⁵ Witness TQ had in fact received a phone call from someone “talking about the Muvunyi trial”.²⁷⁴⁶ His concerns were therefore related to his safety.²⁷⁴⁷

1105. The Chamber observes, and Witness TQ concedes, that the threats described by the witness only commenced after his testimony in the Muvunyi trial.²⁷⁴⁸ Moreover, the witness did not provide any details in regards to the type of threats he received, other than being aware that the families of accused persons knew about his testimony before this Tribunal. The Chamber is far from persuaded by Witness TQ’s explanation in regards to his failure to have mentioned that Nizeyimana was present at the Groupe Scolaire on 29 April 1994. Indeed, his evidence during the Muvunyi trial in 2005 that he did not know the soldiers present at the school is materially inconsistent with his testimony before this Chamber, ascribing a crucial role to Nizeyimana during the Groupe Scolaire attack. This raises serious questions about the quality of his evidence and his ability to identify Nizeyimana.

1106. While Witness TQ lived in Butare at the time, he admitted that he only first saw Nizeyimana “face-to-face” during an encounter at the Chez Bihira roadblock around 20 April 1994.²⁷⁴⁹ Moreover, he admitted that he had never spoken to Nizeyimana before that time and therefore only knew him by virtue of having seen him “moving around in town”.²⁷⁵⁰ In light of his lack of detail in describing his basis for identifying Nizeyimana, combined with the contradictory nature of his evidence before this Chamber and during the Muvunyi trial, the Chamber considers his evidence of limited probative value in this regard.

1107. Turning to Witness ZBH, the Chamber has elsewhere considered in detail the context in which he testified and determined that it would approach his evidence with caution.²⁷⁵¹ The same analysis applies here. The Chamber observes that Witness ZBH’s testimony is largely consistent with his 2003 confession to the extent that he provides evidence on the involvement of Nizeyimana and Lieutenant Hategekimana during the 29 April 1994 attack at Groupe Scolaire.²⁷⁵² Witness ZBH's confession before the Gacaca court about Nizeyimana and Lieutenant Hategekimana's involvement in the crime was made in 2003, while the witness was incarcerated.²⁷⁵³

1108. The Chamber observes that prior consistent statements do not bolster a witness's credibility.²⁷⁵⁴ However, these circumstances reflect that the witness has maintained Nizeyimana's involvement in the crime for a long period. Whatever ulterior motives Witness ZBH has to provide testimony inculcating Nizeyimana, the Chamber has no reasonable concerns that it has been tainted by his incarceration. Moreover, the Chamber has elsewhere determined that Witness ZBH, given his frequent former position within the ESO as well as his collaboration with soldiers at the time, would have been able to identify Nizeyimana.²⁷⁵⁵

1109. Nevertheless, his evidence in regards to Nizeyimana and his involvement is very brief and general in nature. Indeed, Witness ZBH only noted that Nizeyimana and Lieutenant Hategekimana arrived at the Groupe Scolaire during the morning of the attack.²⁷⁵⁶ He did not provide any testimony in regards to Nizeyimana's precise involvement or other details regarding the attack. Notably, Witness ZBH stated that they were not able to enter the Groupe Scolaire premises, despite being in the company of Nizeyimana and Lieutenant Hategekimana. It took the arrival of Colonel Muvunyi to be allowed onto the premises.²⁷⁵⁷ Nizeyimana's inability to get them into the school contradicts the seminal role he was supposed to have in this operation. In light of the Chamber's fundamental reservations regarding Witness TQ's identification of Nizeyimana, as well as the Chamber's need to approach Witness ZBH's evidence with caution, it is not satisfied that their evidence establishes Nizeyimana's direct involvement beyond reasonable doubt.

1110. Turning to Witness AJP, the Chamber has elsewhere discussed in detail the context in which the witness testified and determined that it would view his evidence with the appropriate caution.²⁷⁵⁸ The same concerns apply in this here. Witness AJP's prior conviction as an accomplice in the genocide warrants caution and his apparent status as a fugitive raises further concerns. Specifically, the Chamber considers that his testimony before the Tribunal may be motivated by a desire to positively impact his ongoing criminal proceedings and ²⁷⁵² See Exhibit D15B (Translation of Witness ZBH's Confession), pp. 33-34. Witness ZBH describes how he and a group of youths were led by Commander Hategekimana, Lieutenants Gatsinzi and Gakwerere, Nizeyimana and Diogène Dusabimana, in an attack on the Groupe Scolaire on 29 April 1994. In so finding, the Chamber has considered Defence arguments that Witness ZBH, who kept a copy of his confession, had modified the one that he gave to the Prosecution in 2010, adding Nizeyimana's name in several places after the fact. Defence Closing Brief, paras. 170-179. However, the Defence does not make these submissions with respect to this particular aspect of Witness ZBH's confession. A review of the original confession reveals that the circumstances which, in the Defence's view, show ex post facto alterations, are not present. Namely, the reference to Nizeyimana's involvement appears squarely within the original narrative rather than having been added in areas outside the narration section or added into open spaces among the original text. See Exhibit D15A(K) (Original Copy of Witness ZBH's Prior Confession), p. 10 and Exhibit D15B (Translation of Witness ZBH's Confession), pp. 33-34. The Chamber does not consider that other incidents of purported modifications reasonably undermines Witness ZBH's credibility so that none of his evidence can be relied upon.

increase his ability to reintegrate into Rwanda. Finally, the deterioration of his relationship with Nizeyimana while the two were in exile further suggests that his evidence implicating the Accused should be treated with caution.²⁷⁵⁹

1111. Witness AJP testified that Nizeyimana told him that he had sent Second Lieutenants Bizimana, Gatsinzi and Ndayambaje to kill civilians at the Groupe Scolaire. While the Chamber has elsewhere determined that Witness AJP could identify Nizeyimana, his evidence is remarkably devoid of details.²⁷⁶⁰ Moreover, the witness did not provide a date upon which this conversation took place, nor when Nizeyimana purportedly issued this order. Given the very general and vague nature of his evidence, as well as the absence of sufficiently credible evidence directly implicating Nizeyimana in this attack, the Chamber finds his testimony of limited probative value.²⁷⁶¹

1112. Notably, the Defence has presented alibi evidence that raises the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana was reassigned to lead a military training camp at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture towards the end of April 1994.²⁷⁶² While the Chamber is not persuaded that this evidence creates the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana only returned to Butare town at one time after that date, it does raise doubts about his direct participation in this attack. Moreover, questions persist as to whether he significantly or substantially contributed to this attack.²⁷⁶³

1113. Based on the totality of the evidence before it, the Chamber finds that ESO soldiers, led by Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi, and Interahamwe, entered the Groupe Scolaire premises on the morning of 29 April 1994. During the course of the day, they separated, abducted and subsequently killed between 50 to 140 Tutsis refugees in the Rwasave valley. Notwithstanding the size of this attack, the evidence in this particular instance fails to demonstrate that Nizeyimana knew or had reason to know about this particular crime.

²⁷⁶⁰ See II.6.1.

²⁷⁶¹ The Defence objected to Witness AJP's testimony on the basis of lack of notice insofar as it relates to Nizeyimana having ordered Second Lieutenants Bizimana, Gatsinzi and Ndayambaje to kill civilians at the Groupe Scolaire. Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 76-77. Given its findings in regards to Witness AJP's evidence, the Chamber need not consider whether sufficient notice was provided in this context.

²⁷⁶² See II.13.3.

²⁷⁶³ Indeed, the record reflects that a large number of Rwandan recruits arrived in Mata on or around 30 April 1994, in addition to a large contingent of Burundian refugees, who had arrived days before. See II.13.3. The Chamber considers that it is reasonably possible that Nizeyimana, as the commander of the Mata training centre, would have been at the training site to manage the logistics of such a large intake of recruits around that date.

11. ATTACK ON THE BENEBIKIRA CONVENT, LATE APRIL 1994

Introduction

1114. The Indictment alleges that around 30 April 1994, soldiers from the FAR, ESO and Ngoma camps, including Lieutenant Hategekimana, Second Lieutenants Ndayambaje and Ngendahimana, as well as armed civilians, acting upon Nizeyimana's orders, forcibly removed and killed 25 children identified as Tutsis at the Maison Generalice of the Benebikira Sisters ("Benebikira convent"), including members of the Karenzi family. The children were brought to an area below the Ineza Hotel, along with civilians who had been detained at a roadblock near the front of the Ngoma Camp. All were killed there in Nizeyimana's presence. The Prosecution relies on the testimonies of Witnesses ZBH, QCQ and ZBA.²⁷⁶⁴

1115. The Defence does not dispute that the Karenzi children were killed, but argues that they were not killed at the hands of ESO soldiers and that Nizeyimana was not involved in the murders. Furthermore, it challenges the credibility of Witness ZBH's purported first-hand account and notes that while Witness QCQ confirmed Witness ZBA's presence during the attack, the latter witness's evidence is entirely hearsay.²⁷⁶⁵

Prosecution Witness ZBH

1116. In April 1994, Witness ZBH, a Hutu, was a civilian who had previously worked as a "helper" at ESO in 1991, who among other things, washed clothing and polished shoes.²⁷⁶⁶ He was recruited into killing Tutsis during the genocide by soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma camps, who would round civilians up in town or at roadblocks and tell them they had "work" for them to do.²⁷⁶⁷

1117. On 30 April 1994 at around 2.00 p.m., Witness ZBH and a number of other young men were picked up at an unspecified roadblock by Lieutenant Ildéphonse Hategekimana from the Ngoma Camp, who was in a blue vehicle with "World Bank" markings.²⁷⁶⁸ Hategekimana compelled the witness to join him, stating that they had "work" to do.²⁷⁶⁹ They boarded the vehicle, which included soldiers by the name of Ngendahimana and Ndayambaje, who were members of Hategekimana's escort, and travelled to a bus station near the Benebikira convent.²⁷⁷⁰ Witness ZBH saw many soldiers at the site, but did not know exactly which camp they came from.²⁷⁷¹ He knew some soldiers were from the Ngoma Camp, but speculated that a number may have also originated from the ESO Camp.²⁷⁷²

1118. When they arrived at the convent, young people were being led out into its garden by Lieutenant Fabien Niyonteze, other soldiers and civilians.²⁷⁷³ Second Warrant Officer Ntamuhanga was also searching the convent.²⁷⁷⁴ Witness ZBH's group was split into two, one group to assist the soldiers in searching the convent and one that took the victims to be killed.²⁷⁷⁵ As a member of the latter group, Witness ZBH and soldiers took victims by vehicle to a wooded area on the lower side of the prison at Hotel Ineza and killed them there with bayonets.²⁷⁷⁶

1119. They made several trips back to the convent to pick people up and drive them to a location where they were killed.²⁷⁷⁷ While there, the witness noticed the presence of other victims, who, he testified, had been stopped at a roadblock near the Ngoma Camp.²⁷⁷⁸ They were brought aboard a lorry driven by a man called Said Nassor.²⁷⁷⁹ Two soldiers the witness identified as coming from Ngoma Camp were also in the vehicle.²⁷⁸⁰ The detainees in the vehicle were killed at the same location as the Benebikira convent victims.²⁷⁸¹ Witness ZBH explained that Hategekimana compelled him to participate in the killing of children taken from the convent.²⁷⁸²

Prosecution Witness QCQ

1120. Witness QCQ, a teenage Tutsi student, lived at the Benebikira convent in April 1994.²⁷⁸³ After President Habyarimana's plane was shot down, Tutsi refugees began arriving at the convent.²⁷⁸⁴ Among them were the three Karenzi children and their neighbours, who she got to know after they arrived at the convent.²⁷⁸⁵ On 30 April 1994, soldiers and Interahamwe, accompanied by dogs, arrived at the convent in a military pickup truck and on foot.²⁷⁸⁶ The uniformed soldiers and the Interahamwe were armed with rifles, machetes and clubs.²⁷⁸⁷ Witness QCQ did not know from which camp the soldiers came, but among them was an unidentified Lieutenant issuing orders.²⁷⁸⁸ Those who had sought refuge at the convent were assembled in its garden at gunpoint and forced to sit according to their region.²⁷⁸⁹ When the refugees resisted, their identity cards were taken from them and they were made to chant “the RPF is responsible for our misfortunes”.²⁷⁹⁰ The attackers told them that “[i]t is Inyenzis who are the cause of all our misfortunes”.²⁷⁹¹

1121. Two of the Karenzi children were not assembled in the garden with her and one of their neighbours was hiding in a bathroom during the attack.²⁷⁹² Witness QCQ was spared by the attackers, because the Mother Superior confirmed she was an orphan.²⁷⁹³ The Karenzi children had been able to avoid the initial detention, but were caught and brought back to the convent.²⁷⁹⁴ Among them was Solange Karenzi, who was bleeding.²⁷⁹⁵ When bringing them back, the assailants noted that “now they had achieved [their] goal”.²⁷⁹⁶ Witness QCQ thought this indicated that they wanted to kill all the people they had targeted.²⁷⁹⁷

1122. The soldiers separated out more than 30 individuals – primarily children – of Tutsi ethnicity, including the three Karenzi children, and loaded them onto a military pickup, where they were beaten and sat on by the Interahamwe.²⁷⁹⁸ Witness QCQ knew the victims were killed, because she either never saw them again or had to bury their bodies, which were found around Kabutare and the monastery after assailants had informed family members of the corpses’ whereabouts.²⁷⁹⁹ She could not tell how the victims had been killed.²⁸⁰⁰

Prosecution Witness ZBA

1123. Witness ZBA, a Tutsi, fled from the home of Pierre Claver Karenzi to the Benebikira convent on 22 April 1994, after Karenzi had been abducted from the house and his wife, Alphonsine Mukamusoni, was killed in it.²⁸⁰¹ Witness ZBA and the Karenzi children, who were also fleeing, were stopped near the Benebikira convent by soldiers, including one named Marius and another called Claude, who were in a military jeep.²⁸⁰² They were taken to the garden of a military house not far from the convent and on a road behind it that eventually led to the main road to Gikongoro. Once there, the soldiers searched them and took their money.²⁸⁰³

1124. The witness was not sure who lived in that military house, but was told it belonged to a senior officer.²⁸⁰⁴ While in the garden, she saw many soldiers around the age of 25 to 30 years old, all dressed in military uniform and carrying rifles.²⁸⁰⁵ The soldiers decided to release them and allowed them to continue to the convent, except for Solange Karenzi.²⁸⁰⁶ Solange arrived at the convent 30 minutes later, carrying a piece of paper with the soldiers' names and telephone numbers.²⁸⁰⁷

1125. On 30 April 1994, around 8.00 a.m., Sister Spèceiose awoke Witness ZBA, informed her that an attack on the convent was imminent and that targeted persons, including the Karenzi children, needed to hide.²⁸⁰⁸ Witness ZBA, although having been told by the sister that she was not a target since she was not from Butare, hid in the bathroom alone.²⁸⁰⁹ Around 9.00 a.m. the compound was attacked.²⁸¹⁰

1126. Witness ZBA remained in the bathroom throughout the attack and therefore did not see the assailants or the events as they unfolded.²⁸¹¹ When she emerged from her hiding place after the attack, a girl by the name of Diane told her that the refugees had been separated by ethnicity and that Tutsis, including the Karenzi children, had been taken away in a pickup truck.²⁸¹² She heard from Diane that both soldiers and Interahamwe had been involved in the attack, but did not specify which camp the soldiers came from.²⁸¹³ She was told that they said that if they could not find the Karenzi children, that they would burn the entire convent down and even heard nuns suggest that the witness be turned over to soldiers.²⁸¹⁴ All the victims aboard the pickup truck, including the Karenzi children, were killed at an unknown location.²⁸¹⁵

Deliberations

1127. The Prosecution relies on witnesses QCQ, ZBA and ZBH to establish that the assailants, which included civilians and soldiers, arrived at the convent on 30 April 1994 and killed approximately 25 children, including the Karenzi kids, at a location below the Ineza Hotel. The Prosecution relies on Witness ZBH to establish that the soldiers were from the ESO and Ngoma camps, and included Lieutenant Hategekimana, Second Lieutenants Ndayambaje and Ngendahimana. Furthermore, the Prosecution argues that Witness ZBH's evidence establishes that Nizeyimana was present during the killings.²⁸¹⁶

²⁸¹⁶ Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 305.

1128. A clear and compelling picture of aspects of the attack emerges based on the broad consistencies among the testimonies of Witnesses QCQ, ZBH and ZBA. At the outset, each of the witnesses testified that assailants arrived and removed persons from the Benebikira convent on 30 April 1994.²⁸¹⁷ Furthermore, Witness QCQ, an orphan residing at the Benebikira convent, and Witness ZBH, an Interahamwe and participant in the attack, provided strikingly similar, first-hand accounts of armed soldiers and *Interahamwe*²⁸¹⁸ moving through the convent,²⁸¹⁹ bringing its residents into the garden,²⁸²⁰ separating Tutsis from Hutus based on region and identity cards,²⁸²¹ and removing primarily young Tutsis in vehicles,²⁸²² who were sat on or trampled once they were loaded into the vehicle by the Interahamwe.²⁸²³

1129. Their accounts were generally corroborated by Witness ZBA, who hid inside the convent as the attack occurred.²⁸²⁴ Although she did not observe the assailants or the removal of Tutsis from the convent as she was hiding, she was warned that an attack was imminent. Witness ZBA heard the boots of a soldier who passed in front of her hiding place.²⁸²⁵ Witnesses ZBA and QCQ both testified that the three Karenzi children were discovered at the convent, forced to board a vehicle and subsequently killed.²⁸²⁶

1130. Moreover, a young girl who observed the abduction first-hand confirmed to Witness ZBA that soldiers and *Interahamwe*²⁸²⁷ had removed people from their hiding places and made them go outside,²⁸²⁸ separated Tutsis from Hutus,²⁸²⁹ and then removed the Tutsis in a pickup truck,²⁸³⁰ where the attackers “were sitting” on the victims.²⁸³¹ The quality of the information that Witness ZBA received, although second-hand, appears particularly reliable

²⁸¹⁷ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, p. 52; Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, p. 14; Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 13. Witness ZBA noted that the attack commenced around 9.00 a.m., whereas Witness ZBH only arrived at the convent after 2.00 p.m. However, Witness ZBH noted the presence of other soldiers and Interahamwe upon his arrival at 2.00 p.m., suggesting the assault was already ongoing by the time he arrived. Thus, the Chamber does not consider that a material discrepancy exists.

²⁸¹⁸ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 52, 61-62, 66-67; Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, pp. 14-15.

²⁸²² Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 52, 61; Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, p. 18. Witness QCQ testified that “more than 30” refugees were abducted. Witness ZBH did not provide live testimony about the number of persons removed. The Chamber notes, however, that in his confession, Witness ZBH’s estimated that 25 persons were removed. Witness ZBH was not questioned on the veracity of this statement or the amount of children abducted. Witness ZBH, T. 9 February 2011, p. 53.

²⁸²³ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, p. 52; Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, pp. 16, 18. Witness ZBH describes the vehicle as a “blue pickup truck” and Witness QCQ similarly makes reference to having seen a “military” “pickup truck”, parked outside the convent.

²⁸²⁶ Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 19; Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, p. 19. The Chamber notes that both Witness QCQ and Witness ZBA knew the Karenzi children and is satisfied that they were able to identify them. Witness QCQ met the three kids when they sought refuge at the convent and Witness ZBA was a friend of Solange Karenzi and a neighbour. See Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 5; Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, p. 13.

given the directness of the source and the immediacy in which the information was conveyed to her. Furthermore, it is not cumulative of other evidence in the record.

1131. Finally, while the Defence has extensively challenged the testimony of Witness ZBH (discussed below), it chose not to cross-examine Witnesses QCQ and ZBA on this event.²⁸³² It has not challenged their testimonies in its Closing Brief or oral Closing Arguments.²⁸³³ The Chamber is mindful that it is not required to accept as true statements unchallenged during cross-examination.²⁸³⁴ Nonetheless, there are no general concerns about the credibility of either witness, and in this instance, their accounts are clear, appear unembellished and are strikingly consistent.²⁸³⁵ Based on the foregoing, the Chamber is satisfied that on 30 April 1994, from 9.00 a.m. onwards, armed soldiers and Interahamwe arrived at the Benebikira convent, separated its residents – who were primarily children – based on ethnicity and removed around 30 of them. The evidence clearly establishes that the three Karenzi children were among those taken from the convent.

1132. Moreover, while the Chamber views Witness ZBH's evidence with caution, it is convinced that the considerable parallels among his account and the other witnesses', along with the fact that his evidence necessarily implicates him in the crime, eliminates the Chamber's general concerns in this instance.²⁸³⁶ The record establishes beyond reasonable doubt his participation in the attack at the Benebikira convent.

1133. Finally, the Chamber is satisfied, based on the first-hand account of Witness ZBH, as well as the circumstantial evidence of Witnesses QCQ and ZBA, that many, if not all of the Tutsis removed from the Benebikira convent were killed. Specifically, Witness ZBH provided a coherent description of persons taken from the Benebikira convent as well as those apprehended at the Ngoma Camp roadblock being killed below the Ineza Hotel. He described this area as in a wooded area, which was also below "the commercial bank".²⁸³⁷ His evidence is particularly compelling in this instance in light of having admitted to his participation in these killings in Rwanda. Moreover, the record clearly reflects Tutsis were being targeted and killed in Butare by soldiers and Interahamwe around this time, offering further circumstantial support to Witness ZBH's first-hand account.

1134. Witness QCQ was tasked with burying some of the "bodies" found at Kabutare at an unspecified time later on.²⁸³⁸ She added that "some" bodies were found next to the monastery.²⁸³⁹ Witness QCQ was not questioned on the exact identity of the bodies, or whether she recognised any of them.²⁸⁴⁰ The record does not reflect the proximity of the Ineza Hotel to the unspecified area in Kabutare or "the monastery" to each other. Nonetheless, to the extent Witness QCQ found bodies in a location other than where Witness ²⁸³⁵ The Chamber has elsewhere considered Witness ZBA to be a generally reliable witness. See II.6.5.

²⁸⁴⁰ Witness QCQ similarly did not know how they were killed. See Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, p. 20.

ZBH participated in killings, the Chamber does not consider that this raises doubts in either of their accounts that persons taken from the Benebikira convent were killed and found dead.

1135. Finally, the Chamber has no doubt that among those killed were the children from the Karenzi family. This conclusion is particularly convincing in light of Witness ZBH's description of the killing of the Tutsis taken from the Benebikira convent and the accounts of Witnesses QCQ and ZBA that these children were not seen after the event.²⁸⁴¹

1136. Having found the above, the Chamber must determine the identity of the perpetrators, and, in particular, the soldiers who participated in the removal and killing of the Benebikira convent victims. Witnesses QCQ and ZBA were unable to identify the soldiers and the camp from which they originated.²⁸⁴² The Chamber considers this reasonable given that Witness ZBA did not observe the event and in light of Witness QCQ's young age and the traumatic circumstances of the event. The same reasoning applies to Witness QCQ's inability to estimate how many soldiers were present.²⁸⁴³

1137. Witness ZBH is the sole witness to identify of the soldiers who went to Benebikira convent and removed Tutsi refugees there. Before turning to the merits of this evidence, the Chamber shall address some general and specific credibility challenges.

1138. Witness ZBH confessed to, and was convicted for, his involvement in the killings at the Benebikira convent and other genocide related crimes.²⁸⁴⁴ Nonetheless, when questioned about his involvement in the various incidents to which he testified, Witness ZBH consistently deflected any responsibility on his part and instead insisted he was "forced" or tricked by soldiers to participate in killings.²⁸⁴⁵ Notably, he testified that Lieutenant Hategekimana compelled him to participate in this particular murder operation.

²⁸⁴¹ See Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, p. 19; Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 19. The Chamber is satisfied that both witnesses knew the Karenzi children prior to their abduction and were thus in a position to identify the three children. Witness ZBA resided in the Karenzi house for a period of time and was a friend of one of the children, Solange Karenzi. See Witness ZBA, T. 24 February 2011, p. 5. Witness QCQ met the children when they arrived at the convent after the attack on the Karenzi house. See Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, p. 14. The Chamber notes that Witness QCQ refers to one child as "Marc", while Witness ZBA refers to him as "Malik". In light of the fact that Witness QCQ identifies the other 2 children, Solange and Mulinga by their correct name, as well as the neighbor accompanying them, the Chamber does not find this discrepancy to be probative.

²⁸⁴³ Witness QCQ, T. 23 February 2011, p. 15 ("Q. Approximately, how many soldiers were there in the group? A. There were many soldiers. I could not count them. I also have to tell you that the atmosphere was not conducive to the exercise of me counting the attackers.").

²⁸⁴⁴ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 35-36; Exhibit P21 (Witness ZBH's Personal Information Sheet); Exhibit D15B (Translation of Witness ZBH's Confession).

²⁸⁴⁵ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, p. 37 ("Q. In 1994, did you have any knowledge about soldiers from ESO committing any acts of violence against civilians in Butare town? And if so, can you name some of the places where the violence occurred. Just briefly. A. Still in that respect, I would say we were involved in the killings, and we wouldn't have committed those killings without the help of soldiers. As a matter of fact, all the investigators who come and meet me are told that. I would like to tell the Chamber that the commanders of camp Ngoma and ESO, including Tharcisse Muvunyi, who was a colonel; and Captain Ildéphonse Nizeyimana; Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo; Ildéphonse Hategekimana, who was the commander of the Ngoma camp; Lieutenant Alphonse Nteziryayo; Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi and many others compelled us and sensitised us to understand Tutsis as being our enemies and that we had to do everything in our power to get rid of them. As a matter of fact, during that time there were battles everywhere. Gatsinzi, Muvunyi and Nizeyimana told us that if we did not get rid of those people who belonged to the other ethnic group, those people would later on harm us, and that is why the soldiers compelled us and forced us to be involved in the attacks against the

1139. The Chamber has some concerns that Witness ZBH's evidence in this proceeding may have been used as an opportunity to deflect responsibility for crimes. It might also have been motivated by a desire to obtain lenient treatment from Rwandan judicial authorities, as the witness remained incarcerated at the time of his testimony.²⁸⁴⁶ Consequently, his testimony shall be viewed with the appropriate caution.²⁸⁴⁷

1140. Turning to the allegation at issue, the Defence has challenged Witness ZBH's evidence through alleged internal inconsistencies concerning this particular crime. For example, the Defence pointed to the fact that the witness gave different accounts of the presence of weapons during the attack on the Benebikira convent.²⁸⁴⁸ The Chamber considers Witness ZBH's clarification that the civilians did not carry weapons, whereas the soldiers were armed, a plausible explanation. Moreover, the witness's answers indicate that he was referring to the civilian attackers when discussing the absence of weapons at the convent.²⁸⁴⁹ He further convincingly explained the difference in weaponry used during the attack, by clarifying that he meant "bayonets" when he spoke about "knives".²⁸⁵⁰ Notwithstanding, the Chamber considers that the purported inconsistency fails to raise any doubts as they relate to core features of this attack, which are undisputed.

1141. The Chamber turns to Witness ZBH's evidence relating to the identity of soldiers involved in the separation and removal of Tutsis from the Benebikira convent and their ultimate killing. He testified that he was picked up at a roadblock by Lieutenant Ildéphonse Hatgekimana and two of his escorts, Ngendahimana and Ndayambaje, and was driven by them to the Benebikira convent.²⁸⁵¹ Once they got to the convent he saw Lieutenant Fabien Niyonteze, as well as "other soldiers", who were making people get out of the Benebikira convent.²⁸⁵² On cross-examination, he further identified a soldier by the name of "Second Warrant Officer Ntamuhanga", whom he later referred to as "Chief Warrant Officer Tutsis who had sought refuge in various areas."); T. 8 February 2011, p. 39 ("A. We were led by soldiers who had come from Ngoma camp and from ESO camp. As I told you earlier, anyone who did not want to collaborate with them would at times be killed. All members of the public were therefore obliged to participate in those operations. That is how we killed people."); ("A. I only killed because the accused incited me to kill."); T. 8 February 2011, p. 40 ("A. Often soldiers would take people throughout the town or at roadblocks. That is how they gathered us. They found us either in town or at roadblocks. They often said that they would give us work without specifying what that work was. And when we got to sites -- the various sites we could not refuse doing what they had asked us to do because they had the power."); T. 8 February 2011, p. 54 ("A. If soldiers had not dragged us to kill those people I would not have been in prison today, Mr. President. You have to understand that we could not have resisted those soldiers when they gave us those orders. ... So what I'm saying is that if it had not -- if I had not been compelled to kill under duress I would not have done so.").

²⁸⁴⁶ See II.3.4. Moreover, Witness ZBH indicated his desire to support the Prosecution by stating that he "remember[s] that once the Defence team of the accused person had attempted to contact [him], but [he] turned down their request because [he] told them that [he] was on the side of the Prosecutor and not on the side of the Defence". T. 8 February 2011, p. 71.

Ntamuhanga”, conducting searches at the convent.²⁸⁵³ Witness ZBH noted that they killed the Benebikira victims, because “Hategekimana compelled [him]”.²⁸⁵⁴

1142. While Witness ZBH testified that the crimes committed at the Benebikira convent were perpetrated by soldiers from Ngoma Camps and the ESO, he later explained that it was difficult to determine whether “all of them came from Ngoma camp or whether some of them may have come from ESO camp”.²⁸⁵⁵ In his view, ESO soldiers were around to “protect the neighbourhood” and thus were also responsible for crimes committed in that area.²⁸⁵⁶

1143. Witness ZBH identified Lieutenant Hategekimana as “the commander of Ngoma camp”, and described Ngendahimana and Ndayambaje as being part of his escort.²⁸⁵⁷ Similarly, the witness noted that Lieutenant Niyonteze was a “resident of Ngoma Camp”.²⁸⁵⁸ Witness ZBH was not questioned on the camp to which “Ntamuhanga” belonged and did not provide any further details in this regard. Witnesses ZY, AZD and BDE, as well as Defence Witness Ntamagezo all refer to a “Chief Warrant Officer Ntamuhanga”, who was a soldier at ESO in charge of the Military Police platoon in 1994.²⁸⁵⁹ The Chamber is satisfied that Witness ZBH was referring to Chief Warrant Officer Ntamuhanga, who was an ESO soldier in 1994.²⁸⁶⁰

1144. However, Witness ZBH’s testimony is at odds with his 2003 confession insofar as it relates to the presence of Chief or Second Warrant Officer Ntamuhanga or ESO soldiers in general at the Benebikira convent during the attack. Notably, any reference to Ntamuhanga is absent from his description of the events. The presence of Ntamuhanga was only elicited on cross-examination despite having been questioned in chief about his contact with “other soldiers” or “military personnel”.²⁸⁶¹

1145. The general nature of the identification of one or more ESO soldiers participating in these events is not compelling, particularly given the need to view Witness ZBH’s evidence

Therefore, it is probable -- highly probable that they lived with him at the Ngoma camp. Even his second lieutenant, Fabien Niyonteze, was resident at the Ngoma camp. But there were so many soldiers at the maison généraliste, and I was not able to determine whether -- or to know whether all of them came from Ngoma camp or whether some of them may have come from ESO camp. You see, the entire Itaba neighbourhood where the maison généraliste was located on the slopes of the Ngoma hill, the entire neighbourhood was surrounded by soldiers. As far as the entrance of Captain Nizeyimana’s residence, as well as that of Lieutenant Hategekimana, the entire neighbourhood was surrounded by soldiers, as far as the faculty of theology.”).

²⁸⁵⁹ See Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, p. 49 (noted that Ntamuhanga joined Nizeyimana in his office after an assembly at the ESO on 9 April 1994); Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 7-9 (described Ntamuhanga as part of Nizeyimana’s native region and this close to the Accused); Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, p. 56 (described Ntamuhanga as being close to Nizeyimana and in charge of the Military Platoon); Witness Ntamagezo, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 74-75 (noted that Ntamuhanga was the chief of the Military Police Platoon at the ESO).

²⁸⁶⁰ The Chamber observes that Witness ZBH referred to Ntamuhanga first as “Second Warrant Officer” and then as “Chief Warrant Officer”. In view of the many references to a “Chief Warrant Officer” Ntamuhanga, the Chamber is satisfied that Witness ZBH may have misstated Ntamuhanga’s rank in first instance, and instead meant to refer to “Chief Warrant Officer” Ntamuhanga. See Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, p. 66.

²⁸⁶¹ Witness ZBH, T. 8 February 2011, pp. 53, 66.

with caution. It is too tenuous to support a finding that ESO soldiers, including Chief Warrant Officer Ntamuhanga, were present at the Benebekira convent.

1146. Nevertheless, Witness ZBH's testimony is largely consistent with his 2003 confession to the extent that he provides evidence on the involvement of Lieutenant Hategekimana and his two escorts, Ngendahimana and Ndayambaje.²⁸⁶² Witness ZBH's confession before the Gacaca court about Lieutenant Hategekimana's involvement in the crime was made in 2003, while the witness was incarcerated.²⁸⁶³

1147. The Chamber observes that prior consistent statements do not bolster a witness's credibility.²⁸⁶⁴ However, these circumstances reflect that the witness has maintained Hategekimana's involvement in the crime for a long period. Whatever ulterior motives Witness ZBH has to provide testimony inculcating Hategekimana, the Chamber has no reasonable concerns it has been tainted by his incarceration.

1148. Turning to the ability of Witness ZBH to identify the specific soldiers, he did not explain how he knew Lieutenant Hategekimana, Ngendahimana and Ndayambaje or Lieutenant Niyonteze. Nevertheless, Witness ZBH admitted to having been a "helper" at ESO in 1991²⁸⁶⁵ and spending a lot of time with soldiers at roadblocks and other locations during the genocide.²⁸⁶⁶ The Chamber is satisfied that these circumstances would have allowed Witness ZBH to identify soldiers from the ESO and Ngoma Camps. This position is certain as it relates to higher ranking officers, such as Lieutenant Hategekimana, who were well known in and around Butare at the time.

1149. In evaluating Witness ZBH's identification, the Chamber considers that circumstantial support for his evidence was provided by the first-hand account of Witness QCQ and the second-hand evidence of Witness ZBA that soldiers participated in removing Tutsis from Benebikira convent. Given the Ngoma Camp's proximity to the convent, the Chamber finds Witness ZBH's identification of the Ngoma Camp soldiers' participation in the removal of Tutsis and their ultimate killing compelling.

1150. In light of these findings, the Chamber must also review evidence relating to Nizeyimana's alleged participation in this attack. The Prosecution argues that Witness ZBH also testified that "Nizeyimana arrived in a Mercedes-Benz lorry driven by Saïd Nassor" with those captured at the Ngoma Camp roadblock. Based on their arguments, Nizeyimana was present when persons apprehended from the Benebikira convent and the Ngoma Camp roadblock were killed below the Ineza Hotel.²⁸⁶⁷

²⁸⁶² See Exhibit D15B (Translation of Witness ZBH's Confession), pp. 21, 31. Witness ZBH describes being picked up by Lieutenant Hategekimana and two of his escorts, Corporal Ndayambaje and Private E. Ngendahimana and driven to Benebikira convent, where they removed 25 victims and killed them at a location beneath the Ineza Motel. While the Defence has challenged that aspects of Witness ZBH's confession had been modified since 2003, it has not made such arguments with respect to these particular portions of it. ²⁸⁶⁷ Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 350.

1151. The Prosecution refers exclusively to testimony from the witness elicited during re-examination.²⁸⁶⁸ Notably, the testimony cited is Witness ZBH reading his confession from 2003. He did not confirm nor deny the contents of his confession as it related to this event.²⁸⁶⁹ In this regard, the Chamber recalls that the Tribunal's Rules of Procedure and Evidence evince a clear preference for live testimony.²⁸⁷⁰ Prior statements of a witness who provides live testimony are primarily relevant to a Trial Chamber in its assessment of the witness's credibility. It is not necessarily the case that they should or could generally, in and of themselves, constitute evidence that the content thereof is truthful.²⁸⁷¹

1152. The fact that Witness ZBH read his 2003 confession in court, does not necessarily transform it into "live testimony". Rather, the failure to have the witness confirm the accuracy of his 2003 confession leaves the testimony cited by the Prosecution as unchecked, out-of-court hearsay. Raising additional concerns, Witness ZBH was questioned extensively by the Prosecution during his examination in chief about who was in the lorry that carried victims from the Ngoma Camp roadblock to the location below the Ineza Hotel. Rather than referring to Nizeyimana, he identified the soldiers in the vehicle as coming from "Ngoma camp", and provided details explaining how he could identify them.²⁸⁷² In this regard, Witness ZBH's 2003 confession and his testimony are fundamentally different. His testimony fails to identify Nizeyimana being in the lorry that transported victims from the Ngoma Camp roadblock. It likewise does not reflect that the ESO captain was present during the ultimate killing of these persons along with those taken from the Benezikira convent.²⁸⁷³ This aspect of the Prosecution case is dismissed.

1153. Nizeyimana's general absence along with the fact that reliable evidence implicates Ngoma Camp soldiers (rather than ESO soldiers) raises reasonable doubts that Nizeyimana ordered or authorised the murder of Tutsis taken from the Benezikira convent or the Ngoma

Other people were stopped at the Ngoma roadblock, which was located almost in front of the camp. And when those people were arrested or stopped they were tied up using their clothes. And a lorry being driven by the son of Saïd Nassor came there and actually made people get out of that lorry. And those people were killed also at the same spot. Q. Camp roadblock or that he made a substantial or significant contribution to these killings. Likewise, it fails to establish that the ESO captain exercised effective control over the perpetrators or that he knew or should have known about these killings.

1154. Notably, the Defence has presented alibi evidence that raises the reasonable possibility that he was reassigned to lead a military training camp at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture towards the end of April 1994.²⁸⁷⁴ While the Chamber is not persuaded that this evidence creates the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana only returned to Butare town once, it does raise doubts that he significantly or substantially contributed to these crimes, which occurred after Nizeyimana's reassignment. Based on the foregoing, Nizeyimana cannot be held liable for them.

12. WEAPONS DISTRIBUTIONS AND TRAININGS

12.1 Weapons Distribution, 7 April to July 1994

Introduction

1155. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana distributed weapons at the ESO to the Interahamwe, including bourgmestres and civilians from 7 April until mid-July 1994. The Prosecution relies on Witnesses Justin Gahizi, BDE, ZY, AZD, Jules Kayibanda, ZT, ZBH, and Anaclét Dufitumukiza.²⁸⁷⁵

1156. The Defence denies that weapons were distributed to Interahamwe at the ESO. It further submits that there is nothing linking Nizeyimana to the underlying allegations. The Defence denies that Interahamwe were trained on the ESO grounds or that they were ever present at the ESO. Defence Witnesses RWV09, RWV11, Thomas Ruzindana and ZML13 provided relevant evidence.²⁸⁷⁶

Prosecution Witness Justin Gahizi

1157. In April 1994, Witness Gahizi was a sergeant at the ESO.²⁸⁷⁷ When Witness Gahizi returned from Kanombe to the ESO around the second week after President Habyarimana's plane was shot down, he attended various meetings during which Nizeyimana was present.²⁸⁷⁸ Witness Gahizi attended the meetings in his capacity of deputy to Warrant Officer Ntibiramira, who coordinated activities between foot soldiers or the troops and officers of the army.²⁸⁷⁹ Specifically, Witness Gahizi attended meetings that took place at the officers' quarters, which were located on the other side of a forest known as Joli Bois.²⁸⁸⁰ Colonel Muvunyi, Nizeyimana and civilian figures such as the bourgmestres of the various communes were present during these meetings, including Kanyabashi and the bourgmestre of Nkayizu.²⁸⁸¹ According to Witness Gahizi, Nizeyimana had the "monopoly of power" at the meetings.²⁸⁸²

1158. The main topic of these meetings was to find ways to track down Tutsis, otherwise referred to as Inkotanyi.²⁸⁸³ Nizeyimana said that the "Inyenzi had to be hunted down" and that "people had to be engaged in community work in order to cut down bushes so that the Inkotanyi could not hide".²⁸⁸⁴ The bourgmestres were given rifles or guns during these meetings, which they took back to their respective communes.²⁸⁸⁵ The deputy camp commander, who was the S2/S3 officer, was in charge of all the weapons.²⁸⁸⁶ Nobody could take weapons without his authorisation.²⁸⁸⁷ The person in charge of the armoury, nicknamed Parantezi, gave weapons to the bourgmestre with Nizeyimana's authorisation.²⁸⁸⁸ People in Butare who were learning how to use weapons would come to the ESO to get them.²⁸⁸⁹ They were trained for a week or two so that they could kill people after they had been trained.²⁸⁹⁰

Prosecution Witness BDE

1159. Witness BDE, a Hutu, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.²⁸⁹¹ Around the beginning of May, Witness BDE saw a vehicle which appeared to belong to the Shyanda commune on the ESO grounds.²⁸⁹² It was parked in front of the store, which was approximately 50 to 60 metres from the armoury and came to bring beans.²⁸⁹³ Once the beans were offloaded, the vehicle parked closer to the armoury.²⁸⁹⁴ Soldiers then proceeded to load weapons, such as FAL's and Kalashnikovs, onto the vehicle, after which it left.²⁸⁹⁵ There was no one else around the vehicle, apart from the soldiers.²⁸⁹⁶ Witness BDE only saw this happen one time and did not know how many weapons were loaded onto the vehicle.²⁸⁹⁷

Prosecution Witness ZY

1160. Witness ZY, a Tutsi, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.²⁸⁹⁸ On an unspecified date, Witness ZY saw civilians and vehicles "going about in the camp", and specifically recalled seeing the Interahamwe Robert Kajuga at the ESO.²⁸⁹⁹ He got into an office and left again, but she did not know whose office it was.²⁹⁰⁰ Someone told her "[t]hat is the President of the Interahamwe, Robert Kajuga".²⁹⁰¹ When the killings intensified in Butare, she saw civilian vehicles parked near the command office.²⁹⁰² The civilians would at times open the armoury and load weapons into the vehicles, especially those belonging to the commune office.²⁹⁰³ There was a back and forth movement near the command office.²⁹⁰⁴ Witness ZY

“was just going by” when she observed these activities.²⁹⁰⁵ She was unable to say who was present when the weapons were being loaded onto the vehicles.²⁹⁰⁶

Prosecution Witness AZD

1161. In April 1994, Witness AZD was a non-commissioned officer at the ESO.²⁹⁰⁷ Witness AZD frequently saw vehicles that came from various communes to receive armaments. All communes in the area had commune vehicles.²⁹⁰⁸ Nizeyimana assisted the various bourgmestres who came to take weapons from the school.²⁹⁰⁹ This was not done with the objective of maintaining public order, but rather to assist the civilian authorities to act in a negative manner.²⁹¹⁰

Prosecution Witness Jules Kayibanda

1162. In April 1994, Witness Kayibanda, a Hutu, was a student at the Butare University.²⁹¹¹ Around the middle of May, when the killings started, firearms started arriving at the campus.²⁹¹² Witness Kayibanda had a grenade.²⁹¹³ Some tall Hutus were able to acquire firearms to protect them from being killed by the young soldiers.²⁹¹⁴ There was thus some form of weapons trafficking and Sergeant Sibomana or Mr. Patrice, an influential and well known student, could be asked to provide weapons or grenades in exchange for buying them a beer.²⁹¹⁵

Prosecution Witness ZT

1163. In April 1994, Witness ZT, a Tutsi, was a cadet at the ESO.²⁹¹⁶ While Witness ZT did not see the Interahamwe take weapons from the armoury, she inferred that they were given their rifles by the ESO, based on the fact that they took their meals at the ESO and were carrying rifles.²⁹¹⁷ Witness ZT explained that the Interahamwe were carrying weapons and working together with the ESO soldiers at roadblocks – the very roadblocks Nizeyimana had set up throughout Butare.²⁹¹⁸ Since the Interahamwe were allowed to have meals at the ESO, that “meant that they were allowed to take anything from the camp; and, therefore, the person who authorised them to do all that was Nizeyimana.”²⁹¹⁹

Prosecution Witness ZBH

1164. In April 1994, Witness ZBH, a Hutu, was a civilian who had previously worked as a “helper” at ESO in 1991.²⁹²⁰ On an unspecified date, Witness ZBH was ordered to offload boxes containing ammunition and grenades that were brought by Lieutenant Hategekimana and the gendarmerie commander during a meeting at Dr. Gatsinzi’s bar, and take it to Corporal Gatwaza.²⁹²¹ This ammunition was used during the various attacks that they carried out around Butare.²⁹²²

Prosecution Witness Anaclét Dufitumukiza

1165. In April 1994, Witness Dufitumukiza, a Tutsi, was a gendarme corporal at the Tumba gendarmerie camp in Butare town, who worked as a driver.²⁹²³ On 19 April, Gendarmerie Sergeant Major Mugisha instructed Witness Dufitumukiza to retrieve the gendarmes that had previously been sent to Cyahinda Parish, as well as the corpse of the gendarme who had been killed there at Cyahinda Parish.²⁹²⁴ When he arrived at the Nyanza communal office, he saw ESO Chief Warrant Officer Kanyashyamba commanding about 11 ESO soldiers who fired support weapons, such as a 60 millimetre mortar and a heavy machine gun, towards Cyahinda Parish.²⁹²⁵ Only the ESO, a training institution, had such heavy weaponry.²⁹²⁶

Defence Witness RWV09

1166. Witness RWV09, a Hutu, was a military officer who was assigned to the ESO Camp around 13 or 14 April 1994.²⁹²⁷ Witness RWV09 worked in the S4 department, which was in charge of providing supplies to the camp such food, clothing, weapons, and other equipment.²⁹²⁸ His office would have known if weapons were distributed, because they had to sign a coupon indicating the serial number of the weapon, and the person receiving it would have to counter-sign.²⁹²⁹ If the register had been signed, Witness RWV09 would have known about it.²⁹³⁰ He never saw weapons being distributed.²⁹³¹

Defence Witnesses RWV11, Thomas Ruzindana and ZML13

1167. Witnesses RWV11, Ruzindana and ZML13 never saw any civilians or Interahamwe at the ESO in April 1994.²⁹³² Since Witness RWV11 never saw civilians enter the ESO, they could not have been distributed weapons.²⁹³³ According to Witness RWV11, the distribution of weapons was carried out at the Mata training centre.²⁹³⁴ Similarly, Witness Ruzindana never witnessed any weapons being distributed to civilians inside the ESO camp.²⁹³⁵ Witness ZML13 only saw “traders” who brought food and supplies.²⁹³⁶ However, they “knew those traders”.²⁹³⁷

Deliberations

1168. The Prosecution alleges that Nizeyimana distributed weapons to the Interahamwe, including bourgmestres and civilians at the ESO from 7 April until mid July 1994 in furtherance of a joint criminal enterprise. Prosecution Witnesses Gahizi, BDE, ZY, AZD, ZBH and Kayibanda all provided evidence of weapons being distributed by the ESO to bourgmestres and other civilians.

1169. Specifically, Witness Gahizi testified that he attended meetings at the officers’ quarters during which Nizeyimana was present around the third week of April 1994, where guns and rifles were supplied to bourgmestres of various communes, including Kanyabashi and the bourgmestre of Nkayizu.²⁹³⁸ Witness Gahizi was present there in his capacity as the deputy to Warrant Officer Ntibiramira.²⁹³⁹ The witness further noted that people who were learning how to use weapons would come to the ESO to get them, after which they would be trained to kill people.²⁹⁴⁰ Before turning to the merits of his evidence, the Chamber notes that it has elsewhere considered in detail the general context in which Witness Gahizi testified and determined that it should apply appropriate caution when approaching his evidence.²⁹⁴¹ The same analysis applies here.

1170. In regards to this allegation, the Defence submits that Witness Gahizi tailored his evidence to the Nizeyimana case.²⁹⁴² Specifically, it contends that Witness Gahizi’s testimony before this Chamber is materially different from the testimony he gave during the Muvunyi proceeding before the Tribunal. The Defence read aloud excerpts from Witness Gahizi’s testimony during the Muvunyi trial, which lists participants at a meeting in the officers’ mess at the Joli Bois.²⁹⁴³ Contrary to his testimony before this Chamber, the witness did not include Nizeyimana as part of the list during the Muvunyi case. Witness Gahizi explained that the meeting he referred to was not the only one that took place at Joli Bois and he confirmed that he had left other people off this list as well.²⁹⁴⁴ He reiterated that Nizeyimana was present and that he acknowledged during the Muvunyi trial that he did not recall all the participants who were present at that meeting.²⁹⁴⁵

1171. Witness Gahizi testified that he was detained by Nizeyimana towards the end of May 1994.²⁹⁴⁶ The Chamber considers that Nizeyimana's incarceration and subsequent treatment of the witness may have affected his impartiality in regards to Nizeyimana. Given Witness Gahizi's possible motive to incriminate Nizeyimana, the Chamber considers the discrepancy between his evidence before this Chamber and his testimony during the Muvunyi case in regards to the participants at the meeting concerning.

1172. Of greater significance, Witness Gahizi's evidence about the meetings at Joli Bois was brief and non-descript. Specifically, the witness did not provide any dates for the meetings, nor did he specify how many meetings he attended during which the weapons were supplied. Similarly, Witness Gahizi did not provide any dates or further details regarding the "people" who came by the ESO to get weapons and were then trained to kill other people. Indeed, it is not clear that he saw this at all. The lack of detail, combined with the possible motive to incriminate Nizeyimana, raise questions about the quality of his evidence with respect to this allegation.

1173. Witness BDE saw civilian vehicles come to the ESO, particularly those belonging to the communes.²⁹⁴⁷ Witness BDE recalled a specific instance around the beginning of May 1994, where she saw a vehicle that belonged to the Shyanda commune, parked in front of the armoury.²⁹⁴⁸ While there, soldiers started loading rifles onto the vehicle, though she did not know how many.²⁹⁴⁹ Witness BDE admitted that she only saw this occur on one occasion.²⁹⁵⁰ Notably, while she identified the vehicle as having "writings to the effect that the vehicle belonged" to the Shyanda commune, she did not see anyone around the vehicle, other than the soldiers loading the weapons.²⁹⁵¹ Indeed, Witness BDE only stated that she saw a car that appeared to belong to the commune and never specified seeing civilians there. Moreover, the witness did not provide any detail in regards to her location when she observed weapons being loaded onto the vehicle. Her evidence fails to provide the necessary details establishing the circumstances from which this can be inferred.

1174. Similarly, Witness ZY saw civilians going about the ESO around the time the killings in Butare intensified.²⁹⁵² The civilians would at times walk into the armoury and load weapons into their vehicles, particularly vehicles belonging to the communes.²⁹⁵³ While her evidence is consistent with Witness BDE to the extent that she describes weapons being loaded onto vehicles that were associated with the communes, she is the only witness to have seen the civilians help themselves to the weapons in the armoury. Moreover, Witness ZY did not clarify how often she saw the civilians on the ESO grounds taking weapons and she did not provide any specific dates. Lastly, the witness did not clarify where she was standing when she observed the civilians going about the camp. Witness ZY's general testimony that civilians were at the ESO Camp helping themselves to weapons lacks any contextual information to demonstrate that she observed this.

1175. Likewise, Witness AZD testified that he frequently saw many vehicles from the various communes at the ESO "to receive armaments".²⁹⁵⁴ The witness did not explain during what period he saw the vehicles nor did he provide any details on where he was when he observed the vehicles receiving armaments. Witness ZT saw Interahamwe on the ESO grounds and inferred from the fact that they ate their meals at the ESO that they were supplied by the ESO with the rifles they were carrying.²⁹⁵⁵ She noted that since they came to the ESO for their meals and manned roadblocks together with ESO soldiers that must have meant that they "were allowed to take anything from the camp".²⁹⁵⁶ Notably, the witness never saw ESO soldiers providing the Interahamwe with weapons and did not provide any dates or further details.

1176. Contrary to the Prosecution witnesses, Defence Witnesses RWV09, RWV11, Ruzindana and ZML13 did not see any weapons being distributed to civilians by the ESO or on the camp's grounds. Indeed, Witnesses RWV09, RWV11 and ZML13 did not see any civilians or Interahamwe on the ESO grounds at all during this period. Witness RWV09, who worked in the same office as the department that was in charge of supplying weapons to the camp, stated that he would have known if weapons had been distributed from the armoury.²⁹⁵⁷ However, Witness RWV09 did not work for the armoury specifically and was assigned duties other than the distribution of weapons. While he may have been in the same office as those working for the armoury, his duties were different and it is therefore not reasonable, given the context that he would have been aware of every weapon that was distributed from the armoury.²⁹⁵⁸ The Chamber does not consider his evidence dispositive.

1177. Witness RWV11 noted that since he did not see any civilians at the ESO, there could not have been any distribution of weapons to them.²⁹⁵⁹ He stated that weapons, if any, were distributed at the Mata training centre, rather than at the ESO.²⁹⁶⁰ The Chamber observes that while the Defence witnesses did not personally see weapons being distributed, this is not necessarily dispositive to an evaluation of whether it in fact occurred. Indeed, Witness Ruzindana noted that he was unable to attend the officers' mess due to his status, and admitted that he would thus not have known of the presence of civilians or Interahamwe there.²⁹⁶¹ Moreover, the record reflects that civilians did enter or were brought to the ESO

Camp.²⁹⁶² The Chamber considers the fact that these witnesses did not see weapons being distributed of limited probative value.

1178. The Chamber observes that two civilians also provided evidence on the distribution of weapons. Specifically, Witness ZBH was asked to offload boxes with ammunition that were brought by Lieutenant Hategekimana to a meeting at Gatsinzi's bar on an unspecified date, and take them to Corporal Gatwaza.²⁹⁶³ The Chamber observes that the Indictment specifies that the ESO distributed weapons to civilians at the ESO. Witness ZBH's evidence of the delivery of weapons from the Ngoma Camp commander to a Ngoma Camp corporal, whether through a civilian or not, does not fall within the scope of this Indictment paragraph. Accordingly, the Chamber will not make findings thereon.

1179. Similarly, Witness Kayibanda described how firearms started to arrive at the university around the middle of May 1994.²⁹⁶⁴ Specifically, some taller Hutus were acquiring weapons from Sergeant Sibomana and an influential student by the name of Patrice, to protect themselves from being killed by young soldiers.²⁹⁶⁵ The Chamber notes that it has elsewhere found that Sibomana was a university student and a sergeant who fell under the de jure command of the ESO.²⁹⁶⁶ While Witness Kayibanda stated that he owned a grenade, he did not say how he acquired it or whether he ever got weapons through Sibomana. The Chamber observes that it does not appear from Witness Kayibanda's evidence that students obtained the weapons at the ESO.

1180. Moreover, the witness does not provide any basis for his knowledge that Sibomana and Patrice distributed weapons in exchange for beer. Indeed, his evidence fails to provide details on whether he saw the exchange of weapons occur or whether he heard from someone that weapons were being traded. Given the vague and ambiguous nature of his evidence and the fact that it does not appear that the students obtained the weapons at the ESO, as specified in the Indictment, the Chamber considers his evidence of limited probative value.²⁹⁶⁷

1181. Notwithstanding the weaknesses in the Defence evidence, the absence of dates, particular circumstances of observation and the general lack of detail of the Prosecution evidence, leaves the Chamber to decipher the possibly, but not necessarily linked, parts of Prosecution Witnesses Gahizi, BDE, AZD and ZY's testimonies to come to any conclusion in this regard. Indeed, while the witnesses appear to corroborate each others' stories as it relates to the presence of vehicles from various communes on the ESO grounds and the distribution of weapons to them, their testimonies are just that, general.

1182. Of greater significance, even if the Prosecution witnesses' testimonies would lead the Chamber to conclude that weapons were being distributed to civilians at the ESO, the record is devoid of any concrete evidence suggesting that the weapons were used to further the joint criminal enterprise.

²⁹⁶⁵ Witness Kayibanda, T. 2 February 2011, p. 56.

²⁹⁶⁷ The Defence objected to Witness Kayibanda's evidence on the basis that it lacked notice of Sibomana's involvement in the distribution of weapons. Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 71-72. Based on its findings in regards to Witness Kayibanda's testimony, the Chamber need not consider whether sufficient notice was provided for this allegation.

1183. Prosecution Witness Dufitumukiza testified that he saw ESO soldiers using weapons during the attack at the Cyahinda Parish, which were only found at the ESO.²⁹⁶⁸ The Chamber observes that Witness Dufitumukiza testified about ESO soldiers using the heavy weaponry on the attack of the Cyahinda Parish, rather than Interahamwe or civilians. Moreover, the witness does not provide any evidence of the civilians or Interahamwe having obtained any weapons from the ESO in furtherance of this attack. Indeed, his testimony does not reveal any knowledge on his part of the distribution of weapons to civilians or Interahamwe. Given the lack of knowledge on the part of the witness and the ambiguous nature of his evidence, the Chamber considers his evidence of limited probative value.

1184. Witness AZD stated that Nizeyimana assisted bourgmestres in taking weapons from the ESO so that they could act “negatively”.²⁹⁶⁹ However, Witness AZD was not asked what these “negative” acts constituted or when they occurred. Indeed, his evidence in regards to the purpose for which the weapons were distributed is devoid of any detail other than the fact that they were “negative”. This qualification alone is insufficient to sustain a finding of resulting criminal conduct beyond a reasonable doubt. Similarly, Witness Gahizi testified that the general topic discussed during the meeting at the officers’ quarters related to the tracking down of Tutsis. However, the witness’s evidence does not in any way link the generally discussed issues regarding Tutsis to the distribution of arms to the bourgmestres and civilians. In a criminal trial, where the burden of proof is beyond reasonable doubt, this practice does not meet the required threshold. This allegation is dismissed.

12.2 Training of Civilians and Interahamwe, 7 April to July 1994

Introduction

1185. The Indictment alleges that Nizeyimana authorised, ordered, or instigated ESO soldiers to train civilians such as Burundian refugees and university students at various locations including in a valley below the ESO, at Butare Hospital, and in a forest near Butare University. In particular, in accordance with instructions from Nizeyimana, Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana trained youths at Butare Hospital and Second Lieutenant Ezechiel Gakwerere used a number of subordinate FAR soldiers and students from the ESO to facilitate the training and cooperation with Interahamwe. These acts of training and distribution of weapons were done in furtherance of the joint criminal enterprise. The Prosecution relies on Witnesses ZBH, DCO, YAP and ZCB.²⁹⁷⁰

1186. The Defence submits that there is nothing linking Nizeyimana to the underlying allegations. The Defence denies that Interahamwe were trained on the ESO grounds or that they were ever present at the ESO. Lastly, the Defence challenges the credibility of Witnesses ZBH and DCO.²⁹⁷¹

Prosecution Witness ZBH

1187. In April 1994, Witness ZBH, a Hutu, was a civilian who had previously worked as a “helper” at the ESO in 1991.²⁹⁷² On an unspecified date, Second Lieutenant Gakwerere and Corporal Rutayisire, alias Rubaga, trained civilians including Witness ZBH.²⁹⁷³ Specifically, Corporal Rutayisire trained them at a location known as the foyer de Ngoma.²⁹⁷⁴ During the month of June, ESO soldiers provided training and Nizeyimana, accompanied by Jean Baptiste Hategekimana and others, would often come to “see what was going on”.²⁹⁷⁵ They learnt how to handle weapons or firearms because they were told that the Inkotanyi were about to conquer Butare.²⁹⁷⁶ They received the training to defend themselves and the integrity of Butare prefecture.²⁹⁷⁷

Prosecution Witness DCO

1188. Witness DCO, a Tutsi, stayed in the paediatric ward with her sick child at the Butare University Hospital from 29 February until some point in July 1994.²⁹⁷⁸ The soldiers had “settled just close to the hospital”, which is the place from where they trained the Interahamwe.²⁹⁷⁹ The training, which started in May and continued until June, took place on grounds in between the hospital and the ESO, directly behind the hospital kitchen.²⁹⁸⁰ Witness DCO could see the training take place from the hospital grounds.²⁹⁸¹

Prosecution Witness YAP

1189. Witness YAP, a Tutsi, worked at the Butare University Hospital in 1994.²⁹⁸² At some point in time, the staff of the university and the hospital, as well as Burundian refugees who worked as interns at the hospital received military training.²⁹⁸³ The refugees received training after the killings started in Kigali, but long before President Sindikubwabo’s speech in Butare.²⁹⁸⁴ Witness YAP never personally saw the training take place, but heard about it and went to “cross-check” himself.²⁹⁸⁵ He informed the hospital management, Dr. Jotham Nshimyumukiza, who talked to the ESO, but nothing was done.²⁹⁸⁶ Two days after, Dr. Nshimyumukiza informed the witness that the ESO had told him that the soldiers could not be punished during the war, implying that they knew about the trainings.²⁹⁸⁷

1190. He often saw Second Lieutenant Bizimana at the hospital as the Burundian refugees were being trained there, but did not know who was responsible for the training of Interahamwe outside the hospital.²⁹⁸⁸ The Interahamwe were trained within the ESO property, downhill from the ESO in a valley.²⁹⁸⁹ Specifically, downhill from the transformer where there “was a wood”.²⁹⁹⁰ This was in a valley through which there was a path that people used to go to Ngoma, opposite the hospital.²⁹⁹¹ Some of the soldiers talked about the training of the Interahamwe.²⁹⁹²

²⁹⁹² Witness YAP, T. 21 February 2011, p. 42. It is not clear from the transcript whether Witness YAP saw the training of the Interahamwe in this valley.

Prosecution Witness ZCB

1191. In April 1994, Witness ZCB, a Tutsi, was a student at the Butare University.²⁹⁹³ Witness ZCB had reliable information from his classmates that students who were members of the Interahamwe were going to be trained in the use of weapons outside the university campus.²⁹⁹⁴ Indeed, even prior to the killings, Witness ZCB knew that students from the MRND and CDR parties were going to be trained in the use of weapons at the ESO military camp, or in the wooded area near the ERST centre.²⁹⁹⁵

Defence Witness RWV11

1192. In April 1994, Witness RWV11, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO.²⁹⁹⁶ Witness RWV11 never saw any civilians or Interahamwe at the ESO; much less attend the officer's mess.²⁹⁹⁷ Any training of civilians in the military would have taken place in Mata.²⁹⁹⁸ As an instructor, Witness RWV11 would have been asked to take part if civilians were being trained at the ESO.²⁹⁹⁹

Defence Witness RWV09

1193. Witness RWV09, a Hutu, was a military officer who was assigned to the ESO around 13 or 14 April 1994.³⁰⁰⁰ Witness RWV09 did not see any training of civilians take place at the ESO during the months of April and May.³⁰⁰¹ Similarly, he never saw Interahamwe come to the ESO to eat at the officer's mess.³⁰⁰²

Defence Witness Thomas Ruzindana

1194. Witness Ruzindana, a Hutu, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.³⁰⁰³ Civilians were never trained at the ESO.³⁰⁰⁴ There are normally three types of messes at a military camp: the officers' mess, the non-commission officers' mess and the mess for privates.³⁰⁰⁵ The privates were not allowed to attend any mess but their own and the same is true for the non-commissioned officers.³⁰⁰⁶ Accordingly, Witness Ruzindana never attended the officers' mess and could therefore not attest to the presence of Interahamwe therein.³⁰⁰⁷

Deliberations

1195. Prosecution Witnesses ZBH, YAP, DCO and ZCB provided evidence on the training of civilians by ESO soldiers. Specifically, Witness ZBH noted that he received training from Second Lieutenant Gakwerere and Corporal Rutayisire at a location known as the foyer de Ngoma.³⁰⁰⁸ The witness stated that he also received training by ESO soldiers during the month of June 1994 at an unspecified location, during which Nizeyimana, accompanied by Lieutenant Hategekimana and others often came to supervise them.³⁰⁰⁹

1196. The Chamber notes that it has elsewhere discussed in detail the general context in which Witness ZBH testified and found that his evidence is to be approached with caution.³⁰¹⁰ In regards to this allegation, the Defence notes that Witness ZBH's testimony of his training in June 1994 does not comport with the war that was already in the process of being lost.³⁰¹¹ Witness ZBH explained that the reason for which he received training was to defend Butare because the Inkotanyi were about to conquer the city.³⁰¹² The Chamber does not consider it unreasonable that civilians and Interahamwe received training at a time when the city was about to be taken and does not find Witness ZBH's evidence contradictory in this regard.

1197. The Chamber has elsewhere determined that Witness ZBH, having frequently collaborated with soldiers during the genocide, would have been in a position to identify soldiers from the different camps in Butare. Notwithstanding, Witness ZBH provides little detail about the training he received. There is no further evidence corroborating the fact that training was given at the foyer de Ngoma or that Nizeyimana, in the company of Lieutenant Hategekimana, often visited sites where Interahamwe and civilians were trained. Accordingly, the Chamber does not consider his evidence dispositive.

1198. Witness YAP testified that university and hospital staff, as well as Burundian refugees, received military training.³⁰¹³ Specifically, the Burundian refugees started to receive training after the killings started in Kigali, but long before President Sindikubwabo's speech.³⁰¹⁴ While he did not know who was responsible for training the Interahamwe, he did know that they were being trained on the ESO property.³⁰¹⁵ Notably, Witness YAP conceded that he never saw the training take place, but instead "was informed" about it and went to "cross-check" himself.³⁰¹⁶ The witness does not explain who he received this information from or when he heard about this. Moreover, he does not explain how he "cross-checked" the information he received. In regards to the training of the civilians, Witness YAP noted that "some of the soldiers" talked about the training of Interahamwe.³⁰¹⁷

³⁰¹⁶ Witness YAP, T. 21 February 2011, p. 41 ("Q. The training of Burundian refugees, was that something you saw yourself, or something that was told to you by other people? A. I was informed. I was told this, but I went and cross-checked myself. As a matter of fact, I informed the hospital management which talked to ESO, but nothing was done. Indeed, I saw Second Lieutenant Bizimana often during that period.").

³⁰¹⁷ Witness YAP, T. 21 February 2011, p. 42.

1199. Witness YAP appears to infer from the presence of Second Lieutenant Bizimana at the hospital during the time of the training that ESO soldiers were responsible for the training of civilians.³⁰¹⁸ Similarly, the witness notes that he informed the hospital management of the ongoing training, who later informed him that ESO soldiers told them that soldiers could not be punished during times of war.³⁰¹⁹ Witness YAP's vague and general hear-say inferences are insufficient basis upon which to make findings beyond a reasonable doubt.

1200. Witness DCO testified that she saw that soldiers "had settled just close to the hospital" from where they started training Interahamwe around May until June 1994.³⁰²⁰ Specifically, the training took place between the ESO and the hospital grounds, directly behind the hospital kitchen.³⁰²¹ At the outset, the Chamber has considerable reservations that Witness DCO could observe people being trained at a location in between the hospital and the ESO from a position in the paediatrics ward or from below the maternity wing.³⁰²²

1201. Moreover, Witness DCO conceded that she did not know the soldiers – noting that she would normally go to Matyazo for treatment – and that Presidential Guards and Ngoma Camp soldiers were around.³⁰²³ Her ability to identify ESO soldiers is less than clear and her insistence that the ESO was located on the side of the hospital below the maternity ward raises further questions as to the quality of her evidence. In this regard, her evidence implicating ESO soldiers in the training of civilians is of limited probative value.³⁰²⁴

1202. Similarly, Witness ZCB noted that he heard that students affiliated with the MRND and CDR were going to be trained in the use of weapons at the ESO military camp or in the wooded area around the ERST centre.³⁰²⁵ Witness ZCB does not provide exact dates of when this occurred other than noting that it started "even prior to the killings".³⁰²⁶ More importantly, Witness ZCB heard that they "were going to be trained", without specifying whether they in fact received training.³⁰²⁷ Similarly, Witness ZCB heard about the future training from "reliable" classmates, without identifying who they were or when he heard about. Indeed, it is unclear from his testimony how his classmates knew about the training that was to be given – whether they were to receive such training or in turn had heard about it

³⁰²³ Witness DCO, T. 10 February 2011, pp. 59, 72.

³⁰²⁴ The Defence objected to Witness DCO's evidence of the training of Interahamwe on the basis that it had received insufficient notice thereof. Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 73-75. In light of its findings in regards to Witness DCO's testimony, the Chamber need not address the Defence's arguments regarding notice.

³⁰²⁷ Witness ZCB, T. 17 January 2011, p. 53 ("Q. You've told us about other students who had traditional weapons. Do you know who they were? A. As I have already said, most of those students were members of MRND and CDR parties. Even prior to the killings, I had reliable information to the effect that those students were going to be trained in the use of weapons at ESO military camp, or in the wooded area which was near the ERST (sic) centre. Q. Who gave you that information? A. I got the information from some of those students who were my college mates or classmates. Everybody knew that students who were members of the Interahamwe were going to be trained in the use of weapons outside the university campus.").

elsewhere. Given the vague and general nature of his hear-say evidence, the Chamber does not consider Witness ZCB's testimony dispositive.

1203. Given the vague and general nature of the evidence, the Chamber does not consider that the Prosecution has met its burden of proving that civilians and Interahamwe were trained by ESO soldiers from 7 April until mid-July 1994.³⁰²⁸ Moreover, even if the Chamber were to find that Interahamwe and civilians received training by ESO soldiers, Witness ZBH is the only witness to provide evidence on the purpose of this training. Specifically, Witness ZBH testified that they received training because the Inkotanyi were about to conquer Butare and they needed to defend themselves and the integrity of Butare prefecture.³⁰²⁹ Given the caution with which it decided to approach Witness ZBH's testimony and the uncorroborated nature of his evidence, the Chamber finds his testimony insufficient basis upon which to conclude that Nizeyimana may be held responsible for the training of civilians or that the training described necessarily contributed to crimes within the jurisdiction of the Tribunal.

1204. Notably, the Defence has presented alibi evidence that raises the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana was reassigned to lead a military training camp at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture towards the end of April 1994. It further considers reasonably possible that Nizeyimana was transferred to Nyanza in late May.³⁰³⁰ While the Chamber is not persuaded that this evidence creates the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana only returned to Butare town at one time after that date, it does raise serious doubts as to whether he significantly or substantially contributed to the training of civilians at the ESO, to the extent that it took place after Nizeyimana's reassignment. Accordingly, this allegation is dismissed.

³⁰²⁸ The Chamber notes that Defence Witnesses RWV09, RWV11 and Ruzindana all testified that they did not see civilians at the ESO and therefore did not see them receiving training. Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, p. 17; Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 17; Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 28. Moreover, Witness RWV11 notes that he would have been aware, as an instructor, of any training that occurred. Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 17. The Chamber observes that the fact that the witnesses did not see the training take place is not necessarily evidence that it did not occur. Notwithstanding, the merits of this evidence need to be reviewed in detail given the insufficiently credible or reliable Prosecution evidence that such training resulted in crimes within the Tribunal's jurisdiction.

13. ALIBI

1205. The Defence raises alibi evidence for two distinct periods. The first is from 21 to 22 April 1994 and relates to a reconnaissance mission to the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture. The second starts on 26 April with the commencement of Nizeyimana's assignment as commander of the Mata training facility. The Defence points to evidence that on 26 May 1994, Nizeyimana was reassigned from the Mata training facility to the front in Nyanza. After setting out the relevant standard for assessing an alibi, the Chamber will discuss the evidence related to each of these periods in turn.

13.1 Law

1206. In the Zigiranyirazo Appeal Judgement, the Appeals Chamber reaffirmed the basic principles concerning the assessment of alibi evidence:

An alibi does not constitute a defence in its proper sense. By raising an alibi, an accused is simply denying that he was in a position to commit the crime with which he was charged. An accused does not bear the burden of proving his alibi beyond reasonable doubt. Rather “[h]e must simply produce the evidence tending to show that he was not present at the time of the alleged crime” or, otherwise stated, present evidence “likely to raise a reasonable doubt in the Prosecution case.” If the alibi is reasonably possibly true, it must be accepted.

Where an alibi is properly raised, the Prosecution must establish beyond reasonable doubt that, despite the alibi, the facts alleged are nevertheless true. The Prosecution may do so, for instance, by demonstrating that the alibi does not in fact reasonably account for the period when the accused is alleged to have committed the crime. Where the alibi evidence does prima facie account for the accused's activities at the relevant time of the commission of the crime, the Prosecution must “eliminate the reasonable possibility that the alibi is true,” for example, by demonstrating that the alibi evidence is not credible.³⁰³¹

1207. The Appeals Chamber has also held that the manner in which an alibi is presented may impact its credibility.³⁰³² Therefore, it was within a Trial Chamber's discretion to take into account an Accused's failure to provide timely and adequate notice in assessing alibi evidence.³⁰³³

13.2 Reconnaissance Mission to Mata Tea, 21 to 22 April 1994

Introduction

1208. The Indictment implicates Nizeyimana in numerous separate crimes that are alleged to have occurred on or around 21 and 22 April 1994.³⁰³⁴ However, the Defence has presented evidence that Nizeyimana was not present in Butare town from the morning of 21 April to the early evening of 22 April 1994. Specifically, this evidence suggests that he was travelling to or from the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture where he conducted a reconnaissance mission during that time. Relevant evidence supporting this period of the alibi was given by Defence Witnesses RWV11, ZML13, CKN10, Jean Népomuscène Bunani, Thomas Ruzindana, CKN22, Melchiade Ndikumana, Vincent Ntamagezo, OUV03, RWV09, Irénée Hitayezu, Aggripine Nyiranzabonimana and Augustin Mushimiyimana, as well as Defence Rejoinder Witnesses KEN06, Déo Iyakaremye, RWV17 and Jean Claude Zikamabahari.³⁰³⁵

1209. The Prosecution contends that the notice for this period of the alibi was deficient and that the supporting evidence is unreliable and fabricated. In any case, the Prosecution further argues that it has eliminated any reasonable possibility of the alibi's truthfulness through its case-in-chief, cross-examination, and through Prosecution Rebuttal Witnesses Antoinette Bizimenyera and Côsma Twagirayezu.³⁰³⁶

Defence Witness RWV11

1210. Witness RWV11, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO prior to 6 April 1994.³⁰³⁷ 20 April was a particularly significant day for Witness RWV11 because it was his birthday, which happened to be the day after President Sindikubwabo held his speech in Butare.³⁰³⁸ The following day, 21 April, he left for a reconnaissance mission with about 15 soldiers, under the command of Nizeyimana.³⁰³⁹

1211. On 21 April 1994, Witness RWV11 got up around 6.30 a.m. and the soldiers left the ESO between 7.30 or 8.00 a.m.³⁰⁴⁰ The witness rode in a Land Rover along with First Sergeants Bunani, Hitimana and Kagimbangabo, Musirikare and Sergeant Joseph Harerimana.³⁰⁴¹ Corporal Mulindankaka (a driver), Corporal Kayitana (stretcher bearer) and

First Sergeant Kabandana (in charge of signals and transmission) also joined the mission.³⁰⁴² Nizeyimana and about five soldiers rode in an UNAMIR vehicle.³⁰⁴³

1212. The soldiers spent considerable time at many roadblocks manned by Interahamwe carrying traditional weapons as they journeyed from Butare town to Gikongoro prefecture.³⁰⁴⁴ The Interahamwe were particularly threatening given the soldiers' use of a UNAMIR vehicle, and Nizeyimana was compelled to speak with them to allow passage.³⁰⁴⁵

1213. The soldiers arrived at the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp around 10.00 a.m., and Nizeyimana left to speak with the camp commander.³⁰⁴⁶ The witness, who knew a gendarme there well, went with him to the canteen and had a beer.³⁰⁴⁷ Other soldiers remained at the vehicles, or also went to eat or drink at the kitchen or canteen.³⁰⁴⁸ The reconnaissance team remained there for about one hour before carrying on to Mata.³⁰⁴⁹

1214. There were not as many roadblocks from Gikongoro to Mata and the Interahamwe were less "vigilant".³⁰⁵⁰ The soldiers arrived at the Mata tea factory around 2.00 to 2.30 p.m.³⁰⁵¹ The witness and other soldiers went to the canteen, where they had roast meat and a beer.³⁰⁵² Nizeyimana met with the factory manager, Juvénal, for about 30 to 40 minutes.³⁰⁵³ Around 3.00 p.m. Nizeyimana ordered the soldiers to commence the reconnaissance mission.³⁰⁵⁴ Nizeyimana joined Witness RWV11's group, which went downhill to the primary school to look for a sleeping area, while others looked for a water source.³⁰⁵⁵ They stopped around 6.00 p.m. and reported their findings to Nizeyimana.³⁰⁵⁶

1215. The soldiers returned to the factory canteen to drink, cook rice and beans, or eat canned food that had been brought along.³⁰⁵⁷ Nizeyimana was with the soldiers there, sharing a drink with the factory manager.³⁰⁵⁸ The witness went to bed around 9.00 p.m., but believed that some soldiers remained at the canteen until 10.00 or 11.00 p.m.³⁰⁵⁹

1216. The following day, 22 April 1994, the witness had breakfast and the reconnaissance mission recommenced around 7.00 a.m.³⁰⁶⁰ Nizeyimana and other unidentified soldiers went to look for a suitable firing range.³⁰⁶¹ The witness went to the river, while other soldiers examined locations for tents and inspected the grounds.³⁰⁶² They again reported their findings to Nizeyimana, and the mission concluded around 2.00 p.m.³⁰⁶³ The group packed their belongings and left Mata, travelling through Kibeho, Runyinya and Matyazo before arriving at the ESO around 5.30 p.m.³⁰⁶⁴

1217. Witness ZML13, a Hutu, joined the ESO in 1989 and began military training in 1991.³⁰⁶⁵ He was a “pupil sergeant” and Chief Warrant Officer François Ntibirama was his platoon leader in 1994.³⁰⁶⁶ Between 7.00 and 8.00 a.m. on 21 April, a corporal informed the witness that he and other non-commissioned officers had to present themselves to the command office in combat uniform.³⁰⁶⁷

1218. The witness joined other soldiers of various ranks at the assembly point. Warrant Officer Ngalinde informed them that they had been selected to go on a reconnaissance mission to Mata.³⁰⁶⁸ Among the group were First Sergeants Hitimana and Méthode Mulinda (instructor), Thomas Ruzindana, Shadrack Kagimbangabo, and Corporal Kayitana (stretcher bearer).³⁰⁶⁹ In total, between 12 and 15 soldiers, including senior officers, formed part of the mission.³⁰⁷⁰

1219. They left in two vehicles between 8.30 and 9.00 a.m.³⁰⁷¹ Nizeyimana and his bodyguards drove a UNAMIR vehicle and the witness and others loaded into a military jeep.³⁰⁷² Along the way to Gikongoro, the convoy passed between 10 to 20 roadblocks. Nizeyimana frequently spoke to those manning the roadblocks, and they stayed at each between 10 to 30 minutes.³⁰⁷³

1220. They arrived at the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp after travelling about one and a half to two hours.³⁰⁷⁴ Nizeyimana went to speak with the camp commander while other soldiers went to the kitchen. The witness remained at the vehicles with a corporal who was driving. The soldiers left after about 45 minutes to an hour.³⁰⁷⁵

1221. They arrived in Mata between 1.30 and 2.00 p.m., and the tea factory director came to greet them.³⁰⁷⁶ Some of the soldiers had skewered meat at the tea factory canteen while others had a drink.³⁰⁷⁷ Afterward, Nizeyimana and Warrant Officer Ngalinde issued instructions to the soldiers.³⁰⁷⁸ One group inspected the neighbourhood, others went to identify the locations for a clinic and tents, another group installed the radio transmitter and tested radio communications, and another group searched for water sources.³⁰⁷⁹ Nizeyimana participated in these tasks as well.³⁰⁸⁰

1222. The soldiers stopped reconnaissance activities around 6.30 p.m. and returned to the canteen. Witness ZML13 stayed close to Nizeyimana, Ngalinde as well as the factory's managing director, the "tea maker" and other employees of the factory.³⁰⁸¹ The witness remained until about 10.00 p.m. before he went and slept in the home of a private person.³⁰⁸² The officers, including Nizeyimana, spent the evening in the factory guesthouse not far from tea factory building.³⁰⁸³

1223. The next morning, the witness awoke between 5.00 and 5.30 a.m. and assembled at the "field" with the others between 6.00 and 6.30 a.m.³⁰⁸⁴ They were subdivided into groups that went to find water points, test radio communications and identify a firing range.³⁰⁸⁵ Witness ZML13 was with Nizeyimana and others who travelled about three to four kilometres to Nyamyumba to identify a firing range.³⁰⁸⁶ They remained there until about 1.00 p.m. before returning to Mata, where the other groups reported on their activities.³⁰⁸⁷ The soldiers then went to the canteen to get something to eat and drink.³⁰⁸⁸

1224. They returned to Butare town, using a different route that passed through Kibeho, Amarogo and Matyazo.³⁰⁸⁹ They arrived at the ESO around dusk and the witness returned to his dormitory.³⁰⁹⁰

Defence Witness CKN10

1225. Witness CKN10, a Hutu, was a student in the first batch at the ESO and was a sergeant in April 1994.³⁰⁹¹ On 19 April, he was assigned as additional protection for the MRND palace because President Théodore Sindikubwabo was giving a speech there that day.³⁰⁹² The following day – 20 April – the witness was at camp but without an assignment.³⁰⁹³ However, around 2.00 p.m., he was told to prepare for a reconnaissance mission.³⁰⁹⁴

1226. Between 8.00 and 10.00 a.m. on 21 April 1994, the witness joined Nizeyimana and 12 to 13 other soldiers who left for the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture.³⁰⁹⁵ Nizeyimana, his bodyguard and his driver, Corporal Gahutu, were in a white vehicle that had been left by UNAMIR.³⁰⁹⁶ The witness rode in an ESO military Land Rover, driven by Murindankana, along with Warrant Officer Ngalinde, Sergeant Major Rwegisha, First Sergeants Bunani and Hitimana, Sergeants Ruzindana and Harerimana, Kanbandana (a radio operator), Corporal Kayitana (a stretcher bearer) and Nkurunziza.³⁰⁹⁷

1227. En route, they were stopped at more than 10 roadblocks manned by members of the public.³⁰⁹⁸ The witness believed that they experienced problems because of the UNAMIR vehicle and the civilians' belief that UNAMIR forces had taken part in the attack against the President.³⁰⁹⁹ They remained at these roadblocks between 10 to 45 minutes.³¹⁰⁰

1228. They arrived at the gendarmerie camp in Gikongoro prefecture around 11.30 a.m. and stopped there for about an hour, eating rice and beans while Nizeyimana met with the camp commander.³¹⁰¹ They travelled between an hour to an hour and a half, stopping between six to nine times at roadblocks, before reaching the Mata tea factory around 1.00 and 2.00 p.m.³¹⁰² They parked near the factory canteen and were greeted by the Mata tea factory's manager, Juvénal Ndabarinze, as well as three others.³¹⁰³ They had a meal in the canteen, remaining there for about an hour before they left around 3.00 p.m.³¹⁰⁴

1229. The soldiers then inspected the Mata football field as a location for pitching tents, went to Huhambe primary school and then to a river close to the tea plantation to look for sources of water.³¹⁰⁵ They went to each location by vehicle and Nizeyimana was among the soldiers the entire time.³¹⁰⁶ This process took about three hours.³¹⁰⁷

1230. The soldiers, including Nizeyimana, returned to the canteen around 6.00 p.m. and had a drink with tea factory workers.³¹⁰⁸ They remained there until around midnight.³¹⁰⁹ The witness spent the night in a house not far from the canteen and Nizeyimana spent the evening in the tea factory guest house.³¹¹⁰

1231. The witness arose the following day, 22 April 1994, around 6.00 to 6.30 a.m.³¹¹¹ He and the other soldiers ate at the canteen and resumed their work between 7.30 and 8.00 a.m.³¹¹² They continued the same reconnaissance carried out the day before, looked for places to jog and searched for a suitable firing range.³¹¹³ In addition, the radio operator installed radio equipment in the guest house and successfully established communications with the ESO command in Butare.³¹¹⁴

1232. They ate lunch at the canteen around 12.00 p.m. and left for Butare around 1.30 p.m.³¹¹⁵ The soldiers returned, passing through Kibeho, Miyogoro and Matyazo before reaching Ngoma commune in Butare prefecture. They were stopped at less than 10 roadblocks, which were manned by civilians armed with traditional weapons. These stops lasted about 15 minutes each and usually required Nizeyimana having to explain why they were using a UNAMIR vehicle. They arrived in Butare town around 5.30 p.m.³¹¹⁶

Defence Witness Jean Népomuscène Bunani

1233. Witness Bunani, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO in 1994.³¹¹⁷ On 20 April, while on assignment at Kanage in Kibayi commune near the Akanyaru river, a driver gave the witness a note from Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi instructing the witness to report to the ESO.³¹¹⁸ He recalled this date because Corporal Ngendambizi had told him about President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech on 19 April.³¹¹⁹ The witness and the driver returned to the ESO with Corporal Nambajimana in a civilian pickup truck, arriving around 2.00 or 2.30 p.m.³¹²⁰ Witness Bunani went to see Muvunyi, who instructed the witness to see Nizeyimana.³¹²¹ Nizeyimana informed the witness to prepare to go to Mata.³¹²²

1234. Between 7.30 and 8.00 a.m. on 21 April 1994, the witness left for Mata with Nizeyimana, First Sergeants Rwegisha, Methode Mulinda and Nsaguye, Sergeants Shadrack Kagimbangabo, Ruzindana and Nusilikare, Sergeant Major Kabandana (radio operator), Corporals Gahutu and Murindankaka (drivers) and Corporal Kayitana (a nurse or stretcher bearer).³¹²³ They travelled in a military jeep and a UNAMIR vehicle.³¹²⁴ The convoy was stopped at “many” roadblocks manned by civilians armed with machetes along the way.³¹²⁵ They stated that Inyenzi were among soldiers and so they needed to be checked as well.³¹²⁶

1235. The convoy stopped at the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp around 12.00 p.m.³¹²⁷ There, Nizeyimana spoke with the camp commander, and Witness Bunani, Rwegisha, Mulinda and other soldiers got drinks at the canteen.³¹²⁸ They departed around 12.30 and 1.00 p.m. arriving at the Mata tea factory between 2.00 or 2.30 p.m.³¹²⁹ Nizeyimana met with the factory manager, while the soldiers ate at the canteen.³¹³⁰ After that, Nizeyimana, Warrant Officer Ngalinde and about two or three others went to look for a firing range on Nyamyumba hill.³¹³¹ Another group looked for a location where the tents for the recruits could be set up.³¹³² The witness and his group scouted locations for a training centre and identified water sources.³¹³³

1236. The soldiers returned to the canteen between 5.00 and 6.00 p.m.³¹³⁴ Witness Bunani left the canteen around 10.30 p.m., while Nizeyimana remained there talking to the factory manager.³¹³⁵ Nizeyimana, Ngalinde, Rwegisha, Kabandana and Kayitana stayed at the factory guesthouse, while the drivers slept in the vehicles and the remaining soldiers stayed in tents.³¹³⁶

1237. Following instructions, the soldiers reconvened at the guest house where Nizeyimana stayed the following morning.³¹³⁷ Afterward, Nizeyimana and his team continued to look for a firing range and carried out other reconnaissance tasks.³¹³⁸ They returned to the canteen between 1.00 and 2.00 p.m. for lunch.³¹³⁹ The group departed between 2.00 and 3.00 p.m., passing Kibeho, Huye hill, Muyogoro before arriving at the ESO Camp around 5.00 to 5.30 p.m.³¹⁴⁰

Defence Witness Thomas Ruzindana

On 19 April, President Théodore Sindikubwabo gave a speech at the MRND palace in Butare.³¹⁴²

1239. The following day, 20 April 1994, Witness Ruzindana's platoon chief told him to prepare to go on a reconnaissance mission.³¹⁴³ Two days after the President's speech, on 21 April, Nizeyimana led the reconnaissance team, which included Witness Ruzindana, Warrant Officer Ngalinde, First Sergeant Mulinda, Sergeant Shadrack Kagimbangabo, Kabandana (radio operator), Mulindankaka (driver), and a Sagahutu.³¹⁴⁴ They left the ESO around 8.00 a.m. in a UNAMIR vehicle and another jeep.³¹⁴⁵

1240. On their way to Gikongoro, they passed between 10 to 15 roadblocks manned by Interahamwe.³¹⁴⁶ He recalled staying at one roadblock in Gikongoro for about 30 to 35 minutes.³¹⁴⁷ Usually, Nizeyimana, accompanied by his three escorts, would explain to those manning the barriers what the purpose of their mission was.³¹⁴⁸ They arrived at the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp around 10.20 to 10.30 a.m.³¹⁴⁹ Nizeyimana spoke with the camp commander in the officers' mess, while the witness and other soldiers ate rice and beans with the gendarmes in their canteen.³¹⁵⁰

1241. The soldiers left the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp about an hour after arrival.³¹⁵¹ They reached the Mata tea factory around 1.30 p.m. having passing between 20 to 25 more roadblocks, where they were stopped for no more than 10 minutes at each.³¹⁵² The Mata tea factory manager, Juvénal Ndabarinze, and three factory employees greeted the soldiers.³¹⁵³ The soldiers then ate shredded beef and drank at the factory canteen for about one hour or an hour and a half.³¹⁵⁴

1242. The reconnaissance started around 3.00 p.m. and lasted until about 6.00 p.m.³¹⁵⁵ The soldiers looked for potable water sources, suitable locations for communication and military installations, grounds for training and to a place to "pitch the camp", as well as searching for vehicular access to bring supplies.³¹⁵⁶ They did not have time to look for a shooting range.³¹⁵⁷ Nizeyimana remained alongside the soldiers and the reconnaissance activities stopped around 6.00 p.m.³¹⁵⁸ The soldiers prepared their dinner in the canteen and Nizeyimana remained with

1243. The next day, 22 April 1994, the soldiers got up around 6.30 a.m., had breakfast and continued reconnaissance activities, including a further review of water sources, as well as testing radio communications.³¹⁶¹ They stopped around midday and had lunch.³¹⁶² At an unidentified time, they left for Butare, passing through Kibeho and Miyogoro.³¹⁶³ They passed not more than 10 roadblocks and were stopped no longer than seven to 10 minutes at any of them.³¹⁶⁴ They arrived at the ESO around 6.00 p.m.³¹⁶⁵

1244. Witness CKN22, a Hutu, worked for the Rwandan government in Munini sub-prefecture, Gikongoro in April 1994.³¹⁶⁶ On Wednesday, 20 April, he paid a visit to the Mata tea factory, which he did every Wednesday.³¹⁶⁷ About a kilometre away, his motorcycle broke down.³¹⁶⁸ He left it with a tea factory employee, Callixte Ndayisaba, and borrowed Callixte's motorcycle to return home.³¹⁶⁹

1245. The next day, Witness CKN22 returned to the Mata tea factory around midday, but his motorcycle had not yet been repaired.³¹⁷⁰ Around 2.00 p.m., while waiting near the tea factory garage, he saw more than 10 soldiers arrive in a military jeep and a UNAMIR vehicle.³¹⁷¹ The witness recognised Nizeyimana, a captain from the ESO who had been previously pointed out to the witness in 1991 and who was generally well known in Butare.³¹⁷²

1246. The factory manager, Juvénal Ndabarinze, offered the soldiers' drinks.³¹⁷³ The witness overheard Nizeyimana inform the director that they were there to conduct a reconnaissance mission.³¹⁷⁴ The witness also heard soldiers discussing that they would inspect a site where they intended to set up tents.³¹⁷⁵ The soldiers left, while the witness remained at the factory.³¹⁷⁶

The soldiers returned to the canteen around 5.30 p.m. and the manager offered them drinks.³¹⁷⁷ The witness remained at a table with Nizeyimana, the manager, Callixte, another civilian who was a male university student and at least one other soldier that evening, discussing various topics.³¹⁷⁸ He went to bed around midnight and slept in the manager's house or office.³¹⁷⁹ He believed that Nizeyimana slept in the factory guesthouse, while some soldiers remained in the factory hangar and others in the canteen.³¹⁸⁰

1248. The witness awoke around 7.00 a.m. the next morning and saw Nizeyimana washing near the factory guesthouse around 7.30 a.m.³¹⁸¹ He also saw soldiers outside the canteen taking their breakfast and later observed them moving about the factory.³¹⁸² They returned to the factory canteen between 1.00 and 2.00 p.m. and took their meal.³¹⁸³ Nizeyimana had told the witness that they intended to pass through Kibehe and the witness informed the captain that he was going in that direction as well.³¹⁸⁴ The witness drove his motorcycle in front of the soldiers for about 10 to 12 kilometres until they reached Kibehe. The witness bid goodbye to Nizeyimana, waved to the soldiers and they parted ways.³¹⁸⁵

1249. Witness CKN22 believed that there were four roadblocks between Gikongoro town and Mata.³¹⁸⁶ He experienced little difficulty at them, having only to present his identification card after which he would be allowed to pass.³¹⁸⁷ He did not use the route between Gikongoro town and Butare town and did not know how many roadblocks were along it.³¹⁸⁸

Defence Witness Melchiade Ndikumana

1250. Witness Ndikumana, a native of Gikongoro prefecture, was a first year student in public health at the National University of Rwanda in Butare in 1994.³¹⁸⁹ On Friday 15 April, the witness went to visit his godfather, Callixte Ndayisaba, who was in charge of quality control at the Mata tea factory.³¹⁹⁰ About one week later, around 20 or 21 April, the Mata tea factory manager, Juvénal Ndabarinze, asked the witness to come to his office.³¹⁹¹ Witness Ndikumana saw Ndabarinze and about 10 soldiers upon arrival.³¹⁹² The manager presented Nizeyimana as the leader of the group and asked the witness to take care of them at the factory canteen.³¹⁹³

1251. The witness brought them to the canteen around 1.30 p.m., but did not see any vehicle near the manager's office.³¹⁹⁴ The soldiers ate and drank and about two hours later, Nizeyimana instructed the witness to leave them alone as they had work to do.³¹⁹⁵ The soldiers left and the witness did not observe what they did.³¹⁹⁶ Around 6.30 p.m., when several factory employees had come to the canteen after they finished working, the soldiers also returned.³¹⁹⁷ Nizeyimana was among them, and stayed there until midnight, eating and drinking with the others.³¹⁹⁸ The witness saw that Nizeyimana stayed in a house next to the manager's office.³¹⁹⁹

1252. They continued their work the following morning.³²⁰⁰ Around 1:00 p.m. Nizeyimana returned.³²⁰¹ He told the witness that they had completed their assignment, and he went to inform the Mata tea factory manager as much.³²⁰² The group had a drink and ate something before leaving Mata between 2:30 or 3:00 p.m.³²⁰³

Defence Witness Vincent Ntamagezo

1253. Witness Ntamagezo, a Hutu, was a private cadet in the ESO's third batch in April 1994.³²⁰⁴ He was assigned to the Military Police platoon on 21 April to provide security in light of the unrest in Butare town.³²⁰⁵ He remained in this platoon for three days.³²⁰⁶ On 21 April, around 8.00 or 8.30 a.m., he saw Nizeyimana with Warrant Officer Ngalinde standing around the assembly area, near the UNAMIR jeep.³²⁰⁷ Witness Ntamagezo spoke with one of the sergeants who stood not far from them, and he told the witness that they were getting ready to go to Mata.³²⁰⁸ Nizeyimana left that day with other soldiers to prepare for establishment of the Mata training centre.³²⁰⁹ The witness estimated the distance between himself and Nizeyimana to have been approximately 60 metres.³²¹⁰

Defence Witness OUV03

1254. Witness OUV03, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO in April 1994.³²¹¹ On 17 April, the chief of the general staff sent a message with an instruction for Nizeyimana to go to Mata.³²¹² From that date until 21 April, Nizeyimana prepared for a reconnaissance mission.

1255. On 21 April 1994, Nizeyimana, Warrant Officer Ngalinde and Corporal Rwabutwaza (a radio operator) were among 10 to 12 soldiers who left for Mata to conduct a reconnaissance mission.³²¹³ The witness observed them leave between 7.00 and 8.00 a.m. in a UNAMIR Nissan jeep and another jeep equipped with a radio transmitter.³²¹⁴ They conducted radio tests at 6.00 and 8.00 p.m. on that day and at 8.00 a.m. and 2.00 p.m. on 22 April.³²¹⁵ The soldiers returned to the ESO before 7.00 p.m. on 22 April, as Witness OUV03 spoke with Corporal Rwabutwaza, who had gone on the mission, before then. Rwabutwaza confirmed that they had no problem establishing a radio connection between the ESO and the tea factory.³²¹⁶

1256. Witness RWV09, a Hutu, was a military officer who was assigned to the ESO Camp around 13 or 14 April 1994.³²¹⁷ On 18 April, the general staff sent a telegram to the ESO command to set up a camp to train soldiers.³²¹⁸ Witness RWV09's division, the S4 office, was given a copy of the message that day.³²¹⁹ On the same day, Nizeyimana was instructed to make preparations for this camp.³²²⁰ Over the next three to four days, Nizeyimana looked for instructors, necessary material and equipment.³²²¹ Around 21 or 22 April, a group, including Nizeyimana, went to Mata for a reconnaissance mission, although the witness was not part of it.³²²²

Defence Witness Irénée Hitayezu

1257. Witness Hitayezu, a Hutu, was an ESO cadet and returned from vacation to the ESO Camp on 20 April 1994.³²²³ Upon arrival, the witness's unidentified superior assigned him to reinforce guards at Nizeyimana's residence.³²²⁴ He held this post from 20 to 23 April, beginning at 6.00 p.m. each evening and continuing through the night.³²²⁵ Nizeyimana only stayed at his home on the night of 23 to 24 April.³²²⁶

1258. Nizeyimana's wife, son, a young girl and domestic worker were present on the evening of 21 April 1994.³²²⁷ The next day, around 7.00 p.m., a military vehicle arrived and Nizeyimana's family welcomed an unidentified man, woman and children.³²²⁸

Defence Witness Aggripine Nyiranzabonimana

1259. Witness Nyiranzabonimana, a Hutu, was a teacher in 1994 and lived in Buye cellule, Butare town, on the same street as Nizeyimana.³²²⁹ On the evening of 21 April, the witness and her husband, Jean Baptiste Ruzindaza, returned home early, having heard gunshots the previous evening and learning of the deaths of the Maniraho family.³²³⁰

1260. After 8.00 p.m., the witness and Ruzindaza heard people passing outside their house, followed by about five minutes of gunshots.³²³¹ While the witness remained in the bedroom, Ruzindaza went to living room and called Nizeyimana seeking an explanation. He was informed that Nizeyimana was not there that night.³²³² Around 5.00 a.m. the following morning, Ruzindaza phoned Nizeyimana again, but Nizeyimana's wife told him that Nizeyimana was not home.³²³³

Defence Witness Augustin Mushimiyimana

1261. In April 1994, Witness Mushimiyimana, a Hutu, was a soldier in the Rwandan army attached to the flight squadron at Kanombe airport, Kigali.³²³⁴ The witness, who had a Tutsi wife, requested leave on 16 April in order to evacuate her to Butare town.³²³⁵ He was given leave, but had to remain in Kigali until he completed work on an aircraft, which occurred on 19 April.³²³⁶

1262. On 20 April 1994, he drove a UNAMIR vehicle with his Tutsi wife, Corporal Nzambadora and his wife, and the wife of Warrant Officer Pascal Gatengwa to Butare town.³²³⁷ The witness and his wife stayed with his friend, Chief Warrant Officer Célestin Ngalinde, on the night of 20 April.³²³⁸ Ngalinde left the following morning – 21 April – and did not return until 6.00 p.m. on 22 April.³²³⁹ Ngalinde told the witness that he was assigned to join Nizeyimana as the second in command on a reconnaissance mission to Mata.³²⁴⁰

Prosecution Rebuttal Witness Antoinette Bizimenyera

1263. Witness Bizimenyera, a Tutsi, was married to banker Jean Baptiste Mukimbili, in 1994.³²⁴¹ The witness and her family left Ruhango on 19 April and stayed in the guest house of the Bank of Kigali's Butare branch that evening.³²⁴² Having heard gun fire throughout the night, they telephoned Nizeyimana at his office at 8.00 a.m. on 20 April. He told them to be patient.³²⁴³

1264. After nothing happened, they called Nizeyimana again around 11.00 a.m.³²⁴⁴ Minutes later, a vehicle arrived with three soldiers.³²⁴⁵ They took the witness, her husband and their two children to Nizeyimana's home.³²⁴⁶ After she arrived, the witness saw Nizeyimana at his home and recalled seeing him there as well the next day, 21 April 1994.³²⁴⁷ Throughout April, Nizeyimana would leave in the morning, return for lunch and then return after work.³²⁴⁸ The witness and her family remained at Nizeyimana's home for about one month and a half.³²⁴⁹

1265. Mukimbili's older brother, Longin Rudasingwa, also stayed at the home. Indeed, the witness recalled that only her family, Nizeyimana and his wife resided at his house during that period. She did not remember another particular woman staying at the household.³²⁵⁰

Prosecution Rebuttal Witness Côme Twagirayezu

1266. Witness Twagirayezu, a Hutu, was a night watchman employed by the Mata tea factory in 1994.³²⁵¹ He guarded five houses of factory employees night and day – including Callixte Ndayisaba (tea maker), Ildéphonse (controller) and his wife Joy Mukundwa, Joseph

(accountant) and Julien Butoli – from 6 April until July.³²⁵² Nizeyimana did not stay at the Mata tea factory overnight from 21 to 22 April.³²⁵³ He first saw Nizeyimana at the Mata tea factory around the end of May.³²⁵⁴

Defence Rejoinder Witness KEN06

1267. Witness KEN06, a Hutu, stayed at Nizeyimana's house from 18 April until 2 May 1994.³²⁵⁵ Due to an illness, she seldom left her bedroom during this time and never once went outside the compound.³²⁵⁶ Donata Mutezimana, the wife of the Accused, her son and a house maid all stayed on the property. There were also guards posted outside the house.³²⁵⁷

1268. Witness KEN06 saw Nizeyimana four times during her stay: once on the evening of the 18 April 1994, twice on 23 April (midday and evening) and once on the morning of 24 April, after which she did not see him again.³²⁵⁸

Defence Rejoinder Witness Déo Iyakaremye

1269. In April 1994, Witness Iyakaremye, a Hutu, was a messenger at the Bank of Kigali in Butare.³²⁵⁹ Jean Baptiste Mukimbiri, a former manager of the Bank of Kigali in Butare, was transferred to the Bank's Ruhango branch at some point before 6 April.³²⁶⁰ The Bank of Kigali in Butare closed after 6 April.³²⁶¹ When the witness returned to work on 19 April, he saw Mukimbiri in the guestroom of the bank with his wife, Antoinette, and their children.³²⁶² Mukimbiri had returned to Butare town to avoid the violence in Ruhango and was staying with his family in the bank's guestroom.³²⁶³ The witness continued to see Mukimbiri at the bank each day through 22 April and spoke with him on 20, 21 and 22 April.³²⁶⁴ On the morning of 23 April, two guards at the bank told the witness that they saw a military vehicle take Mukimbiri and his family away the previous evening, on 22 April.³²⁶⁵

Defence Rejoinder Witnesses RWV17

between 10 to 20 soldiers arrived at the Mata tea factory in the afternoon. The witness saw them at the canteen and noted that one was a “grade or rank higher than” his fellow soldiers. The witness’s husband identified this person as Nizeyimana, who shared his name. They stayed for one night, and her husband told her that Nizeyimana stayed in the factory guesthouse.³²⁶⁷

Defence Witness Jean Claude Zikamabahari

1271. In April 1994, Witness Zikamabahari, a Hutu, ran a small shop in the Mata trading centre.³²⁶⁸ One afternoon, about two weeks after the President’s death, the witness observed soldiers on board a military UNAMIR vehicle and a military Land Rover jeep. He saw them pass his shop and head towards the tea factory and the Nyamyumba military camp.³²⁶⁹ Throughout the day he “saw those vehicles [go] back and forth” but he did not know their mission.³²⁷⁰ He believed that they had left by the following afternoon or evening as he did not see the vehicles again.³²⁷¹

Deliberations

1272. The Defence claims that from the morning of 21 April until the early evening of 22 April 1994, Nizeyimana was not in Butare town. Specifically, he and a group of soldiers travelled to Gikongoro prefecture to conduct a reconnaissance at the Mata tea factory for a military training facility. They remained there through the evening of 21 April, conducted additional reconnaissance the following morning and returned to Butare town in the early evening of 22 April.

1273. The details of this 21 to 22 April 1994 reconnaissance mission were led through the accounts of Defence Witnesses RWV11, ZML13, CKN10, Bunani and Ruzindana, all of whom were ESO soldiers. Defence Witnesses RWV09, OUV03 and Ntamagezo, also ESO soldiers, confirmed that Nizeyimana was away from the ESO Camp on those days conducting a reconnaissance mission. Similarly, Defence Witnesses CKN22, Ndikumana and RWV17, civilians in the vicinity of the Mata tea factory, presented evidence that Nizeyimana and soldiers were there on 21 and 22 April. Defence Rejoinder Witness Zikamabahari remembered seeing soldiers at Mata tea factory around the last third of April.

1274. Furthermore, Defence Witness Mushimiyimana, a soldier based in Kigali in 1994, arrived in Butare on 20 April. He testified that his host, ESO Chief Warrant Officer Célestin Ngalinde left his home on 21 April and did not return until the following evening. Ngalinde informed the witness that he had been assigned to go on mission with Nizeyimana to Mata. Defence Witness Habyarimana testified that he met Tharcisse Muvunyi at the ESO Camp around 10.00 p.m. on 21 April and did not see Nizeyimana there that evening. Finally, Defence Witnesses KEN06, a young girl convalescing in Nizeyimana’s home, Hitayezu, an ESO soldier assigned to guard Nizeyimana’s residence, and Nyiranzabonimana, a neighbour of Nizeyimana, provided evidence tending to suggest that Nizeyimana was not at his home on the evening of 21 April and the following morning.

1275. The Prosecution argues that the manner in which the alibi was raised reflects that it was fabricated.³²⁷² It further suggests that evolutions in the Defence witnesses' testimonies as well as the precision within their accounts reflect that they lack credibility and were concocted to rebut Prosecution evidence. The Chamber evaluates the merits of the Defence alibi evidence, addressing these allegations in turn.

(i) Notice of Alibi

1276. The Prosecution submits that it was not given notice of the alibi until one business day before the commencement of the Prosecution case.³²⁷³ Furthermore, it contends that the number of alibi witnesses doubled through four additional filings made by the Defence during the Prosecution case.³²⁷⁴

1277. The Chamber recalls that late notification of an alibi may support concerns that it was fabricated in order to rebut Prosecution evidence.³²⁷⁵ However, delays in the finalisation of an alibi witness list alone are insufficient to demonstrate that the Defence sought out witnesses to tailor an accused's alibi to the Prosecution case.³²⁷⁶ It may, however, when considered among other factors that raise questions about an alibi's credibility, allow a reasonable trier of fact to conclude that the alibi evidence is not reasonably possibly true. These factors may include a troubling uniformity of the alibi evidence, connections between witnesses and the accused, inconsistencies that raise concerns about the evidence, as well as observations made during the site visit, which undermine the reasonableness of the alibi.³²⁷⁷

1278. The Defence filed a notice of alibi prior to the commencement of trial on 12 January 2011.³²⁷⁸ The notice provided an indication that the Defence would present evidence that Nizeyimana left Butare town "in the morning of 21 April 1994 to the following day late in the afternoon" and that he had gone to Mata to establish a "training centre".³²⁷⁹ The notice lists the names and countries of residence of four of the eight witnesses who ultimately provided first-hand accounts of Nizeyimana's presence at Mata on those dates,³²⁸⁰ as well as four of the eight witnesses who provided second-hand or circumstantial support to his absence from Butare on 21 and 22 April.³²⁸¹ This Chamber previously considered that this notification was in line with the Defence's obligations pursuant to Rule 67(A)(ii)(a) of the Rules.³²⁸²

1279. The number of alibi witnesses increased throughout the course of the Prosecution case. Indeed, the Chamber allowed the Prosecution to recall rebuttal witnesses in the interests of justice, considering, in particular, the Defence's piece-meal and delayed identification regarding its prospective witnesses, or other evidence on which it intended to rely.³²⁸³ Significantly, the record indicates that Witnesses RWV11, Ruzindana, CKN22 and RWV17 – each providing direct evidence of Nizeyimana's presence at the Mata tea factory during the 21 to 22 April 1994 reconnaissance mission – were first contacted by the Defence after it had filed its notice of alibi.³²⁸⁴ In this regard, the late identification in these instances may have resulted from ongoing investigations rather than evidence manufacturing.

1280. Notwithstanding, the Chamber observes evolutions in the notice of alibi as it pertained to which ESO soldiers accompanied Nizeyimana on the reconnaissance mission to Mata. The Prosecution, without objection from the Defence, confronted Defence Witnesses CKN10, Ruzindana, ZML13 and Bunani with the assertion that they testified about the presence of additional soldiers in the reconnaissance mission that were not listed within their prior statements to the Defence.³²⁸⁵

³²⁸⁵ Witness CKN10 was confronted with a statement to Defence investigators that he only mentioned Ngalinde, Bunani, Mulinda, Hitimana, and Nkurunziza and reference to a "stretcher-bearer" among those who went on the reconnaissance mission to Mata. Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, p. 40. To the contrary, the statement does not identify Rwegisha, Ruzindana, Murindankaka, Harerimana, Kanbanda or Gahutu, persons the witness testified had accompanied them. See Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 47 and Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 41-42. The Prosecution also pointed out that Witness CKN10 failed to identify in his testimony-in-chief that Nkurunziza accompanied the group. Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, p. 41. The Prosecution noted that in the summary of Ruzindana's evidence given by the Defence, he recalled the names of Warrant Officer Ngalinda, Sergeant Mulinda, Sergeant Kagimbangabo, Sergeant Hitimana, Sergeant Nkurinziza, Sergeant Musirakare and Sergeant Bunani and an unnamed "stretcher-bearer" as present during the reconnaissance mission. Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 62. The Prosecution observed that while testifying before the Chamber, the witness also recalled the names of Kabandana, Sagahutu, Mulindankaka (referred to as Merindankaka), and corporal Kayitana. Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 62. The Prosecution noted that in Witness ZML13's prior statement to members of the Defence, the witness had only identified Nizeyimana, Ngalinde and Kagimbangabo as going to Mata. Witness ZML13, T. 7 June 2011, p. 64. Yet, during his testimony the prior day, he also identified Hitimana, Kayitana, Mulinda and Ruzindana. Witness ZML13, T. 7 June 2011, p. 64. The Prosecution challenged Bunani's recollection of the event, noting that in a prior statement to the Defence, he only identified Ngalinde, Rwegisha, Hitimana, Mulinda, Musirikari, Nsaguye, and Nkurunziza as the soldiers that travelled to Mata. Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 43. Nonetheless, he could now recall six additional persons – namely Gahutu, Murindankaka, Kabandana, Kayitana, Kagimbangabo and Ruzindana. Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, pp. 43-44. See Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 508. The 1281. Of particular significance, the original notice of alibi, as well as information provided through the Defence witness will-say statements does not appear to have identified Witness Ruzindana as a member of the reconnaissance mission.³²⁸⁶ Even if Ruzindana had been contacted after the notice was filed, the addition of key information once at trial – i.e. the presence of Ruzindana – along with the growing uniformity of evidence distinct from the notice provided raises some concerns about its credibility.³²⁸⁷ The Chamber considers this relevant to the assessment of alibi evidence and shall consider it.

(ii) Merits of Alibi Evidence for the Reconnaissance Mission

1282. The Prosecution asserts that the content of the Defence evidence indicates that it was fabricated. In particular, evidence provided by the key alibi witnesses who accompanied Nizeyimana to and from the Mata tea factory contained “unmemorable detail” about mundane events in the midst of the war. Considering that the events occurred over the course of a “single day 17 years ago”, and that many of the witnesses did not take notes, the Prosecution alleges that their present recollections are “‘over-cooked’ fabrications” concocted to meet the needs of the Accused.³²⁸⁸

1283. The Chamber notes that there is no direct evidence of witness tampering or collusion.³²⁸⁹ The primary alibi witnesses who accompanied Nizeyimana to Mata or saw him there on 21 and 22 April 1994 were living in four different countries at the time of their testimonies.³²⁹⁰ Witnesses who gave evidence tending to indicate that Nizeyimana was not in Prosecution also argues that Witness RWV11 added three names. See Prosecution Closing Brief, para. 508(c). He was not cross-examined on this point.

³²⁸⁶ Witness RWV11, a late identified alibi witness, appears to have identified Ruzindana. See Amended Pre-Defence Brief, 27 March 2011, No. 28 in Annex of Summaries of Anticipated Statements from Nizeyimana Defence Witnesses.

³²⁸⁷ In so finding, the Chamber is mindful of the limited probative value of will-say statements, particularly where their contents have not been confirmed by the witnesses. See Kalimanzira Appeal Judgement, para. 180. In this context, the Chamber notes that only Witness ZML13 testified that the will-say was incorrect. See Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, pp. 65-66. Others questioned about the differences tacitly acknowledged the contents of their will-say statements by explaining the differences between them and their testimony. Specifically, Witnesses CKN10 and Ruzindana noted that the interceding 17 years made it difficult to initially recall all the persons present. Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 42-43; Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 62. The Defence highlighted that Witness CKN10’s statement reflected that the names provided were not exhaustive. See Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, p. 42 (those identified in the statement were also “among others”). Witnesses Ruzindana and Bunani explained that continued efforts allowed them to recall additional names. Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 62; Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, pp. 43-44 (also denying that anyone helped him remember the additional names). Witness ZML13 did not verify his prior statements given to the Defence, raising the reasonable possibility that names were omitted by the person interviewing him.

³²⁸⁹ See, e.g., Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, pp. 62 (testifying that the last time he had contact with any member of the reconnaissance team was in 2006), 63 (acknowledging that he had previously sworn to tell the truth and denying that his testimony was not a result of loyalty to Nizeyimana); Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 44-46 (indicating that the last time he spoke with anyone on the reconnaissance mission was in 2006); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 71 (denying that, out of loyalty, he tailored his evidence to help acquit Nizeyimana and that he should be punished if guilty); Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 44 (denied having spoken with anyone in Arusha that assisted him in identifying additional members of the reconnaissance mission).

Butare the evening of 21 April (and or the following day) came from five different countries.³²⁹¹ Only two of the witnesses – Witnesses ZML13 and Habyarimana – lived in a country uninhabited by another witness who provided direct or circumstantial alibi evidence.³²⁹²

1284. The circumstances concerning where the alibi witnesses lived are equivocal as to whether they colluded. However, the geographic proximity of these witnesses, without more, fails to establish that they reasonably did.³²⁹³

1285. Turning now to the merits of the alibi evidence, for the sake of clarity, the Chamber will first assess evidence of the soldiers who attested to accompanying Nizeyimana to Mata from 21 to 22 April 1994. It will next examine the evidence of civilian witnesses who stated that they saw Nizeyimana there around the same time. The Chamber will also consider other circumstantial and second-hand evidence placing Nizeyimana in Mata as well as general evidence that Nizeyimana was not in Butare or at his residence from 21 to 22 April 1994. Notwithstanding this organisation, the Chamber has approached each section bearing in mind the evidence in others.

(a) Soldiers Who Participated in the Reconnaissance Mission

1286. At the outset, the Chamber observes remarkable consistency among the alibi evidence of Witnesses RWV11, CKN10, ZML13, Bunani and Ruzindana – the soldiers who testified that they accompanied Nizeyimana on the 21 to 22 April 1994 reconnaissance mission. They spoke with precision about the dates of the trip. Their evidence also reflects general consistency as to the duration of travel to the Mata tea factory and the difficulties encountered at roadblocks along the way. The soldiers all described modest reconnaissance activities, which terminated in the early evening. They all recounted spending the night and that Nizeyimana stayed in the factory guesthouse. Their accounts are also consistent on the following day's events, including further reconnaissance activities followed by lunch and the return to Butare town in the early evening via the route through Kibeho.

1287. The Chamber observes that the mere presentation of alibi evidence does not necessarily raise the reasonable possibility that it is true and that it is within the discretion of the Chamber to assess it.³²⁹⁴ Furthermore, the Chamber recalls its central role, as the trier of fact, in assessing witness demeanour and credibility, when evaluating evidence.³²⁹⁵

³²⁹² The Chamber does not consider evidence of communal lodging while in Arusha, indicative of collusion, particularly as many of the witnesses testified that the facts of the case or their testimonies were not discussed among them.

³²⁹³ Defence Closing Brief, para. 119; T. 7 December 2011, p. 63 (Defence Closing Arguments).

1288. The Chamber is mindful of its obligation to provide a reasoned opinion on issues of central relevance. Such reasoned opinion, reliant on references to transcripts and exhibits to allow for thorough and objective review of the trial and the Chamber's deliberations, can fall short of perfect expression. Indeed, a witness's demeanour and credibility is not always clearly depicted on paper. As a starting point, the Chamber notes the unanimous and unequivocal view of each member of this Bench that witnesses who testified that they were with Nizeyimana at Mata – Witnesses CKN10, Ruzindana, RWV11, ZML13, Bunani, Ndikumana and CKN22 – testified in a manner that reflected a predisposition to convince the Bench of facts that – at best – they were less than sure, or – at worst – were simply not untrue. Independent of the several other specific considerations detailed below, the Chamber concludes that these witnesses were simply not credible as it related to the alibi evidence they provided.

1289. The Chamber now turns to other general credibility assessments of Defence alibi witnesses who were ESO soldiers and testified to having accompanied Nizeyimana to Mata – namely, Witnesses Bunani, RWV11, CKN10, Ruzindana and ZML13. The record reflects intimate personal or considerable professional links among the witnesses and Nizeyimana. For example, Witness Bunani was Nizeyimana's brother-in-law since 1990.³²⁹⁶ He and Witness RWV11 both joined the ESO in the late 1980s. Nizeyimana had been their instructors and both held instructor positions by 1994.³²⁹⁷ Similarly, Witnesses CKN10, Ruzindana and ZML13 all joined the ESO in 1989 and were members of the first batch of the nouvelle formule.³²⁹⁸

See also Seromba Appeal Judgement, para. 11 (with respect to factual determinations by the Trial Chamber, the Appeals Chamber "must give deference to the Trial Chamber that received the evidence at trial").

³²⁹⁶ Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, pp. 18, 21 (married to Nizeyimana's sister since 1990).

³²⁹⁷ Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 8-9, 71 ("[Nizeyimana] is the one who trained me when he was still second lieutenant when I arrived at ESO."); Witness Bunani, T. 10 June 2011, pp. 45-47, T. 13 June 2011, p. 21 ("I was a cadet and he was my instructor.").

³²⁹⁸ Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 35, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 37, 64 (first learned about Nizeyimana in 1991 as a cadet); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 24 (joined the first batch in 1989); Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, pp. 44, 62 (got to know Nizeyimana in 1991 when he commenced military exercises).

1290. The considerable overlap in tenure of these soldiers and Nizeyimana at the ESO Camp raises concerns about the partiality of these witnesses. Nizeyimana's role within the S3 office, which was responsible for training, suggests that at a minimum, he and Witnesses Bunani and RWV11 directly collaborated prior to the events of 1994.³²⁹⁹ Furthermore, the evidence reflects that these soldiers collaborated with Nizeyimana during the genocide, and in particular, at the training centre at the Mata tea factory.³³⁰⁰ The Chamber considers that their considerable tenure at the ESO along with Nizeyimana is relevant to a consideration of their credibility.

1291. Furthermore, Witness Bunani lived with Nizeyimana in exile for approximately one year after they fled Rwanda.³³⁰¹ Some witnesses were asked and confirmed their loyalty to or respect for Nizeyimana,³³⁰² although some rejected that they would alter their testimonies in favour of Nizeyimana.³³⁰³ Their relationships with Nizeyimana do not render the witnesses' testimony per se unreliable or lacking credibility. However, these circumstances bolster other concerns when viewed in light of the Chamber's assessment of their demeanours and other factors which raise concern about the quality of this evidence.

1292. Of particular significance, fundamental doubts about the truthfulness and or accuracy of the evidence emerged particularly as the Defence alibi witnesses attempted to testify with respect to the timing of the mission. Specifically, Defence witnesses who accompanied Nizeyimana – Witnesses Bunani, Ruzindana, ZML13, RWV11 and CKN10 – were nearly categorical that the mission commenced on the morning of 21 April 1994. However, gaps in the evidence, specious explanations, as well as other general credibility concerns raise fundamental doubts.³³⁰⁴

³²⁹⁹ But see Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 63 (testifying that because Nizeyimana was an officer and he was a non-commissioned officer, he had “no special relationship with [him]”); Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 47 (knew Nizeyimana as the S2/S3 officer, but could not approach the captain because he was an officer and that the witness was “afraid of him”).

He was my trainer or instructor.”); Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 48 (“Q. You’ve come here today to support your brother-in-law and your friend, Captain Nizeyimana; correct? A. I agree with you.”); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, pp. 62-63 (“Q. ... Is it true or is it false that at that time he had both your loyalty and your respect? A. What you are saying is true.”).

³³⁰⁴ The Chamber observes that many of these Defence witnesses tended to suggest that they recalled the date of the alibi mission on their own. See Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, p. 50 (“Q. Well, you’ve told us that [Hahirwa] asked you some questions and you gave him some answers. And so now I’m asking whether he asked you about any specific dates on the first occasion that you met. A. He asked me questions in connection with some dates. Q. Did he specifically ask you about the dates of April 21 and April 22, 1994? A. He asked me on what date we were assigned the mission to go to Mata.”); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, pp. 56-57 (“Q. And during the first meeting that you had with Valens, were you asked about specific dates? A. No. He did not ask me any questions regarding specific dates. But I would like a clarification. When you ask me if he asked me questions relating to specific dates, what are you referring to when you talk about specific dates? Q. Well, in 1293. The Chamber first turns to the evidence of Witness Bunani as it relates to timing of the mission. He recalled being called back to the ESO specifically on 20 April 1994 – the day before the reconnaissance mission left – because it was the day after President Théodore Sindikubwabo’s 19 April 1994. Notably, the witness did not hear the speech and only learned about it from a soldier. He was unaware of whether it was rebroadcast.³³⁰⁵ In the Chamber’s view, Witness Bunani’s evidence provides a doubtful basis for establishing the date of the reconnaissance mission.

1294. Of greater significance, Witness Bunani was unable to recall what day – either 9, 10 or 11 April 1994 – he was sent on another mission of similar significance – to patrol the Burundian border – days after another significant event in the Rwandan genocide – the killing of President Juvénal Habyarimana on 6 April.³³⁰⁶ His explanation, in this instance, was that the event occurred “a long time ago”.³³⁰⁷ While it is reasonable that the witness could not recall the exact date, the contrast with his ability to then recall with precision the date of the reconnaissance mission – a relatively uneventful trip by all Defence accounts – is not.

1296. Witness Ruzindana’s evidence about the timing of the reconnaissance mission is similarly doubtful as to when it occurred. He insisted that the mission occurred on 21 April particular, did he ask you about the dates of 21st and 22nd April 1994? A. Not at all.”); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 70 (“Q. So, when you met him on that first date, that first meeting, did he ask you about specific dates? A. No, he did not ask me any such questions. He simply asked me if I had lived in the same camp as Nizeyimana, when I left the camp and when Nizeyimana left the camp. Those were the only questions he asked me. When he asked me questions and when he was taking notes on the laptop computer, sometimes I would remember events that had taken place at any given date and I would give the date or the dates.”); Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 43 (“BY MS. GRAY: Q. Now, Mr. Witness, you’ve told us about going to Mata. And I just want to confirm that when you met with the Defence last year, did you provide them with as much information as you could remember about who went to Mata with you? A. I gave them some information. However, they did not ask me many questions regarding Mata. Rather, they were interested they were more interested in my identity as well as in my family. Q. Are you suggesting, Mr. Witness, that they were not all that interested in the date that you went to Mata? A. They asked me questions about those dates, but they did not really place an emphasis on that. Rather, they asked me questions regarding when I joined the army and details regarding my family. And I answered their questions.”); Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 66 (“BY MS. GRAY: Q. Mr. Witness, did you tell Mr. Léopold about Mata when you met with him in July last year? A. Yes, he asked me questions on our mission to Mata. Q. And did you discuss that again with him and Myriam when they came back to see you in October or November last year? A. Yes, they asked me again if I had gone on mission to Mata.”); Witness Ndikumana, T. 24 May 2011, p. 8 (“Q. Well, in particular, didn’t the Defence team ask you about the dates of April 21st and April 22nd? ... Didn’t they ask you about the dates of April 21st and April 22nd? A. Regarding 21st and 22nd of April, the first meeting, I gave information related to those dates by giving an account of facts as I had experienced the events during that period. So I was the one who gave them those dates. So that’s how come the Defence team came to note down those dates. But otherwise, during my statement there was there were no questions put to me in respect of 21st or 22nd or any specific dates.”).

1994, determining the date based on the timing of President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech at the MRND palace in Butare.³³⁰⁹ While he did not attend the speech, Witness Ruzindana remarked that it was "a truly unusual speech ... [a]nd that is the reason why I remember it well".³³¹⁰

1297. Witness Ruzindana's evidence correctly places the President's speech on 19 April 1994. However, it does not demonstrate that he heard it that day.³³¹¹ When questioned about whether he could have been informed about the reconnaissance mission two or three days after Sindikubwabo's speech (rather than one day), he conceded he had no other reference points.³³¹² Notably, Witness Ruzindana could not recall the day of the week that he left on the reconnaissance mission for Mata.³³¹³

1299. The Chamber next turns to Witness ZML13's testimony. He testified that he could recall the date of the Mata mission with precision as 21 April 1994.³³¹⁵ He explained that he had a dentist appointment for that date in order to have a tooth pulled.³³¹⁶ Moreover, there was a ceremony related to the prospective marriage of his sister.³³¹⁷

1300. The Chamber considers Witness ZML13's ability to remember a dentist appointment, after 17 years lacks any credibility. The same is true with respect to his shifting evidence about the ceremony regarding his sister's engagement.³³¹⁸ In the Chamber's view, the particular days are unmemorable and the witness's explanations failed to assure the Chamber

Why do you think it was one day after the president's speech that your platoon chief told you this, rather than two days or three days or some other number of days? Why exactly one day? A. That is a difficult question for me to answer. I have no other references allowing me to confirm to you that it was one day after the speech that he gave ... us that message. Army messages can be transmitted in writing or verbally, but I recall that on that occasion my platoon chief contacted me and informed me that I was part of the section which will go on reconnaissance.").

³³¹³ Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 42.

³³¹⁸ On the one hand, Witness ZML13 testified that he was waiting to attend the ceremony, (T. 6 June 2001, p. 48; T. 7 June 2011, pp. 59-60), but that he knew that he could not go given the prevailing war (T. 7 June 2011, pp. 59-60).

of an exceptional ability to recall them.³³¹⁹ Indeed, Witness ZML13 could only estimate dates upon which he relocated to the Mata training centre just days later. Notably, those estimates shifted over the course of his examination.³³²⁰

1301. Moreover, Witness ZML13 demonstrated categorical assuredness of Nizeyimana's uninterrupted presence at the Mata tea factory once training commenced there.³³²¹ Notably, he maintained this position even when confronted with the Defence concession that Nizeyimana left Mata within that period.³³²² Even if the witness's explanations as to the timing of the reconnaissance mission were plausible, the Chamber maintains doubts that Witness ZML13's testimony is credible due to the obvious desire to provide baseless and exaggerated exculpatory evidence in favour of Nizeyimana.

1302. The Chamber now considers the testimonies of Witnesses RWV11 and CKN10. Their evidence that the reconnaissance mission started on 21 April 1994, when viewed in isolation, includes plausible explanations as to how each recalled the date could more than 17 years later. Specifically, Witness RWV11 testified that 20 April was a day of particular personal significance to him, which would reasonably allow him to recall the date with precision. He recalled getting inebriated that evening and that he left early the next morning, 21 April, on the reconnaissance mission.³³²³

1303. Similarly, Witness CKN10 specified that he learned about the reconnaissance mission on 20 April 1994, the day after he provided security for President Théodore Sindikubwabo on 19 April. They left on the mission the following day – 21 April.³³²⁴ The witness accurately identified the day of Sindikubwabo's speech in Butare town.³³²⁵ Understandably, his assignment to reinforce security for the President would have been memorable.³³²⁶

³³¹⁹ In this regard, the Chamber observes that Witness ZML13 purported to recall the day his tooth was pulled – 11 October 1994. Witness ZML13, T. 7 June 2011, p. 60.

³³²⁰ Compare Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 56 (“Q. Now, Mr. Witness, did you ever go back to Mata? A. Yes. Q. And when was that? A. It was towards the end of April, between the 23rd and the 27th of April. In any case, it was towards the end of April.”), with Witness ZML13, T. 7 June 2011, p. 72 (“Q. Because we were advised that you returned to Mata towards late April. Yesterday you told us that it was towards the end of April, and then you gave us the dates of 23-27 April. And now you're telling us it's the 26th or the 27th of April, aren't you? A. Yes, I said it was towards the end of April, and when you asked me a precise date I told you I couldn't give you a precise date. And I said it was maybe the 26th, maybe the 27th. Q. You've said, Mr. Witness, it was towards the end of April, because you're not sure of exactly when you went back the second time. Right? A. No, that is not the reason. [...] In Kinyarwanda, when you talk about the end of the month, you start around the 25th right to the end of the month [...] Q. Okay. And the 30th of April, you've just confirmed, would also be within that range of the end of April. Correct? A. In Rwanda, the end of the month usually refers to the period between the 25th to the end of the month, the 31st. Q. Is it possible, Mr. Witness, that you returned to Mata in early May? A. No, I returned before the end of April. Q. I'm suggesting that there's not a lot of difference between the end of April and early May. You'd accept that? A. There is a difference. For those of us who were soldiers, it was at the end of the month that we received our salaries.”).

1304. Notwithstanding, the Chamber must assess this evidence in light of its own impressions of the witnesses and in the context of the larger record. With respect to Witnesses RWV11 and CKN10, the Chamber was left with the strong impression that both tailored their evidence to provide information that was exculpatory to Nizeyimana.

1305. For example, Witness RWV11 testified to having met with Defence representatives on two occasions. The second occasion occurred just over one month before testifying. Notably, the witness described it as happening “around the end of April”.³³²⁷ Thus, by the witness’s own account, the meeting happened around the same day of particular personal significance to him that allowed him to recall the date of the reconnaissance mission. Notwithstanding the similar reference point and the distance of only “more than a month” – rather than 17 years – he could not recall the date this occurred.³³²⁸

1306. Other inconsistencies between Witness RWV11’s testimony and other evidence raise suspicions that he sought to provide exculpatory evidence rather than testify to facts of which he was certain. He testified that Nizeyimana left to care for his sick child prior to the arrival of the Ruhutinyanya family on the evening of 17 April 1994, suggesting the captain’s lack of involvement in the ultimate decision made with respect to that family.³³²⁹ Notwithstanding, other Defence evidence reflects Nizeyimana’s arrival at ESO Camp (and not his subsequent departure)³³³⁰ and three Prosecution witnesses placed Nizeyimana there after Witness RWV11 testified that Nizeyimana had left.³³³¹

1307. Moreover, Witnesses RWV11 and CKN10 (like Witnesses ZML13) also showed near categorical assuredness of Nizeyimana’s uninterrupted presence at the Mata tea factory once training commenced there.³³³² The Chamber has elsewhere discussed in detail the absurdity

Q. ... and I also asked you whether or not you are absolutely certain of that. A. I am the one telling you. I saw him every day. He was with us during this entire period of training. Q. There’s no question in your mind. A. Every day we would report to him about the situation. We would report to him. I am an eyewitness. Q. So there’s no question in your mind? A. And what I would say, rather, is that if a soldier could not go to the place where we all took our dinner where we all had our dinner, then that specific soldier would go to his place to have dinner with him.”), 28-29 (“Q. And isn’t it the case that during the time you were involved in this training at Mata, that Captain Nizeyimana could have easily gone back and forth to Butare on any given day without you being aware of it? A. I am wondering what he could have gone to do in Butare because he had been replaced in his position there.

of Witnesses RWV11's and CKN10's evidence tending to reflect knowledge of Nizeyimana's whereabouts throughout this entire period given the size and nature of the training operation.³³³³ Moreover, Defence evidence is inconsistent with their testimonies concerning the circumstances that allowed them to repeatedly meet Nizeyimana.³³³⁴ These factors weigh strongly against the credibility of these witnesses. Their evidence as it pertains to the date of the reconnaissance mission, while plausible, is not credible.

1308. Having reviewed the credibility concerns of Witnesses RWV11, ZML13, CKN10, Bunani and Ruzindana as it relates to their evidence about the date of the reconnaissance mission, the Chamber turns to evaluate the general plausibility and reliability of what happened during it. These ESO soldiers provided consistent accounts regarding the mission's purpose. They all testified that the mission left the ESO Camp on the morning of 21 April 1994 in two vehicles, including one left by UNAMIR. The soldiers encountered civilians who manned roadblocks along the way, and stopped at the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp, where some soldiers ate and drank. They carried on to the Mata tea factory, arriving in the early afternoon. The soldiers ate again, conducted reconnaissance activities until the early evening, and many, including Nizeyimana remained in the factory's canteen late that evening. Nizeyimana stayed in the factory guesthouse. Reconnaissance activities recommenced the following morning – 22 April. Nizeyimana and the soldiers left in the early afternoon, taking a different route that passed through Kibeho, and returned to Butare town in the late afternoon or early evening.

1309. As noted above, there is remarkable consistency among these witnesses. Notwithstanding, differences emerge. For example, the evidence of Witnesses CKN10 and Ruzindana is somewhat general. However, it tends to depict the soldiers conducting the reconnaissance together as a single unit on 21 April 1994.³³³⁵ Their evidence, again general, also tends to reflect that Nizeyimana remained among them as this was occurring.³³³⁶

1310. On the other hand, Witnesses RWV11 and Bunani specified that soldiers conducted discrete aspects of the mission and in separate groups on 21 April 1994. Their evidence, however, is inconsistent as to which group Nizeyimana accompanied.³³³⁷ While Witness ZML13 testified about the division of the soldiers into groups, he appears to suggest that they ³³³⁶ See Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 49 (“Q. And where was Mr. Nizeyimana when you were doing this? A. He was with us. Be it at a time when ... we were received by the management of the factory or all along the groundwork which we ground preparation work, he was with us”); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 33 (“Q. During the reconnaissance, where was Mr. Nizeyimana? A. Since he was the head of the mission, he was the commander, he had to remain beside us. He was the one who had to prepare the report of the mission. It is therefore obvious that he had to stay by us every time and had to be with us every time we went anywhere.”).

conducted their tasks together.³³³⁸ Witness ZML13, like Witnesses CKN10 and Ruzindana, also appears to indicate Nizeyimana was with all the soldiers.³³³⁹

1311. Furthermore, when pressed for particulars, Witnesses CKN10 and Ruzindana gave fundamentally conflicting evidence about what areas were accessed on foot and which were reached by vehicle.³³⁴⁰ Witness Bunani testified that some of the soldiers looked for a shooting range on 21 April 1994, while Witnesses CKN10, Ruzindana, ZML13 and RWV11 specified that this occurred on the following day.³³⁴¹

1312. The differences and ambiguities in the witnesses' accounts could have naturally resulted from the considerable passage of time. Their evidence reflects that the mission was uneventful. However, the field activities, where the most striking differences emerge, were the primary purpose of the mission. Mindful of its impressions of each witness, the Chamber finds it odd that there tended to be greater uniformity among the evidence of inane details, such as the meals they ate on 21 April 1994,³³⁴² or who remained with the vehicles while at the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp³³⁴³ rather than the tasks that they performed.

1313. Indeed, these discrepancies when viewed among the uniformity of evidence as it related to the most exculpatory aspects that demonstrate Nizeyimana's presence outside of Butare – the date of the trip and the timing of each event – is not credible. For example, the witnesses generally provided estimates as to timing of events. While minor differences emerge, the essentially uniform recollection of the timing related to such insignificant events is astounding.³³⁴⁴

³³³⁸ Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, pp. 50-51 (testifying that they were separated into groups but that they, in fact, “constituted the same group and [the soldiers] did virtually everything together but – if there was a specific task to be accomplished”).

1314. For the most part, the witnesses simply remembered the schedule. Those who provided explanations of how certain times were recalled, however, lacked reliability. Witness ZML13 stated that he “did not look at [his] watch, but [thought they] left ESO between 8:30 and 9.00 a.m.”³³⁴⁵ When questioned about what time they arrived in Mata, he qualified his answer, stating that it was “just an estimate”.³³⁴⁶ Nonetheless, his “estimate” aligned neatly with those of the other witnesses, including Witness Ruzindana, who was without a watch.³³⁴⁷

Timing of reconnaissance work the next day: Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 49, T. 30 May 2011, p. 19 (ate breakfast and resumed work between 7.30 and 8.00 a.m.); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 34 (got up around 6.30 a.m., ate breakfast and continued reconnaissance work); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 29 (ate breakfast and started reconnaissance work around 7.00 a.m.); Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 54 (assembled in the field between 6.00 and 6.30 a.m. and subdivided into groups). Timing of lunch and departure on 22 April 1994: Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 51, T. 30 May 2011, p. 21 (stopped reconnaissance and ate lunch around 12.00 p.m.; left for Butare around 1.30 p.m.); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 34 (stopped reconnaissance work around “midday”, ate lunch and returned to Butare); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 29 (finished reconnaissance “around” 2.00 p.m.); Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 55 (reconnaissance ended around 1.00 p.m.); Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, pp. 11 (stopped reconnaissance “towards noon” or returned to canteen “between” 1.00 and 2.00 p.m.) 11-12 (left for Butare “around” 3.00 p.m.), 13 (returned to canteen at 2.00 p.m.), 13 (left for Butare town “between” 2.00 and 3.00 p.m.). Timing of arrival in Butare town: Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 51 (arrived in Butare around 5.30 p.m.); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 34 (arrived at the ESO “around” 6.00 p.m.); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 29 (arrived at the ESO “around” 5.30 p.m.); Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 55 (arrived in Butare “at dusk”); Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 13 (arrived at ESO “between” 5.00 and 5.30 p.m.).

³³⁴⁷ Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, pp. 3-321, 45-47 (arrived at Mata at 1.30 p.m.; testified that they arrived at the gendarmerie at 10.20 – 10.30 a.m., but admitted that this was only an estimate because he did not have a watch and used the position of the sun to work out the time).

1315. It is incredible that after so many years and without recourse to notes, the witnesses were able to provide the timings of this uneventful mission with such confidence and with such remarkable uniformity. Suspiciously, Witness Bunani volunteered relatively precise times of events without being asked.³³⁴⁸ Moreover, Witness RWV11, when pressed, had considerable difficulties as it related to providing the timing of when he left for Mata only days later.³³⁴⁹

1316. Moreover, all the soldiers who were asked, testified that Nizeyimana spent the night at the factory guesthouse.³³⁵⁰ Witness Bunani was the only witness to testify how he knew where Nizeyimana stayed – namely, because the captain ordered the soldiers to reconvene there the next morning.³³⁵¹ However, no other witness testified to meeting Nizeyimana at his guesthouse the following morning,³³⁵² and Witness ZML13 testified to assembling in a “field”.³³⁵³ Notwithstanding uniformity of the evidence as to where Nizeyimana stayed, inconsistencies emerged among the Defence witnesses as to where they slept.³³⁵⁴ The uniformity relating to where Nizeyimana slept combined with the confusion of where the witnesses stayed raise additional suspicions that evidence was tailored to reflect Nizeyimana’s presence during the reconnaissance mission.

1317. Of additional significance, the evidence led by the soldiers regarding what was occurring at the Mata tea factory is in stark contrast with the evidence of other Defence witnesses. Notably, Witnesses Bunani and ZML13 expressly testified that the factory was PRESIDENT: I’m asking you to tell me approximately. THE WITNESS: I don’t remember the exact time. MR. PRESIDENT: Was it in the afternoon? THE WITNESS: When the convoy of Burundians arrived, everybody was looking at them. After that we were asked to be ready. ... MR. PRESIDENT: ... Mr. Witness, I’m asking you for an approximate time. You surely know whether you started before 7 o’clock in the morning. You know whether you started before 9 o’clock. You know whether you started at noon. You know whether you started at 3 o’clock in the afternoon. Some approximate time. THE WITNESS: If I remember correctly, I think that we left ESO between ten and eleven. But, of course, that’s an approximate time. I’m not very sure about the exact time.”).

operational when they arrived during the reconnaissance mission.³³⁵⁵ Similarly, Witness RWV11 described factory workers “going about their normal business”.³³⁵⁶ However, Witnesses RWV17, who lived and worked near the Mata tea factory, and Zikamabahari, who worked at the Mata trading centre, explained that the factory was not functioning and people were not working from 6 April until around mid-May 1994.³³⁵⁷ Again, the evidence of these soldiers, attempting to reflect a picture of normalcy at the Mata tea factory, notwithstanding the situation elsewhere in Gikongoro prefecture is contradicted and unbelievable.

1318. Moreover, the Chamber has considerable doubts about the purported duration of this reconnaissance mission. First, evidence about the lengthy delays experienced at roadblocks is unbelievable when viewed in light of the entire record. Moreover, the casual pace and attitude towards the reconnaissance mission appears inconsistent with its purpose as well as its temporal proximity to President Théodore Sindikubwabo’s speech and the undisputed violence that erupted in Butare town following it. The Chamber shall address these issues in turn.

1319. At the outset, many of the soldiers’ estimates of the number of roadblocks between the ESO and Mata lacked credibility. In particular, Witness ZML13 recalled passing 10 to 20 roadblocks from Butare to the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp.³³⁵⁸ Witness Ruzindana saw around 20 to 25 roadblocks from the Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp to Mata.³³⁵⁹ Notably, Witness CKN22 testified to having travelled the stretch between Mata and Gikongoro Gendarmerie Camp, but only encountered four barriers.³³⁶⁰ Indeed, Witness CKN18, a civilian recruit, testified that he did not encounter any roadblocks while travelling from the ESO Camp to Mata on 30 April 1994.³³⁶¹ Inconsistencies as to the number of roadblocks as it relates to this evidence raises concerns about this evidence. It has left the Chamber with the strong impression that witnesses who purportedly accompanied Nizeyimana exaggerated the number of roadblocks on the way in order to explain the lengthy travel time.

1320. Furthermore, the witnesses generally testified that they encountered numerous and lengthy delays at the civilian manned barriers.³³⁶² In particular, Witness RWV11 stated that they were “obliged to spend a long time” at the roadblocks,³³⁶³ and Witness CKN10 recalled that they were stopped for as long as 45 minutes at one.³³⁶⁴ Witnesses CKN10, RWV11, and Bunani remembered experiencing hostility at the barriers.³³⁶⁵ Witnesses CKN10, Ruzindana, and ZML13 stated that Nizeyimana negotiated with those manning the roadblocks in order to secure passage.³³⁶⁶

1321. This collective evidence of delay again, when viewed in context, lacks credibility. Armed with Kalashnikovs, as well as R4, G3 and FAL rifles and ammunition,³³⁶⁷ it is unbelievable that 12 to 15 soldiers with years of experience and led by Nizeyimana would tolerate such impediment by civilians armed with only the most rudimentary weapons.³³⁶⁸

1323. Indeed, the Defence evidence about the delays experienced at the civilian manned roadblocks is inconsistent with other evidence that ESO soldiers – particularly those not accompanied by large amounts of civilians – had little problems at roadblocks manned by civilians.³³⁷¹ There is other evidence that civilian officials or military who were Hutu did not experience these problems.³³⁷²

1324. Of greater significance, these same soldiers testified to travelling to Mata days later, but this time in buses loaded with civilian recruits. Yet, they experienced no problems at these civilian manned roadblocks³³⁷³ and there is evidence that they were able to reach Mata in only approximately two hours.³³⁷⁴ Notably, Witness Ufitimana, who went to Mata around 30 April 1994, estimated that one could travel from Butare to Mata between 45 minutes and one hour.³³⁷⁵ Under the circumstances, the Chamber considers the Defence evidence about the purported delays incurred on their trips to and from the Mata tea factory unbelievable.

³³⁷¹ See II.4.1, where Prosecution Witnesses XAG and YAL gave compelling evidence of the ESO soldiers being able to pass a roadblock manned by armed civilians and extracting them and the Ruhutinyanya family from it.

³³⁷² Indeed, Witness Hitayezu testified that, although dressed in civilian attire and in a taxi, it took him about one hour and 30 minutes “or maybe slightly more” to travel from Gitarama to Butare and through the roadblocks en route. Witness Hitayezu, T. 9 June 2011, p. 66. Similarly, Witness CKN22 testified to also passing about five roadblocks between Gikongoro, where the gendarmerie camp was located, and Mata. When asked if he experienced any difficulties, he promptly replied “No”, stating he merely presented his identity card and that the persons manning the roadblocks let him through. Witness CKN22, T. 16 June 2011, p. 32.

1325. Further concerns about the soldiers' credibility arise when considering the trip's leisurely tempo. Inexplicably, many of the soldiers appear to have eaten two lunches on 21 April 1994, only briefly conducted modest reconnaissance for a few hours that afternoon and then drank with Nizeyimana, late into the evening. While there is evidence that certain tasks were not accomplished until the following day, others were simply repeated. Given the mission's purpose, its purported temporal proximity to President Sindikubwabo's speech and the violence that seized Butare town in the days that followed, the nature of the reconnaissance mission appears absurdly carefree. It simply cannot be believed. Rather it appears aimed at artificially lengthening the reconnaissance mission.

1326. Beyond this, the Chamber notes that the reconnaissance activities appeared to be of the most basic nature. As such, the Chamber finds it unbelievable that an emissary of Nizeyimana's stature would have been necessary to accompany such a mission and to interface with local law enforcement or civilian representatives in order to complete it. Moreover, the fact that Nizeyimana would not have been included in these activities is supported by credible Prosecution evidence.³³⁷⁶

1327. Furthermore, the frailties of the alibi evidence discussed above are exacerbated when viewed among highly convincing and credible evidence of Nizeyimana's direct participation in the killing of Remy Rwekeza and attack on Witness ZAV on 21 April 1994,³³⁷⁷ his direct participation and presence during the murder of those taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya households on the evening of 22 April,³³⁷⁸ as well as his involvement in ³³⁷⁴ See Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 32; This evidence appears more reasonable in light of observations made during the Judicial Site Visit, which determined that the 58.4 kilometre journey from the ESO to Mata could be covered in one and a half hours. ³³⁷⁶ Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 18-19 ("Q. Do you have any knowledge about whether Captain Nizeyimana went on a reconnaissance mission to Mata for the purpose of setting up the civil defence training there and that he went on this reconnaissance mission on the 21st and 22nd of April 1994? A. Thank you, Counsel. I don't know whether he went on reconnaissance mission to Mata. I don't know about that. Personally, as a soldier and as one of the NCOs at that time, I don't see how he could have gone there for reconnaissance, because Mata was very well known to us. So that was not a place for reconnoitring, but as someone who was in the officers' corps and who was aware of military tactics, at least at that level, I don't see why he should have gone to Mata for a reconnaissance mission, to a place which was near him and which was under his military region and which everybody knew about. Thank you. Q. Do you have any knowledge about whether at the ESO there was a notice board or a place where notices were posted with respect to officers who would leave the camp to go on such reconnaissance missions? A. Thank you for your question. Yes, there was a notice board where all messages were posted. I am talking about messages from our headquarters and general staff, but, personally, I did not see that particular message. That message was not posted there. But, yes, there was a notice board. Q. So specifically then, on the notice board, are you able to say whether or not on the 21st and 22nd of April there was a notice indicating that Captain Nizeyimana had gone to Mata on a reconnaissance mission? A. That was never posted on the notice board. I never saw that being mentioned on the notice board.").

Gicanda's killing, which occurred around 20 April.³³⁷⁹ In the Chamber's view, the diversity of credible sources of Nizeyimana's involvement in crimes, some of which are directly in conflict with the alibi evidence, eliminate the reasonable possibility of its truthfulness.

1328. Indeed, the record further reflects that around 21 April 1994, ESO soldiers directly contributed to the targeted killings of individuals³³⁸⁰ and coordinated attacks on institutions harbouring Tutsis.³³⁸¹ By this time, roadblocks manned by ESO soldiers had been turned towards targeting Tutsi civilians.³³⁸² These killings, among the first after President's Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech, marked a cathartic shift in what "ensuring security" meant in Butare town. Under the circumstances, the Chamber considers it inconceivable that a senior officer charged with intelligence and operations would leave for the purposes of the modest reconnaissance mission conducted at a snail's pace. Moreover, the Chamber considers that each of these alibi witnesses have a strong personal interest of placing themselves outside of Butare town for as long as possible around this time given the significant involvement of ESO soldiers in attacks on civilians in Butare around this period.

1329. The Chamber considers this evidence, particularly as it relates to Nizeyimana's presence on a reconnaissance mission conducted on 21 to 22 April 1994, as lacking any credibility. In reaching this conclusion, the Chamber has also assessed this evidence in light of other alibi evidence, discussed below, tending to place Nizeyimana at the Mata tea factory on 21 to 22 April and other evidence reflecting his absence from Butare town on those dates.

(b) Civilian Witnesses Who Saw Nizeyimana at Mata from 21 to 22 April 1994

1330. The Chamber turns to the civilian witnesses – Witnesses CKN22, Ndikumana and RWV17 – who provided direct evidence of Nizeyimana's presence in Mata on or around 21 and 22 April 1994. Witnesses CKN22, Ndikumana and RWV17 were consistent as it related to the timing of the soldiers' arrival at the Mata tea factory.³³⁸³ Each testified to the soldiers being in the canteen, and Witnesses CKN22 and Ndikumana testified that this was followed by them conducting activities on their own.³³⁸⁴ Witnesses CKN22 and Ndikumana stated that the soldiers returned to the canteen in the early evening, drank late into the night and stayed over.³³⁸⁵ Like the ESO soldiers who appeared as witnesses, the three civilian witnesses asserted that Nizeyimana slept in the factory guesthouse.³³⁸⁶ Witness CKN22 and Ndikumana testified that the soldiers continued to work around the Mata tea factory before leaving in the early afternoon.³³⁸⁷ Witness CKN22 also confirmed that the soldiers returned on a route that passed through Kibeho.³³⁸⁸ Notably, Witness CKN22's evidence provides circumstantial support for Witness Ndikumana's presence at the Mata tea factory on 21 April.³³⁸⁹

1331. At the outset, the Chamber finds Witness RWV17's evidence to be of limited probative value. She could only estimate the date that she saw soldiers at the Mata tea factory canteen.³³⁹⁰ Her identification of Nizeyimana is hearsay, having learned who he was from her husband. The circumstantial evidence supporting the identification, namely that he wore "a grade or rank higher than" his fellow soldiers is not dispositive.³³⁹¹ Moreover, her evidence fails to provide any basis for knowledge as it relates to where Nizeyimana slept.³³⁹²

1332. With respect to Witnesses CKN22 and Ndikumana, the Chamber observes that their evidence converged with the accounts of the ESO soldiers who testified about the reconnaissance mission. Notably, Witness Ndikumana could only estimate the dates he saw the soldiers and Nizeyimana.³³⁹³ Witness CKN22, however, provided a detailed explanation as to how he could recall the timing with precision. Specifically, his work required that he travel to the Mata tea factory every Wednesday.³³⁹⁴ On Wednesday 20 April 1994, his motorcycle broke down, forcing him to return the following day, 21 April, when he saw Nizeyimana and soldiers arrive there.³³⁹⁵

1333. Even if Witness CKN22 could plausibly recall the relevant dates, the Chamber emphasises the unanimous and unequivocal impression of each member of this Bench that his evidence, as well as that of Witness Ndikumana's, lacked credibility. In the context of the violence that gripped the Gikongoro prefecture, their testimonies justifying their presence at the Mata tea factory did not ring true. Indeed, in some cases their evidence about the relative normalcy at the factory was flatly contradicted by other evidence in the record. Likewise, their uncorroborated contacts with these soldiers cannot be believed. The Chamber shall set forth the dispositive considerations below.

³³⁹³ For example, Witness Ndikumana first recalled the event happening "towards the 21st, maybe 20th". Witness Ndikumana, T. 23 May 2011, p. 63. He later testified that he believed that the soldiers left "the following morning – it was the 20th". T. 23 May 2011, p. 64. Indeed, he subsequently said that to state the dates "precisely would be misleading" but that "it must have been the 21st and the 22nd". T. 23 May 2011, p. 65. During cross-examination, the witness's testimony as to how determined his arrival in Mata to have been on 15 April 1994 was because that was about a week after a wedding of a friend of his. T. 23 May 2011, p. 61; T. 24 May 2011, pp. 8-9, 22-26. In any event, he confirmed that the day he first saw Nizeyimana was also an estimate. See T. 24 May 2011, p. 26 ("Q. If you arrived in Mata before the 15th, then the calculation of when you saw Captain Nizeyimana would change, right? A. Captain Ildéphonse Nizeyimana came to Mata approximately a week after I had arrived in Mata. Q. It could be a little less than a week? A. Less than a week? Q. That is possible. A. Approximately one week after my arrival in Mata. When I say 'approximately', it could be one week less one day less than one week. That's what I meant. It could have been one day less than the week. Q. Could it have been one day more? A. One day more after what? MR. PRESIDENT: More than one week. If it is approximately one week, it means it could be one day less; it could be one day more. Approximately, it gives a leeway on both sides. Is that not what you have been asked? THE WITNESS: Yes, Mr. President.").

1334. The evidence reflects that in the days prior to the reconnaissance mission, areas of the Gikongoro prefecture not far from the Mata tea factory were gripped with violence.³³⁹⁶ Yet, in the midst of this violence, Witness Ndikumana explained that he went to the home of his godfather – Callixte Ndayisaba – so he could focus on his university course work.³³⁹⁷ Similarly, Witness CKN22 testified that he was at the Mata tea factory to speak with particular individuals and ensure that regular tea production was occurring notwithstanding the war.³³⁹⁸ Witness CKN22 assured the Chamber that “there was no problem at the factory” and that it “was functioning”.³³⁹⁹ Likewise, Witness Ndikumana’s evidence reflected that factory workers closed their work on the evening of 21 April 1994 in order to have a drink with the soldiers.³⁴⁰⁰

1335. At the outset, the Chamber finds the explanations given by Witnesses Ndikumana and CKN22 unbelievable on their face. These doubts are exacerbated when viewed among contradictory Defence evidence. In particular, Witnesses RWV17, who lived and worked near the Mata tea factory, and Witness Zikamabahari, who worked in the Mata trading centre, explained that the factory was not functioning and that people were not working from 6 April until around mid-May 1994.³⁴⁰¹ This stark contradiction with the evidence of Witnesses CKN22 and Ndikumana raises concerns about their credibility.

1336. Of additional significance, Witness RWV17 testified that the factory’s executive management, including Juvénal Ndayisaba, and its tea maker, Callixte Ndayisaba, were convicted for genocide related crimes, including an attack on Karama parish.³⁴⁰² Notably, the attack on Karama parish occurred in April 1994, around the time of the reconnaissance mission.³⁴⁰³

And since most of the workers at the factory had closed, they were going to the factory for a drink. And at that time around 6:30 p.m., I saw that group of soldiers returning to the canteen. They drank and ate.”). See also T. 23 May 2011, p. 63 (French) (“Q. *Les avez-vous revus plus tard dans la journée? R. 1337. Witnesses CKN22 and Ndikumana testified to their familiar associations with Ndabarinze and Ndayisaba and the direct association with them around this time.³⁴⁰⁴ Notwithstanding, Witness CKN22 testified that Ndabarinze did not inform him of his participation in the attack on Karama parish³⁴⁰⁵ and was unaware of any attack there.³⁴⁰⁶ Similarly, Witness Ndikumana was unaware that Ndayisaba – the witness’s godfather – had been imprisoned for his participation in the attack.³⁴⁰⁷

1339. Indeed, other inconsistencies and obvious exaggerations related to the reconnaissance mission itself raise further concerns about the evidence of Witnesses CKN22 and Ndikumana. Specifically, the presence of these particular civilians finds no direct support from the soldiers who testified about the reconnaissance mission.³⁴¹¹ Under some circumstances, such omissions would be normal. However, they are glaring when viewed in the prevalent contact they purportedly had with Nizeyimana and the reconnaissance team.

³⁴⁰⁴ See Witness CKN22, T. 16 June 2011, pp. 9, 11, 28; Witness Ndikumana, T. 23 May 2011, pp. 61-63, 68, T. 24 May 2011, pp. 30-34, 38. Notably, Witness Ndikumana testified that Juvénal Ndabarinze had a nickname – the “brave” – for the witness. T. 23 May 2011, p. 63, T. 24 May 2011, pp. 38-39.

³⁴⁰⁹ See Witness Ndikumana, T. 23 May 2011, p. 68 (living in Polokolo, Congo), T. 24 May 2011, pp. 35-36, 39 (fled Rwanda in September in light of threats based on his “ethnic status”); Exhibit D73 (Witness CKN22’s Personal Information Sheet) (extracted).

³⁴¹⁰ The Prosecution, without objection, suggested to Witness CKN22 that he had been implicated in a meeting in Muganza on 13 April 1994, which he denied. See Witness CKN22, T. 16 June 2011, p. 30. Similarly, Witness Ndikumana similarly denied his involvement in attacks against Tutsis with the Mata tea factory manager. Witness Ndikumana, T. 24 May 2011, pp. 38-39.

³⁴¹¹ See, e.g. Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, pp. 32, 50-51 (describing the factory manager and three “civilians” later described as “employees” greeting the soldiers on their arrival); Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 48 (received by “the management of the Mata tea factory”), T. 30 May 2011, p. 15 (greeted by factory manager and three other “people”); Witness ZML13, T. 7 June 2011, p. 66 (the factory manager greeted them); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 27, 67 (a man notified the factory manager upon the soldiers’ arrival and Nizeyimana met with factory manager upon arrival); Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 8 (Nizeyimana spoke with the factory manager in the canteen when the soldiers arrived). The evidence of Witnesses CKN22 and ZML13 closely align as they describe Nizeyimana in the canteen that evening with the Mata tea factory director (Juvénal Ndabarinze) and its tea maker (Callixte Ndayisaba). Indeed, Witness CKN22 appears to place Witness Ndikumana at the table. Notwithstanding, Witness ZML13 describes “other employees” – rather than Witnesses CKN22 or Ndikumana – as sitting with Nizeyimana.

1340. Furthermore, while the evidence of Witnesses CKN22 and Ndikumana consistently describe Nizeyimana's continued presence at the Mata training centre, differences also emerge. For example, Witness Ndikumana is the only witness who testified that the soldiers congregated in the Mata tea factory manager's office before going to the canteen.³⁴¹² Indeed, Witness ZML13 specified that he did not visit any of the factory offices, including the director's.³⁴¹³

1341. Witness CKN22 is the only person to testify that soldiers slept in the canteen and the factory hangar where "tea was weighed and dried".³⁴¹⁴ Notably, Witness CKN22 stated that he led the soldiers between 10 to 12 kilometres from the Mata tea factory to Kibeho on their return trip to Butare on 22 April 1994. This detail, however, is glaringly absent from the five soldiers who all discussed the return trip. In some contexts, the variances would not be material. However, when viewed in light of the striking similarities as it related to Nizeyimana's presence and the general nature of events, the discrepancies raise doubts as to whether certain evidence was tailored. That which fits neatly within Nizeyimana's alibi, in the Chamber's view, is undercut by these inconsistencies as well as the facially unbelievable aspects of their testimonies, discussed below.

1342. As mentioned above, the Chamber has considerable reservations as it relates to why Witness CKN22 was at the Mata tea factory, particularly in light of the violence that he conceded was gripping Gikongoro prefecture. Furthermore, the purported disruption of his motorcycle, which did not prevent him from returning to his home on 20 April 1994, but kept him at the Mata tea factory from 21 to 22 April right until the soldiers left, stretches beyond coincidence to the unbelievable.

1343. Moreover, for having no prior relationship with Nizeyimana, Witness CKN22's testimony that Nizeyimana informed the witness about the reconnaissance mission³⁴¹⁵ appears unbelievable given that he was not affiliated with the tea factory and in view of the supposed secrecy of the mission.³⁴¹⁶ The Chamber considers that the alibi evidence related to the purpose of the reconnaissance mission would not have allowed for such familiarity.

1344. Furthermore, Witness CKN22's evidence of the extremely informal conversation with Nizeyimana,³⁴¹⁷ and relatively intimate contacts between the witness and the captain appear absurd.³⁴¹⁸ Likewise, his testimony that Nizeyimana kept him informed of the reconnaissance

PRESIDENT: And was that in the company of the manager and his three companions? THE WITNESS: No. The manager could not be with us because we are bound by the code of professional secrecy. So as soldiers we could not really share with civilians what we learned from our duties.").

³⁴¹⁷ See, e.g., Witness CKN22, T. 15 June 2011, p. 74 ("THE WITNESS: ... People used to tell me that I looked like Captain Nizeyimana. And I told him that people said I looked like him. So we talked about that. That took us a long time. And he said, 'If people are saying that you look like me, maybe my father passed by your house. As far as these matters are concerned, that could be one reason why you look like me.'").

mission's plans to take an alternative route back to Butare³⁴¹⁹ – given that such a tactic was used as a security precaution³⁴²⁰ – also strikes each member of this Bench as unbelievable.

1345. Finally, the Chamber observes that Witness CKN22 testified to returning to Mata the two following weeks and meeting Nizeyimana on both occasions.³⁴²¹ This, however, is not reflected in the signed statement that he gave to the Defence.³⁴²² The witness explained that he did not find it necessary to put everything in this statement.³⁴²³ The omission appears striking given the Defence's reliance on alibi.

1347. Having considered the direct evidence of Nizeyimana's presence in Mata, the Chamber is mindful of Witness Zikamahari's account of seeing soldiers in a military Land Rover and an UNAMIR vehicle about two weeks after President Juvénal Habyarimana's death. However, his evidence reflected that he was uncertain as to the timing of his sighting.³⁴²⁴ His testimony on this point is not dispositive. Likewise, it is insufficiently reliable or credible to support assertions that Nizeyimana was part of a reconnaissance mission there.

1348. Having reviewed the alibi evidence of civilian witnesses who tended to place Nizeyimana at the Mata tea factory around 21 to 22 April 1994, the Chamber does not consider it sufficiently credible to call into question otherwise compelling direct and circumstantial evidence placing Nizeyimana in Butare around the same time. Likewise, it does not mitigate the concerns that the Chamber has with regard to the alibi evidence provided by soldiers, which are discussed above. Moreover, the Chamber has considered this in the context of other general evidence that soldiers were seen at the Mata tea factory.

1349. The Chamber has also assessed these conclusions in light of other second-hand or circumstantial alibi evidence, discussed below, tending to place Nizeyimana at the Mata tea factory or away from Butare on 21 to 22 April 1994.

(c) Circumstantial and Second-Hand Evidence of Nizeyimana's Participation in the Reconnaissance Mission

1350. Three ESO soldiers – Witnesses Ntamagezo, OUV03 and RWV11 – as well as a soldier visiting the ESO – Witness Mushiymana – all gave affirmative evidence of Nizeyimana's participation in the Mata reconnaissance mission. At the outset, their evidence is not direct, but circumstantial and second-hand.

1351. Witness Ntamagezo recalled Nizeyimana having gone on mission to Mata on 21 April 1994 because that was the day he was assigned to the Military Police platoon and it was the first time he saw “someone shoot dead another person”.³⁴²⁵ The Chamber has considered this specific evidence in the context of the Maniraho killing. Having assessed Witness Ntamagezo's demeanour, the Chamber did not find him credible.³⁴²⁶

1352. As stated in the Chamber's assessment of Witness Ntamagezo's evidence in relation to the Maniraho killing, it has concluded that his testimony about the date – 21 April 1994 – is not reliable. While he emphasised that it occurred on 21 April, he could not recall what day of the week that was, and his attempts to emphasize his basis for knowledge only grew more suspicious upon further examination. The Chamber observes that the witness admitted that did not keep a diary in which he took down notes at the time, and was therefore “not in a position to remember all the dates”.³⁴²⁷

1354. Similarly, Witness OUV03, who also did not join the mission to Mata, was certain Nizeyimana left on 21 April and returned on 22 April 1994.³⁴²⁹ He saw the convoy depart in the morning between 7.00 and 8.00 a.m. and was sure of the date because members of his department went on that mission and were thus absent from the ESO.³⁴³⁰ Moreover, he also used Nizeyimana's mission to Cyahinda, which he placed on 17 April, as a point of ³⁴²⁷ See II.6.4.

³⁴²⁸ Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, p. 28. The Chamber has considered Defence evidence that there were no divisions between ESO soldiers based on what regions they came from or ethnicities. See Witness ZML07, T. 18 May 2011, p. 23; Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 41; Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 16-17; RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 18-19; Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 27; Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 47. The Chamber considers much of this evidence lacks credibility. Moreover, it is very general and does not raise any doubts with respect to specific evidence of Nizeyimana's particular relationships with particular soldiers.

³⁴²⁹ Witness OUV03, T. 31 May, 2011, pp. 27-29

reference.³⁴³¹ The combination of events led Witness OUV03 to conclude, without hesitation, that the mission to Mata took place on 21 April.³⁴³²

1355. The Chamber views Witness OUV03's evidence as unreliable. It considered that his demeanour raised questions about his credibility. Moreover, Witness OUV03 repeatedly sought to place Nizeyimana away from the ESO or Butare town on critical dates, notwithstanding evidence to the contrary. Specifically, Witness OUV03 testified that Nizeyimana was absent from a meeting convened at the ESO on the night of 6 April 1994, following the death of President Habyarimana, because he had just spent a few days at home with a "serious flu".³⁴³³

1356. This testimony is contradicted by direct, second-hand and circumstantial evidence that Nizeyimana was at the ESO Camp that evening.³⁴³⁴ It is inconceivable that, in light of Nizeyimana's rank and position among the general staff, he would have remained at home notwithstanding the killing of the Rwandan president and the recommencement of hostilities with the RPF.

1357. Similarly, Witness OUV03 led evidence that Nizeyimana was gone from ESO and Butare town on 24 April 1994 as well. He stated that Nizeyimana, accompanied by Ngalinde and other soldiers, went on a one day mission to Mata on 24 April, following the initial reconnaissance mission, but before the final departure to the training facility towards the end of April.³⁴³⁵ According to the witness,³⁴³⁶ Nizeyimana left early in the morning, around 8.00 a.m., and returned that same evening.³⁴³⁷ The goal of this mission was to inspect the grounds at the Mata training centre and to build tents.³⁴³⁷

1358. Notably, Witnesses Hitayezu and KEN06, who testified to being at Nizeyimana's home, stated that Nizeyimana was absent from his residence as of 24 April.³⁴³⁸ The Chamber has elsewhere considered their evidence in detail and found that they lack basic credibility.³⁴³⁹ Their evidence is far from dispositive in this instance as well.

1359. Tellingly, however, not a single other witness testified about this mini-reconnaissance mission. It is inconceivable that soldiers who allegedly accompanied Nizeyimana on 21 to 22 April trip to Mata tea factory and then returned there as instructors would have been unaware of this second mission. Yet none of these ESO soldiers mentioned a one-day mission to the Mata training facility on 24 April.³⁴⁴⁰ That Nizeyimana, a captain and one of the camp's staff officers, would be involved in such menial activities is likewise contradicted by credible Prosecution evidence that he would not.³⁴⁴¹ Having also considered Witness OUV03's demeanour, the Chamber is left with the strong impression that he repeatedly tailored in a fashion that would distance Nizeyimana from the ongoing violence in Butare town during this period.

1360. Furthermore, the Chamber doubts that the absence of a colleague who worked with Witness OUV03 would necessarily provide a basis for him to recall with precision the date of this reconnaissance mission. Notably, the only person from the witness's office that he identified as participating in this event was a radio operator called Corporal Rwabutwaza.³⁴⁴² However, the presence of Rwabutwaza on the reconnaissance mission is unsupported by the record, raising further concerns about Witness OUV03's evidence.³⁴⁴³ which is the 26th. Now, can you tell us what it was you did between the time that you say you got back to the ESO camp from the reconnaissance mission and when you left again. A. I continued occupying the defensive position at the southern entrance from the 22nd of April when we returned to the camp up to the morning of the 26th of April. Q. Now, at the defensive position that you occupied near that entrance to the camp, are you able to tell us anything that happened on that first day back at your position? A. I did not see anything unusual. Q. The next day, anything unusual? A. Nothing unusual up to the 26th when we, once again, left the camp. But before the 26th I – we – I did not see anything unusual."); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, pp. 41-42 ("Q. Is it possible that your reconnaissance mission that you took to Mata, you describe as the first one, could have taken place as late as the 24th of April? A. No. I am categorical. When we conducted the first mission, which was a reconnaissance mission, I recollect clearly that it was two days after the date on which President Sindikubwabo made his speech. And I'm sure you will remember that President Sindikubwabo made his speech on the 19th of April. So it was on the 21st that we conducted the reconnaissance mission. I am sure of that."); Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, pp. 52-52 ("Q. Sir, I'm – I'm going to go back, sir. If your dates are correct, which is a question of evidence, you returned from Mata on the 22nd. That's your evidence. What did you do on the 23rd, if you recall? A. I told you that we completed the first recce exercise on the 23rd. And we went back to Mata on the 26th April for the training of the new – of the recruits.").

³⁴⁴¹ Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 18-19 ("Q. Do you have any knowledge about whether Captain Nizeyimana went on a reconnaissance mission to Mata for the purpose of setting up the civil defence training there and that he went on this reconnaissance mission on the 21st and 22nd of April 1994? A. Thank you, Counsel. I don't know whether he went on reconnaissance mission to Mata. I don't know about that. Personally, as a soldier and as one of the NCOs at that time, I don't see how he could have gone there for reconnaissance, because Mata was very well known to us. So that was not a place for reconnoitring, but as someone who was in the officers' corps and who was aware of military tactics, at least at that level, I don't see why he should have gone to Mata for a reconnaissance mission, to a place which was near him and which was under his military region and which everybody knew about. Thank you. Q. Do you have any knowledge about whether at the ESO there was a notice board or a place where notices were posted with respect to officers who would leave the camp to go on such reconnaissance missions? A. Thank you for your question. Yes, there was a notice board where all messages were posted. I am talking about messages from our headquarters and general staff, but, personally, I did not see that particular message. That message was not posted there. But, yes, there was a notice board. Q. So specifically then, on the notice board, are you able to say whether or not on the 21st and 22nd of April there was a notice indicating that Captain Nizeyimana had gone to Mata on a reconnaissance mission? A. That was never posted on the notice board. I never saw that being mentioned on the notice board.").

movements and was thus able to recall with precision the various dates upon which Nizeyimana left the ESO.³⁴⁴⁵

1362. The Chamber has doubts about this explanation given that Witness OUV03 estimated that he received between four to 18 messages a day³⁴⁴⁶ and did not take down notes, but that “the information received and the message serve[d] as a reference for [him]”.³⁴⁴⁷ Later he clarified that they did not register the comings and goings of officers, but that it was noted down at the guard post.³⁴⁴⁸ Significantly, when asked about other missions undertaken by Nizeyimana, the witness was unable to recall the dates with precision.³⁴⁴⁹

1363. The Chamber considers it reasonable, given the large amount of messages received on any given day and the passage of time, that the witness would not have been able to remember with detail the dates upon which Nizeyimana was absent from the ESO during April 1994. However, the witness’s insistence on the particular dates of particular incidents raises doubts about his credibility. The Chamber is left with the strong impression that Witness OUV03 tailored his evidence about the reconnaissance mission and Nizeyimana’s involvement.

1365. Like Witnesses Ntamagezo and OUV03, Witness RWV09 did not join the mission to Mata, but remembered that Nizeyimana left on 21 or 22 April 1994.³⁴⁵² Notably, Witness RWV09 admitted that this was an estimate, rather than a precise date.³⁴⁵³ His evidence about the reconnaissance mission was brief. Other than his evidence that Nizeyimana was being placed in charge of the new training facility, his evidence failed to provide details reflecting why he knew Nizeyimana also went on the reconnaissance mission. His testimony is not dispositive.³⁴⁵⁴

³⁴⁴⁹ Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, pp. 49 (could not recall the date upon which Nizeyimana went to the university), 51 (could not recall the date upon which Nizeyimana went to the Groupe Scolaire).

³⁴⁵³ Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, p. 45.

³⁴⁵⁴ Indeed, the Chamber observes that the Defence provided no notice in its Notice of Alibi or Pre-Defence Brief that Witness RWV09 would be providing alibi evidence.

1366. Witness Mushimiyimana, a soldier based in Kigali in 1994, testified that he arrived in Butare on 20 April.³⁴⁵⁵ His host, ESO Chief Warrant Officer Célestin Ngalinde, left his home on 21 April and did not return until the following evening around 6.00 p.m. Ngalinde informed the witness that he had been assigned to go on a reconnaissance mission with Nizeyimana to Mata.³⁴⁵⁶ Significantly, the witness provided no explanation or basis for his knowledge that he arrived in Butare on 20 April and that Ngalinde left the following day. There is no context or general point of reference which suggests that Witness Mushimiyimana would have been able to recall with precision the date upon which he arrived in Butare.

1367. Moreover, like the other Defence witnesses, Witness Mushimiyimana was unable to recall dates for many other incidents he was questioned about. Specifically, the witnesses did not know when the Belgian troops were killed, when the government was sworn in or the days when he met the Defence to discuss his testimony.³⁴⁵⁷ Accordingly, the Chamber finds his evidence of limited probative value in this regard. Finally, the Chamber considers his second-hand evidence of Nizeyimana accompanying the reconnaissance mission to be of limited probative value. Having observed the witness's demeanour while testifying, and in light of the issues discussed above, the Chamber views this testimony with suspicion.

1368. Having reviewed the circumstantial and second-hand evidence of Nizeyimana's participation in the reconnaissance mission to the Mata tea factory around 21 to 22 April 1994, the Chamber does not consider it sufficiently reliable to establish the reasonable possibility of its truthfulness. Likewise, it does not mitigate the concerns that the Chamber has with regard to the direct alibi evidence provided by soldiers and civilians, which are discussed above. Moreover, the Chamber has considered this in the context of other general evidence that soldiers were seen at the Mata tea factory. The Chamber has also assessed this evidence in light of other evidence, discussed below, tending to reflect that Nizeyimana was not in Butare and his residence on 21 to 22 April 1994.

(d) Evidence Reflecting Nizeyimana's General Absence from Butare Town

1369. The Chamber considers the evidence from Defence witnesses who generally testified that Nizeyimana was not present from 21 to 22 April 1994. Notably, Defence Witness Emmanuel Habyarimana testified he was at the ESO Camp on 21 April around 10.00 p.m. He spoke with Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi that evening, but he did not see Nizeyimana at the camp. While the Chamber considers aspects of Witness Habyarimana's evidence credible, it observes that this evidence is not inconsistent with other evidence placing Nizeyimana elsewhere in Butare town. It is not dispositive.

1370. The Chamber has elsewhere discussed the evidence of Witnesses Hitayezu and KEN06, who testified that they were either guarding or inside Nizeyimana's home on the night of 21 April 1994. For the reasons discussed elsewhere, the Chamber does not find their evidence credible.³⁴⁵⁸ Defence Witness Nyiranzabonimana also testified that he her husband had tried to call Nizeyimana's home on the evening of 21 April and early the following morning but could not reach him.³⁴⁵⁹ This circumstantial evidence of Nizeyimana's absence is inconclusive. It does not resolve the frailties in the direct or indirect alibi evidence placing Nizeyimana at the Mata tea factory so as to create the reasonable possibility of its truthfulness.

(iii) Conclusions

1371. Having assessed the credibility of the alibi evidence in isolation, the Chamber finds it either lacking credibility or insufficiently probative to even suggest the reasonable possibility of Nizeyimana's presence on a 21 to 22 April 1994 reconnaissance mission to the Mata tea factory. As discussed above, the frailties of the alibi evidence discussed above are exacerbated when viewed among highly convincing and credible evidence of Nizeyimana's direct participation in the killing of Remy Rwekeza and the attack on Witness ZAV on 21 April,³⁴⁶⁰ his direct participation and presence during the murder of those taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya households on the evening of 22 April,³⁴⁶¹ as well as his involvement in Gicanda's killing, which occurred around 20 April.³⁴⁶² In the Chamber's view, the diversity of credible sources of Nizeyimana's involvement in crimes, some of which are in direct conflict with the alibi evidence also eliminate the reasonable possibility of its truthfulness.

1372. Indeed, the record further reflects that around 21 April 1994, ESO soldiers directly contributed to the targeted killings of individuals³⁴⁶³ and coordinated attacks on institutions harbouring Tutsis.³⁴⁶⁴ Given the highly convincing evidence of Nizeyimana's direct participation in similar conduct, the Chamber considers it improbable that a captain, with considerable tenure in the offices charged with intelligence and operations, would be absent from Butare town as ESO resources were deployed in such operations.

13.3 Mata Training Camp and Transfer to the Front, 26 April 1994 Onwards

Introduction

1373. The Indictment implicates Nizeyimana in several distinct crimes that are alleged to have occurred between 26 April to 26 May 1994.³⁴⁶⁵ The Defence submits that from 26 April to 26 May 1994, Nizeyimana was assigned as commander of the Mata training facility in Gikongoro prefecture. He only travelled to Butare once during that period. The Defence relies on the testimony of Witnesses CKN10, ZML13, RWV11, Jean Népomuscène Bunani, Thomas Ruzindana, Désiré Ufitimana, CKN18, Melchiade Ndikumana, CKN22, OUV03, RWV09, Augustin Mushimiyimana, BEJ01, Alphonse Higaniro and Étienne Mutabazi. Defence rejoinder Witnesses Jean Claude Zikamahari and RWV17 also provided relevant testimony.³⁴⁶⁶

1374. The Prosecution repeats arguments that the alibi was fabricated to rebut its case. Prosecution evidence eliminates the reasonable possibility of its truthfulness. In addition to Prosecution evidence placing Nizeyimana in Butare, Rebuttal Witnesses Côtma Twagirayezu, Fulgence Rwirahira and Antoinette Bizimenyera provided relevant evidence for this period.³⁴⁶⁷

Defence Witness CKN10

1375. Witness CKN10, a Hutu, was a sergeant at the ESO in April 1994.³⁴⁶⁸ After taking part in the reconnaissance mission on 21 and 22 April, the witness returned to Mata on 26 April with 500 to 550 Burundian recruits by bus.³⁴⁶⁹ Witness CKN10 left Mata at the end of the training session in late May.³⁴⁷⁰ Nizeyimana was the overall commander of the recruits that were being trained in Mata and the instructors would accordingly defer to him in regards to problems that arose in the course of the training.³⁴⁷¹ Witness CKN10 ate with Nizeyimana every evening while they were there and they would “talk about [their] work and [they] would exchange ideas”.³⁴⁷² When Nizeyimana travelled, he would inform them of his trip.³⁴⁷³ Nizeyimana had significant responsibilities in Mata and could therefore not have easily returned to Butare town during this period.³⁴⁷⁴ Moreover, he had been replaced in his position at the ESO.³⁴⁷⁵

Defence Witness ZML13

1376. In April 1994, Witness ZML13, a Hutu, was a student in the first batch at the ESO.³⁴⁷⁶ Following the reconnaissance mission to Mata on 21 to 22 April, Witness ZML13 returned as an instructor on 26 or 27 April, with Nizeyimana, who was the mission head, Warrant Officer Ngalinde and some other non-commissioned officers.³⁴⁷⁷ The convoy travelled through Gikongoro, with Nizeyimana in a separate vehicle behind the bus in which Witness ZML13 was riding.³⁴⁷⁸

1377. As commander of the training centre, Nizeyimana was responsible for monitoring the staff and supervising all activities and training.³⁴⁷⁹ The recruits at Mata hailed from Burundi and Rwanda and arrived in buses.³⁴⁸⁰ Nizeyimana issued orders every morning.³⁴⁸¹ While in Mata, Witness ZML13 would see Nizeyimana every day, all day and throughout the night.³⁴⁸² At the end of May 1994, Nizeyimana was transferred to the front.³⁴⁸³ Nizeyimana did not leave Mata prior to his transfer.³⁴⁸⁴ When Nizeyimana left, he was replaced by Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi.³⁴⁸⁵

1378. In April 1994, Witness RWV11, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO.³⁴⁸⁶ On the morning of 26 April, six buses of Kirundi-speaking recruits stopped at the ESO.³⁴⁸⁷ The buses left for Mata via Gikongoro, between 10.00 and 11.00 a.m., where the recruits would undergo military training.³⁴⁸⁸ Witness RWV11 joined the convoy and arrived in Mata at approximately 1.00 p.m.³⁴⁸⁹ While there were roadblocks along the way, they were a large military convoy and thus experienced little delay.³⁴⁹⁰ On 30 April, a group of 1,500 recruits from Gikongoro and Butare prefects were delivered to Mata for training.³⁴⁹¹

1379. Nizeyimana, who was in charge of the training centre, managed the schedule and resolved training-related problems.³⁴⁹² Witness RWV11 saw Nizeyimana every day.³⁴⁹³

Specifically, he saw him in the mornings before the training and reported to him in the evenings at the canteen, where he would stay until he went to bed.³⁴⁹⁴ Nizeyimana's absence from a training session would have been noticed because there was a "permanent need to be in touch with him".³⁴⁹⁵ Around 25 May 1994, Nizeyimana left Mata for a new post in the Nyanza operational sector and was replaced by Lieutenant Gatsinzi.³⁴⁹⁶ Prior to his departure, Nizeyimana did not leave the Mata training grounds at any time.³⁴⁹⁷

1380. In April 1994, Witness Bunani, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO.³⁴⁹⁸ After a reconnaissance mission on 21 April, Witness Bunani and other ESO instructors prepared for a return to Mata to train recruits.³⁴⁹⁹ On 25 April, Witness Bunani and other instructors joined 10 buses full of Burundian refugee recruits and left the ESO for Mata around 10.00 a.m.³⁵⁰⁰ They passed through several roadblocks on the road, but since they "were an important convoy" they did not stay for long at these barriers.³⁵⁰¹

1381. The Burundian recruits began training upon arrival in Mata on 25 April 1994.³⁵⁰² A second group of recruits from Butare and Gikongoro arrived around 30 April.³⁵⁰³ Nizeyimana was commander of the training centre, and Warrant Officer Ngalinde was the second-in-charge.³⁵⁰⁴ As commander, Nizeyimana coordinated training classes, ordered firearms and food rations from the ESO, and received daily reports from instructors.³⁵⁰⁵ He spent a significant amount of time with the instructors and advised them when they had difficulties.³⁵⁰⁶ Nizeyimana had a vehicle in Mata, which he used for necessities.³⁵⁰⁷ On one occasion in late May, Nizeyimana left the grounds to go to Butare town and returned in a different vehicle.³⁵⁰⁸ Witness Bunani left Mata to return to his border post around 30 May, and he recalled that Nizeyimana left the training centre three days prior for a position in the Nyanza operational sector.³⁵⁰⁹

Defence Witness Thomas Ruzindana

1382. Witness Ruzindana, a Hutu, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.³⁵¹⁰ On 26 April, Witness Ruzindana and about 25 to 30 other instructors returned to Mata to train recruits.³⁵¹¹ They travelled through Gikongoro and arrived in Mata around 11.00 a.m.³⁵¹² The convoy passed roadblocks along the way, but they did not spend much time at them and did not stop at the gendarmerie camp on this occasion.³⁵¹³ Recruits from Burundi travelled with them and were transported in buses.³⁵¹⁴ A second wave of recruits from Rwanda arrived in Mata about three days later.³⁵¹⁵

1383. The training of recruits took place every day, including Sundays, from about 6.00 a.m. until 6.30 p.m., when they ate dinner.³⁵¹⁶ Nizeyimana, as the commander of the camp, supervised their activities, made some corrections and taught some courses.³⁵¹⁷ Sometime in May 1994, Nizeyimana was transferred to another position and was replaced by Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi.³⁵¹⁸ Witness Ruzindana remained at the training centre until the end of June 1994.³⁵¹⁹

1384. Witness Ufitimana, a Hutu, was a cadet at the ESO in April 1994.³⁵²⁰ On 30 April, Witness Ufitimana departed for Mata to train new recruits from Burundi and Rwanda.³⁵²¹ Some ESO soldiers had already travelled to Mata before he did, around 25 April.³⁵²² The journey from Butare took approximately 45 minutes to an hour.³⁵²³ Nizeyimana was the officer in charge of the training camp.³⁵²⁴

1385. As the officer in charge of the training centre, Nizeyimana drew up and posted the daily program on a notice board.³⁵²⁵ Witness Ufitimana had limited contact with Nizeyimana.³⁵²⁶ Given his subordinate rank as an instructor and non-commissioned officer, Witness Ufitimana did not have a much to discuss with the commander of the camp.³⁵²⁷

Indeed, the non-commissioned officers would not eat their meals with the officers.³⁵²⁸ The witness only saw Nizeyimana twice between 30 April and 25 May 1994 and was generally unaware of his daily activities.³⁵²⁹ The witness left for Rubona after 25 May.³⁵³⁰

1386. Witness CKN18, a Hutu, voluntarily registered for enlistment in the national army at his commune office in Nyakizu.³⁵³¹ He was subsequently transferred to the ESO camp on 27 April 1994.³⁵³² Witness CKN18 stayed at the ESO for three days before being relocated to the Mata sector with approximately 500 to 600 other recruits from different communes.³⁵³³ They departed from the ESO in buses, loaded with water, tents and other supplies, and reached Mata about two hours later.³⁵³⁴ The witness did not see roadblocks en route.³⁵³⁵

1387. At Mata, the witness met other recruits who were undergoing training, some of whom had come from Burundi.³⁵³⁶ The recruits slept in large military tents which accommodated over 60 men.³⁵³⁷ Training started at around 5.30 a.m. every day and lasted until about 5.00 p.m.³⁵³⁸ The senior officers, including the instructors, lodged and ate in a separate area from the recruits, who could not go there without good reason.³⁵³⁹ Captain Nizeyimana was the commander of the training camp and gave orders to the instructors and sometimes led training.³⁵⁴⁰ Nizeyimana stayed in the house of the tea factory manager situated close to the senior officers' lodgings, but he did not eat with the senior officers.³⁵⁴¹ Nizeyimana had a white UNAMIR jeep while at Mata.³⁵⁴² After three weeks of training, Nizeyimana was transferred to the Nyanza front and was replaced by Second Lieutenant Modeste Gatsinzi.³⁵⁴³ On 28 May 1994, Witness CKN18 left Mata for Nyanza, where he later saw Nizeyimana leading combat.³⁵⁴⁴

1388. In April 1994, Witness Ndikumana, a Hutu, was a student at the National University of Rwanda.³⁵⁴⁵ On 15 April, he went to stay with his godfather, Callixte Ndayisaba, who worked at the Mata tea factory.³⁵⁴⁶ Around 21 April, the factory manager asked the witness to host a group of soldiers who had arrived at the factory.³⁵⁴⁷ Captain Nizeyimana was presented to him as the leader of this group.³⁵⁴⁸ About three or four days after his first meeting with Nizeyimana, the witness saw the captain again in Mata.³⁵⁴⁹ Nizeyimana arrived with a large convoy of more than eight buses, which parked in front of the factory and carried soldiers dressed in deep green camouflage uniforms.³⁵⁵⁰ The soldiers established a military camp about five to eight kilometres from the factory.³⁵⁵¹ He observed soldiers gathered together and noted that they would split up and go off in groups in the afternoons.³⁵⁵²

1389. Captain Nizeyimana stayed in a house near the factory director's residence, while the senior staff lived about 800 metres to one kilometre from the factory grounds.³⁵⁵³ Every now and again, Witness Ndikumana would visit Nizeyimana where he lived and sometimes saw him in the tea factory canteen.³⁵⁵⁴ He recalled that Nizeyimana was always accompanied by an escort of three soldiers.³⁵⁵⁵ The last time Witness Ndikumana saw Captain Nizeyimana was sometime in May 1994, but he could not recall the exact date.³⁵⁵⁶ When Witness Ndikumana left Mata around 12 May, Captain Nizeyimana was still at the training camp.³⁵⁵⁷

1390. In April 1994, Witness CKN22, a Hutu, worked for the prefect in Gikongoro.³⁵⁵⁸ Around 9.00 a.m., on Wednesday, 27 April, Witness CKN22 passed through Mata, where he saw Nizeyimana and a group of around 80 soldiers.³⁵⁵⁹ The witness went to the guesthouse where Nizeyimana was staying and talked with him for about 10 minutes, during which Nizeyimana told Witness CKN22 that he was setting up a training centre at Mata.³⁵⁶⁰

1391. The following week, at around 9.00 a.m., the witness returned to Mata.³⁵⁶¹ He met with Nizeyimana in the guesthouse again, and Nizeyimana explained that they were setting up the training centre in Mata due to difficulties in transporting recruits to the training centre in Bugesera.³⁵⁶² Nizeyimana also mentioned that the recruits at Mata were Burundian.³⁵⁶³ The witness went back to Mata on an unspecified date in June and found that while the camp was still operational, Nizeyimana had been replaced by Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi.³⁵⁶⁴

Defence Witness OUV03

1392. Witness OUV03, a Hutu, was an instructor at the ESO in April 1994.³⁵⁶⁵ On 17 April, Witness OUV03 heard from Sergeant Major Semajeli that Nizeyimana was assigned to set up the training camp in Mata.³⁵⁶⁶ Nizeyimana was relieved of his duties at the ESO on 18 April and replaced by Second Lieutenant Gakwerere.³⁵⁶⁷ On 26 April, Nizeyimana left for Mata, one day after the arrival of Captain Ndayisaba.³⁵⁶⁸ He was accompanied by Warrant Officer Ngalinde, other ESO instructors, and the new recruits.³⁵⁶⁹ The recruits arrived at the ESO in the afternoon the day before, on 25 April, from the Mutara operational section command.³⁵⁷⁰ Nizeyimana followed the convoy in his own UNAMIR vehicle.³⁵⁷¹ Witness OUV03 saw some of the buses leaving in the distance around 9.30 or 10.00 a.m.³⁵⁷²

1393. On 30 April 1994, recruits from Butare and Gikongoro under the command of Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi stopped at the ESO before they left for Mata in buses and pickup trucks.³⁵⁷³ Witness OUV03 did not see Nizeyimana at the ESO after 26 April.³⁵⁷⁴ The witness saw a message regarding Nizeyimana's transfer to the Nyanza operational unit on 26 May.³⁵⁷⁵

1394. In April 1994, Witness RWV09, a Hutu, was a student at the Butare University and a soldier at the ESO.³⁵⁷⁶ Witness RWV09 lived at the ESO in mid-April and stayed there through July.³⁵⁷⁷ On 18 April, the witness's department received a copy of a telegram addressed to the ESO commander regarding the creation of a training centre at Mata.³⁵⁷⁸ Nizeyimana was in charge of establishing the training centre and, over the next three or four days, he assembled a team of instructors to train recruits.³⁵⁷⁹ He was replaced in his duties at the ESO by Second Lieutenant Gakwerere.³⁵⁸⁰ On 25 or 26 April, around 9.00 a.m., Nizeyimana, Second Lieutenant Marcel Gatsinzi and other ESO instructors left for Mata with Burundian recruits from the Mutara sector.³⁵⁸¹ Their convoy included a UNAMIR jeep, a Toyota Stout pickup truck, and eight buses.³⁵⁸² Sometime after 25 or 26 April, Rwandan recruits also went to Mata for training.³⁵⁸³

1395. During training, the UNAMIR vehicle and the Toyota Stout would return to the ESO to collect food supplies for Mata.³⁵⁸⁴ On an unspecified date, Nizeyimana and his driver returned from Mata to the ESO in a UNAMIR jeep and left in a double cabin Mitsubishi.³⁵⁸⁵ When vehicles came from Mata, they were refueled at the ESO and provided with reserve fuel.³⁵⁸⁶ The reserve jerricans of fuel were also available at Mata training centre.³⁵⁸⁷

Defence Witness Augustin Mushimiyimana

1396. In April 1994, Witness Mushimiyimana, a Hutu, was a non-commissioned officer, based at the flight squadron at Kanombe airport.³⁵⁸⁸ On 20 April, Witness Mushimiyimana arrived in Butare, where he was hosted by Warrant Officer Ngalinde at his house.³⁵⁸⁹ Ngalinde left for the Mata training centre on 25 or 26 April, several days before the witness returned to Kigali on 28 April.³⁵⁹⁰

Defence Witness BEJ01

1398. Witness BEJ01 only saw Nizeyimana once between the captain's transfer and the witness's departure from Butare, which was between 20 and 27 May 1994.³⁵⁹⁴ On that occasion, he went to Nizeyimana's house and talked with him for about 15 minutes.³⁵⁹⁵ The witness specifically recalled that Nizeyimana was not in Butare town on 14 May when Witness AJP killed a young girl.³⁵⁹⁶

Defence Witness Alphonse Higaniro

1399. In April 1994, Witness Higaniro, a Hutu, managed a Butare-based company called SORWAL.³⁵⁹⁷ Witness Higaniro was a friend and neighbour of Nizeyimana and visited his home on a weekly basis.³⁵⁹⁸ Around 28 April, Witness Higaniro went to Nizeyimana's house to greet him.³⁵⁹⁹ When he arrived, Nizeyimana's wife told the witness that he had gone on mission and was not living in Butare at that time.³⁶⁰⁰ The witness was unable to recall exactly where Nizeyimana's wife said the mission had taken him but believed it might have been Gikongoro.³⁶⁰¹ Witness Higaniro last saw Nizeyimana on 7 April at the ESO.³⁶⁰²

Defence Witness Etienne Mutabazi

1400. Witness Mutabazi, a Hutu, was a FAR officer working at the Ministry of National Defence in April 1994.³⁶⁰³ He was stationed at the Nyanza operational sector from late May to June.³⁶⁰⁴ Nizeyimana joined the Nyanza operational sector command towards the end of May, but was unable to recall the precise date.³⁶⁰⁵ They remained in Nyanza for about three weeks, during which time he saw Nizeyimana often.³⁶⁰⁶

Prosecution Rebuttal Witness Côme Twagirayezu

1401. Witness Twagirayezu, a Hutu, was a night watchman employed by the Mata tea factory in April 1994.³⁶⁰⁷ He performed guard duties at the factory and at the homes of five factory employees.³⁶⁰⁸ The Mata tea factory suspended its activities for about three weeks during the genocide.³⁶⁰⁹ The military training of Burundian and Rwandan recruits in Mata started in early May, led by Lieutenant Gakwerere and Burundian instructors.³⁶¹⁰ They arrived on foot.³⁶¹¹ Nizeyimana first arrived in Mata around late May in order to supervise the training.³⁶¹² The witness saw him there on three occasions between 26 May and 5 June.³⁶¹³ Indeed, Nizeyimana was not there every day and if he was, he would always return to Butare town at night.³⁶¹⁴ Witness Twagirayezu knew who Nizeyimana was, because the witness asked his name when Nizeyimana wanted to enter his boss's office.³⁶¹⁵

Prosecution Rebuttal Witness Fulgence Rwirahira

1402. In April 1994, Witness Rwirahira, a Hutu, worked as a telecommunications officer at the ESO.³⁶¹⁶ His immediate supervisor was Senior Warrant Officer Nzabonimpa.³⁶¹⁷ Witness Rwirahira's office was in the same building as Nizeyimana's, though in a different hall, and he saw Nizeyimana several times a day.³⁶¹⁸ He last saw Nizeyimana at the ESO towards the end of May.³⁶¹⁹ He knew Nizeyimana had been transferred, due to the communications he received in his capacity as a telecommunications officer.³⁶²⁰ He passed the message on to his supervisor, Nzabonimpa, who in turn had to pass the message on to the commander of the camp.³⁶²¹

1403. Nizeyimana, who continued to hold the S2/S3 post, was still present in the military region of Butare between 26 April and 26 May 1994.³⁶²² As the S2/S3, Captain Nizeyimana was responsible for military operations in the Butare region, which included the training of new recruits.³⁶²³ In late May, Nizeyimana was transferred to the front, along with other ESO soldiers, to lead a significant contingent of recently trained recruits.³⁶²⁴ The witness twice handled the communication of Nizeyimana's redeployment.³⁶²⁵ While Witness Rwirahira did not know exactly what Nizeyimana did on a daily basis, he knew that Nizeyimana would leave for the field at times but was primarily based in Butare.³⁶²⁶

Prosecution Rebuttal Witness Antoinette Bizimenyera

1404. On 20 or 21 April 1994, Witness Bizimenyera, a Tutsi, and her family moved into Nizeyimana's house in Butare and stayed there for one month and a half.³⁶²⁷ The witness remembered seeing Nizeyimana at his home on 21 April and regularly throughout the month of April.³⁶²⁸ Nizeyimana went to work in the morning, returning for lunch with his soldiers, and again in the evening.³⁶²⁹ Witness Bizimenyera used to see Nizeyimana in April, but from May onward, she hardly saw him and only heard his voice.³⁶³⁰ Towards the end of her stay, Witness Bizimenyera was largely confined to one room neighbouring the sitting room, and became less certain of Nizeyimana's movements.³⁶³¹

Defence Rejoinder Witness Jean Claude Zikamabahari

1405. In April 1994, Witness Zikamabahari, a Hutu, ran a small shop in Mata.³⁶³² One afternoon, about two weeks after President Habyarimana's death, the witness observed soldiers pass his shop and head towards the tea factory on board a UNAMIR vehicle and a military jeep.³⁶³³ Three or four days after those vehicles left, the witness saw a significant contingent of Burundians arrive on ONTRACOM buses.³⁶³⁴ Witness Zikamabahari, conversant in Kirundi, spoke to the recruits, who told him they had come to Mata to undergo military training.³⁶³⁵ The recruits were accompanied by soldiers.³⁶³⁶ Three or four days after the Burundians came, a second convoy of buses arrived bringing more soldiers and recruits from the neighbouring districts.³⁶³⁷

1406. The witness would sometimes go to the tea factory canteen and to the training grounds to meet friends from the camp.³⁶³⁸ While there, Captain Nizeyimana was pointed out to Witness Zikamabahari as the camp's commander by Sergeant Claude Rukundo.³⁶³⁹ The training in Mata lasted for about two months, "right up until the end of June".³⁶⁴⁰ Witness Zikamabahari knew that Witness Twagirayezu lived on Cyafurwe hill and was a watchman at the home of an employee of the tea factory.³⁶⁴¹ work during the time the factory was closed, between 7 April and mid-May.³⁶⁴⁴ Around 18 May, Witness Twagirayezu returned to duty and told Witness RWV17 that he had been at his family's home in Cyafurwe.³⁶⁴⁵

1408. During the beginning of the third week of April 1994, Witness RWV17 saw Nizeyimana and 10 to 20 soldiers at the Mata tea factory, where they stayed for one night.³⁶⁴⁶ About four days later, the witness heard a group of people near the factory and was told by her husband that Nizeyimana had returned to train ESO soldiers.³⁶⁴⁷ The witness never saw Nizeyimana during that time but heard from her husband that he had been replaced in late May.³⁶⁴⁸

1409. The Defence submits that Nizeyimana was absent from Butare starting the morning of 26 April until 26 May 1994, as he was placed in charge of a military training centre at the Mata tea factory in Gikongoro prefecture. He only returned to the ESO once during that period, on 17 May, to exchange his vehicle, after which he returned to Mata. After 26 May, Nizeyimana was transferred to the Nyanza war front. While at Mata, Nizeyimana was “omnipresent” in the supervision and execution of an accelerated training program for a substantial number of recruits.³⁶⁴⁹

1410. The Prosecution concedes that Nizeyimana was eventually placed in charge of the Mata training facility in Gikongoro prefecture.³⁶⁵⁰ However, it suggests that this transfer did not occur until sometime in late May 1994, rather than the end of April.³⁶⁵¹ It points to evidence led through several Prosecution witnesses suggesting that Nizeyimana maintained a regular presence at the ESO Camp and in Butare town.

1411. Thus, the critical question for the Chamber to decide is whether there is a reasonable possibility of Nizeyimana's departure from the ESO Camp and Butare town around 26 April 1994, whether he maintained a continuous presence at the Mata tea factory, and consequently whether he was outside Butare town from that point on. The Chamber shall address these considerations in turn.

relatively consistent first-hand evidence regarding the mission from the ESO to establish the training camp on or around 26 April 1994. Specifically, Witness RWV11 noted that he joined a convoy of approximately six buses of Kirundi-speaking recruits that departed the ESO around 11.00 a.m. on 26 April and arrived in Mata via Gikongoro around 1.00 p.m.³⁶⁵² Witness ZML13 testified that he thought that he returned to Mata on 26 or 27 April.³⁶⁵³ Witness CKN10 returned to Mata on 26 April by bus, together with 500 to 550 Burundian recruits.³⁶⁵⁴ Witness Ruzindana testified that he and other instructors travelled to Mata via Gikongoro in buses with recruits, arriving in Mata around 11.00 a.m. on 26 April.³⁶⁵⁵ Witness Bunani, who thought they left on 25 April, joined other instructors and Burundian recruits by bus to Mata, arriving there around 10.00 a.m.³⁶⁵⁶

1413. Witness Ufitimana arrived at the Mata training camp on 30 April 1994, when training had already begun.³⁶⁵⁷ However, he noted that other instructors had departed for Mata around 25 April, before he did.³⁶⁵⁸ Defence Witnesses OUV03 and RWV09, stationed at the ESO, saw ESO personnel and recruits leave the ESO Camp for Mata on the morning of 26 April.³⁶⁵⁹ Witness CKN18 testified that after enlisting in Nyakizu commune, he was transferred to Mata on 30 April along with 500 to 600 recruits.³⁶⁶⁰ There, he met a large group from Burundi who had already started their training.³⁶⁶¹ In addition, Witnesses Ndikumana and Zikamabahari saw a group of buses arrive in Mata around 25 or 26 April.³⁶⁶² Witness Ndikumana saw soldiers wearing deep green camouflage uniforms on board.³⁶⁶³ Witness Zikamabahari, conversant in Kirundi, spoke to the passengers who told him they had come to Mata to undergo military training.³⁶⁶⁴

1414. Of greater significance, Defence Witnesses ZML13, OUV03 and RWV09 identified Nizeyimana in the convoy travelling to Mata around 26 April 1994. Specifically, Witness ZLM13 testified that he travelled in a convoy with Nizeyimana, who had his own vehicle, Warrant Officer Ngalinde, and other non-commissioned officers.³⁶⁶⁵ Witness OUV03 saw Nizeyimana leave for Mata on 26 April, together with Warrant Officer Ngalinde and other ESO instructors.³⁶⁶⁶ Nizeyimana followed the convoy of recruits in his own UNAMIR vehicle.³⁶⁶⁷ Witness RWV09 testified about a convoy that left the ESO on or about 26 April around 9.00 a.m., including Nizeyimana, Second Lieutenant Gatsinzi, ESO instructors and Burundian recruits. The convoy included a UNAMIR vehicle, eight buses and a Toyota Stout pickup truck.³⁶⁶⁸

1415. Similarly, Rejoinder Witness Ndikumana saw Nizeyimana arrive with a large convoy of eight buses, three or four days after 21 April 1994.³⁶⁶⁹ Further circumstantial support was provided by Witness CKN22 who saw Nizeyimana in the company of 80 other soldiers at the training site on Wednesday, 27 April.³⁶⁷⁰ Nizeyimana's presence in the convoy that departed around 26 April is conspicuously absent from the evidence provided by Witnesses Bunani, CKN10, RWV11 and Ruzindana, who all took part in the mission to Mata that departed around 26 April.

1416. At the outset, the Chamber has elsewhere discussed in detail its overwhelming credibility concerns as it relates to Witnesses RWV11, ZML13, CKN10, Bunani and Ruzindana, as well as civilian Witnesses Ndikumana and CKN22. Having viewed their testimonies first-hand, the Chamber has considerable suspicions that their evidence was tailored to positively impact these proceedings against Nizeyimana.³⁶⁷¹ These concerns apply with equal force as it relates to the timing of Nizeyimana's arrival at the Mata training facility.

1417. Furthermore, even if the Chamber were to give prima facie credibility to the accounts of these witnesses, the recollection of their date of departure is of varying quality and is not dispositive. Specifically, Witnesses RWV11 and Bunani simply remembered the date without providing any point of reference, while Witness CKN10 made reference to a "campaign notebook" in which he had recorded some events of 1994.³⁶⁷² Witness Ruzindana estimated the date of departure to have been 26 April, based on an unconvincing recollection of the reconnaissance mission's date as his point of reference.³⁶⁷³ Witness ZML13 noted that the ³⁶⁷² Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 65-66 ("Q. Now – so those are the five dates that you've told us about that you mentioned earlier, and just now you've added another date that you say you can never forget, which is the 26th. I continued occupying the defensive position at the southern entrance from the 22nd of April when we returned to the camp up to the morning of the 26th of April. Q. Now, at the defensive position that you occupied near that entrance to the camp, are you able to tell us anything that happened on that first day back at your position? A. I did not see anything unusual. Q. The next day, anything unusual? A. Nothing unusual up to the 26th when we, once again, left the camp. But before the 26th I – we – I did not see anything unusual."); Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, pp. 15-16; Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 2-3. Witness CKN10 did not provide this notebook to the Chamber or the Defence counsel.

³⁶⁷³ Witness Ruzindana testified that it was three or four days after the return from the reconnaissance mission that he travelled back to Mata. He remembered the date for the reconnaissance mission by using President Sindikubwabo's speech as a reference. Nevertheless, the witness conceded that 17 years had since passed and that he could not be completely certain about the amount of days spent at the ESO after the reconnaissance mission and before the second trip to Mata. Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, pp. 40-43. See also II.13.2.

training mission commenced between 25 and 31 April, using his payday at the end of the month as a reference point.³⁶⁷⁴

1418. Similarly, the Chamber has elsewhere discussed in detail the context in which Witnesses Ndikumana and CKN22 testified and did not find their testimonies credible.³⁶⁷⁵ The same analysis applies here. Indeed, as noted elsewhere Witness Ndikumana could only estimate the dates he saw the soldiers and Nizeyimana.³⁶⁷⁶ By contrast, Witness CKN22 provided a detailed explanation as to how he could recall the timing with precision. Specifically, his work required that he travel to the Mata tea factory every Wednesday.³⁶⁷⁷ On Wednesday 27 April, he happened to pass by Mata around 9.00 a.m. where he saw Nizeyimana in the company of other soldiers.³⁶⁷⁸ According to Witness CKN22, Nizeyimana had time to converse with him for 10 minutes on this day, during which Nizeyimana spoke about the training camp.³⁶⁷⁹ Witness CKN22 then met Nizeyimana again the following Wednesday when he had further communications with Nizeyimana at his guesthouse.³⁶⁸⁰

1419. As noted elsewhere, the Chamber does not consider Witness OUV03's evidence reliable, particularly as it relates to the recollection of dates.³⁶⁸¹ Moreover, despite being able to recall with precision every move of Nizeyimana, Witness OUV03 was unable to remember dates specific to others, such as Lieutenant Gakwerere, because he had "a lot to do" during that time.³⁶⁸²

1420. More importantly, Witness OUV03 recalled having seen the convoy, including Nizeyimana, leave from a distance.³⁶⁸³ The Chamber does not consider that Witness OUV03 would have been able to discern with clarity the members of the convoy from a distance and would therefore not have been in a position to ascertain whether Nizeyimana formed part of this convoy or whether he was seated in the UNAMIR vehicle. Indeed, Witness OUV03 specified that he saw the last three buses from a distance and did not provide a basis for his ³⁶⁷⁴ Witness ZML13, T. 7 June 2011, p. 72 ("Q. Because we were advised that you returned to Mata towards late April. Yesterday you told us that it was towards the end of April, and then you gave us the dates of 23-27 April. And now you're telling us it's the 26th or the 27th of April, aren't you? A. Yes, I said it was towards the end of April, and when you asked me a precise date I told you I couldn't give you a precise date. And I said it was maybe the 26th, maybe the 27th. Q. You've said, Mr. Witness, it was towards the end of April, because you're not sure of exactly when you went back the second time. Right? A. No, that is not the reason. ... In Kinyarwanda, when you talk about the end of the month, you start around the 25th right to the end of the month ... Q. Okay. And the 30th of April, you've just confirmed, would also be within that range of the end of April. Correct? A. In Rwanda, the end of the month usually refers to the period between the 25th to the end of the month, the 31st. Q. Is it possible, Mr. Witness, that you returned to Mata in early May? A. No, I returned before the end of April. Q. I'm suggesting that there's not a lot of difference between the end of April and early May. You'd accept that? A. There is a difference. For those of us who were soldiers, it was at the end of the month that we received our salaries.").

knowledge that Nizeyimana followed the convoy separately in a UNAMIR vehicle.³⁶⁸⁴ The Chamber does not consider Witness OUV03's evidence dispositive.

1421. Like Witness OUV03, Witness RWV09 did not join the mission to Mata, but remembered that Nizeyimana departed "some days" after the reconnaissance mission, "around" 26 April 1994 with the first recruits.³⁶⁸⁵ When pressed on the date, Witness RWV09 conceded that the convoy departed sometime in late April or early May but that he did "not know the exact date".³⁶⁸⁶ His estimate was based on an approximate date of 18 April, when he learned that the general staff had requested the ESO to establish a training camp.³⁶⁸⁷ Given Witness RWV09's admitted inability to accurately identify the dates, the Chamber considers his evidence of limited probative value in this regard.

1422. While the Chamber found Witness Ufitimana's evidence to be generally credible and coherent, the witness estimated that he left for Mata around 30 April 1994. Witness Ufitimana did not provide a basis for this estimate or another incident as a reference to recall the exact date upon which he left for Mata. Indeed, Witness Ufitimana conceded that he was not a computer and that he could not recall everything.³⁶⁸⁸ Unlike the other Defence witnesses, Witness Ufitimana noted that he did not see Nizeyimana there regularly.³⁶⁸⁹ In fact, he was introduced to the platoon he was to train when he arrived at the Mata training camp and subsequently undertook the task without further involvement by Nizeyimana or contact with him.³⁶⁹⁰

1423. Similarly, Witness CKN18, a recruit who was sent to the Mata training centre on or around 30 April 1994, was not asked about Nizeyimana's presence at the training centre upon arrival or whether Nizeyimana travelled with his convoy to Mata. Further bolstering Witness Ufitimana's account, Witness CKN18 noted that Nizeyimana was lodged elsewhere and recalled that the recruits, including himself, were not housed in the same area as the senior officers.³⁶⁹¹ Indeed, the recruits were not allowed to venture into the area where the senior officers stayed and would thus have had little knowledge as to the whereabouts of Nizeyimana during this time.³⁶⁹² Moreover, it does not appear from Witness CKN18's evidence that he knew Nizeyimana prior to arrival, and he would therefore not have been able to identify Nizeyimana when he first got to Mata. The Chamber considers Witness CKN18's evidence of limited probative value in this regard.

1424. By contrast, Prosecution Witnesses AZD, ZAW, ZY, BDE and ZT testified that Nizeyimana did not leave for Mata until mid to late May 1994.³⁶⁹³ Similarly, Rebuttal

Witness Twagirayezu stated that he first saw Nizeyimana in Mata around the end of May.³⁶⁹⁴ With respect to Witnesses AZD, ZAW, ZY, BDE and ZT, the Chamber has considered general credibility challenges to their evidence and finds no reason to view their evidence with caution. However, their accounts concerning Nizeyimana's specific assignment to the Mata training facility are general in nature. Indeed, neither their positions within the ESO, nor specific evidence before this Chamber reflect involvement in the preparation or execution of training at the Mata tea factory.

1425. The Prosecution witnesses, in the Chamber's view, did not provide a sufficiently credible basis for their knowledge of when Nizeyimana was assigned to command the Mata training facility, giving no notable dates of reference which they used to estimate Nizeyimana's departure.³⁶⁹⁵ Indeed, Prosecution Rebuttal Witness Rwirahira, the one Prosecution witness who appeared to hold a position within the ESO's command structure that would have enabled him to be apprised of Nizeyimana's assignments, corroborated Defence evidence that Nizeyimana was transferred towards the end of April 1994.³⁶⁹⁶ The Chamber observes that Witness Rwirahira testified that Nizeyimana was supervising the training of recruits at the Ngoma Camp.³⁶⁹⁷ However, the totality of the record unequivocally reflects that the training occurred at the Mata tea factory rather than the Ngoma Camp. Notwithstanding this discrepancy, the Chamber considers Witness Rwirahira's evidence credible insofar as it corroborates Defence evidence on Nizeyimana's departure in late April and subsequent transfer to the front around the end of May.

Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 56-57 (Nizeyimana was transferred to Mata for disciplinary reasons towards the end of May).

³⁶⁹⁴ Prosecution Rebuttal Witness Twagirayezu, T. 7 September 2011, p. 32; T. 8 September 2011, pp. 17-18 (Nizeyimana first arrived in Mata around late May). The Chamber notes that the Defence has challenged Witness Twagirayezu's credibility on the grounds that he was not anywhere near the factory during the operative time period. Defence Closing Brief, paras. 137-142, 145. Indeed, Witness RWV17, whose house the witness guarded during the night, asserted that she did not see Witness Twagirayezu between 7 April and 18 May 1994 and that he did not report for work during this time. Defence Rejoinder Witness RWV17, T. 21 September 2011, pp. 10-11, 13, 21, 26-29. When Witness Twagirayezu did resume his work on 18 May, he told Witness RWV17 that he had been at his house in Cyafurwe. T. 21 September 2011, pp. 21-22, 24-25. Moreover, the Chamber observes that Witness Twagirayezu's description of the camp's operation tends to contradict that of the record. Accordingly, the Chamber considers Witness Twagirayezu's evidence of little probative value.

³⁶⁹⁵ Specifically, Witness AZD did not provide any basis for his knowledge of Nizeyimana's departure and admitted that he did not know the exact dates of Nizeyimana's reassignment. Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, pp. 17-18. Witness ZAW could no longer recall the date upon which Nizeyimana left for Mata and provided no further reference indicating that he would have remembered that it occurred sometime towards the end of May. Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 42-43. Witness ZY knew that Nizeyimana was no longer assigned to the ESO at some point, but was vague and general about the exact date of his departure. Moreover, she provided no reference indicating she would have recalled when Nizeyimana left. Indeed, she heard that he had been sent to Mata, but did not specify how she knew or who informed her of Nizeyimana's reassignment. Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, p. 70. Contrary to both Defence and Prosecution evidence, Witness BDE suggested that Nizeyimana was transferred to Mata for disciplinary purposes. Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 56-57. Like Witness ZY, Witness BDE provided no basis for her knowledge thereof or any reference by which she would have recalled that Nizeyimana left towards the end of May. Witness ZT thought that Nizeyimana left for Mata towards the end of May, but provided no basis for this assertion. Witness ZT, T. 7 February 2011, p. 15. Lastly, Rebuttal Witness Rwirahira heard that Nizeyimana had been sent to supervise the instruction at the Ngoma Camp towards the end of April. Witness Rwirahira, T. 7 September 2011, pp. 10-11, 18-207. While the date corroborates the evidence provided by the Defence, the record does not reflect Nizeyimana's presence at the Ngoma Camp during this period.

³⁶⁹⁷ Witness Rwirahira, T. 7 September 2011, pp. 10-11, 18-19.

1426. Furthermore, and unlike the alibi evidence relating to the purported 21 to 22 April 1994 reconnaissance mission, the Chamber is satisfied that the alibi evidence, when viewed collectively, creates the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana would arrive at the Mata tea factory alongside the significant number of recruits in late April. It seems logical to this Chamber that the person charged with running the training centre would be present at its inception to ensure its organisation and efficacy.³⁶⁹⁸ Likewise, when reviewing the record as a whole, the Prosecution evidence has failed to eliminate the reasonable possibility of its truthfulness with direct evidence demonstrating to the contrary.

1427. Similarly, the Chamber finds that Defence evidence, when viewed in light of corroborative Prosecution evidence, is sufficient to establish that Nizeyimana was transferred to the Nyanza war front towards the end of May 1994. Specifically, Witnesses RWV11, ZML13 and Bunani all testified that they no longer saw Nizeyimana at the training centre because he had been transferred to the Nyanza front.³⁶⁹⁹ Similarly, Witnesses Mutabazi and CKN18, stationed at the Nyanza operational sector, both saw Nizeyimana there sometime towards the end of May.³⁷⁰⁰ While not specific about the location, Witness Ruzindana provided circumstantial evidence of Nizeyimana having been transferred from Mata elsewhere around late May.³⁷⁰¹ Providing further corroboration, Prosecution Witness Rwirahira handled messages indicating that Nizeyimana was transferred to the Nyanza front sometime in late May.³⁷⁰²

(ii) Nizeyimana's Uninterrupted Presence at Mata Training Facility

1428. Having established that Nizeyimana was reassigned to Mata towards the end of April and had left for the Nyanza front towards the end of May 1994, the Chamber must assess whether there is a reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana maintained a continuous and uninterrupted presence over the course of the month at the training centre in Mata, save for the one day he returned to the ESO to exchange a vehicle.

1429. Defence Witnesses ZML13, CKN10 and RWV11 provided unequivocal testimony of Nizeyimana's uninterrupted and continuous presence in Mata for the period between late ³⁶⁹⁸ Defence Witnesses CKN10, Ruzindana, Bunani, Ufitimana, RWV11 and ZML13 all identified Nizeyimana as their commander at Mata and provided detailed accounts of his supervisory and instructional responsibilities. Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 55 (Nizeyimana was the overall commander of all the recruits); Witness Ufitimana, T. 26 May 2011, p. 13 (Nizeyimana was leading the training centre); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 37 (Nizeyimana, as commander of the training centre, supervised their activities and taught some courses); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 30-31 (Nizeyimana, as the person in charge of the training centre, managed the schedule and resolved training-related problems); Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 57 (Nizeyimana, as commander, was responsible for monitoring the staff and supervising all activities and training); Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, pp. 17, 50 (Nizeyimana, as the commander of the training centre, coordinated training classes, ordered supplies and received daily reports from the instructors); Witness Ufitimana, T. 26 May 2011, p. 12 (Nizeyimana was the officer in charge of the training centre).

³⁷⁰² Witness Rwirahira, T. 7 September 2011, pp. 9-10.

April and late May 1994.³⁷⁰³ According to these witnesses, Nizeyimana's responsibility as the commander of the camp would have made it difficult for him to return to the ESO, and his absence would not have gone unnoticed.³⁷⁰⁴ Indeed, given his position as commander, the witnesses insisted that Nizeyimana could be seen at the camp from morning until evening, every single day. Specifically, Witnesses ZML13 stated that he saw Nizeyimana every day, all day, and even during the evenings.³⁷⁰⁵ Witness RWV11 also saw Nizeyimana every day, in the mornings when the witness reported to him and in the evenings at the canteen.³⁷⁰⁶ Witness CKN10 testified that he ate with Nizeyimana every evening and they would talk about their work and exchange ideas.³⁷⁰⁷

1430. In light of the Defence's concession that Nizeyimana left the camp to travel to Butare on 17 May 1994, the Chamber accords little weight to the witnesses' categorical testimonies that Nizeyimana did not leave the grounds at any time during this period. Notably, when confronted with Nizeyimana's undisputed departure, Witness ZML13 maintained instead that ³⁷⁰³ Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 60 ("JUDGE PARK: Therefore, Captain Nizeyimana had stayed there with you without a single absence. THE WITNESS: I personally know that Captain Nizeyimana never left Mata during that period."); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 31 ("... Captain Nizeyimana had a very difficult task to accomplish, and he could not have been absent from that training. And had he been absent from that training, his absence would have been noticed because there was permanent need to be in touch with him."); Witness CKN10, T. 30 May 2011, pp. 28-29 ("Q. And isn't it the case that during the time you were involved in this training at Mata, that Captain Nizeyimana could have easily gone back and forth to Butare on any given day without you being aware of it? A. I am wondering what he could have gone to do in Butare because he had been replaced in his position there. Secondly, I'm telling you that he was a commander who was in charge of operations in Mata. Therefore, he could not have left Mata without informing us.").

³⁷⁰⁵ Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, p. 58 ("Q. How many times every week would you say you saw Captain Nizeyimana? A. While we were in Mata, I would see him every day, from morning till evening. I would see him throughout the day, even at night. Q. Why would you see him at night? A. Sometimes there were night exercises which he checked or monitored. For example, there were crawling exercises carried out at night, and he was there to supervise. And sometimes we would go and take a drink at night, and he would join us. So we would see him."); T. 7 June 2011, pp. 72-73, 75.

³⁷⁰⁶ Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 59-60 ("A. That is not what I said. I did not refer to the period after the 26th of May. What I said was that as from the 26th of April -- between the 26th of April and the 26th of May, I saw Captain Nizeyimana every day for this entire period of training. Q. That's exactly what I asked you about, and I also asked you whether or not you are absolutely certain of that. A. I am the one telling you. I saw him every day. He was with us during this entire period of training. Q. There's no question in your mind. A. Every day we would report to him about the situation. We would report to him. I am an eyewitness. Q. So there's no question in your mind? A. We reported to him every day. I remember that I saw him every day. We could not give reports to somebody who was absent. Q. I heard you say that. But now I'm asking about your level of certainty with respect to the recollection. And with respect to that recollection, is there any question in your mind? A. No shadow of doubt whatsoever. This is something I know. I am 100 per cent certain that I saw him every day.").

³⁷⁰⁷ Witness CKN10, T. 26 May 2011, p. 56 ("MR. PRESIDENT: And you were eating together in the cafe every day and every evening. THE WITNESS: Yes. MR. PRESIDENT: In the company of Captain Nizeyimana? THE WITNESS: We all ate at the same place."); T. 30 May 2011, p. 28 ("Q. And because you were so busy with your instructions regarding the recruits, you have no way of knowing whether Captain Nizeyimana himself was moving back and forth between Mata and Butare? A. Although I was busy, when a commander travels, then he would inform us of his trip and then in the evening he would take meals with us and we would discuss our plans of action regarding what we should be doing in the subsequent days. Q. And he would do that personally? A. Whenever I had a personal problem, I would contact him. In general, when an instructor had a problem, he would contact him. There were many instructors. There were many recruits. And, of course, he could not have been everywhere at the same time. But in the evenings, we would meet him and talk about our work and we would exchange ideas.").

he “personally [knew] that Captain Nizeyimana never left Mata” during that period.³⁷⁰⁸ In view of these contradictions, the Chamber considers the sweeping and absolute nature of the witnesses’ claims to be unbelievable.

1431. Further undermining Witnesses ZML13, RWV11 and CKN10’s evidence, Witness Ufitimana, a soldier of similar rank and tenure, testified that it would not have been possible for him to dine with officers, given that his rank as a non-commissioned officer precluded any such interaction.³⁷⁰⁹ This is corroborated by Witness CKN18, a recruit, who testified that non-commissioned officers ate separately from officers like Nizeyimana.³⁷¹⁰ Notably, Witness Ufitimana’s interactions with Nizeyimana during the day were also limited as he did not have much to discuss with him given the witness’s position as “a mere non-commissioned officer”.³⁷¹¹ He only saw Nizeyimana once or twice during his month at Mata.³⁷¹² Indeed, it would appear highly unlikely, given Nizeyimana’s rank, that he would have had daily, continuous contact with all the instructors while carrying out his duties as a commander. The Chamber considers that Witness Ufitimana’s account fundamentally undermines the evidence provided by Witnesses ZML13, RWV11 and CKN10 as it relates to their frequent contact with Nizeyimana. The Chamber, having also viewed the demeanour of Witnesses ZML13, RWV11 and CKN10, finds them less than credible.

1432. Indeed, it is inconceivable that in a vast camp, with over 2,000 recruits undergoing training at various locations, three lower-ranking instructors – even combined – could testify accurately about the presence or absence of a single individual at every given moment over the course of one month. The instructors were leading an intense and uninterrupted training schedule and were individually responsible for upwards of 50 men.³⁷¹³ Furthermore, Nizeyimana’s lodging at the guesthouse was around one kilometre from the factory buildings, making it impossible for the instructors to have seen him at all times. This further discredits the testimony that they would have known if Nizeyimana left and that they saw him at all times.³⁷¹⁴ Accordingly, the Chamber finds the accounts of Witnesses ZML13, RWV11 and

While the Defence witnesses do not provide a consistent or precise description of the location of Nizeyimana’s residence at Mata, the evidence clearly establishes that Nizeyimana lived separately

CKN10 about Nizeyimana's continuous and uninterrupted presence at the Mata training facility lacking any credibility.

1433. Contrary to Witnesses CKN10, RWV11 and ZML13's testimonies, the other ESO instructors, Witnesses Bunani, Ufitimana and Ruzindana, were not as categorical about their daily sighting of Nizeyimana. Indeed, Witness Bunani could not recall how many times Nizeyimana left the camp, but remembered one instance when Nizeyimana returned to Butare some time in late May 1994 to exchange his vehicle.³⁷¹⁵ Witness Ufitimana, in fact, only saw Nizeyimana twice over the course of the month.³⁷¹⁶ Witness Ruzindana was not asked about Nizeyimana's absence from the camp.

1434. In support of Witnesses CKN10, RWV11 and ZML13's evidence that Nizeyimana never left Mata for the ESO, Witnesses OUV03 and RWV09, who were both at the ESO Camp during the operative time period, generally testified that they did not see Nizeyimana return to the ESO once he left for Mata. Specifically, Witness OUV03 did not see Nizeyimana at the ESO after he left on 26 April 1994.³⁷¹⁷ Similarly, Witness RWV09 noted that he only saw Nizeyimana at the ESO once after late April, when he returned to exchange his vehicle.³⁷¹⁸

1435. At the outset, the Chamber notes that it has elsewhere expressed doubts about the credibility of Witness OUV03.³⁷¹⁹ It has the same reservations as it relates to his testimony concerning this second alibi period. Moreover, the Chamber notes that Witness OUV03 estimated there to have been approximately 300 soldiers defending the ESO at the time.³⁷²⁰ Given the size and amount of soldiers passing through the camp on any given day, the Chamber does not consider that Witness OUV03's account that he did not see Nizeyimana suggests the reasonable that Nizeyimana did not return to the ESO Camp or Butare generally.

1436. The Chamber further notes that despite Witness OUV03's insistence that he was informed of Nizeyimana's whereabouts at all times, he did not know of Nizeyimana's return to the ESO to exchange his vehicle sometime in May, as confirmed by Witness RWV09, who worked in the same department, and Witness Bunani, who noted Nizeyimana's absence from Mata.³⁷²¹ These contradictions raise additional concerns that Witness OUV03 tailored his evidence to support Nizeyimana's alibi rather than testify to facts he was certain of.

1437. Similarly, Witness RWV09's account that he did not see Nizeyimana at the ESO Camp during the operative time period, save for one unspecified day, does not raise the reasonable possibility that Nizeyimana did not return to the ESO Camp or Butare town generally during that period. Indeed, Witness RWV09 did not work in the same office as Nizeyimana and did not report to him.³⁷²² Notably, Witness RWV09 admitted to spending most of his time in his office, thus calling into question his ability to monitor Nizeyimana's whereabouts throughout the day.³⁷²³ His evidence is of limited probative value.

1438. Defence Witness BEJ01, a close friend and neighbour of Nizeyimana, testified that he saw Nizeyimana once in Butare during the operative period. Specifically, he saw Nizeyimana sometime between 20 and 27 May 1994, during which time he spoke with Nizeyimana for approximately 15 minutes.³⁷²⁴ The Chamber notes that Witness BEJ01 does not claim to have been present at Nizeyimana's residence at all times, every single day, between late April and late May. While Nizeyimana's wife told Witness BEJ01 that Nizeyimana had been transferred and no longer lived at the residence, the witness did not know where Nizeyimana had been sent and the Chamber does not believe that he would have been in a position to know Nizeyimana's comings and goings in Butare at all times over the course of the month.³⁷²⁵ Moreover, the fact that Nizeyimana worked outside of Butare is not inconsistent with him returning on some occasions. Witness BEJ01's evidence is thus of limited probative value.

1439. Of greater significance, Witness BEJ01 told the Belgian authorities in 1995 that he in fact did see Nizeyimana between 7 April and 20 May 1994.³⁷²⁶ When confronted with his prior statement, Witness BEJ01 asserted that translation issues had caused the inconsistency.³⁷²⁷ He explained that in Kinyarwanda, when a person says they visited a person, it really means that he visited that person's family.³⁷²⁸ When confronted with another excerpt from his prior statement, which reflects that Nizeyimana visited his house during this time period, the witness did not provide an explanation and conceded he was talking about Nizeyimana, rather than his family.³⁷²⁹

1440. Witness BEJ01's evidence before this Chamber is materially inconsistent with his prior statement in regards to Nizeyimana's absence from Butare and the interactions he had with Nizeyimana. The Chamber therefore does not consider Witness BEJ01's evidence as it relates to this time period credible. He, like many of the other alibi witnesses, appeared to tailor his evidence before this Chamber in a manner that was most favourable to the Accused. This suspicion is further bolstered by the witness's friendship with Nizeyimana and his evidence that the ESO captain provided him protection during the genocide.³⁷³⁰

1441. Contrary to the Defence evidence, Prosecution Witnesses AZD, YAA, ZAW, ZY, BDE and AJP³⁷³¹ and Rebuttal Witnesses Bizimenyera³⁷³² and Rwirahira all provided

³⁷³¹ Witness AJP was sure that Nizeyimana did not leave the house for a month as of 26 April 1994, since he saw Nizeyimana at his residence during this time. Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, p. 28. Additionally, Witness AJP testified that he travelled with Nizeyimana to Mata one evening, possibly in May, and returned the same evening. T. 15 February 2011, p. 27. The Chamber notes that it has elsewhere considered in detail the context in which Witness AJP testified and determined that his evidence is to be viewed with caution. See II.6.1. Notwithstanding, Witness AJP's frequent proximity to Nizeyimana finds broad support in the record. See II.6.1.

evidence suggesting that Nizeyimana regularly returned to Butare town and the ESO Camp. Indeed, Witnesses AZD, YAA, ZAW, BDE and ZY, all ESO soldiers, saw Nizeyimana return to the ESO approximately two or three times a week.³⁷³³ The Chamber notes that it has elsewhere discussed in detail the context in which Witnesses AZD, ZAW, BDE and ZY provided evidence and found them generally credible.³⁷³⁴ Despite the general nature of their evidence, and the absence of specific details about their sightings of Nizeyimana during this period, the witnesses generally corroborate each other.³⁷³⁵

1442. The Prosecution witnesses are corroborated by Rebuttal Witnesses Rwirahira, who testified that he shared an office building with Nizeyimana at the ESO Camp and saw him there frequently during the relevant period.³⁷³⁶ The Chamber, which considers Witness Rwirahira's evidence generally credible, observes that Witness Rwirahira worked with Defence Witness OUV03 in the same department.³⁷³⁷ While the Chamber finds Witness OUV03's evidence probative as it relates to Nizeyimana's whereabouts, it has noted elsewhere that it does not find his evidence credible.³⁷³⁸ Despite working for the same department, Witness OUV03's evidence is materially different from Witness Rwirahira's and contradicts Defence evidence suggesting that Nizeyimana returned on one occasion to exchange his car. The Chamber does not consider Witness OUV03's evidence dispositive.

Nevertheless, Witness AJP's evidence in regards to Nizeyimana's continued presence in Butare from late April to late May 1994 finds no support in either Defence or Prosecution evidence. Indeed, the Prosecution witnesses, while having seen Nizeyimana at the ESO or in Butare on occasions, all confirmed that he had been reassigned to Mata at some point and was therefore no longer based in Butare. The Chamber therefore accords little weight to Witness AJP's evidence in this regard.

³⁷³² The Chamber observes that Rebuttal Witness Bizimenyera was confined to a room during the operative time period and admitted that she did not in fact see Nizeyimana, but instead relied on his voice to ascertain whether he was at the house. Witness Bizimenyera, T. 7 September 2011, p. 45; T. 8 September 2011, p. 43. This raises questions about her ability to accurately identify Nizeyimana as having been at the house during the relevant time period.

³⁷³³ Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, p. 18 (Nizeyimana would still return to Butare often); Witness YAA, T. 1 February 2011, p. 68 (saw Nizeyimana approximately three times a week); Witness ZAW, T. 26 January 2011, pp. 14-15 (Nizeyimana would always come back to the ESO at least once or twice a week); Witness BDE, T. 31 January 2011, pp. 26, 40-41, 57 (saw Nizeyimana with Chief Warrant Officer Ntibiramira sometime in late May); Witness ZY, T. 26 January 2011, p. 70 (Nizeyimana came by the ESO about two to three times a week during that time).

³⁷³⁴ See II.4.1; II.7.3.

³⁷³⁵ The Chamber notes that the Defence confronted Witness YAA with his testimony in the Muvunyi case, during which he stated that Nizeyimana was no longer at the ESO when the witness returned to Butare from Kigali in May 1994, because he was training recruits in Mata. Witness YAA, T. 2 February 2011, pp. 2-3; Exhibit D8 (Excerpt of Witness YAA's testimony in Muvunyi trial). Witness YAA explained that he tried to inform the Chamber that Nizeyimana was no longer at the ESO on a "permanent basis". T. 2 February 2011, pp. 2-3. When confronted with his testimony that Nizeyimana would return to get fuel and other materials at the ESO, the witness clarified that Nizeyimana did not have to come to the ESO himself and that instead his officers would come to Butare to collect fuel and other necessities. T. 2 February 2011, pp. 4-5, 22-25. Instead, Nizeyimana came on his own for "his purposes". T. 2 February 2011, p. 28. The Chamber is not convinced by Witness YAA's explanations and considers his testimony of limited probative value in this regard.

³⁷³⁶ Witness Rwirahira, T. 7 September 2011, p. 9.

³⁷³⁷ Witness Rwirahira, T. 7 September 2011, p. 7. The Defence challenges whether Witness Rwirahira was ever at the ESO, given the limited knowledge he had of specific soldiers working there and the dates of events he was questioned about. Defence Closing Brief, para. 147. The Chamber observes that the Defence presented no concrete evidence of Witness Rwirahira having lied about his position at the ESO and consequently finds no basis for this assertion. The mere fact that the witness could not recall dates, people or events does not show that he was in fact never at the ESO.

³⁷³⁸ See II.13.2.

1443. Indeed, the Prosecution evidence that Nizeyimana would return to Butare town and the ESO Camp appears highly convincing when considering Nizeyimana's circumstances and the relative ease with which he could travel between the two locations. At the outset, Nizeyimana was married and his wife was pregnant and living at their house in Butare during the period when he was stationed at Mata.³⁷³⁹ Even when considering that Nizeyimana's wife was a soldier herself, the Chamber finds it inconceivable that he would never return to Butare town to check on her once assigned to Mata. Indeed, credible Prosecution evidence suggests that Nizeyimana would return to check on his family.³⁷⁴⁰

1444. Having reviewed the credibility concerns of Witnesses CKN10, ZLM13, RWV11, Bunani and Ruzindana in regards to the date upon which the convoy left for Mata, the Chamber turns to evaluate the general plausibility and reliability of what happened during the trip there. Contrary to the evidence provided in regards to the reconnaissance mission on 21 and 22 April 1994, Witnesses RWV11 and Bunani testified that the trip to Mata from the ESO, which followed the route through Gikongoro, was undertaken in less than two hours.³⁷⁴¹

1445. Three days later, after 27 April 1994, Witness CKN18 came to Mata with 500-600 recruits and arrived in Mata in about two hours.³⁷⁴² Notably, Witness Ufitimana, who also arrived in Mata around 30 April, estimated that the journey from the ESO to Mata could be completed by car in 45 minutes to an hour.³⁷⁴³ The witnesses provided consistent evidence to the extent that they were all travelling as part of a larger convoy, including buses with recruits. While the convoy passed roadblocks on the way to Mata during this trip, Witnesses RWV11 and Bunani noted that they did not spend much time at the barriers and were able to pass with little delay, because they were an "important convoy".³⁷⁴⁴ Their evidence in regards to the timing of the trip to Mata towards the end of April is corroborated by other ESO witnesses who experienced little difficulties when traversing roadblocks manned by civilians.³⁷⁴⁵

³⁷³⁹ Prosecution Witness AJP, T. 15 February 2011, pp. 28, 30, 35 (recalled Donata Mutezimana being pregnant when they fled); Defence Witness Nyiranzabonimana, T. 10 June 2011, p. 14 (did not deny that Nizeyimana had young children, but testified that she did not know them); Defence Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 22 (Nizeyimana had children from his marriage with Donata while in exile); Defence Witness Hitayezu, T. 9 June 2011, pp. 53-54 (Nizeyimana's wife and son lived in his home in Butare); Defence Rejoinder Witness KEN06, T. 20 September 2011, p. 6 (Nizeyimana's wife was caring for their child at home). Moreover, Defence evidence suggests that Nizeyimana's child was ill, requiring his attention during April 1994. See Defence Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, pp. 24-25 (on 17 April 1994, Nizeyimana's wife, Donata Mutezimana, was absent from the ESO, and her S1 responsibilities were taken over by another soldier, because she was at home caring for her "very sick" child), 55 (on 16 and 17 April 1994, Nizeyimana reported to Witness OUV03 that he was taking his child to hospital); Defence Witness KEN06, T. 20 September 2011, pp. 17-19 (on 19 April 1994, Donata took her sick child to the hospital).

³⁷⁴⁰ See, e.g., Witness AZD, T. 1 February 2011, p. 45 (recalled that Nizeyimana returned to visit his family).

³⁷⁴¹ Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 31 ("[...] on the 26th of April from Butare to Mata, we spent maximum two hours."); see also Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 16 (estimated that they left the ESO around 10.00 a.m.); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, pp. 68-69 (their convoy arrived at Mata around 11.00 a.m.). Defence Witnesses CKN10, ZML13 and Ruzindana did not provide evidence on the time it took to travel from the ESO to Mata towards the end of April 1994.

³⁷⁴⁵ See II.4.1, where Witnesses XAG and YAL gave compelling evidence of ESO soldiers being able to pass a roadblock manned by armed civilians and extracting the witnesses and the Ruhutinyanya family from it.

1446. The Defence evidence reflects that it was possible to make the journey between Butare town and Mata with relative ease within approximately two hours. Indeed, the distance is consistent with the proposition that one would travel back and forth between the two locations within the same day, particularly a well-know and high-ranking military official.³⁷⁴⁶ Notably, Witnesses Bunani and RWV09, who noted that Nizeyimana returned to the ESO on one occasion during May to exchange his vehicle, did not mention any difficulties encountered by Nizeyimana on the way to the ESO and back.

1447. Moreover, the Defence's evidence reflects that Nizeyimana had access to at least one vehicle while he was in Mata, which he used to return to Butare town on at least one occasion.³⁷⁴⁷ Similarly, the Chamber notes the existence of a significant supply line connecting the ESO and the Mata training camp. Indeed, Witness CKN10 testified that the camp depended on the supply line from the ESO to bring resources for approximately 2,500 recruits.³⁷⁴⁸ Witnesses ZML13 and RWV09 both testified to the use of vehicles between Butare and Mata to transport supplies.³⁷⁴⁹ The Chamber finds that the training facility in Mata was neither isolated nor self-sufficient but retained significant links with the ESO Camp in Butare. The existence of an important supply line and the transportation means available to Nizeyimana reflects that he would have been able to move between the two locations independently and with relative ease. Given his significant position within ESO's hierarchy, it is unlikely that he would not have returned to camp notwithstanding his position as the Mata training facility's camp commander.

1448. Moreover, the frailties of the alibi evidence discussed above are exacerbated when viewed among highly convincing and credible evidence of Nizeyimana's direct participation in the killing of Beata Uwambaye around 5 May 1994.³⁷⁵⁰ In the Chamber's view, the credible source of Nizeyimana's involvement in this crime, which is in direct conflict with the alibi evidence, eliminates the reasonable possibility that he remained in Mata and only departed from it once during the entire alibi period.

1449. Having assessed the credibility of the alibi evidence in isolation, the Chamber finds it either lacking credibility or insufficiently probative to raise the reasonable possibility of ³⁷⁴⁷ Witnesses RWV09, OUV03 and CKN18 all noted that Nizeyimana had a UNAMIR vehicle at his disposal during late April and late May 1994. Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 19-20; Witness OUV03, T. 31 May 2011, pp. 29-30; Witness CKN18, T. 15 June 2011, p. 46. Their evidence is further corroborated by Witnesses ZML13 and Bunani who noted that Nizeyimana travelled in his own vehicle. Witness ZML13, T. 6 June 2011, pp. 49, 60-61; Witness Bunani, T. 13 June 2011, p. 20.

So, the cooking equipment and the eating utensils, the uniforms, the clothing, foot ware, all of that came from ESO? A. Yes, that's correct. Q. And you told us this was for approximately 2,500 recruits? A. Yes. Q. So, for example, the 2,500 recruits are having their meals provided by supplies from ESO in an amount of about 7,500 meals a day, right? A. Yes."), 28 (military vehicles and civilian vehicles serviced the supply route).

³⁷⁴⁹ Witness ZML13, T. 7 June 2011, p. 75 (testified that vehicles were used to transport supplies to the camp from Butare); Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, pp. 19-21, 27-28 (remembered a vehicle came back to Mata to collect supplies including food and fuel from the ESO). In fact, Witness RWV09 testified that the UNAMIR vehicle Nizeyimana drove to Mata was one of two vehicles used to transport food and fuel supplies between the ESO and Mata. T. 8 June 2011, p. 19.

³⁷⁵⁰ See II.7.2.

Nizeyimana's continued and uninterrupted absence from the ESO Camp and Butare town from late April to late May 1994. As discussed above, the frailties of the alibi evidence are exacerbated when viewed among convincing and credible evidence of Nizeyimana's presence in Butare town during this time period, the means of transportation available to him and the relative ease with which he would have been able to return. Under the circumstances, the Chamber considers it inconceivable that a senior officer would have been completely absent from ESO Camp this entire time or that a husband would not visit his pregnant wife in the midst of an ongoing war.

CHAPTER III: LEGAL FINDINGS

1. INTRODUCTION

1450. The Prosecution has charged Nizeyimana under Articles 6 (1) and (3) of the Statute, with genocide (Count 1); extermination, murder and rape as crimes against humanity (Counts 2, 3 and 4, respectively); as well as murder and rape as serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II (Counts 5 and 6, respectively).

1451. In its factual findings, the Chamber has found that Nizeyimana participated in the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family (II.4.1), the attack on Cyahinda Parish (II.4.2), the killing of Rosalie Gicanda (II.6.2), the murders of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction checkpoint and the shooting of Witness ZAV at the same location (II.7.1, II.7.2). It has also found Nizeyimana was involved in the execution of persons taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences (II.6.6). Likewise, the Chamber shall also address Nizeyimana's criminal responsibility as it pertains to the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock (II.6.5).

1452. No factual allegations supporting Nizeyimana's liability for rape as a crime against humanity (Count 4) or rape as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II (Count 6) have been proven. The Chamber dismisses Counts 4 and 6.

2. CRIMINAL RESPONSIBILITY

2.1 Article 6 (1)

2.1.1 Joint Criminal Enterprise

(i) Elements

1453. Article 6 (1) of the Statute has been interpreted to contain three forms of joint criminal enterprise: basic (or category I), systemic (or category II) and extended (or category III).³⁷⁵¹ At the close of its case, the Prosecution indicated that it was pursuing the basic and extended forms of joint criminal enterprise.³⁷⁵²

1454. The required actus reus for each form of joint criminal enterprise comprises three elements.³⁷⁵³ First, a plurality of persons is required.³⁷⁵⁴ Second, the existence of a common purpose which amounts to or involves the commission of a crime provided for in the Statute is required. The common purpose need not be previously arranged or formulated; it may materialise extemporaneously.³⁷⁵⁵ Third, the participation of the accused in the common purpose is required, which involves the perpetration of one of the crimes provided for in the Statute.³⁷⁵⁶ This participation need not involve the commission of a specific crime under one of the provisions (for example, murder, extermination, torture, or rape), but may take the form of assistance in, or contribution to, the execution of the common purpose.³⁷⁵⁷ While the contribution need not be necessary or substantial, it “should at least be a significant contribution to the crimes for which the accused is to be found responsible”.³⁷⁵⁸

1455. The categories of joint criminal enterprise vary only with respect to the mens rea element.³⁷⁵⁹ The basic form of joint criminal enterprise requires the intent to perpetrate a certain crime, this intent being shared by all co-perpetrators.³⁷⁶⁰ Where the underlying crime requires a special intent, such as discriminatory intent, the accused, as a member of the joint criminal enterprise, must share the special intent.³⁷⁶¹

1456. For the extended form of joint criminal enterprise, the accused may be found responsible provided that he participated in the common criminal purpose with the requisite intent and that, in the circumstances of the case, (i) it was foreseeable that such a crime might be perpetrated by one or more of the persons used by him (or by any other member of the joint criminal enterprise) in order to carry out the actus reus of the crimes forming part of the common purpose; and (ii) the accused willingly took that risk.³⁷⁶²

(ii) Notice

1457. The mode and extent of an accused's participation in an alleged crime are material facts that must be clearly set forth in the indictment.³⁷⁶³ In cases where the Prosecution intends to rely on a theory of joint criminal enterprise, the Prosecution must plead the purpose of the enterprise, the identity of its participants, the nature of the accused's participation in the enterprise and the period of the enterprise.³⁷⁶⁴ The Indictment should also clearly indicate which form of joint criminal enterprise is being alleged.³⁷⁶⁵ Failure to specifically plead joint criminal enterprise, including the supporting material facts and the category, constitutes a defect in the indictment.³⁷⁶⁶

1458. The Defence argues that the Prosecution failed to provide adequate notice of its intention to rely on joint criminal enterprise as a mode of liability. Specifically, the Defence submits that the Prosecution did not plead with sufficient particularity the participants of the joint criminal enterprise and the nature of Nizeyimana's contributions thereto.³⁷⁶⁷ The Chamber recalls that it has already addressed the Defence objections as to sufficiency of notice pertaining to the members of the joint criminal enterprise.³⁷⁶⁸ The Defence has not provided any justification supporting reconsideration of this decision.³⁷⁶⁹

1459. In response to the Defence arguments that the Indictment fails to sufficiently set forth Nizeyimana's contributions to the joint criminal enterprise, the Prosecution argues that his contributions are clearly set forth in the specifics delineating the particular criminal conduct in paragraphs 6 through 35 of the Indictment.³⁷⁷⁰

1460. The Chamber observes that paragraph 5 of the Indictment refers to the basic and extended forms of joint criminal enterprise through reference to the relevant mens rea for each. This paragraph further identifies that joint criminal enterprise's purpose is "the commission of genocide against the Tutsi ethnic group" as well as those "presumed to support the Tutsi in Butare prefecture”. This paragraph also lists participants by name as well as category, refers to Nizeyimana’s participation, in part, through his “orders, authorization or instigation”. Finally, this paragraph identifies that the joint criminal enterprise existed from “6 April 1994 through 17 July 1994”.

³⁷⁶⁸ See Decision on Defence Preliminary Motion on Defects in the Indictment (TC), 16 December 2010, paras. 24-28.

³⁷⁶⁹ A Trial Chamber may exercise its discretion to reconsider a decision when one of the following criteria has been met: "(i) a new fact has been discovered that was not known to the Chamber at the time it made its original Decision; (ii) there has been a material change in circumstances since it made its original Decision; or (iii) there is reason to believe that its original Decision was erroneous or constituted an abuse of power on the part of the Chamber, resulting in an injustice." The party seeking reconsideration bears the burden of demonstrating the existence of the enumerated circumstances. See Decision on Defence Motion to Reconsider the June 15 Decision on the Extremely Urgent Motion for Reconsideration of Trial Chamber 7 June 2011 Decision on Prosecutor's Motion for Leave to Present Evidence in Rebuttal to the Alibi Defence (TC), 1 July 2011, para. 13 (internal citations omitted).

1461. The Chamber further observes this chapeau paragraph incorporates by reference paragraphs 6 through 35 of the Indictment, which set forth the particulars upon which the Prosecution seeks to establish Nizeyimana’s responsibility. Indeed, as reflected in a prior decision relating to the identity of participants, the chapeau paragraph alleging joint criminal enterprise was intended to be read in conjunction with the “additional information ... provided in the concise statement of facts” that followed.³⁷⁷¹

1462. With respect to the proven criminal conduct, the Chamber is satisfied that the paragraphs setting forth the material facts related to each event provide further specificity as it relates to the purpose of the joint criminal enterprise,³⁷⁷² the participants³⁷⁷³ and Nizeyimana’s specific contribution as it relates to each event.³⁷⁷⁴ Furthermore, these Indictment paragraphs all provide relatively targeted dates that fall within the broader period for which the joint criminal enterprise is alleged to have existed.³⁷⁷⁵

³⁷⁷¹ See Decision on Defence Preliminary Motion on Defects in the Indictment (TC), 16 December 2010, para. 27.

³⁷⁷² The purpose of the joint criminal enterprise for Indictment paragraph 13 was to kill Tutsi civilians who had taken refuge at Cyahinda Parish; the purpose listed in Indictment paragraph 19, was to target Tutsis civilians, who were members of the Ruhuntinyanya family; the purpose identified in Indictment paragraph 22, was to forcibly remove and kill members of the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya families; the purpose listed in Indictment paragraph 23 was to forcibly remove and kill Rosalie Gicanda and other persons who were residing at her home; for Indictment paragraph 24, the purpose was to kill two civilians identified as Tutsis, namely Remy Rwekaza and Witness ZAV; for Indictment paragraph 25, to kill a civilian identified as Tutsi, namely Pierre Claver Karenzi was the stated purpose; for Indictment paragraph 29, to kill a civilian identified as Tutsi, namely Beata Uwambaye was the listed purpose.

³⁷⁷³ With respect to the participants of the joint criminal enterprise, the Chamber observes that the operative paragraphs of the Indictment all identify the assailants as members of the joint criminal enterprise. Furthermore, Indictment paragraph 13 repeats categories of participants as well as identifies “Warrant Officer Paul Kanyeshyamba” and ESO soldiers, which are all listed in the chapeau paragraph as members of the joint criminal enterprise; Indictment paragraph 19 identifies ESO soldiers, including Second Lieutenant Bizimana and a number of subordinate FAR soldiers from his platoon and others, including Chief Warrant Officers Paul Kanyeshyamba and Francois Ntibiramira and First Sergeant Nyirimanzi, which are all expressly identified as members of the joint criminal enterprise; Indictment paragraph 22 identifies as ESO soldiers “who were members of the joint criminal enterprise”; Indictment paragraph 23 identifies Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana, who is also identified in the chapeau paragraph, and a number of subordinate FAR soldiers, including Corporal Aloys Mazimpaka and others, and armed civilians including Dr. Kageruka; Indictment paragraph 24 identifies “unknown FAR soldiers who were members of the joint criminal enterprise”; Indictment paragraph 25 identifies “ESO soldiers who were members of the joint criminal enterprise”; Indictment paragraph 29 identifies the participants as “unknown FAR soldiers who were members of the joint criminal enterprise”.

³⁷⁷⁴ The manner in which Nizeyimana contributed to the joint criminal enterprise in Indictment paragraph 13 is identified as authorizing, ordering or instigating; Indictment paragraph 19 describes the contribution as ordering, authorizing or instructing; Indictment paragraph 22 indicates leading, instructing; Indictment paragraph 23 refers to ordering or authorizing; Indictment paragraphs 24 and 29 refer to ordering.

³⁷⁷⁵ The time period reflected for Indictment, para. 13 is “from on or about 15 April 1994 until 20 April 1994”; for Indictment paragraph 19, the period is “between 16 April and 19 April 1994”; for Indictment paragraph 22, the period is “on or about 20 April 1994”; for Indictment paragraph 23, the period is “on or about 21 April 1994”; for Indictment paragraph 24, the time period is “on or about 21 April 1994”; for Indictment paragraph 25, the period is “on or about 21 April 1994”; for Indictment paragraph 29, the time period is “on or about 5 May 1994”.

1463. Moreover, the Chamber observes that the Prosecution continued to give timely, clear and consistent notice of its intent to pursue joint criminal enterprise liability with respect to the proven criminal conduct through its Pre-Trial Brief.³⁷⁷⁶ Similarly, the Prosecution reiterated its position in its opening statements.³⁷⁷⁷ Based on the foregoing, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has provided timely, clear and consistent notice with respect to its reliance on the basic and extended forms of joint criminal enterprise.

2.1.2 Ordering

(i) Elements

1464. “Ordering” requires that a person in a position of authority instruct another person to commit an offence. No formal superior-subordinate relationship between the accused and the perpetrator is required. It is sufficient that there is proof of some position of authority on the part of the accused that would compel another to commit a crime in following the accused’s order. The authority creating the kind of relationship envisaged under Article 6 (1) of the Statute for ordering may be informal or of a purely temporary nature.³⁷⁷⁸

(ii) Notice

1465. Ordering is clearly pleaded in the Indictment’s chapeau paragraph alleging Article 6 (1) liability. This mode is repeated in several of the paragraphs alleging particular crimes and Nizeyimana’s course of conduct in relation to them.³⁷⁷⁹ Much of the proven criminal conducted is also identified as examples of Nizeyimana’s responsibility for “ordering” crimes in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief.³⁷⁸⁰ This position was affirmed in the Prosecution’s opening statement.³⁷⁸¹ Indeed, the Defence has not made any objections as it relates to the ³⁷⁷⁶ Indeed, the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief refers to these killings in the context of the “Joint Criminal Enterprise in Butare”. See Pre-Trial Brief, p. 17 and paras. 54-55. The Defence argues that the Pre-Trial Brief cannot be used to cure any defect in the Indictment as it was filed prior to the operative Indictment. See Defence Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 29 April 2011, paras. 26-27. The Chamber recalls that the operative Indictment was filed pursuant to a Chamber order requesting the Prosecution to make several specific changes to a few discrete paragraphs of the Indictment. See Decision on Defence Preliminary Motion on Defects in the Indictment (TC), 16 December 2010, pp. 21-22. Other than these specific requested modifications, the operative Indictment as a whole remained largely identical in language to the previous version. Notwithstanding, the subsequent changes, references in the previously filed Pre-Trial Brief and its Annex of witness summaries remain clearly linked to the paragraphs of the operative Indictment. The Defence’s challenges also do not relate to the modified text. In this context, the Chamber considers that the fact that the Pre-Trial Brief was filed shortly before the operative Indictment does not prevent it from being used to cure certain defects, if any. Cf. Renzaho Appeal Judgement, para. 122. Indeed, in Nchamihigo, the Appeals Chamber looked at a Pre-Trial Brief as well as an opening statement that were submitted prior to the operative Indictment to determine if a defect relating to the accused’s role in the attack on Shangi parish had been cured. See Nchamihigo Appeal Judgement, paras. 13, 337-344, Annex B, p. 156.

³⁷⁷⁷ See T. 17 January 2011, p. 16 (Prosecution Opening Statement) (referring to Pre-Trial Brief paragraph 55 as providing a more expanded treatment of its theory of joint criminal enterprise).

pleading of this mode of liability. Accordingly, the Chamber considers that timely clear and consistent notice was given as it relates to this mode of liability for these crimes.

2.1.3 Aiding and Abetting

(i) Elements

1466. The actus reus of aiding and abetting is constituted by acts or omissions specifically aimed at assisting, encouraging, or lending moral support to the perpetration of a specific crime, and which have a substantial effect upon the perpetration of the crime.³⁷⁸² Whether a particular contribution qualifies as “substantial” is a “fact-based inquiry”, and need not “serve as condition precedent for the commission of the crime.”³⁷⁸³ Tacit approval and encouragement, which substantially contributed to the crime, may also amount to aiding and abetting. In such cases, the accused’s authority, combined with his presence at, or very near the crime scene, especially if considered together with prior conduct, may amount to an official sanction of the crime, thereby substantially contributing to it.³⁷⁸⁴

1467. The requisite mental element of aiding and abetting is knowledge that the acts performed assist the commission of the specific crime of the principal perpetrator.³⁷⁸⁵ In cases of specific intent crimes, such as genocide, the aider and abetter must know of the principal perpetrator’s specific intent.³⁷⁸⁶

(ii) Notice

1468. Where it is alleged that the accused planned, instigated, ordered, or aided and abetted in the planning, preparation or execution of the alleged crimes, the Prosecution is required to identify the “particular acts” or the “the particular course of conduct” on the part of the accused which forms the basis for the charges in question.³⁷⁸⁷ The Prosecution should only plead those modes of responsibility on which it intends to rely.³⁷⁸⁸

1469. The Appeals Chamber has previously noted that it is the practice of the Prosecution to merely quote the provisions of Article 6 (1) of the Statute in the indictment, leaving it to the Trial Chamber to determine the appropriate form of participation. It has warned that “in order to avoid possible ambiguity, it is advisable to indicate in relation to each individual count precisely and expressly the particular nature of the responsibility alleged”.³⁷⁸⁹ Nonetheless, if an individual count of the indictment does not indicate precisely the form of responsibility pleaded, an accused might have received clear and timely notice, for instance, in other paragraphs of the indictment. Thus, in considering whether an accused received clear and timely notice, the indictment must be considered as a whole.³⁷⁹⁰

1470. The Indictment's chapeau paragraph charging modes of liability pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute contains reference to each mode expressly contained within this article, including aiding and abetting. This paragraph incorporates by reference all paragraphs setting forth the particular events that support these modes of liability.³⁷⁹¹

1471. The Chamber observes that with respect to the Indictment paragraphs pleading the proven criminal conduct, the mode of "aiding and abetting" has not been expressly repeated. Indeed, some paragraphs use phrases such as "joint criminal enterprise",³⁷⁹² or terms such as "ordered",³⁷⁹³ and "orders",³⁷⁹⁴ as well as "instigated",³⁷⁹⁵ or "instigation".³⁷⁹⁶ Such language invokes particular modes of liability under Article 6 (1) of the Statute – namely joint criminal enterprise, ordering and or instigation. The practice of specifying certain modes of liability in the paragraphs pleading the material particulars supporting the alleged crimes, but not other modes upon which it also intends to rely, creates ambiguity as to whether the unspecified modes apply.³⁷⁹⁷

1472. Notwithstanding, the Chamber is of the view that the language supporting aiding and abetting is contained within the specific Indictment paragraphs notwithstanding any express reference to this mode. Indeed, many of the proven paragraphs include phrases such as "authorized",³⁷⁹⁸ "authorization",³⁷⁹⁹ or "instructions",³⁸⁰⁰ which, when read in the context of the chapeau paragraph, provide clear indication that aiding and abetting is alleged as a mode of liability.

1473. In this regard, the Chamber is of the view that the circumstances are materially similar to that in the Gacumbitsi case, where the operative paragraph, when read in view of the chapeau paragraph pleading aiding and abetting liability, contained facts that, if proven, would necessarily support an aiding and abetting conviction.³⁸⁰¹ Conversely, the scenario is distinguishable from that in the Ntawukulilyayo case, where the operative paragraphs failed to set forth conduct that, if proven, could support a conviction for ordering.³⁸⁰²

1474. Moreover, the Pre-Trial Brief indicates the Prosecution's intent to prove that Nizeyimana is responsible for "aiding and abetting the commission of crimes charged in the Indictment”, broadly applying this mode of liability to the Indictment.³⁸⁰³ Similarly, in its opening statement, the Prosecution stated its intention to rely on aiding and abetting liability for “all the 6 (1) crimes that are pled in the Indictment”.³⁸⁰⁴ Indeed, the Defence has not made any objections as it relates to the pleading of this mode of liability. Accordingly, the Chamber considers that timely clear and consistent notice was given as it relates to this mode of liability for the proven criminal conduct.

2.2 Article 6 (3)

2.2.1 Law

1475. For an accused to incur criminal responsibility under Article 6 (3) of the Statute, in addition to establishing beyond reasonable doubt that his or her subordinate is criminally responsible, the following elements must be established beyond reasonable doubt: (1) the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship; (2) that the superior knew or had reason to know that his or her subordinate was about to commit a crime or had done so; and (3) that the superior failed to take necessary and reasonable measures to prevent or punish the commission of the crime by his or her subordinate.³⁸⁰⁵

1476. The threshold for a superior-subordinate relationship is established by showing that the accused had effective control over a subordinate at the time the offence was committed. Effective control requires that the accused had the material ability to prevent or punish criminal conduct. The superior must also have possessed power or authority over subordinates, either de jure or de facto. The superior-subordinate relationship entails that the accused, by virtue of his or her position, is senior to the perpetrator in a formal or informal hierarchy.³⁸⁰⁶ This requirement is not satisfied by a showing of general influence on the part of the accused.³⁸⁰⁷

1477. A direct and individualised superior-subordinate relationship is not required for responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3). Effective control may descend from the superior to the subordinate culpable of the crime through intermediary subordinates.³⁸⁰⁸ The doctrine of command responsibility encompasses a civilian superior, but his or her effective control – whether de jure or de facto – should be similar to that of a military superior.³⁸⁰⁹

1478. Factors indicative of effective control include the accused’s position, the procedure for appointment, the actual tasks performed, his or her capacity to issue orders, the nature of such orders, and whether any orders were followed.³⁸¹⁰ The Chamber recalls that although the authority to issue orders may be indicative of effective control over subordinates, it does not automatically establish such control.³⁸¹¹ Effective control can only be determined by looking at the evidence in its entirety on a case-by-case basis.³⁸¹²

2.2.2 Deliberations

1480. Within its Factual Findings, the Chamber has found that Nizeyimana cannot be held responsible as superior pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute as it relates to certain proven criminal conduct.³⁸¹⁴

1481. At the outset, Nizeyimana did not hold the highest military rank at the ESO Camp during the relevant period. Rather, Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi was appointed Camp Commander on 7 April 1994, replacing Marcel Gatsinzi who had been promoted as the Rwandan army's Chief of Staff.³⁸¹⁵ There is evidence that Muvunyi's position as the ESO Camp Commander gave him broad de jure authority over the ESO Camp.³⁸¹⁶ Moreover, by assuming this post, there is also evidence that Muvunyi acceded to the position of the Butare and Gikongoro operational commander, imbuing him with broad de jure authority over regional military activities.³⁸¹⁷ It is undisputed that Muvunyi was Nizeyimana's de jure superior.

1482. Notwithstanding, the record reflects that Nizeyimana held a leadership position within the ESO Camp from the early 1990s.³⁸¹⁸ By April 1994, Nizeyimana possessed the rank of captain. Contemporaneous documentation indicates that Muvunyi was the senior officer in the S2/S3 office prior to 7 April, although it further reflects that Nizeyimana was in this post as well.³⁸¹⁹ However, the Defence has conceded, and the evidence firmly reflects that by 7 April, Nizeyimana was the ESO Camp's S2 officer – charged with military intelligence – as well as the S3 officer – responsible for training and operations.³⁸²⁰

In this regard, the limited and general Defence evidence that Muvunyi continued to hold these posts after 7 April 1994, in light of the entire record, is unpersuasive. Defence Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, pp. 9-10 (Nizeyimana worked in the S2/S3 office, although Muvunyi retained that position even after promoted to Camp Commander on 7 April 1994); Witness Ruzindana, T. 1 June 2011, p. 27 (although Muvunyi was promoted to acting camp commander, he remained head of S2/S3 services).

1483. In this context, the Defence has presented evidence reflecting the limited de jure responsibilities and command limitations as it relates to the functions of the S2/S3 officer.³⁸²¹ The Defence further points to evidence that, as a member of the camp's general staff, Nizeyimana's position as S2/S3 was that of an advisor.³⁸²² Defence evidence suggests that he had no troops under his direct authority, as company commanders reported directly to the camp commander.³⁸²³ This also limited Nizeyimana's ability to impose punishments.³⁸²⁴

1484. However, contemporaneous documentation and evidence indicates that Nizeyimana, given his rank as an officer, had obligations to maintain discipline of lower ranking soldiers.³⁸²⁵ It is undisputed that he was required to report criminal conduct of any subordinate officer.³⁸²⁶ As discussed in greater detail below, credible Prosecution and Defence evidence reflects that Nizeyimana remained a formidable figure within the ESO's hierarchy, notwithstanding any de jure limitations to his authority.

³⁸²¹ See, e.g., Witness Habyarimana, T. 25 May 2011, pp. 12-13 (the S2 at the ESO was primarily tasked with mapping and cartography for training purposes as well as facilitating good relationships between the school and the "diverse environment" around it; the S3 was primarily tasked with designing classes); Witness RWV09, T. 8 June 2011, p. 32 (Nizeyimana's authority over soldiers was limited to transmitting orders received from the camp commander to these soldiers); Witness RWV11, T. 2 June 2011, p. 10 (there was no second in command at the ESO; Nizeyimana worked in Muvunyi's office).

1486. The record reflects that Nizeyimana, based on his rank, position and duration of service at the ESO, was a figure of considerable actual authority within the ESO's command structure. General, credible evidence demonstrates that Nizeyimana was respected and viewed as competent,³⁸²⁹ was feared by lower ranking soldiers at the ESO,³⁸³⁰ and was an imposing figure within the ESO command structure.³⁸³¹ Within an operational framework, Nizeyimana had the authority to issues orders to soldiers.³⁸³² Indeed, while general evidence indicates that there was no official second in command at the ESO,³⁸³³ Prosecution and Defence evidence indicates that Nizeyimana was viewed as exercising this type of authority.³⁸³⁴

1487. Furthermore, Nizeyimana had positive relationships with several lower ranking, yet influential officers within the ESO Camp, including Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana.³⁸³⁵ The Chamber finds this evidence, particularly in light of Muvunyi's limited tenure at the ESO Camp prior to the genocide,³⁸³⁶ highly relevant to Nizeyimana's ability to exercise effective control over ESO soldiers and cadets. Moreover, the relative inexperience and youth of ESO cadets is another factor that, in some cases, might have given Nizeyimana the material ability to prevent and punish criminal conduct of subordinate ESO soldiers.

1488. Given the record, the Chamber is not satisfied that Nizeyimana, in general, had the material ability at all times to prevent or punish all crimes committed by all subordinate military personnel at the ESO. The Chamber is satisfied, however, that under certain circumstances Nizeyimana exercised this power, notwithstanding the possibility that Muvunyi did as well. Indeed, the law is clear that the effective control test implies that more than one person may be held responsible for the same crime committed by a subordinate.³⁸³⁷

1489. In assessing Nizeyimana's superior responsibility, the proven criminal conduct is the most relevant to determining whether he may be held liable pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute for the crimes of ESO soldier or civilian assailants. The Chamber shall conduct this analysis on a case-by-case basis below.

3. GENOCIDE

3.1 Introduction

1490. Count 1 of the Indictment charges Nizeyimana with genocide pursuant to Article 2 (3)(a) of the Statute.

3.2 Law

1491. To find an accused guilty of the crime of genocide, it must be established that the accused committed any of the enumerated acts in Article 2 (2) of the Statute with the specific intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a group, as such, that is defined by one of the protected categories of nationality, race, ethnicity, or religion.³⁸³⁸ Although there is no numeric threshold, the perpetrator must act with the intent to destroy at least a substantial part of the group.³⁸³⁹ The perpetrator need not be solely motivated by a criminal intent to commit genocide, nor does the existence of personal motive preclude him from having the specific intent to commit genocide.³⁸⁴⁰

1492. In the absence of direct evidence, a perpetrator's intent to commit genocide may be inferred from relevant facts and circumstances that can lead beyond any reasonable doubt to the existence of the intent. Factors that may establish the specific intent include the general context, the perpetration of other culpable acts systematically directed against the same group, the scale of atrocities committed, the systematic targeting of victims on account of their membership in a particular group, or the repetition of destructive and discriminatory acts.³⁸⁴¹

1493. The Indictment charges Nizeyimana with killing or causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the Tutsi ethnic group. It is firmly established that the Tutsi ethnicity is a protected group.³⁸⁴² Killing members of the group requires a showing that the principal perpetrator intentionally killed one or more members of the group.³⁸⁴³ The term "causing serious bodily harm" refers to acts of sexual violence, serious acts of physical violence falling short of killing that seriously injure the health, cause disfigurement, or cause any serious injury to the external or internal organs or senses.³⁸⁴⁴ The serious bodily or mental harm, however, need not be an injury that is permanent or irremediable.³⁸⁴⁵ Several judgements of the Tribunal indicate that serious mental harm refers to more than minor or temporary impairment of mental faculties.³⁸⁴⁶ One, however, has noted that there is no jurisprudential basis for this conclusion and that what constitutes serious mental harm should be assessed on a case-by-case basis.³⁸⁴⁷

3.3 Deliberations

(i) Ruhutinyanya Family

(a) Article 6 (1)

1494. The Chamber recalls its findings that around 18 April 1994, Nizeyimana ordered the removal of the Ruhutinyanya family, which included Tutsis, knowing that the implementation of this order would lead to the slaughter of the Ruhutinyanya family. The Chamber concluded that ESO soldiers removed members of the Ruhutinyanya family to a roadblock near the Akanyaru border crossing. The ESO soldiers that brought them there, and / or the armed civilian and Interahamwe manning the barrier, directly participated in the killing of members of this family.³⁸⁴⁸

1496. The Chamber considers that Nizeyimana's orders to return the family to the location from which they were first retrieved amounted to significant and substantial contributions to their deaths. In light of Nizeyimana's awareness that the implementation of these instructions would lead to the killing of this family, the only reasonable conclusion is that he too possessed genocidal intent.³⁸⁴⁹ The Chamber also finds that Nizeyimana was aware of the genocidal intent held by the principal perpetrators.

1497. This conclusion is bolstered by the evidence reflecting Nizeyimana's anger towards the presence of this Tutsi family, characterised by him and others as Inyenzi or Inkotanyi, and his disgust that they were being protected. Indeed, such disgust falls squarely within the Chamber's conclusions elsewhere that Nizeyimana, around this same time, was involved in ³⁸⁴⁶ Seromba Appeal Judgement, para. 46; Kajelijeli Trial Judgement, para. 815; Ntagerura et al. Trial Judgement, para. 664; Semanza Trial Judgement, paras. 321-322; Kayishema and Ruzindana Trial Judgement, para. 110.

³⁸⁴⁷ See Kanyarukiga Trial Judgement, para. 637 citing Kayishema and Ruzindana Trial Judgement, para. 113.

³⁸⁴⁹ In finding that Nizeyimana acted with genocidal intent, the Chamber has considered evidence that he lodged at least one Tutsi, Antoinette Bizimenyera, at his home during a period when Tutsis were being targeted and killed in Butare town. In view of Nizeyimana's conduct in relation to these particular crimes, his selective and limited assistance raises no doubt with respect to this conclusion. Cf. Simba Trial Judgement paras. 417-418; Kvočka Appeal Judgement, paras. 232-233. The Chamber considers this evidence in light of all its findings related to whether or not Nizeyimana possessed genocidal intent.

the planning and authorisation of an overwhelming military assault on displaced Tutsis at Cyahinda Parish.³⁸⁵⁰

1498. Given the findings above, the Chamber considers that Nizeyimana could bear responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) for having aided and abetted the killing of members of the Ruhutinyanya family. However, this killing involved a plurality of persons, sharing a common purpose and acting in concert to commit a crime provided for in the Statute. The Chamber has concluded that Nizeyimana's contribution to the crime was both significant and substantial. The record further demonstrates that Nizeyimana agreed to a common purpose and also possessed genocidal intent. Under the circumstances, Nizeyimana's liability is most appropriately characterised as participating in a basic joint criminal enterprise.³⁸⁵¹ The Chamber enters a conviction for the crime on this basis.

(b) Article 6 (3)

1499. The record demonstrates that Nizeyimana could also bear superior responsibility for the killings of the Ruhutinyanya family. As reflected in the factual findings, Nizeyimana was the officer consulted on the evening of the family's arrival, as well as the morning that they were removed from the ESO Camp by subordinate ESO soldiers. Nizeyimana's actions were stern and he ordered the removal of the family, knowing that the outcome of his instructions would lead to their deaths.

1500. Indeed, the Chamber considers it significant that Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana was the highest ranking soldier who ultimately enacted Nizeyimana's orders. The Chamber recalls evidence reflecting the relatively close relationship between Nizeyimana and this soldier. It has found elsewhere that Bizimana reported to Nizeyimana after participating in the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her household days after this event.

1501. Noting this evidence, as well as Nizeyimana's position within the ESO hierarchy and the considerable authority he possessed, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana was in a position to prevent the actions of the ESO soldiers, which led to the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family. Given the nature of his participation, as well as evidence reflecting widespread knowledge that the Ruhutinyanya family was killed, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana was also aware of the ensuing commission of a crime. Likewise, Nizeyimana was obligated and had reasonable measures available to him to punish the ESO soldiers.

1502. In so finding, the Chamber considers that Muvunyi too, may have had effective control over the perpetrators. However, the Chamber does not consider that the possibility of ³⁸⁵¹ In so finding, it is immaterial whether ESO soldiers and or armed civilians and Interahamwe physically killed members of the Ruhutinyanya family at the roadblock near the Akanyaru border crossing. Even if the ESO soldiers only transported the Ruhutinyanya family to this barrier, Nizeyimana and the ESO soldiers, who were members of the joint criminal enterprise, could be held accountable for the crimes of the imputed members, which fell squarely within the common purpose to kill the Tutsis of Butare, including this family. See Martić Appeal Judgement, para. 171. Furthermore, the Chamber considers that the Indictment and Pre-Trial Brief, when read together, give notice of the Prosecution's position that members of the Ruhutinyanya family might have been killed by persons manning the roadblock. See Indictment, para. 19 and Pre-Trial Brief, paras. 86, 153-154, Annex to Pre-Trial Brief, paras. 1 (p. 1), 6 (p. 7), 29 (pp. 23-24).

this parallel authority reasonably eliminates Nizeyimana's effective control over the ESO soldiers who transported the Ruhutinyanya family to their deaths. The Chamber shall consider how these conclusions impact sentencing as Nizeyimana may not be convicted pursuant to Articles 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.³⁸⁵²

(ii) Cyahinda Parish

(a) Article 6 (1)

1503. The Chamber recalls its findings that soldiers, including around 11 ESO soldiers and Chief Warrant Kanyashyamba, participated in the attack on Cyahinda Parish around 18 April 1994 that resulted in the killing of thousands of displaced civilians who were primarily Tutsis. The Chamber has concluded that the actions of the ESO soldiers played a direct role in the killing of the Tutsis there.³⁸⁵³

1504. Moreover, the Chamber has determined that the only reasonable conclusion was that Nizeyimana both contributed to the planning of this military operation and that he authorised the participation of ESO soldiers in it.³⁸⁵⁴ These conclusions were made in light of the fact that Nizeyimana visited the Cyahinda parish the preceding day, his tenure as the S2/S3 officer in charge of intelligence and operations, and the ESO's role as the operational command for the Butare and Gikongoro region. The Chamber also considered relevant evidence that Nizeyimana both issued orders to, and held power over, Kanyashyamba.³⁸⁵⁵

1505. Given the nature of the attack, the Chamber finds that the assailants intentionally killed members of the Tutsi ethnic group. In light of the high density of Tutsis among the displaced persons and the fact that they had gathered there largely as a result of attacks on Tutsis in neighbouring communes, the Chamber has no doubt that the assailants, including the ESO soldiers who participated in the attack, possessed genocidal intent.

1506. Given Nizeyimana's participation in the security committee's visit to Cyahinda Parish on the day prior to the attack, there is no question that Nizeyimana was aware of the circumstances that led the primarily Tutsis refugees to the parish. Through his subsequent participation in the planning of the military operation as well as his authorisation of the ESO soldiers who participated in it, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana possessed genocidal intent and that he was aware of that held by the principal perpetrators.

1507. Furthermore, when evaluating the impact of Nizeyimana's contribution, the Chamber recalls that Nizeyimana's presence at the Cyahinda Parish necessarily allowed him to examine – from military intelligence and operations perspectives – the strengths and weaknesses of the displaced Tutsis who had fortified themselves within the parish. It is noteworthy that during the ensuing attack, ESO soldiers utilised specialised arms that could weaken structural safe havens for the refugees within the parish facilities and kill numbers of them from a safe distance. In light of the fact that the primarily Tutsi refugees had previously staved off initial, armed assaults by the bourgmestre and gendarmes, the use of these heavy weapons is not coincidental. Indeed, the Chamber has no doubt that the participation of the ESO soldiers and the weaponry utilised reflect Nizeyimana's on-the-ground assessment of

³⁸⁵⁴ II.4.2.

the situation at Cyahinda Parish and were a direct result of Nizeyimana's contributions to the planning and authorisation of this assault. There is no question that Nizeyimana's contributions proved to be both significant and substantial to the ensuing extermination operation.

1508. Given the findings above, the Chamber considers that Nizeyimana could bear responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) for having aided and abetted the attack on Cyahinda Parish. However, this attack involved a plurality of persons, sharing a common purpose and acting in concert to commit a crime provided for in the Statute. The Chamber has concluded that Nizeyimana's contribution to the crime was both significant and substantial. The record further demonstrates that Nizeyimana agreed to the common purpose and also possessed genocidal intent. Under the circumstances, Nizeyimana's liability is most appropriately characterised as participating in a basic joint criminal enterprise with assailants, and, in particular, the ESO soldiers who participated in this attack. The Chamber enters a conviction for this crime on this basis.

(b) Article 6 (3)

1509. Although Nizeyimana clearly participated in the planning and authorised ESO soldiers to participate in the attack, the Chamber is not satisfied that Nizeyimana could bear superior responsibility for the actual killings pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute. The evidence reasonably reflects that ESO soldiers were not the only military force involved in this attack. Given the significant scale of this operation, the Chamber is not satisfied that Nizeyimana was the highest ranking military authority involved in the planning and operational aspects of this assault. It is also possible that, at the time of the attack, the ESO soldiers were re-subordinated and thus potentially under the effective control of another commander at the time of the actual killings.³⁸⁵⁶ Under the circumstances, Nizeyimana's material ability to prevent the crimes committed by ESO soldiers or subsequently punish them has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt. The Chamber has the same doubts as it relates to civilians and other participants in this attack.

(iii) Gicanda

(a) Article 6 (1)

1510. The Chamber has found that Second Lieutenant Bizimana led a group of ESO soldiers in the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her household on or around 20 April 1994. Gicanda, the former Queen of Rwanda, was a Tutsi, although the ethnic identities of the other victims are unproven. Moreover, Bizimana reported this killing to Nizeyimana and the Chamber has concluded that Nizeyimana authorised it.³⁸⁵⁷

1511. Given the nature of the attack, the Chamber has no doubt that Gicanda was targeted and intentionally killed because she was a Tutsi. Notably, only days earlier, Bizimana had participated in an operation that led to the murder of members of the Ruhutinyanya family, who were also killed on the basis of their Tutsi ethnicity. Likewise, the murder of Gicanda and others in her household followed President Sindikubwabo's 19 April 1994 speech, which marked a significant increase in violence and the targeting of Tutsi civilians within Butare town. The Chamber has no doubt that the murder of Gicanda, referred to as an "old lady" and who was a symbol of the former monarchy, was killed in order to set a striking example that Tutsis, as well as Hutus perceived as sympathetic to the plight of the Tutsis, were the enemy.

³⁸⁵⁶ See Blagojević and Jokić Appeal Judgement, paras. 300-304 (affirming the Trial Chamber's determination that while a superior exercised "command control" over a subordinate who had committed crimes, the presence of a parallel authority who was present in the area and issuing orders and instructions, raised doubts that the Defendant exercised "effective control" over that subordinate).

1512. Furthermore, there is evidence that shortly after this attack, ESO and other soldiers continued to participate in targeted killings of Tutsis. Specifically, around 21 April 1994, ESO soldiers participated in the separation and killing of Tutsis at the Butare University.³⁸⁵⁸ Around 29 April, ESO soldiers participated in the separation and removal of Tutsis at the Groupe Scolaire, which led to their subsequent slaughter.³⁸⁵⁹ There is additional evidence that, starting in the last third of April, soldiers used lists to identify and kill Tutsis at the Butare University Hospital.³⁸⁶⁰ In this context, the Chamber has no doubt that the physical perpetrators who killed Gicanda and others taken from her home possessed genocidal intent.³⁸⁶¹

1513. The Chamber recalls that Bizimana reported the killing to Nizeyimana and it has concluded that Nizeyimana authorised the murder. When viewing his actions in the context of other proven conduct, including his role in the Ruhutinyanya family killing, the Cyahinda Parish massacre, and killings at roadblocks, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana possessed genocidal intent. The only reasonable conclusion, particularly in light of his relationship and repeated collaboration with Second Lieutenant Bizimana, is that Nizeyimana was also aware of the genocidal intent held by the attackers.

1514. Finally, given Nizeyimana's high rank and considerable authority within the ESO, as well as his relationship with Second Lieutenant Bizimana, Nizeyimana's authorisation of the killing before the attack, and his continued authorisation after, amounted to significant and substantial contributions to the crime in the form of moral support and approval.

1515. Given the findings above, the Chamber considers that Nizeyimana could bear responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) for having aided and abetted the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others removed from her home. However, this attack involved a plurality of persons, sharing a common purpose and acting in concert to commit a crime provided for in the Statute. The Chamber has concluded that Nizeyimana's contribution to the crime was both significant and substantial. The record further demonstrates that Nizeyimana agreed to the common purpose and also possessed genocidal intent. Under the circumstances, Nizeyimana's liability is most appropriately characterised by his participation in a joint criminal enterprise.

³⁸⁶⁰ II.8.1.

³⁸⁶¹ The fact that this operation targeted one Tutsi in particular no way impacts the conclusion that the perpetrators possessed the intent to destroy at least a substantial part of the Tutsi ethnic group. The Chamber reiterates that this killing must be viewed in the context of the targeted and systematic killing of Tutsis perpetrated by ESO soldiers and others in Butare around this time. Moreover, the symbolic importance of the killing Gicanda as a means of identifying the enemy is also relevant. Cf. Jelisić Trial Judgement, para. 82 ("Genocidal intent may ... consist of the desired destruction of a more limited number of persons selected for the impact that their disappearance would have upon the survival of the group as such.").

(b) Article 6 (3)

1516. The record demonstrates that Nizeyimana could also bear superior responsibility for the killings of Rosalie Gicanda and those removed from her home. The Chamber has found that Nizeyimana authorised the killings. The record reflects that Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana also reported the killing to Nizeyimana afterward. In addition, the record demonstrates that Nizeyimana and Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana were relatively close.

1517. Noting this evidence, as well as Nizeyimana's position within the ESO hierarchy and the considerable authority he possessed, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana was in a position to prevent this crime and to take reasonable measures to punish it.³⁸⁶² Given his prior authorisation, as well as the ensuing report of the crime's completion, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana authorised the killing of Rosalie Gicanda, which led to her death and others taken from her residence.

1518. In so finding, the Chamber considers that Muvunyi may have possessed these same powers of effective control. However, absent credible evidence of Muvunyi's involvement in this event, the Chamber does not consider that this parallel authority reasonably eliminates Nizeyimana's effective control over the perpetrators of this crime. The Chamber shall consider how these conclusions impact sentencing as Nizeyimana may not be convicted pursuant to Articles 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.³⁸⁶³

(iv) Remy Rwekaza, Witness ZAV and Beata Uwambaye

(a) Article 6 (1)

1519. In its factual findings, the Chamber concluded that Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to kill Remy Rwekaza and Witness ZAV, both Tutsis, at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock, on or about 21 April 1994. The soldiers shot and killed Rwekaza. Witness ZAV was shot, but survived, and the Chamber has concluded that he suffered serious bodily harm.³⁸⁶⁴ Likewise, the Chamber has found that Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers to kill Beata Uwambaye, a Tutsi, at the same barrier around 5 May. The soldiers carried out Nizeyimana's instructions and killed Uwambaye.³⁸⁶⁵ In all instances, the victims were in civilian clothing and unarmed.

1520. Through his presence and orders at the roadblock, Nizeyimana substantially and significantly contributed to the killings of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye, as well as the shooting of Witness ZAV. His position of authority among the relatively young ESO soldiers and his instructions to execute these Tutsis played a decisive role in these crimes. Indeed, as it relates to the incident of 21 April 1994, Nizeyimana's contribution of stopping Rwekaza and Witness ZAV after they were allowed through the roadblock, returning them to the barrier and then ordering their execution was a necessary condition to the ensuing murder and assault committed by the ESO soldiers.

³⁸⁶² The Chamber has previously determined that Second Lieutenant Jean Pierre Bizimana was not punished for this crime. II.6.2.

³⁸⁶³ See, e.g., Setako Appeal Judgement, para. 266; Renzaho Appeal Judgement, para. 564.

³⁸⁶⁴ II.7.1.

³⁸⁶⁵ II.7.2.

1521. While these attacks only resulted in the deaths of two Tutsis and the serious bodily harm of a third, the Chamber has no doubt that the perpetrators acted with the intent to destroy at least a substantial part of the Tutsi group. These attacks were emblematic of the systematic nature in which Tutsi civilians were identified and killed on an ongoing basis at this roadblock and others manned by ESO soldiers in Butare town.³⁸⁶⁶ Notably, a prominent Tutsi lecturer, Pierre Claver Karenzi, was killed in the vicinity of a nearby roadblock manned by ESO soldiers on the same day that Rwekaza was killed and Witness ZAV was shot.³⁸⁶⁷

1522. Indeed, these attacks followed President Sindikubwabo's 19 April 1994 speech, which marked a significant increase in violence and the targeting of Tutsi civilians within Butare town. Around 20 April, ESO soldiers killed Rosalie Gicanda, the former Tutsi Queen of Rwanda, and others taken from her home.³⁸⁶⁸ Around 21 April, ESO soldiers participated in the separation and killing of Tutsis at the Butare University.³⁸⁶⁹ Around 29 April, ESO soldiers participated in the separation and removal of Tutsis at the Groupe Scolaire, which led to their subsequent slaughter.³⁸⁷⁰ There is additional evidence that, starting in the last third of April, soldiers used lists to identify and kill Tutsis at the Butare University Hospital.³⁸⁷¹

1523. In this context, the fact that only two Tutsis were killed and one injured on these occasions reflects the rudimentary and inefficient means employed by ESO soldiers to commit these crimes.³⁸⁷² It raises no doubt that the soldiers possessed genocidal intent at the moment of their commission.³⁸⁷³ Based on Nizeyimana's conduct during the killing of Rwekaza and attack of Witness ZAV, as well as his actions during Uwambaye's murder, the record demonstrates that he shared this genocidal intent. This conclusion is further supported by the Chamber's findings relating to Nizeyimana's participation in other proven criminal conduct.

1524. The Chamber concludes that Nizeyimana is responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, for ordering the killing of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye and causing serious bodily and mental harm to Witness ZAV. The facts equally support the conclusion that Nizeyimana participated in a basic joint criminal enterprise to kill Tutsis at this roadblock. However, the Chamber considers that "ordering", which is also a direct form a responsibility, most appropriately captures Nizeyimana's criminal participation in these specific events.³⁸⁷⁴

³⁸⁷² Cf. Krstić Appeal Judgement, para. 32 ("In determining that genocide occurred ... the cardinal question is whether the intent to commit genocide existed. ... the offence of genocide does not require proof that the perpetrator chose the most efficient method to accomplish his objective of destroying the targeted part. Even where the method selected will not implement the perpetrator's intent to the fullest, leaving that destruction incomplete, this ineffectiveness alone does not preclude a finding of genocidal intent.").

³⁸⁷³ See Hategekimana Appeal Judgement, para. 133-135 (affirming the Trial Chamber's conclusion that the killers of three Tutsi women possessed genocidal intent when viewed in context of the specific killings and other violence targeting Tutsis).

³⁸⁷⁴ The legal characterisation of Nizeyimana's actions as ordering instead of committing pursuant to a joint criminal enterprise does not impact sentencing considerations.

(b) Article 6 (3)

1525. The record demonstrates that Nizeyimana could also bear superior responsibility for the killings of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock, as well as the serious bodily harm caused to Witness ZAV. The killings and assault were committed by ESO soldiers who were acting on the orders of Nizeyimana. The Chamber is mindful that a superior's authority to issue orders is one indicator of effective control, but that it does not automatically establish such control.³⁸⁷⁵ However, given the Chamber's findings regarding Nizeyimana's position within the ESO hierarchy, the considerable authority he possessed as well as the relative inexperience of ESO soldiers, the evidence firmly reflects that he exercised effective control over the ESO soldiers who perpetrated these crimes.

1526. As noted above, it is significant that the young ESO soldiers at the barrier initially allowed Witness ZAV and Remy Rwekaza, two Tutsis, to pass on the explanation that they intended to see ESO Captain Twagiramungu. However, they were returned to the roadblock by Nizeyimana who then ordered the soldiers to kill them. In describing the soldiers' reaction, Witness ZAV stated that they "couldn't challenge [their] superior".³⁸⁷⁶ Notably, when Rwekaza later offered to pay the soldiers in exchange for his life, they responded that Nizeyimana would kill them unless they complied with his order.³⁸⁷⁷ Nizeyimana's actions, which were a necessary condition to the ensuing attack, fully reflect his material ability to prevent and punish this criminal conduct of these ESO soldiers at that moment.³⁸⁷⁸

1527. Likewise, the killing of Beata Uwambaye at the same roadblock weeks later further reflects Nizeyimana's continuing ability to exercise effective control over the young ESO soldiers that manned this barrier. Like the killing of Rwekaza and the attack on Witness ZAV, Uwambaye was led away to be shot and stabbed after Nizeyimana's orders to ESO soldiers to execute her. Notably, the verbal response to Nizeyimana's command was from the ESO cadets was "Yes sir, Captain".³⁸⁷⁹ In the Chamber's view, this evidence further demonstrates the clear deference Nizeyimana demanded given his superior rank and authority over these young and impressionable soldiers. These facts necessarily demonstrate a material ability to prevent and punish criminal conduct at that moment. Nizeyimana's conduct, in both instances, reflect that he was aware of the commission of these crimes and did nothing to prevent or punish them.

1528. These findings consider the reasonable possibility that ESO Commander Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi, Nizeyimana's de jure superior, may have also ordered and authorised killings at this roadblock. However, this possible parallel authority does not reasonably eliminate Nizeyimana's effective control over the perpetrators of these crimes. As discussed above, Nizeyimana's actions were a necessary condition for the killing of Remy Rwekaza and the shooting of Witness ZAV. Similarly, his conduct was decisive as it related to the killing of Beata Uwambaye. The Chamber shall consider how these conclusions impact sentencing as Nizeyimana may not be convicted pursuant to Articles 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.³⁸⁸⁰

(v) Professor Pierre Claver Karenzi

(a) Article 6 (1)

1529. The Chamber has concluded that an ESO soldier killed Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock around 21 April 1994, after Karenzi had been taken from his home. The record reflects that Karenzi, a Tutsi lecturer at the Butare University, was a prominent figure in Butare town.

1530. Similar to the killings at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock, the Chamber is convinced that Karenzi's murder is also emblematic of the systematic nature in which Tutsi civilians were identified and killed on an ongoing basis at roadblocks manned by ESO soldiers in Butare town.³⁸⁸¹ Consequently, while this incident only resulted in the killing of one Tutsi, the Chamber has no doubt that the physical perpetrator acted with the specific intent to destroy at least a substantial part of the Tutsi group.

1531. Indeed, this killing followed President Sindikubwabo's 19 April 1994 speech, which marked a significant increase in violence and the targeting of Tutsi civilians within Butare town. Around 20 April, ESO soldiers killed Rosalie Gicanda, the former Tutsi Queen of Rwanda, and others taken from her home.³⁸⁸² Around 21 April, ESO soldiers participated in the separation and killing of Tutsis at the Butare University.³⁸⁸³ Around 29 April, ESO soldiers participated in the separation and removal of Tutsis at the Groupe Scolaire, which led to their subsequent slaughter.³⁸⁸⁴ There is additional credible evidence that, starting in the last third of April, soldiers used lists to identify and kill Tutsis at the Butare University Hospital.³⁸⁸⁵ When viewing this killing in context, the only reasonable conclusion is that the physical perpetrator possessed genocidal intent.

1532. The Chamber observes that there is no direct evidence demonstrating that Nizeyimana ordered or authorised this particular killing. Notwithstanding, the Chamber considers it significant that it occurred on the same day when Nizeyimana ordered ESO soldiers manning a roadblock just down the road to kill two Tutsis. Indeed, the Chamber has no doubt that the Hotel Faucon roadblock was among a network of geographically proximate roadblocks manned by ESO soldiers – including those at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction and at Chez Bihira – that were turned towards the task of identifying and eliminating Tutsis, at least by the last third of April 1994.

1533. In the Chamber's view, the open and notorious manner in which Tutsis were being targeted at these roadblocks, which were only a short distance apart, cannot reasonably be understood as coincidence. The only reasonable inference is that the instructions Nizeyimana issued at Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction were necessarily transmitted and consistent with those issued to the Hotel Faucon roadblock down the road. Nizeyimana's proven conduct in relation to killings and attack at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction barrier is sufficient to establish that he similarly approved of and authorised the killings of Tutsi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock as well, which, by implication, included Pierre Claver Karenzi. The Chamber has no doubt that the ESO soldier who killed Karenzi did so knowing he had the full support of Nizeyimana. Given his considerable authority and high rank within the ESO's hierarchy, such approval and authorisation significantly and substantially contributed to this killing. The Chamber also considers that this conduct establishes that Nizeyimana possessed genocidal intent and was aware of the physical perpetrator's genocidal intent as well.

1534. Given the findings above, the Chamber considers that Nizeyimana could bear responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) for having aided and abetted the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi in the vicinity of the Hotel Faucon roadblock. However, this attack involved a plurality of persons, sharing a common purpose and acting in concert to commit a crime provided for in the Statute. The Chamber has concluded that Nizeyimana's contribution to the crime was both significant and substantial. The record further demonstrates that Nizeyimana agreed to the common purpose and also possessed genocidal intent. Under the circumstances, Nizeyimana's liability is most appropriately characterised by his participation in a joint criminal enterprise.

(b) Article 6 (3)

1535. The Chamber is not satisfied that the facts establish that Nizeyimana could bear superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute for the murder of Pierre Claver Karenzi around 21 April 1994 at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.

1536. In reaching this conclusion, the Chamber is mindful of Nizeyimana's position within the ESO hierarchy, the considerable authority he possessed, as well as the relative youth and inexperience of ESO soldiers generally. Indeed, it has elsewhere found that Nizeyimana exercised effective control over soldiers at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock in the context of killing of Remy Rwekaza and attack of Witness ZAV, as well as the killing of Beata Uwambaye. Distinctly, however, he was at that roadblock and ordered those crimes.

1537. Conversely, the Chamber is not convinced that Nizeyimana necessarily continued to exercise effective control of ESO soldiers at roadblocks while absent from them. This conclusion is based in part on the fact that soldiers from other camps, including the elite units of the Presidential Guard, were circulating in Butare town and committing crimes. This concern is particularly relevant as it relates to the killing of Karenzi because the facts fail to establish that ESO soldiers were the ones who took him from his home. The reasonable possibility that ESO soldiers acted in coordination with other soldiers or were at times re-subordinated raise doubts that Nizeyimana's exercised general effective control.

(vi) Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya

1538. The Chamber recalls its findings that persons taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya homes were killed around 22 April 1994 in Nizeyimana's presence based on his instructions and express approval. However, the Chamber recalls that evidence regarding the ethnicity of the victims reflects that some were at least perceived to be Hutu. There is general ambiguity as to the ethnic identities of the victims. Moreover, while killed in the context of ethnically based attacks, genocidal intent has not been established in this instance. This event cannot support a conviction for genocide pursuant to Article 2 (3)(a) of the Statute.

3.4 Conclusion

1539. The Chamber finds Nizeyimana guilty of genocide (Count 1) under Article 6 (1) of the Statute for the killing of members of the Ruhutinyanya family, for the attack on Cyahinda Parish, for the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her home based on his participation in basic joint criminal enterprises. The Chamber also finds Nizeyimana guilty of genocide for ordering the killings of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock as well as the serious bodily harm caused to Witness ZAV at the same barrier. Finally, Nizeyimana is guilty of genocide for the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock through his participation in a basic joint criminal enterprise.

1540. The Chamber has also concluded that Nizeyimana could bear superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute for the killing of members of the Ruhutinyanya family, for the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her home and for the killings of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock, as well as the serious bodily harm caused to Witness ZAV at the same barrier. However, as it is impermissible to enter convictions pursuant to Articles 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute, these conclusions shall only be considered in relation to sentencing.

4. CRIMES AGAINST HUMANITY

4.1 Introduction

1541. Counts 2 and 3 of the Indictment charge Nizeyimana with extermination and murder as crimes against humanity under Article 3 (a) and (b) of the Statute. As discussed previously, none of the factual allegations in support of Count 4, rape as a crime against humanity pursuant to Article 3 (g) of the Statute, demonstrate Nizeyimana's involvement sufficient to establish his liability. Count 4 of the Indictment is dismissed.

4.2 Widespread and Systematic Attack

1542. An enumerated crime under Article 3 of the Statute constitutes a crime against humanity if it is proven to have been committed as part of a widespread or systematic attack against a civilian population on national, political, ethnic, racial or religious grounds.³⁸⁸⁶ The term "widespread" refers to the large scale nature of the attack and the number of victims, whereas the term "systematic" refers to "the organised nature of the acts of violence and the improbability of their random occurrence".³⁸⁸⁷ With respect to the mens rea, the perpetrator must have acted with knowledge of the broader context of the attack, and with knowledge that his acts (or omissions) formed part of the widespread or systematic attack against the civilian population.³⁸⁸⁸

1543. Having reviewed the record before it, the Chamber concludes that persons targeted during the relevant period were killed largely on ethnic grounds. This is reflected in the proven criminal conduct discussed in relation to Count 1 for genocide. It is also reflected in the evidence demonstrating that Tutsi women were singled out for rapes throughout Butare town and that Tutsis were separated from Hutus at various Butare institutions and killed at roadblocks.

1544. Similarly, the record demonstrates that prominent Hutus were also singled out for elimination, demonstrating that persons were also being targeted on political grounds. This is reflected in the targeted killings of Jean Baptiste Matabaro and Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya as well as the killing of Jean Marie Vianney Maniraho. The Chamber is therefore convinced that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the civilian population in Butare and in Rwanda generally on ethnic and political grounds.³⁸⁸⁹ Bearing in mind Nizeyimana's and the other perpetrators' contributions thereto and the specific nature of the crimes at issue, it is inconceivable that they did not know that their actions formed part of this attack. This is further reinforced for Nizeyimana in light of his position and rank in the military.

4.3 Extermination

4.3.1 Introduction

1545. Count 2 of the Indictment charges Nizeyimana with extermination as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (b) of the Statute.

4.3.2 Law

1546. The crime of extermination is the act of killing on a large scale.³⁸⁹⁰ The expression “on a large scale” does not, however, suggest a numerical minimum.³⁸⁹¹ In addition to the threshold mens rea requirements for all crimes against humanity (discussed above), the mens rea of extermination requires that the accused intend to kill persons on a massive scale or to subject a large number of people to conditions of living that would lead to their deaths in a widespread or systematic manner.³⁸⁹²

4.3.3 Deliberations

(i) Cyahinda Parish

1547. The Prosecution has charged Nizeyimana with the attack on Cyahinda Parish (II.4.2) as extermination as a crime against humanity under Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.³⁸⁹³ The Chamber has already concluded that the attack on Cyahinda Parish amounts to genocide. Given the high concentration of Tutsis within the parish facilities and the fact that the concluding attack resulted in the deaths of thousands who had sought refuge there, the Chamber has no doubt that this attack amounted to killings on a large scale. The evidence firmly establishes that the principal perpetrators, as well as Nizeyimana, participated with the intent to kill on a mass scale based on ethnic grounds. The Chamber has already determined that Nizeyimana bears responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) for his participation in a basic joint criminal enterprise. It has not found that he could also bear responsibility as a superior pursuant to Article 6 (3).

(ii) Remaining Proven Criminal Conduct

1548. The Prosecution has also charged Nizeyimana with extermination as a crime against humanity for the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family (II.4.1), the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her home (II.6.2), the killing of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye as well as the attack on Witness ZAV at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock (II.7.1; II.7.2), the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock (II.6.5) as well as the killing of persons taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences (II.6.6).³⁸⁹⁴

³⁸⁹⁴ See Indictment, para. 38 (incorporating by reference paragraphs 19, 22-25, 29, 40).

1549. While there is no numerical threshold in establishing extermination, case law emphasises that the killings must occur on a large or mass scale.³⁸⁹⁵ The Chamber is not satisfied that the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family, the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her home, the killing of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye as well as the attack on Witness ZAV at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock, the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock as well as the killing of persons taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences amount to extermination. The evidence related to the number of deaths in each instance is too ambiguous and or too low to establish killing on a large scale.³⁸⁹⁶

4.3.4 Conclusion

1550. The Chamber finds Nizeyimana guilty of extermination as a crime against humanity (Count 2) as it relates to the attack on Cyahinda Parish based on Article 6 (1) of the Statute for participating in a basic joint criminal enterprise. As discussed above, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana, along with the physical assailants, were aware that this attack formed part of widespread and systematic attacks against the civilian population on ethnic and political grounds. The Chamber has not found that he could also bear responsibility as a superior pursuant to Article 6 (3).

4.4 Murder

4.4.1 Introduction

1551. Count 3 of the Indictment charges Nizeyimana with murder as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (a) of the Statute.

4.4.2 Law

1552. For the crime of murder to be established, it must be shown that a victim died and that the victim's death was caused by an act or omission. To satisfy the mens rea for murder, it is required that there was an act or omission, with the intention to kill or to inflict grievous bodily harm, in the reasonable knowledge that it might lead to death.³⁸⁹⁷

³⁸⁹⁵ See, e.g., Bagosora and Nsengiyumva Appeal Judgement, para. 398 (killing of nine persons by one group while "several other groups" were perpetrating killings throughout a town supports a conclusion of large scale killings); Rukundo Appeal Judgement, paras. 189 (removal and killing of a large number of refugees who filled a seminary's facilities was sufficient to satisfy killing on a large scale); Ntakirutimana Appeal Judgement, para. 521 (the killings of hundreds or thousands satisfies the large scale requirement); Brđanin Appeal Judgement, para. 472 (killing of between 68 and 300 people establishes the large scale requirement); Gatete Trial Judgement, paras. 639 (killing between 26 and 31 persons establishes large scale), 642 and 645 (killing of "hundreds and possibly thousands" establishes large scale).

³⁸⁹⁶ The only numerical estimate given for the number of persons among the Ruhutinyanya family was 15 although others described a minibus filled with persons. The number of persons removed and killed from the Gicanda home appears to be less than 7. As discussed elsewhere, while numerous people appear to have been removed from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya homes and attacked, the record is ambiguous as to the total number of deaths. Likewise, proven killings pleaded in the Indictment with respect to killings at roadblocks total three individuals.

³⁸⁹⁷ Dragomir Milošević Appeal Judgement, para. 108. See also Bagosora et al., Trial Judgement, para. 2169, fn. 2351.

4.4.3 Deliberations

(i) Cyahinda Parish

1553. The Prosecution charges Nizeyimana with murder as a crime against humanity in relation to the attack on Cyahinda Parish (II.4.2) pursuant Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.³⁸⁹⁸ The Chamber has already entered a conviction on this attack as extermination as a crime against humanity (III.4.3.4). Cumulative convictions for extermination and murder as crimes against humanity based on the same set of facts are not permissible as murder does not contain a materially distinct element from extermination.³⁸⁹⁹

(ii) Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya

(a) Article 6 (1)

1554. The Prosecution charges Nizeyimana with murder as a crime against humanity in relation to the killing of persons removed from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences pursuant to Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.³⁹⁰⁰ The Chamber has found that, around 22 April 1994, Nizeyimana accompanied a number of ESO soldiers who forcibly removed members of the Matabaro family and persons staying in their home. Some of the civilians fled to the nearby home of Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya. However, soldiers quickly followed and removed these individuals as well as others staying at the Nyirinkwaya residence. They were taken a short distance away.

1555. Once outside the residences, male heads of households, including Deputy Prosecutor Jean Baptiste Matabaro and Sub Prefect Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya, who had been previously separated from the others, were shot and killed. Subsequently, the soldiers shot the remainder of the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya families as well as other persons taken from their residences. A number of people were killed, although some survived.

1556. The Chamber is satisfied that these killings reflect a methodical and organised approach. The immediate proximity in time and space of the removal of the persons from the two residences with the ensuing executions demonstrates that these killings were intentional. Furthermore, there is no doubt that the assailants attacked the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences knowing that this was part of a widespread and systematic attack on political and ethnic grounds.

1557. In particular, the record reflects that Jean Baptiste Matabaro, Butare's deputy prosecutor, had opened his house to several persons fleeing Kigali and Butare, many of whom feared persecution in light of the ongoing violence.³⁹⁰¹ Evidence from witnesses close to Matabaro reflects that ethnicity was a fluid concept in that household.³⁹⁰² Likewise, the testimony of one ICRC representative reflects that Nyirinkwaya spoke candidly about the nature of targeted violence occurring in Butare town.³⁹⁰³ The Chamber has no doubt that Nyirinkwaya, a sub prefect who was similarly housing more than just family members once killings commenced in Butare, was also singled out on political and ethnic grounds. When viewed in light of the attacks that preceded and followed this murder operation, the Chamber has no doubt that the perpetrators who committed these killings did so knowing that they were part of a widespread and systematic attack.

1558. The Chamber recalls its findings that the killings occurred based on Nizeyimana's instructions and were committed with his express approval. His position as a high ranking officer within the ESO's hierarchy and his experience in the S2/S3 office charged with intelligence and training / operations are essential to understanding his role. These factors, along with his intimate knowledge of the neighborhood demonstrate that he held a supervisory role in this operation and was present to ensure its satisfactory completion. In this regard, his presence, in addition to the instructions he issued, amounted to significant and substantial tacit approval to the removal and subsequent murder operation. Finally, Nizeyimana's position within the military and participation in similar attacks around this time demonstrate that he knew this attack was part of a widespread and systematic attack on political and ethnic grounds.

1559. Given the findings above, the Chamber considers that Nizeyimana could bear responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) for having aided and abetted the murders of those taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya households. However, the findings above reflect that this attack involved a plurality of persons, sharing a common purpose and acting in concert to commit a crime provided for in the Statute. The Chamber has concluded that Nizeyimana's contribution to the crime was both significant and substantial. The record further demonstrates that Nizeyimana agreed to common purpose, sharing the mens rea of the principal perpetrators. Under the circumstances, Nizeyimana's liability is most appropriately characterised by his participation in a basic joint criminal enterprise.

(b) Article 6 (3)

1560. In light of the findings above, the record demonstrates that Nizeyimana could also bear superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute for the killings of those removed from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya households. The Chamber notes Nizeyimana's physical presence during the operation. Recalling the identification of the ESO soldiers provided by the Prosecution witnesses, as well as Nizeyimana's direct involvement in the attack, the Chamber has no doubt that he exercised effective control over the assailants as it occurred.

1561. These findings consider the reasonable possibility that ESO Commander Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi, Nizeyimana's de jure superior, may have also exercised effective control over the assailants. However, this possible parallel authority does not reasonably eliminate Nizeyimana's effective control over the perpetrators of these crimes. The Chamber shall consider how these conclusions impact sentencing as Nizeyimana may not be convicted pursuant to Articles 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.³⁹⁰⁴

³⁹⁰⁴ See, e.g., Setako Appeal Judgement, para. 266; Renzaho Appeal Judgement, para. 564.

(ii) Remaining Proven Criminal Conduct

1562. The Prosecution has also charged Nizeyimana with murder as a crime against humanity for the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family (II.4.1), the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her home (II.6.2), the killing of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye as well as the attack on Witness ZAV at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock (II.7.1; II.7.2) and the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock (II.6.5).³⁹⁰⁵

1563. The Chamber has determined that these killings and one instance of serious bodily harm constituted genocide. The Chamber has no doubt that they were intentional murders and were conducted on ethnic grounds. Indeed, while it is possible that some Hutus were killed during the execution of the Ruhutinyanya family and the killing of persons taken from Rosalie Gicanda's home, these attacks were motivated by actual and or perceived the Tutsi ethnicity. The Chamber is also satisfied that the killing of Rosalie Gicanda, the former Queen of Rwanda, and others taken from her home were on political grounds as well.

1564. Given its findings above, the Chamber is also satisfied that the assailants, as well as Nizeyimana, participated in these crimes knowing that they formed a widespread and systematic attack on ethnic grounds.

4.4.4 Conclusion

1565. The Chamber has determined that Nizeyimana bears responsibility for the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family, the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her home and the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock pursuant to Article 6 (1) of Statute for his participation in basic joint criminal enterprises (III.3.4). It has also concluded that he is responsible for ordering the killings of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock (III.3.4). In addition, the Chamber concludes that Nizeyimana also bears responsibility for the killings of those taken from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya homes pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute for his participation in a basic joint criminal enterprise.

1566. As discussed above, the Chamber has no doubt that Nizeyimana, along with the physical assailants, were aware that these events formed part of widespread and systematic attacks against the civilian population on ethnic and political grounds. The Chamber finds Nizeyimana guilty of murder as a crime against humanity (Count 3) for these killings on the basis described above.

1567. The Chamber has also found that Nizeyimana could be held liable as a superior pursuant to Article 6 (3) for all of these crimes with the exception of the killing of Professor Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock. However, as it is impermissible to enter convictions pursuant to Articles 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute, these conclusions shall only be considered in relation to sentencing.

³⁹⁰⁵ See Indictment, paras. 44, 46 (incorporating by reference paragraphs 19, 23-25, 29).

5. SERIOUS VIOLATIONS OF ARTICLE 3 COMMON TO THE GENEVA CONVENTIONS AND ADDITIONAL PROTOCOL II

5.1 Introduction

1568. Counts 5 and 6 of the Indictment charge Nizeyimana with serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 for the Protection of War Victims and of Additional Protocol II thereto of 8 June 1977 under Articles 4 (a) and 4 (e) of the Statute for murder and rape. As discussed previously, none of the factual allegations in support of Count 6, rape as a war crime pursuant to Article 4 (e) of the Statute, demonstrate Nizeyimana's involvement sufficient to establish his liability. Count 6 of the Indictment is dismissed.

5.2 Threshold Elements

5.2.1 Law

1569. In connection with crimes within the scope of Article 4 of the Statute, the Prosecution must prove, as a threshold matter, the following elements: (i) the existence of a non-international armed conflict; (ii) the existence of a nexus between the alleged violation and the armed conflict; and (iii) the fact that the victims were not directly taking part in the hostilities at the time of the alleged crime.³⁹⁰⁶

5.2.2 Non-International Armed Conflict

1570. There is no dispute that there was an armed conflict of a non-international character between the Rwandan government and the military forces of the RPF.³⁹⁰⁷

5.2.3 Nexus

1571. A nexus exists between the alleged offence and the non-international armed conflict when the offence is closely related to the hostilities. The existence of an armed conflict must, at a minimum, have played a substantial part in the perpetrator's ability to commit the crime, his decision to commit it, the manner in which it was committed, or the purpose for which it was committed. If it can be established that the perpetrator acted in furtherance of or under the guise of the armed conflict, it would be sufficient to conclude that his acts were closely related to the armed conflict.³⁹⁰⁸

1572. The evidence reflects that the ongoing armed conflict between the Rwandan government forces and the RPF, which was largely identified as the Tutsi ethnic minority and members of the political opposition, created a situation and provided a pretext for extensive killings and other abuses of members of the civilian population in Rwanda.

1573. The Chamber has described the use of ESO soldiers to target the Ruhutinyanya family as well as the participation of ESO soldiers in a crushing military assault on the Cyahinda ³⁹⁰⁶ Setako Appeal Judgement, para. 246.

Parish, which led to the killing of thousands of primarily Tutsi refugees. Likewise, ESO soldiers participated in the killing of Rosalie Gicanda, the former Queen of Rwanda, and persons taken from her home as well as the attack on persons removed from the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences. Finally, ESO soldiers manned roadblocks throughout Butare town and were responsible for the killings of Remy Rwekaza, Beata Uwambaye and Pierre Claver Karenzi, all Tutsis, at two barriers.

1574. Soldiers were the exclusive or primary participants in these attacks, sometimes working in coordination with civilian militia or others. There is no question that these assailants targeted their victims in furtherance or under the guise of the existing armed conflict.

5.2.4 Victims

1575. At the time of the alleged violations, most of the victims included civilians who had sought assistance from authorities (II.4.1), were extracted from their homes and killed (II.6.2, II.6.6, II.6.5) or killed while in transit in Butare town (II.7.1, II.7.2).

1576. It is significant that those who described members of the Ruhutinyanya family, spoke of women and children being among them.³⁹⁰⁹ Notably, Gicanda, the former Tutsi Queen of Rwanda was referred to as the “old lady”.³⁹¹⁰ The record demonstrates that children were among those who were killed in the attack on the Matabaro and Nyirinkwaya residences. Remy Rwekaza, Witness ZAV and Beata Uwambaye were unarmed and wore civilian clothing when Nizeyimana ordered that they be killed by ESO soldiers.³⁹¹¹ None of these victims were actively taking part in hostilities.

1577. The evidence reflects that the displaced persons at Cyahinda Parish resisted initial attacks. In the process, they killed at least two gendarmes and wounded the Nyakizu commune bourgmestre. Notwithstanding, the record reflects that the masses who gathered there were civilians who had fled attacks on Tutsis in neighbouring communes. The Chamber does not consider that the defensive efforts against attacks on the primarily displaced Tutsis at the parish turned them into combatants. To the extent that some could be considered as such, this would not have deprived the thousands of non-combatants who had also sought refuge there of their protected status.³⁹¹²

5.2.5 Application

1578. The Chamber has already determined that the killings of members of the Ruhutinyanya family, the attack on Cyahinda Parish, Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her home, Remy Rwekaza, Beata Uwambaye and Pierre Claver Karenzi amount to genocide. The Chamber has further found that Nizeyimana ordered these killings or participated in joint criminal enterprises to commit them. Furthermore, the Chamber has also determined that the killings of Jean Baptiste Matabaro and Zéphanie Nyirinkwaya, and members of their families, amount to crimes against humanity. On the same basis, these killings also amount to intentional murder.

5.2.6 Conclusion

1579. The Chamber finds Nizeyimana guilty of murder as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II (Count 5) for the killing of the Ruhutinyanya family, the attack on Cyahinda Parish, the killing of Rosalie Gicanda and others taken from her home and the killing of Pierre Claver Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock pursuant to Article 6 (1) of Statute for his participation in basic joint criminal enterprises. It has also concluded that he is responsible for ordering the killings of Remy Rwekaza and Beata Uwambaye at the Gikongoro / Cyangugu and Kigali roads junction roadblock.

1580. The Chamber has also found that Nizeyimana could be held liable as a superior pursuant to Article 6 (3) for all of these crimes with the exception of the attack on Cyahinda Parish and the killing of Professor Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.

CHAPTER IV: VERDICT

1581. For the reasons set forth in this Judgement, having considered all the evidence and arguments, the Trial Chamber unanimously finds Ildéphonse Nizeyimana:

- Count 1: GUILTY of Genocide
- Count 2: GUILTY of Extermination as a Crime Against Humanity
- Count 3: GUILTY of Murder as a Crime Against Humanity
- Count 4: NOT GUILTY of Rape as a Crime Against Humanity
- Count 5: GUILTY of Murder as a Serious Violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and Additional Protocol II
- Count 6: NOT GUILTY of Rape as a Serious Violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and Additional Protocol II

CHAPTER V: SENTENCING

(i) Introduction

1582. Having found Nizeyimana guilty of genocide, extermination and murder as crimes against humanity and murder as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II, the Chamber must determine an appropriate sentence.

(ii) Law

1583. All crimes under the Tribunal's Statute are serious violations of international humanitarian law.³⁹¹³ When determining a sentence, a Trial Chamber has considerable, though not unlimited, discretion on account of its obligation to determine penalties to fit the individual circumstances of an accused and to reflect the gravity of the crimes for which the accused has been convicted.³⁹¹⁴

1584. The gravity of the offences committed is the deciding factor in the determination of the sentence.³⁹¹⁵ Gravity entails the particular circumstances of the case, the form and degree of the participation of the accused in the crimes, and the number of victims.³⁹¹⁶ The consequences of the crime upon any victims who were directly injured are also relevant.³⁹¹⁷

1585. The Appeals Chamber has stated that "sentences of like individuals in like cases should be comparable".³⁹¹⁸ However, similar cases do not provide a legally binding benchmark for sentences. Although assistance can be drawn from previous decisions, such assistance is often limited, as each case contains a multitude of variables.³⁹¹⁹ In light of this, the Appeals Chamber has recognised that "[d]ifferences between cases are often more significant than similarities and different mitigating and aggravating circumstances might dictate different results".³⁹²⁰

1586. Pursuant to Article 23 of the Statute, and Rule 101 (B) of the Rules, the Chamber shall take into account the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of Rwanda.³⁹²¹ The Chamber shall also account for any aggravating circumstances, any mitigating circumstances, and the extent to which the convicted person has already served any penalty imposed by a court of any State for the same act. These factors are not exhaustive.³⁹²²

1587. Aggravating circumstances need to be proven beyond reasonable doubt.³⁹²³ The Chamber may only consider aggravating circumstances that are pleaded in the indictment,³⁹²⁴ and any circumstance that is included as an element of the crime for which an individual is convicted will not be considered as an aggravating factor.³⁹²⁵

1588. Aggravating circumstances may include the position of the accused, the length of time during which the crime continued, premeditation and motive, and the circumstances of the offences generally.³⁹²⁶ While a position of authority does not automatically warrant a harsher sentence, the abuse of such a position may constitute an aggravating factor.³⁹²⁷

1589. Mitigating circumstances need only be established by the balance of probabilities.³⁹²⁸ Such circumstances include an expression of remorse, good character with no prior criminal convictions, personal and family circumstances, the character of the accused subsequent to the conflict, duress, indirect participation, age and assistance to victims.³⁹²⁹ Selective assistance of Tutsis may be given only limited weight as a mitigating factor.³⁹³⁰

(iii) Submissions

1590. The Prosecution submits that Nizeyimana should be sentenced to concurrent life sentences for each crime upon which he is convicted. Such a conclusion is based, in part, on the scale of the criminal conduct, the nature of Nizeyimana's participation as well as his abuse of his authority. Attacks were committed upon those seeking refuge and sanctuary. Pursuant to Rwandan law, Nizeyimana would be considered a category 1 offender, subject to life imprisonment.³⁹³¹

1591. The Defence submits that Nizeyimana, the youngest to stand trial before this Tribunal, is a father to several children. He was a respected soldier and a moderate, who never showed prejudice to Tutsis. He provided refuge to Tutsis during the genocide and consoled a soldier during the war. He investigated grievances raised by the ICRC during the genocide. Finally, he has maintained good conduct while incarcerated at the United Nations Detention Facility. Any sentence imposed should be less than that given to Tharcisse Muvunyi, his superior during the genocide.³⁹³²

(iv) Gravity of the Offences

1592. The Chamber has concluded that Nizeyimana directly participated in a number of crimes, either through his participation in basic joint criminal enterprises or ordering them. His conduct amounted to genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes. The events reflect repeated criminal conduct. With the case of the killing of Rosalie Gicanda, the Chamber's findings reflect that this killing sought to have a profound impact aimed at catalysing the genocide in Butare.

1593. Moreover, Nizeyimana participated in an operation that led to the death of thousands of primarily Tutsi refugees who had sought safe harbour at Cyahinda Parish. In this Tribunal, conduct of similar gravity has resulted in the highest of penalties.³⁹³³ The Chamber observes that under Rwandan law, similar crimes carry possible penalties of life imprisonment, depending on the nature of the accused's participation.³⁹³⁴

(v) Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

1594. The Chamber observes that Nizeyimana, a captain from the S2/S3 office at ESO, undoubtedly held a position of authority during the relevant period. In several instances, the Chamber determined that Nizeyimana could also bear superior responsibility for a number of the crimes for which he was convicted under Article 6 (1) of the Statute. Rather than use his position to stem the tide of violence in Butare, Nizeyimana abused his authority and actively furthered the crimes. The Chamber considers this to be an aggravating circumstance. In addition, the number of victims at Cyahinda Parish is an aggravating circumstance in relation to his convictions for genocide and murder as a war crime, for which there is no minimum numerical threshold.

1595. The Chamber notes Nizeyimana's age³⁹³⁵ and that he is married and has several children.³⁹³⁶ The Chamber is also mindful of his lengthy public service to his country. He was generally respected amongst his subordinates and served as a liaison between ESO Camp and the public, including non-governmental organisations during the genocide.³⁹³⁷ Moreover, ³⁹³³ See Seromba Appeal Judgement, paras. 238-239 (sentencing the defendant to life imprisonment based on his direct participation in an attack on approximately 1,500 refugees inside a church). Cf. Hategikimana Appeal Judgement, paras. 7, 128, 129, 157-158, 204-205, 249-250, 286-287, 306 (affirming life sentence of the Defendant, whose convictions for rape, individual killings as well as attacks on about 25 and 500 Tutsi refugees were upheld on appeal); Renzaho Appeal Judgement, para. 410, 491, 492, 561, 620 (affirming the Defendant's life sentence for aiding and abetting killings at Kigali roadblocks, the killing of approximately 40 refugees taken from CELA and an attack on Sainte Famille).

Gaspard Kanyarukiga*, Case No. ICTR-2002-78-R11bis, Decision on Prosecutor's Request for Referral to the Republic of Rwanda (TC), 6 June 2008, paras. 22-25 (assessing Rwanda's penalty structure); The Prosecutor v. Jean-Baptiste Gatete, Case No. ICTR-2000-61-R11bis, Decision on Prosecutor's Request for Referral to the Republic of Rwanda (TC), 17 November 2008, paras. 22-25. See also Semanza Appeal Judgement, para. 377 ("The command for Trial Chambers to 'have recourse to the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of Rwanda does not oblige the Trial Chambers to conform to that practice; it only obliges the Trial Chambers to take account of that practice.'"), quoting Serushago Appeal Judgement, para. 30; Dragan Nikolić Appeal Judgement, para. 69.

³⁹³⁶ Witness Nyirasafari, T. 16 June 2011, pp. 40, 48-49, 51.

³⁹³⁷ The Chamber does not consider as a mitigating circumstance evidence that Nizeyimana expressed surprise when learning about killings at the Butare University Hospital. Likewise, his later act of stating that he could not control the killings is irrelevant as a mitigating factor. Defence Closing Brief, para. 627.

Nizeyimana is known to have harbored at least one Tutsi during the genocide who, as a result, survived the war.³⁹³⁸ The Chamber considers his conduct during incarceration relevant. The Chamber accords these mitigating and individual circumstances some limited weight.³⁹³⁹

1596. There is no merit, however, to Nizeyimana's suggestion that he should be given a lower sentence than his commander at the time, Tharcisse Muvunyi. This contention fails to appreciate that Muvunyi's conviction was based on a single incident of incitement,³⁹⁴⁰ which stands in stark contrast to the extensive proven criminal conduct in this case.

1597. Although these circumstances will be taken into account in determining an appropriate sentence, the Chamber considers that the gravity of the Nizeyimana's offences should be the primary consideration in sentencing.³⁹⁴¹

(vi) Conclusion

1598. The Chamber has the discretion to impose a single sentence. This practice is appropriate where the offences may be characterised as belonging to a single criminal transaction.³⁹⁴² The convictions for genocide, crimes against humanity and serious violations of common Article 3 to the Geneva Conventions and Additional Protocol II are based largely on the same underlying criminal acts.

1599. Considering all the relevant circumstances discussed above, the Chamber SENTENCES Ildéphonse Nizeyimana to:

LIFE IMPRISONMENT

(vii) Consequential Orders

1600. Nizeyimana shall serve his sentence in a State designated by the President of the Tribunal, in consultation with the Chamber. The Government of Rwanda and the designated State shall be notified of such designation by the Registrar.

1601. Until their transfer to his designated places of imprisonment, Nizeyimana shall be kept in detention under the present conditions. Pursuant to Rule 102 (A) of the Rules, on notice of appeal, if any, enforcement of the above sentence shall be stayed until a decision has been rendered on the appeal, with Ildéphonse Nizeyimana remaining in detention.

³⁹³⁸ Witness Bizimenyera, T. 7 September 2011, pp. 42-43. The Chamber observes that her husband, Jean Baptiste Mukimbili was imprisoned after the genocide. T. 8 September 2011, p. 35; see also Exhibit P40B (Witness ZAE's Pro Justitia Statement), p. 2 (Jean-Baptiste Mukimbili was detained on 22 June 1995). The Defence points to no evidence indicating that he, his brother or his children were Tutsis.

³⁹³⁹ The Chamber considers the evidence the Defence argues reflects that Nizeyimana was a moderate, inconclusive. Likewise, evidence relating to the absence of ethnic tension at ESO Camp is too remote to demonstrate that this was a result of Nizeyimana's efforts.

SEPARATE, CONCURRING OPINION OF JUDGE SEON KI PARK

1602. For many of the reasons set forth in the Judgement, I agree with my colleagues' conclusion that Witness AJP's evidence alone is insufficient to support findings beyond reasonable doubt.

1603. Notwithstanding, I take this opportunity to reiterate that much of Witness AJP's evidence, particularly as it related to his relationship with Nizeyimana, is undisputed and even confirmed by Defence evidence. In this regard, central aspects of his testimony are highly credible. In my view, the circumstances existed for Nizeyimana to issue criminal orders to Witness AJP. This alone, however, is not enough to demonstrate that he did.

1604. I would like to highlight a particular disagreement I have as it relates to my colleagues' assessment of Witness AJP's involvement in the killing of a woman at Vincent Ntezimana's home in April or May 1994. My colleagues interpret the evidence to allow the reasonable possibility that Witness AJP killed her for personal reasons, in light of their pre-existing relationship.

1605. In my view, Witness AJP's testimony is ambiguous as to the extent and nature of his relationship with this woman. Nonetheless, Witness BEJ01's evidence reflects that the girl and Witness AJP "had good relations", that they "went out from time to time" or "went out often".³⁹⁴³ This record, in my view, does not reflect evidence supporting a reasonable inference that personal animus motivated the killing.

1606. Indeed, the finding of the Belgium court, which convicted Vincent Ntezimana for his participation, in my view reflects that this was a targeted killing.³⁹⁴⁴ Specifically, that judgement indicates that the killing of this woman could have been a result of an order.³⁹⁴⁵

1607. Findings of separate judges, reviewing separate records frequently differ. Nonetheless, I consider that this Belgian judgement and the testimonies of Witnesses AJP and BEJ01 do not allow for the inference made by my colleagues as to why Witness AJP might have killed the young woman. Nonetheless, the evidence on the record does not establish that Nizeyimana ordered Witness AJP to murder her.

ANNEX A: PROCEDURAL HISTORY

1. PRE-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS

1. On 21 January 2000, the Prosecution filed its Original Indictment against Ildéphonse Nizeyimana (“the Accused” or “Nizeyimana”), Tharcisse Muvunyi and Ildéphonse Hategekimana which was confirmed by Judge Yakov Ostrovsky on 2 February 2000.³⁹⁴⁶ Nizeyimana was initially indicted on charges of genocide, complicity in genocide, rape as a crime against humanity and other inhumane acts as a crime against humanity.³⁹⁴⁷ An arrest warrant against Nizeyimana was issued on 2 February 2000 under seal.³⁹⁴⁸ The non-disclosure order was rescinded on 6 February 2001 following a motion by the Prosecution.³⁹⁴⁹
2. Nizeyimana was arrested in Kampala, Uganda on 5 October 2009 and transferred to the United Nations Detention Facility on 6 October 2009. At his initial appearance before Judge Khalida Rachid Khan on 14 October 2009, Nizeyimana pleaded not guilty to all four counts against him in the Original Indictment.³⁹⁵⁰
3. On 3 March 2010, the Chamber granted the Prosecution’s request to take judicial notice of six facts of common knowledge.³⁹⁵¹ The Defence moved for suspension of the proceedings pending the release of Peter Erlinder and the withdrawal of the charges against him. The Chamber denied these motions on 9 June 2010 and 29 June 2010 because it did not find any reason to be concerned that Nizeyimana’s defence team would be hampered due to the arrest and detainment of Mr. Erlinder in its investigation while in Rwanda.³⁹⁵² In a further decision on 9 June 2010, the Chamber denied the Defence request for an order from the Chamber to require cooperation from the United Nations Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (“MONUC”).³⁹⁵³
4. On the same day, the Chamber also denied the Prosecution’s motion requesting protective measures for witnesses on the basis that the measures sought were too broad and imprecise.³⁹⁵⁴ The Chamber granted the Prosecution’s third motion for protective measures

5. Three decisions were issued by the Chamber on 6 October 2010. First, the Chamber dismissed a Prosecution motion which requested that a Prosecution witness be able to testify by video-link.³⁹⁵⁷ Second, the Chamber declined to admit into evidence a written statement of General Marcel Gatsinzi.³⁹⁵⁸ Third, the Chamber declined to admit into evidence a taped transcript of Tharcisse Muvunyi.³⁹⁵⁹ On 2 December 2010, the Chamber granted the Prosecution certification to appeal the decision denying the admission of General Gatsinzi's statement.³⁹⁶⁰

6. The Chamber partially granted the Prosecution's motion to admit into evidence the statements of six deceased witnesses on 20 October 2010.³⁹⁶¹ The Chamber also admitted into evidence a report by Dr. Binaifer Nowrojee on 1 November 2010 on the condition that Dr. Nowrojee appear for cross-examination.³⁹⁶²

7. On 25 November 2010, the Chamber denied a Defence motion requesting subpoenas to be issued for immigration documents relating to Prosecution Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ.³⁹⁶³ On 2 December 2010 a Defence motion requesting disclosure of a prior statement by a Prosecution witness was denied.³⁹⁶⁴

³⁹⁶⁰ Decision on Prosecution's Motion for Certification to Appeal Decision on Prosecutor's Motion to Admit into Evidence the Statement of General Marcel Gatsinzi (TC), 2 December 2010. The Appeals Chamber denied the Prosecution's interlocutory appeal of the decision not to admit Marcel Gatsinzi's statement into evidence pursuant to Rule 92*bis* on 8 March 2011. Decision on Prosecutor's Interlocutory Appeal of Decision Not to Admit Marcel Gatsinzi's Statement into Evidence Pursuant to Rule 92*bis* (AC), 8 March 2011. The Appeals Chamber found that the Chamber erred in considering a lack of justification for Gatsinzi's supposed inability to testify as a factor against admitting Gatsinzi's statement. However, the Chamber did not err in denying admission due to an overriding public interest to hear Gatsinzi's statement viva voce and finding that it would be highly prejudicial to the Accused to admit evidence without allowing for cross-examination. The Chamber subsequently denied a Prosecution's motion to reconsider its decision of 6 October 2010. 8. The Chamber dismissed a Defence request for the disclosure of material in the Prosecution's possession from the Prosecutor v. Ntaganzwa case on 3 December 2010.³⁹⁶⁵ On 13 December 2010, the Chamber denied a Defence motion to strike, or have declared irrelevant, parts of the Pre-Trial Brief.³⁹⁶⁶ The Chamber ordered the transfer of several detained Prosecution witnesses to the United Nations Detention Facilities in Arusha on 31 December 2010.³⁹⁶⁷
9. On 6 January 2011, the Chamber denied a Defence motion for the disclosure of Prosecution witness statements, including interview notes and reconfirmation statements.³⁹⁶⁸ On the same day, the Chamber granted a Defence request for the cooperation of the Government of Rwanda in obtaining certain Gacaca records.³⁹⁶⁹
10. On 7 January 2011, the Chamber dismissed a Defence motion requesting that the Prosecution witness list be reduced to only those witnesses it intended to call.³⁹⁷⁰ Second, the Chamber denied a Defence motion for the Accused to be given Internet access, including Internet-based access to all documents disclosed by the Office of the Prosecutor.³⁹⁷¹
11. The Chamber issued three decisions on 11 January 2011. On 15 September 2011, the Chamber granted the Prosecution request for an extension of time to respond to the Defence motion for variance of the protective measures in place for Witness ZAV.⁴⁰⁵¹

⁴⁰⁴³ Decision on Prosecutor's Motion for Leave to Present Evidence in Rebuttal to the Alibi Defence (TC), 7 June 2011. On 30 June 2011, the Chamber denied the Defence motion for certification of the Chamber's 7 June 2011 decision on the Prosecution's motion for leave to present evidence in rebuttal to the alibi defence. Decision on Defence Motion for Certification of the Trial Chamber 7 June 2011 Decision on Prosecutor's Motion for Leave to Present Evidence in Rebuttal to the Alibi Evidence (TC), 30 June 2011. On 1 July 2011, the Chamber granted in part the Defence's second motion to reconsider the Chamber's decision of 15 June 2011. Decision on Defence Motion to Reconsider the 15 June Decision on the Extremely Urgent Motion for Reconsideration of Trial Chamber 7 June 2011 Decision on Prosecutor's Motion for Leave to Present Evidence in Rebuttal to the Alibi Defence (TC), 1 July 2011. The Chamber ordered that the presentation of any rejoinder evidence take place within two weeks of the rebuttal case and that the Defence disclose the statements of potential rejoinder witnesses to the Prosecution no later than seven days before their testimony.

⁴⁰⁴⁴ Decision on Prosecutor's Confidential Motion for Leave to Vary the Witness List (TC), 28 July 2011. The Chamber dismissed as moot the Prosecution's confidential motion for protective measures for Witness D Decision on Prosecutor's Confidential Motion for Protective Measures for Witness D (TC), 5 August 2011.

⁴⁰⁴⁵ T. 7 September 2011; T. 8 September 2011.

⁴⁰⁴⁶ Decision on Urgent Defence Motion for Leave to Call Evidence in Rejoinder (TC), 13 September 2011.

⁴⁰⁴⁷ Decision on Extremely Urgent Defence Motion for Protective Measures for Defence Witnesses KEN06 and RWV17 (TC), 13 September 2011.

⁴⁰⁴⁸ T. 21 September 2011.

⁴⁰⁴⁹ Decision on Second Extremely Urgent Confidential Ex Parte Defence Motion for Judicial Cooperation with the United States of America (TC), 21 June 2011. The Chamber advised the Defence to communicate more tailored requests regarding Witness ZAV to the Executive Agent.

⁴⁰⁵⁰ Decision on Reclassification of Confidential and Ex Parte Submissions Regarding Judicial Cooperation with the United States of America (TC), 8 September 2011.

⁴⁰⁵¹ Nizeyimana Defence Motion for Variance of Protective Measures of Witness ZAV (TC), 14 September 2011. The Chamber ordered that the Prosecution's response be filed by close of business on 28 September 2011.

41. A Defence motion for the variance of witness protective measures and for international cooperation by the Government of Canada was granted on 23 June 2011.⁴⁰⁵² The Registry was ordered to transfer all documents and cassettes obtained from the Government of Canada in this matter to the Prosecution on 27 February 2012.⁴⁰⁵³ In a further decision on 5 March 2012, the Chamber granted the Defence motion for reconsideration of the Chamber's 27 February 2012 because the Defence had fulfilled its obligation pursuant to Rule 67(C).⁴⁰⁵⁴
42. On 27 June 2011, the Chamber ordered the Prosecution and Defence to file simultaneous closing briefs of no more than 43,000 words each, inclusive of footnotes, and reminded the parties that the briefs were to be filed no more than 60 days after the close of the evidentiary phase, at a date to be determined by the Chamber.⁴⁰⁵⁵
43. The Defence motion to recall Prosecution Witness AJP or to admit documentary evidence was denied on 7 July 2011.⁴⁰⁵⁶ On 12 July 2011, the Chamber denied the Defence motion that the Chamber take judicial notice of certain adjudicated facts.⁴⁰⁵⁷
44. The Chamber also denied the Defence's motion for exclusion of rebuttal witnesses on 13 September 2011 because the Defence failed to demonstrate that it suffered a degree of prejudice justifying the extreme measure of excluding the rebuttal evidence of three Prosecution witnesses.⁴⁰⁵⁸
45. On 26 May 2011, the Chamber ordered the parties to file a joint itinerary in furtherance of a site-visit by 30 May 2011.⁴⁰⁵⁹ On 6 September 2011, the Chamber issued a decision relating to the conduct of the site visit, annexing thereto a confidential itinerary (Annex A) and the Rules of Procedure and Conduct (Annex B) for the site visit.⁴⁰⁶⁰ The site visit was subsequently conducted from 3 to 7 October 2011.⁴⁰⁶¹

⁴⁰⁵² Decision on Defence Motion for Variance of Witness Protective Measures and International Cooperation of the Government of Canada (TC), 23 June 2011. In its decision, the Chamber authorised the Defence to disclose the information requested by the Canadian government.

⁴⁰⁵³ Proprio Motu Confidential Order for the Registry to Transmit Documents Obtained from the Government of Canada to the Prosecution (TC), 27 February 2012.

⁴⁰⁵⁹ T. 26 May 2011, p. 8 (Status Conference).

⁴⁰⁶⁰ Decision on the Conduct of a Site Visit (TC), 6 September 2011. On 6 September 2011, the President authorised the Chamber to conduct a site visit pursuant to the Chamber's letter of 6 September 2011. Decision Authorising a Site Visit, 6 September 2011.

⁴⁰⁶¹ Confidential Report on Site Visit, 3 to 7 October 2011.

46. The word count was increased by 5,000 words, for a total of 48,000 words, on 21 September 2011 in light of the additional witnesses' testimonies in the rebuttal and rejoinder evidence.⁴⁰⁶² The parties filed their closing briefs on 8 November 2011.⁴⁰⁶³ Closing arguments were heard on 7 December 2011.⁴⁰⁶⁴

47. On 10 February 2012, the Chamber granted the Prosecution's motion to make the trial records conform to the evidence by instructing the Registry to review and re-certify the English and French transcripts with respect to a translation error.⁴⁰⁶⁵

48. On 15 March 2012, the Chamber dismissed the Defence's arguments of bias, contained in the Defence Closing Brief, with respect to the Presiding Judge and, by implication, the Bench.⁴⁰⁶⁶ The Chamber observed that the Defence did not seek any relief and the motion, if any, should have been brought before the Presiding Judge of Trial Chamber III, namely President Vagn Joensen.

49. The Chamber denied the confidential Defence motion to recall Witness BUR's testimony on 26 March 2012.⁴⁰⁶⁷ The Defence motion for judicial cooperation with Rwanda on 17 April 2012 was dismissed as moot because it had already adjudicated a prior motion in relation to Witness BUR.⁴⁰⁶⁸

50. In response to an ex parte motion by Defence for judicial cooperation with Canada, the Chamber respectfully requested Canada to provide the Defence with the specified immigration files of Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ.⁴⁰⁶⁹ On 6 December 2011, the Chamber denied the Defence's motion for variance of witness protective measures for these three witnesses, but it urgently requested the Government of Canada to assist the Defence in accessing the requested immigration documents.⁴⁰⁷⁰

⁴⁰⁶² T. 21 September 2011, p. 49.

⁴⁰⁶³ Prosecution Closing Brief; Defence Closing Brief.

⁴⁰⁶⁴ Amended Scheduling Order (TC), 26 October 2011; T. 7 December 2011 (Prosecution and Defence Closing Arguments).

⁴⁰⁶⁵ Decision on the Prosecutor's Motion to Make the Trial Records Conform to the Evidence (TC), 10 February 2011.

⁴⁰⁶⁶ Proprio Motu Decision on Defence Submission of Bias (TC), 15 March 2012. On 30 March 2012, the Chamber ordered the deletion and correction of specified words from the Proprio Motu Decision on Defence Submissions of Bias of 15 March 2012. Corrigendum to Proprio Motu Decision on Defence Submissions of Bias (TC), 30 March 2012.

⁴⁰⁶⁷ Decision on Confidential Nizeyimana Defence Motion to Recall Witness BUR (TC), 26 March 2012. The Chamber found that the Defence had failed to meet its burden of proving that the Accused had suffered a degree of prejudice that would justify excluding Witness BUR's testimony.

⁴⁰⁶⁸ Decision on Confidential and Extremely Urgent Defence Motion for Judicial Cooperation with Rwanda (TC), 17 April 2012.

⁴⁰⁶⁹ Decision on Ildéphonse Nizeyimana's Ex Parte Motion for Judicial Cooperation with Canada (TC), 14 March 2011. On 20 May 2011, the Chamber denied the Defence second confidential and extremely urgent ex parte motion for judicial cooperation with Canada and directed the Defence to provide the Canadian government with the requested information. Decision on Second Confidential and Extremely Urgent Ex Parte Defence Motion for Judicial Cooperation with Canada (TC), 20 May 2011. On 7 June 2011, the Chamber ordered the Registry to re-classify the Defence motion filed in furtherance of the cooperation with Canada from ex parte to inter partes. T. 7 June 2011, p. 63.

⁴⁰⁷⁰ Decision on Defence Motion for Variance of Witness Protective Measures and International Cooperation of the Government of Canada (TC), 6 December 2011.

51. The Defence motion to recall Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ was denied on 7 May 2012 because the Defence failed to demonstrate circumstances that warranted the recalling of the witnesses in order to avoid prejudice to the Accused.⁴⁰⁷¹

52. The Judgement was rendered on 19 June 2012, with the written Judgement filed on 22 June 2012.

⁴⁰⁷¹ Confidential Decision on Nizeyimana Defence Motion to Recall Witnesses BXF, BZC and ZBJ (TC), 7 May 2012, paras. 8, 12, 19, 23, 38. Further, the Chamber dismissed as moot the Defence's request to have the audio recordings of Witnesses BXF and ZBJ's immigration hearings transcribed. Lastly, The Chamber further dismissed as moot the Defence request to reconsider its decision on the Defence compliance with Rule 66 (B).
